, content: NRI Depository Accounts are of two kinds:-

Non-Repatriable

Shares purchased through primary/secondary market prior to achieving NRI status.

Shares purchased through secondary market under portfolio investment scheme with non-repatriable funds.

Shares inherited from Indian resident family members.

Repatriable

Shares purchased through primary market with repatriable funds.

Shares purchased through secondary market under portfolio investment scheme for NRIs title: Ordinary Non- Resident Accounts, content: Ordinary non-resident accounts will be re-designated to resident accounts in India on return of the account holder to India and consequently becoming resident in India.

title: Non-Resident (External) Rupee Accounts, content: NRE accounts will also be converted to resident rupee accounts or RFC accounts at the option of the account holder on his return to India and becoming residents in India. In case of NRE fixed deposit, the accounts will continue to earn agreed rate of interest till maturity even after these being converted to resident account.

title: FCNR Accounts, content: FCNR accounts will be converted to resident rupee accounts or RFC account at the option of the account holder on his return to India and becoming resident in India.

In case the account is converted to resident rupee account, the foreign currency amount will be converted to Indian Rupees at applicable exchange rate ruling on the day of conversion. Interest on the new deposit would be payable at the relevant rate applicable on such deposit.

title: RFC Accounts, content: In case the amount is transferred to RFC account, the rate of interest applicable to RFC account will be payable. You can also open RFC account with the assets brought by you on return as well as your foreign assets held abroad, at any future date, should you so desire.

title: Terms & Conditions, content: RFC deposit can be held as term deposits for periods from 12 months up to 60 months.

RFC deposits of 12 months up to 60 months will enjoy the same interest rates as FCNR deposits (no interest will be paid for premature payment before 12 months). The amounts in RFC accounts are freely repatriable for the bona-fide purposes of the NRI.

No permission of Reserve Bank is required for opening or transferring RFC funds abroad.

Funds may be held in foreign currencies - USD, GBP, JPY, Euro, CAD and AUD.

RFC funds can be freely drawn in Indian Rupees for use locally.

For going abroad again, an NRI can freely use this money and also have the accounts re-designated as FCNR and NRE Accounts just as they were before 'return to India'.

title: Foreign Currency Linked Rupee Deposits (FCLRD) Scheme, content: This deposit plan offers the dual advantage and benefits of both NRE rupee deposits and FCNR deposits. Moreover, since the maturity value is determined in foreign currency at the time of application, the risk of losing money due to a fall in the exchange rate is eliminated.

title: Foreign Currency Linked Rupee Deposits (FCLRD) Scheme : Benefits, content: Provision for nomination

Easy liquidity and convertibility

Higher Loan Amount

Security for your money

Free Credit Card

Confidentiality of transactions and accounts title: Foreign Currency Non Resident B Term Deposit, content: This deposit plan enables entire maturity proceeds i.e. principal and interest fully repatriable in foreign currency (USD, GBP, EURO, AUD) at par at a place of your choice.

Funds may be transferred from FCNR account of one NRI to FCNR/non-resident (external) rupee savings/fixed deposit accounts of another NRI.

Easy liquidity and convertibility, no income tax liability on interest earned and confidentiality of transactions and accounts make this an ideal deposit plan.

Fixed deposits, in designated foreign currencies i.e. US Dollars, Sterling Pounds, EURO, Australian Dollar from NRIs, overseas corporate bodies (OCB) cannot have FCNR (B) Deposits effective from 16/09/2003).

title: Who is a Non-Resident Indian (NRI)?

, content: Non-Resident Indian (NRI) means a 'person resident outside India' who is a citizen of India or is a 'person of Indian origin'.

title: Who is a 'person resident outside India'?

, content: Under the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (FEMA), a person who is not a 'person resident in India' as defined under Section 2 (v) of the Act is considered a 'person resident outside India'. The most important change in definition (since FERA 1973) is that the citizenship of a person no longer has a bearing in determination of residential status.

title: Who is a 'person of Indian origin'?

, content: Person of Indian Origin' means a citizen of any country other than Bangladesh or Pakistan, if:-

He at any time held Indian passport; or

He or either of his parents or any of his grandparents was a citizen of India by virtue of the Constitution of India or the Citizenship Act, 1955; or title: What is an 'Overseas Corporate Body' (OCB)?, content: Overseas Corporate Body' means a company, partnership firm, society and other corporate body owned directly or indirectly to the extent of at least sixty per cent by Non-Resident Indians and includes overseas trust in which not less than sixty percent beneficial interest is held by Non-Resident Indians directly or indirectly but irrevocably.

The person is a spouse of an Indian citizen or a person referred to in sub-clause (a) or (b).

title: Where can an NRI open a demat account?, content: NRI can open a demat account with any Depository Participant. The NRI needs to mention the type ('NRI' as compared to 'Resident') and the sub-type ('Repatriable' or 'Non-Repatriable') in the account opening form collected from the Depository Participant.

title: Does an NRI need any RBI permission to open demat account?, content: No permission is required from RBI to open a demat account. Holding securities in demat only constitutes change in form and does not need any special permission.

title: Does NRI requires to take permission for dematerialisation/rematerialisation of securities?, content: No special permission is required. Holding securities in demat only constitutes change in form and does not need any special permission. Permission taken (where required) at the time of acquiring the securities is adequate.

title: Can securities purchased under repatriable and non-repatriable category be held in a single demat account?

, content: No. An NRI must open separate demat accounts for holding 'repatriable' and 'non-repatriable' securities.

title: How does NRI dematerialise securities purchased while he/she was resident?

, content: As per FEMA rules, NRI must regularize his/her holdings to reflect change of status - in this case, bring them to 'Non-Resident' status. For this, NRI must submit (if not already submitted to the issuing company earlier) a letter addressed to the issuing company along with the Demat Request Form stating change of status and giving details of foreign address.

title: What are the procedures to be followed in respect of investment in securities in case person resident in India becomes NRI?

, content: On becoming an NRI, a new depository account with appropriate NRI status is to be opened and all the balances held in account with 'Resident' status should be transferred to the account with NRI status & securities held under this account will be treated on non-repatriable basis.

title: What are the procedures to be followed in respect of investment in securities in case NRI becomes person resident in India?, content: On becoming a resident, a new depository account with appropriate status - 'Resident' in this case - is to be opened and all the balances held in account with 'Non-Resident' status should be transferred to 'Resident' status.

title: Can an NRI purchase securities by subscribing to an issue? What are the approvals required?

, content: The issuing company is required to issue shares to NRIs on the basis of specific or general permission from GoI/RBI. Therefore, individual NRI need not obtain any permission.

title: Can an NRI purchase securities in the secondary market? What are the approvals required in the new FEMA rules?, content: Purchases made in the secondary market are investments under Portfolio Investment Scheme. Permission to buy in the market is given by authorised dealers under the Portfolio Investment Scheme on repatriable/non-repatriable basis. The said permission is a one-time general permission.

title: Does an NRI require any permission to subscribe to rights issue of a company?, content: No.

title: Does an NRI require any permission to receive bonus shares?, content: No.

title: Can an NRI nominate or be nominated in depository account? Whether such nominee can be person resident in India?, content: Yes.

title: Can an NRI and person residing in India have a joint demat account?, content: Yes. For the purpose of determining ownership of holding, the first holder is taken into account. Hence, even though other joint holders may be persons residing in India, the sale proceeds of such securities can be repatriated in case the first holder is permitted to repatriate funds.

title: What are the permissions required for off-market transfer of securities?, content: From NRI to NRI - No permission

From person resident - No permission outside India to person resident in India (Gift)

From person resident in - Application to RBI India to person resident by transferor outside India (Gift)

From person resident in - Approval from GoI India to person resident and then RBI, if the outside India (Sale) acquisition is on repatriable basis. But if acquisition is on non-repatriable basis, approval only title: What type of bank accounts are to be given at the time of account opening and subsequently (by way of change of details)?, content: The bank details recorded by the Depository Participant may be used by the issuer of securities to directly credit the dividend or interest. The following bank accounts may be given:

For non-repatriable - NRO (dividend/interest is repatriable) - NRSR (dividend/interest is not repatriable). For repatriable - NRE.

A non-resident Indian (NRI) or an overseas corporate body (OCB) may purchase/sell shares and/or convertible debentures of an Indian company, through a registered broker on a recognised stock exchange, subject to the following:

The NRI/OCB designates a branch of an authorised dealer for routing his/its transactions relating to purchase and sale of shares/convertible debentures under this scheme, and routes all such transactions only through the branch so designated.

The paid up value of shares of an Indian company, purchased by each NRI or OCB both on repatriation and on non-repatriation basis, does not exceed 5 percent of the paid up value of shares issued by the company concerned.

The paid up value of each series of convertible debentures purchased by each NRI or OCB both on repatriation and non-repatriation basis does not exceed 5 percent of the paid up value of each series of convertible debentures issued by the company concerned.

The aggregate paid up value of shares of any company purchased by all NRIs and OCBs does not exceed 10 percent of the paid up capital of the company and in the case of purchase of convertible debentures the aggregate paid up value of each series of debentures purchased by all NRIs and OCBs does not exceed 10 percent of the paid up value of each series of convertible debentures.

Provided that the aggregate ceiling of 10 percent referred to in this clause may be raised to 24 percent if a special resolution to that effect is passed by the General Body of the concerned Indian company.

The NRI or OCB investor takes delivery of the shares purchased and gives delivery of shares sold.

Payment for purchase of shares and/or debentures is made by inward remittance in foreign exchange through normal banking channels or out of funds held in NRE/FCNR account maintained in India if the shares are purchased on repatriation basis and by inward remittance or out of funds held in NRE/FCNR/NRO/NRNR/NRSR account of the NRI/OCB concerned maintained in India where the shares or debentures are purchased on non-repatriation basis.

title: 18. YOUR DUTY OF CARE AND DILIGENCE, content: 3.1. Once your application for a Card is approved, the Card will be mailed to your address registered in our records. Green PIN for the card will have to be generated by you. If you fail to register online and generate the PIN for more than 21 days from the date of issuance of your card, the PIN will be mailed to you in a separate mailer. PIN will be communicated to you entirely at your risk. You shall not disclose the PIN to any person and shall take all possible care to avoid its discovery by any person.

title: 19. BALANCE TRANSFERS, content: 3.2. You may use your Card for making authorised purchases or obtaining cash advances. No other person is allowed to use the Card and/or PIN to make any transactions.

title: 20. EQUATED MONTHLY INSTALMENTS (EMI), content: 3.3. You shall be liable for all transactions made with the use of the PIN, whether with or without your knowledge. We reserve the right to refuse any transactions if it believes that the PIN is being misused or being used without appropriate authorisation.

title: 21. INSURANCE, content: 3.4. The Card is valid up to the last day of the month of the year indicated on the face of the Card unless cancelled earlier by us or you. Upon expiry or earlier cancellation, the Card may be renewed or reinstated at our sole discretion. On expiry, the Card must be destroyed by cutting it in half diagonally.

title: 22. REWARDS AND PRIVILEGES, content: 3.5. The Card is the property of BOBCARD Limited and must be surrendered to us on request. We may initiate an upgrade/exchange/change of the Card without any prior notice and without assigning any reason.

title: 23. THIRD PARTY OFFERS/DISCOUNTS, content: 4.1. The Card is valid for use in India and internationally as per usage restrictions, entitlements and other conditions stipulated by the RBI or any other Government authority from time to time.

4.2. The Card is not valid for payment in foreign exchange in Nepal and Bhutan. The currency of transaction on the Card in Nepal and Bhutan shall be the local currency or Indian Rupee.

4.3. You may not use or permit your card to be used to make any illegal transaction. You will only use your account for transactions that are legal where you conduct them. For example, Internet gambling transactions. Display of a Visa/MasterCard logo by an online merchant does not mean that an Internet transaction is legal where you conduct it. We may charge your account for such transactions. We will not be liable if you engage in an illegal transaction. We may deny authorization of any transactions identified as illegal or regulated by law like Internet gambling, buying of cryptocurrency etc.

4.4. You (including any Additional Cardholder) shall strictly comply with all requirements of the foreign exchange control/management regulations/ EXIM Policy issued by RBI from time to time and in the event of non-compliance, you will be liable for action under the applicable exchange control/ management regulations. Moreover, you may be debarred from holding the Card at the instance of RBI or us.

4.5. Use of the Card at Merchant Establishments will be limited by the credit limit assigned to you by us from time to time. In case of Additional Cards issued by us, the extent of use of all Cards so issued will be limited by the Card Account's credit limit. The Outstanding on the Card Account must not exceed the credit limit at any time. In the event of breach of this provision, you will be charged an over limit fee at the prevailing rate. You must repay the excess immediately. The over limit fee is subject to change at our discretion. The credit limit may be revised from time to time at our discretion.

4.6. We may, at any time without prior notice, refuse authorisation for a Charge incurred at a Merchant Establishment, and/or restrict or defer the your ability to use the Card and/or suspend or cancel the Card and/or repossess (directly or through a Merchant Establishment or any other third party) the Card if it reasonably believes that it is necessary to do so for proper management of credit or business risk or if the Card or the Card Account is being or likely to be misused or if you are in violation of the exchange control/management regulations or any other applicable law or regulation.

4.7. The Card cannot be used for any purposes other than personal expenses. In the event that you are found to be in violation of this term, we will be constrained to block the Card with immediate effect.

4.8. You shall ensure that you maintain a detailed record of your transactions on the Internet. We are not obliged to make any independent verification with regard to order details provided by you and shall be entitled to rely on the details submitted by you on the Internet.

4.9. Some transactions may attract a service charge, in addition to the amount of the Charge, at certain Merchant Establishments. We may also levy charges for collection of cheques, maintenance of the Card Accounts, and for other services that may be rendered to you from time to time.

4.10. You must collect the Charge slip, Cash Advance Slip or Mail Order Coupon at the time of incurring the Charge. Failure to sign a charge slip will not avoid liability for the Charges. You must retain your own copy of the charge slips. Copies of charge slips will not normally be provided by us. However, at our discretion, and upon your request, we may provide copies thereof subject to an additional charge.

4.11. In relation to Charges on account of mail order or telephone or electronic commerce (e.g. on the Internet) where a charge slip or voucher may not be available for signature, you accept that in the event of any dispute regarding the authenticity or validity of such a Charge, you will first clear your Outstanding on the Card and then endeavour to resolve the dispute directly with the concerned Merchant Establishment.

4.12. Any charge slip or other payment requisition (electronic or otherwise) received from a Merchant Establishment or any intermediary by us for payment shall be conclusive proof that the amount recorded on such charge slip or other requisition was properly incurred by the use of the Card by you. Should you choose to disagree with a Charge indicated in the monthly statement of account, the same should be communicated to us within 10 (ten) days of the statement date, failing which it would be construed that all Charges and the monthly statement of account are entirely in order.

4.13. You agree that an electronic record or printout of an electronic record or a copy produced from a microfilm or a scanned /digital image of any document or Charge relating to your Card/Card Account with us or produced from data received by us electronically from the Merchant Establishment or from you or any intermediary, shall be conclusive evidence of that document or Charge for any purpose.

4.14. We will not be responsible if any Merchant Establishment refuses to accept the Card or is unable to transact on the Card or levies a surcharge on the Card. However, you should notify us of this complaint. We are not responsible or liable for any defect or deficiency in respect of goods and services charged to the Card. Any dispute should be settled directly by you with the Merchant Establishment and failure to do so will not relieve you of any obligations to us. The existence of a claim or dispute shall not relieve you of your obligation to pay all Charges and you agree to pay promptly such Charges, notwithstanding any dispute or claim whatsoever. No claim by you against a Merchant Establishment will be the subject of a set-off or counterclaim against us.

5. CREDIT LIMIT

5.1. We will, at our sole discretion, determine the credit limit and cash withdrawal limit (part of credit limit) for you (including the add-on cardholder/s). Credit limit and available credit limit will also be shown on the monthly bills. We may at our discretion and/or on your request, revise the credit limit from time to time.

5.2. We reserve the right to cancel, suspend or reduce the credit limit available to you at any time without prior notice, with or without assigning any reason.

5.3. Your credit limit can be cancelled automatically in the event of deterioration in your creditworthiness.

5.4. The outstanding on the card account must not exceed the credit limit at any time, failing which exceeding limit charges are applicable /may even lead to blocking of card.

5.5. In the event you make payment over and above the amount due as per the monthly bills, you shall not be entitled for interest on the credit balance and the same shall be adjusted against the amount due subsequently.

5.6. Credit limit and Cash limit assigned to you is based on various factors including but not limited to our internal parameters, the credit history with the credit bureaus. On periodic review of the card account, we reserve the right to allow you to continue with the same / reduced limit. If you are seeking to have your limits enhanced, you can do so by writing to us and providing documents as required. We at our sole discretion may/may not increase the limit without assigning any reasons/ clarifications.

5.7. You agree that the credit limit will be reduced by such portion of the purchase price that is unpaid, although the same may not be posted to your Card Account as yet.

5.8. CHARGES/USE NOT TO EXCEED OVERALL CREDIT LIMIT: The total charges incurred by you under each Card Account by the Principal Cardholder and the Additional Cardholder(s) when added together, must not exceed the credit limit set for each Card Account.

5.9. We may, where necessary, review and alter any of your credit limits without notice.

5.10. The outstanding on the card account must not exceed the credit limit at any time, failing which you will be charged additional 1% over and above the sanctioned credit limit.

5.11. Transaction alerts received may not be assumed as a confirmation of transaction completion.

6. CASH WITHDRAWAL LIMIT

6.1. You may use your Card to obtain cash advances only up to the limit determined by us from time to time.

6.2. This limit shall form part of your overall credit limit

6.3. You can use the credit card to withdraw cash from ATMs/cash dispensing locations in India or overseas in accordance with the compatibility of the credit card at the said ATM(s)/cash dispensing locations. A transaction fee shall be levied on all such withdrawals and would be billed to you in the next/forthcoming statement.

6.4. Further, cash withdrawal transactions shall also carry service charge from the date of transaction till the date of full payment.

7. RENEWAL

14.2. The necessary action which may include rectification, if any will be done on the basis of merits of individual cases and after due investigation to our full and final satisfaction. Investigations conducted by us shall be final and binding on you.

14.3. Disputes raised after the period as aforesaid, shall be accepted at our sole discretion.

14.4. Liability to clear outstanding dues shall not be affected merely by existence of a pending claim or a dispute between you and us.

15. CHARGEBACK AND CANCELLATION

15.1. Any transaction is dispute should be brought to our immediate knowledge in writing. It should be supported with proper evidence.

15.2. Chargeback is governed as per our internal policies and various international guidelines set up by card associations.

15.3. A purchase and a cancellation of goods/services, e.g. air/rail tickets, are two separate transactions. You must pay for the purchase transaction as it appears on the statement to avoid incurring finance charges or fees. Credit of refund on account of cancellation will be made to the Card Account (less cancellation charges) only when received from the Merchant Establishment. No cash refund will be given to you. If a credit is not posted to the Card Account within a reasonable time, you must notify us within 30 (thirty) days of cancellation.

16. DEFAULT AND REPORTING

16.1. In-case of non-payment of minimum dues for by payment due date the card would be blocked and may be unblocked only after receipt of required payment. However, we reserve the right to withdraw the card facility or reduce the credit limit at its sole discretion without prior notice. In case of continued non-payment of card outstanding, we may cancel the credit card and the same may not be reinstated even after the dues are paid.

16.2. WHEN WE MAY REQUIRE IMMEDIATE REPAYMENT If you are in default, then in addition to our other remedies under this Agreement, we can require immediate payment of your total outstanding balance and, we can also require you to pay the costs we incur in any collection proceeding, as well as reasonable attorneys' fees if we refer your account for collection to an attorney who is not our salaried employee.

16.3. If you do not pay at least the minimum dues by the payment due date, the card will be reported (days past due) in the monthly submissions to the Credit Information Companies (CICs), authorized by the RBI. If any dues or outstanding payable by you to us hereunder remains due and payable, you shall be reported to the RBI or any other authority as per prevailing norm and, as required under the applicable regulations/laws. If requisite payment is made, the record will be accordingly updated in the subsequent monthly reporting to the CICs.

16.4. In case of your death/ permanent incapacitation, the entire outstanding balance (including unbilled transactions) will become immediately due and payable to us. Any outstanding in the credit card account shall be a legally binding and recoverable from your successors, beneficiaries, legal heirs and estate.

17. RECOVERY IN CASE OF DEFAULT AND ARBITRATION CLAUSE

17.1. In the event of default (if the minimum amount due is not paid by the payment due date or breach of any clause of your agreement), you will be sent reminder of any outstanding on the credit card account, by visit, post, fax, telephone, e-mail, SMS messaging and/ or through third parties appointed for collection purpose to remind, follow-up and collect dues.

17.2. Without Prejudice to the rights available to us under prevailing legislation, all dispute including but not limited to the differences and/or claims/dues arising at any time during its subsistence or thereafter between the parties arising in respect of Card holder Agreement/ MITC/ Card issuance etc, hereof shall be settled by Arbitration, in accordance with the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 and its subsequent statutory modification or re-enactment for the time being in force and shall be conducted by a mutually appointed sole arbitrator.

17.3. In absence of any recommendation from Cardholder for appointment of Arbitrator within 30 days from date of Notice for invoking arbitration, nomination recommended by us for sole arbitrator will deemed to have been accepted.

17.4. The Arbitration proceedings shall be conducted in English at a venue in Mumbai under Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

17.5. The decision of the Arbitrator shall be final and binding upon the parties.

17.6. In case of default in payment of the card outstanding, we, not limited to though, reserve the right to take legal recourse for collection of outstanding dues on the card account(s) apart from pursuing all other remedies available to it within the framework of the law of the land

18. YOUR DUTY OF CARE AND DILIGENCE

18.1. You promise and commit to pay all due you incur in use of your card, which includes all Cash withdrawals. You also promise to pay us all the amounts of interest charges, fees, and any other transactions charged to your Card account.

18.2. Each billing cycle, you must pay at least the Minimum Due shown on your monthly statement by its Due Date. You may pay your total outstanding balance at any time.

18.3. YOUR CREDIT CARD AND YOUR MOBILE PHONE OR OTHER MOBILE DEVICES: Smart phones, tablets or other mobile devices (a "mobile device") can download, store, and/or access account information, for instance through a mobile wallet, that may enable you to use the mobile device to purchase goods or services, make a balance transfer, or make a cash advance.

In certain instances, those transactions will replicate using your card to make a transaction on the internet with your computer. In other instances, the phone or mobile device will act as if it were a credit card itself. Applications that enable your mobile device will have unique terms governing those applications. Read them carefully. Transactions made through those applications are governed by this Agreement.

When your credit card account information is accessible by your mobile device, it is important that you treat your mobile device with the same care you would your credit card. For example, you should secure your mobile device against unauthorized access. Keep in mind, if you give someone your phone, or other mobile device, that can be the same as giving that person your credit card.

18.4. DUTY TO NOTIFY US: Should you discover that your Card is lost, stolen or used or PIN or any detail or particular of your Card or Card Account is stolen, disclosed or used in an unauthorised way, you shall notify us immediately of the loss, theft or unauthorised use by calling our Customer Service at 1800 225 100 / 1800 103 1006 (24 x 7 All India Toll Free) or SMS to +91 9323803935 or by email at wbc@bobfinancial.com. You can also block credit card through <https://online.bobcards.com> (if registered). You will be required to make a police report accompanied by written confirmation of the loss/theft/ disclosure and any other information that we may require.

18.5. RECOVERY OF LOST/STOLEN CARD: If you recover the lost or stolen Card, you must immediately destroy it by cutting it diagonally and ensuring that the magnetic tape is destroyed.

18.6. LIABILITY FOR LOST/STOLEN CARDS: If your Card is lost or stolen or if the PIN is disclosed without your authorisation, your liability for unauthorised transactions may be limited if:

you have immediately notified us of the loss, theft or unauthorised disclosure;
you assist us in the recovery of the unauthorised charges incurred;

you furnish us with a police report accompanied by written confirmation of the loss, theft or unauthorised disclosure and any other information that we may require; and we are satisfied that such loss, theft or unauthorised disclosure is not due to your negligence or default.

You shall not be liable for any transactions carried out after we have been notified of the loss, theft or disclosure and the card is blocked.

18.7. DUTY OF RESPECTABLE BEHAVIOUR: Fraud and/or abuse relating to your card will result in termination of the card account and all outstanding (including all unsettled and unbilled transactions) will become immediately due. You will not resort to provocative and unparliamentary language or rude and disruptive behaviour, cause distress and impact on morale and efficiency when interacting with our authorised representatives. We must inform you with heavy heart, if you are found to be offensive in your interaction with us, we will be required to close your card account and recover all outstanding from you immediately.

18.8. DUTY TO SAFEGUARD: You must not share any details pertaining to your card with any third party.

18.9. DUTY TO NOTIFY US WHEN YOU CHANGE YOUR ADDRESS AND MOBILE NUMBER: You must notify us promptly when you change your address and mobile number. We may also change your address if so notified by associates, CICs and other agencies.

19. BALANCE TRANSFERS

19.1. We may, at its sole discretion, permit from time to time, you to transfer your Outstanding balances (â€œBalance Transfer/sâ€ ) on other credit cards and credit facilities availed by you from other companies and financial institutions. Balance Transfers will not be accepted from overdue status accounts or where the credit limit has been exceeded or which are greater than the Outstanding balances on such other credit cards and will be limited to such percentage of the available credit limit on the Card as may be determined by us. By choosing to avail of the Balance Transfer facility, you authorize us to make payments to companies / financial institutions so designated. We, however, reserves its absolute right to refuse any Balance Transfer request. You must continue to meet your obligations in respect of your existing credit facilities, balances of which are the subject of Transfer hereunder, until you have received a written intimation from us that the Balance Transfer request has been accepted and payments have been made to the companies/financial institutions so designated. We will not be liable for any new charges, overdue payments or interests incurred on other credit cards/facilities. We may, in its discretion, stipulate additional terms and conditions from time to time.

20. EQUATED MONTHLY INSTALMENTS (EMI)

20.1. The Credit Card transactions of INR 2500 and above will be eligible for conversion to EMI. The EMI facility is not applicable for cash withdrawals, card fees and Gold and Jewellery.

20.2. EMI facility is available to you at our sole discretion. We reserve the right to accept or reject the EMI request.

20.3. EMI facility is available for various months. You may call the 24*7 credit card customer care number regarding interest rates, processing charges, pre closure charges.

20.4. Once approved and processed EMI request cannot be cancelled. The interest rate and processing fees confirmed at the time of booking will be applicable. Tenure confirmed at the time of booking cannot be changed.

20.5. Monthly payment dues include EMI, interest and applicable taxes on the interest amount of the EMI. These monthly payment dues will be billed in the monthly statement starting from the immediate billing cycle date and be part of the Minimum Payment Due appearing in your monthly credit card statement or as decided by us from time to time.

20.6. The first EMI shall be billed on the first billing date for the Credit Card that falls post the date of the transaction on the Credit Card that is being converted into EMI as per the EMI plan.

20.7. All billing of EMIs in the subsequent months shall be on the billing date of the Credit Card for that month.

20.8. A transaction can be converted to EMI only before it is billed.

20.9. Credit limit to the extent of the transaction value shall be blocked. It will be released in proportion of repayment done by you.

21. INSURANCE

21.1. We may take various insurance covers from time to time for your benefit. The cover amount shall be decided at our sole discretion and we reserve the right to continue/ withdraw the facility without notice.

21.2. Insurance facility is available to primary cardholders only.

21.3. Insurance Cover is extended only in case of Accidental Death of Primary cardholder. You understand that natural death is not covered under the policy.

21.4. No separate policy copy or document will be provided to you.

21.5. The amount of the cover may vary from year to year depending upon the type of cover taken for the particular year. (For details of existing policy, please refer to our website www.bobinancial.com)

21.7. No insurance is payable for blocked/ cancelled/ irregular card account.

21.8. In the event of settlement of claim by the insurer, the claim amount shall be first adjusted against the outstanding credit card dues, if any and the administrative charges as under:

Administrative Charge (<)

If no/less usage in the card is observed

21.9. The adjusted claim sum as referred above shall be released to the person, as may be nominated by you from time to time, excluding other family members.

21.10. In other case the amount may be released to your legal heirs, subject to receipt of satisfactory proof of their inheritance and other documents, as may be required by the insurer from time to time.

21.11. You shall take utmost care to nominate one of your family members for getting the settled claim, if any. We shall not take any responsibility for the delay caused, if any, in releasing the claim amount, for want of proper documents/ nominee.

21.12. We are taking insurance from various insurers for your benefits. In the event of rejection of claim by the insurer, we shall not be liable to settle the claim on behalf of the insurer. We shall not be responsible for any dispute arising due to claim settlement.

21.13. It is clarified that for matter relating to settlement of insurance claims, we are acting as a facilitator only and in any case, the same shall be decided between the insurer and you.

21.14. The liability to clear outstanding dues shall not be affected merely by existence of a pending claim or a dispute between you and the insurer.

21.15. In the event of non-clearance of outstanding dues by you/nominee, as the case may be, we reserve our right to not to entertain any request/ correspondence towards insurance settlement.

21.16. We may charge a nominal fee (subject to one-month prior notice) for extending the insurance cover to you, if you opt to avail the facility.

21.17. Insurance is optional and a subject matter of solicitation.

21.18. You further acknowledge that the insurance cover so provided will be available to you only as per the terms of the relevant insurance policy in force and only so long as the Card Account is maintained in good standing. On the Card being suspended or cancelled for whatever reason, the benefit of such insurance cover shall automatically and ipso facto cease to be available from the date of suspension/cancellation of the title: 24. LOSS/THEFT/MISUSE OF YOUR CARD, content: 4.2. The Card is not valid for payment in foreign exchange in Nepal and Bhutan. The currency of transaction on the Card in Nepal and Bhutan shall be the local currency or Indian Rupee.

4.3. You may not use or permit your card to be used to make any illegal transaction. You will only use your account for transactions that are legal where you conduct them. For example, Internet gambling transactions. Display of a Visa/MasterCard logo by an online merchant does not mean that an Internet transaction is legal where you conduct it. We may charge your account for such transactions. We will not be liable if you engage in an illegal transaction. We may deny authorization of any transactions identified as illegal or regulated by law like Internet gambling, buying of cryptocurrency etc.

4.4. You (including any Additional Cardholder) shall strictly comply with all requirements of the foreign exchange control/management regulations/ EXIM Policy issued by RBI from time to time and in the event of non-compliance, you will be liable for action under the applicable exchange control/ management regulations. Moreover, you may be debarred from holding the Card at the instance of RBI or us.

4.5. Use of the Card at Merchant Establishments will be limited by the credit limit assigned to you by us from time to time. In case of Additional Cards issued by us, the extent of use of all Cards so issued will be limited by the Card Account's credit limit. The Outstanding on the Card Account must not exceed the credit limit at any time. In the event of breach of this provision, you will be charged an over limit fee at the prevailing rate. You must repay the excess immediately. The over limit fee is subject to change at our discretion. The credit limit may be revised from time to time at our discretion.

4.6. We may, at any time without prior notice, refuse authorisation for a Charge incurred at a Merchant Establishment, and/or restrict or defer the your ability to use the Card and/or suspend or cancel the Card and/or repossess (directly or through a Merchant Establishment or any other third party) the Card if it reasonably believes that it is necessary to do so for proper management of credit or business risk or if the Card or the Card Account is being or likely to be misused or if you are in violation of the exchange control/management regulations or any other applicable law or regulation.

4.7. The Card cannot be used for any purposes other than personal expenses. In the event that you are found to be in violation of this term, we will be constrained to block the Card with immediate effect.

4.8. You shall ensure that you maintain a detailed record of your transactions on the Internet. We are not obliged to make any independent verification with regard to order details provided by you and shall be entitled to rely on the details submitted by you on the Internet.

4.9. Some transactions may attract a service charge, in addition to the amount of the Charge, at certain Merchant Establishments. We may also levy charges for collection of cheques, maintenance of the Card Accounts, and for other services that may be rendered to you from time to time.

4.10. You must collect the Charge slip, Cash Advance Slip or Mail Order Coupon at the time of incurring the Charge. Failure to sign a charge slip will not avoid liability for the Charges. You must retain your own copy of the charge slips. Copies of charge slips will not normally be provided by us. However, at our discretion, and upon your request, we may provide copies thereof subject to an additional charge.

4.11. In relation to Charges on account of mail order or telephone or electronic commerce (e.g. on the Internet) where a charge slip or voucher may not be available for signature, you accept that in the event of any dispute regarding the authenticity or validity of such a Charge, you will first clear your Outstanding on the Card and then endeavour to resolve the dispute directly with the concerned Merchant Establishment.

4.12. Any charge slip or other payment requisition (electronic or otherwise) received from a Merchant Establishment or any intermediary by us for payment shall be conclusive proof that the amount recorded on such charge slip or other requisition was properly incurred by the use of the Card by you. Should you choose to disagree with a Charge indicated in the monthly statement of account, the same should be communicated to us within 10 (ten) days of the statement date, failing which it would be construed that all Charges and the monthly statement of account are entirely in order.

4.13. You agree that an electronic record or printout of an electronic record or a copy produced from a microfilm or a scanned /digital image of any document or Charge relating to your Card/Card Account with us or produced from data received by us electronically from the Merchant Establishment or from you or any intermediary, shall be conclusive evidence of that document or Charge for any purpose.

4.14. We will not be responsible if any Merchant Establishment refuses to accept the Card or is unable to transact on the Card or levies a surcharge on the Card. However, you should notify us of this complaint. We are not responsible or liable for any defect or deficiency in respect of goods and services charged to the Card. Any dispute should be settled directly by you with the Merchant Establishment and failure to do so will not relieve you of any obligations to us. The existence of a claim or dispute shall not relieve you of your obligation to pay all Charges and you agree to pay promptly such Charges, notwithstanding any dispute or claim whatsoever. No claim by you against a Merchant Establishment will be the subject of a set-off or counterclaim against us.

5. CREDIT LIMIT

5.1. We will, at our sole discretion, determine the credit limit and cash withdrawal limit (part of credit limit) for you (including the add-on cardholder/s). Credit limit and available credit limit will also be shown on the monthly bills. We may at our discretion and/or on your request, revise the credit limit from time to time.

5.2. We reserve the right to cancel, suspend or reduce the credit limit available to you at any time without prior notice, with or without assigning any reason.

5.3. Your credit limit can be cancelled automatically in the event of deterioration in your creditworthiness.

5.4. The outstanding on the card account must not exceed the credit limit at any time, failing which exceeding limit charges are applicable /may even lead to blocking of card.

5.5. In the event you make payment over and above the amount due as per the monthly bills, you shall not be entitled for interest on the credit balance and the same shall be adjusted against the amount due subsequently.

5.6. Credit limit and Cash limit assigned to you is based on various factors including but not limited to our internal parameters, the credit history with the credit bureaus. On periodic review of the card account, we reserve the right to allow you to continue with the same / reduced limit. If you are seeking to have your limits enhanced, you can do so by writing to us and providing documents as required. We at our sole discretion may/may not increase the limit without assigning any reasons/ clarifications.

5.7. You agree that the credit limit will be reduced by such portion of the purchase price that is unpaid, although the same may not be posted to your Card Account as yet.

5.8. CHARGES/USE NOT TO EXCEED OVERALL CREDIT LIMIT: The total charges incurred by you under each Card Account by the Principal Cardholder and the Additional Cardholder(s) when added together, must not exceed the credit limit set for each Card Account.

5.9. We may, where necessary, review and alter any of your credit limits without notice.

5.10. The outstanding on the card account must not exceed the credit limit at any time, failing which you will be charged additional 1% over and above the sanctioned credit limit.

5.11. Transaction alerts received may not be assumed as a confirmation of transaction completion.

6. CASH WITHDRAWAL LIMIT

18. YOUR DUTY OF CARE AND DILIGENCE

18.1. You promise and commit to pay all due you incur in use of your card, which includes all Cash withdrawals. You also promise to pay us all the amounts of interest charges, fees, and any other transactions charged to your Card account.

18.2. Each billing cycle, you must pay at least the Minimum Due shown on your monthly statement by its Due Date. You may pay your total outstanding balance at any time.

18.3. YOUR CREDIT CARD AND YOUR MOBILE PHONE OR OTHER MOBILE DEVICES: Smart phones, tablets or other mobile devices (a "mobile device") can download, store, and/or access account information, for instance through a mobile wallet, that may enable you to use the mobile device to purchase goods or services, make a balance transfer, or make a cash advance.

In certain instances, those transactions will replicate using your card to make a transaction on the internet with your computer. In other instances, the phone or mobile device will act as if it were a credit card itself. Applications that enable your mobile device will have unique terms governing those applications. Read them carefully. Transactions made through those applications are governed by this Agreement.

When your credit card account information is accessible by your mobile device, it is important that you treat your mobile device with the same care you would your credit card. For example, you should secure your mobile device against unauthorized access. Keep in mind, if you give someone your phone, or other mobile device, that can be the same as giving that person your credit card.

18.4. DUTY TO NOTIFY US: Should you discover that your Card is lost, stolen or used or PIN or any detail or particular of your Card or Card Account is stolen, disclosed or used in an unauthorised way, you shall notify us immediately of the loss, theft or unauthorised use by calling our Customer Service at 1800 225 100 / 1800 103 1006 (24 x 7 All India Toll Free) or SMS to +91 9323803935 or by email at wbc@bobfinancial.com. You can also block credit card through <https://online.bobcards.com> (if registered). You will be required to make a police report accompanied by written confirmation of the loss/theft/ disclosure and any other information that we may require.

18.5. RECOVERY OF LOST/STOLEN CARD: If you recover the lost or stolen Card, you must immediately destroy it by cutting it diagonally and ensuring that the magnetic tape is destroyed.

18.6. LIABILITY FOR LOST/STOLEN CARDS: If your Card is lost or stolen or if the PIN is disclosed without your authorisation, your liability for unauthorised transactions may be limited if:

you have immediately notified us of the loss, theft or unauthorised disclosure;
you assist us in the recovery of the unauthorised charges incurred;
you furnish us with a police report accompanied by written confirmation of the loss, theft or unauthorised disclosure and any other information that we may require; and

18.7. DUTY OF RESPECTABLE BEHAVIOUR: Fraud and/or abuse relating to your card will result in termination of the card account and all outstanding (including all unsettled and unbilled transactions) will become immediately due. You will not resort to provocative and unparliamentary language or rude and disruptive behaviour, cause distress and impact on morale and efficiency when interacting with our authorised representatives. We must inform you with heavy heart, if you are found to be offensive in your interaction with us, we will be required to close your card account and recover all outstanding from you immediately.

18.8. DUTY TO SAFEGUARD: You must not share any details pertaining to your card with any third party.

18.9. DUTY TO NOTIFY US WHEN YOU CHANGE YOUR ADDRESS AND MOBILE NUMBER: You must notify us promptly when you change your address and mobile number. We may also change your address if so notified by associates, CICs and other agencies.

19. BALANCE TRANSFERS

19.1. We may, at its sole discretion, permit from time to time, you to transfer your Outstanding balances (â€œBalance Transfer/sâ€ ) on other credit cards and credit facilities availed by you from other companies and financial institutions. Balance Transfers will not be accepted from overdue status accounts or where the credit limit has been exceeded or which are greater than the Outstanding balances on such other credit cards and will be limited to such percentage of the available credit limit on the Card as may be determined by us. By choosing to avail of the Balance Transfer facility, you authorize us to make payments to companies / financial institutions so designated. We, however, reserves its absolute right to refuse any Balance Transfer request. You must continue to meet your obligations in respect of your existing credit facilities, balances of which are the subject of Transfer hereunder, until you have received a written intimation from us that the Balance Transfer request has been accepted and payments have been made to the companies/financial institutions so designated. We will not be liable for any new charges, overdue payments or interests incurred on other credit cards/facilities. We may, in its discretion, stipulate additional terms and conditions from time to time.

20. EQUATED MONTHLY INSTALMENTS (EMI)

20.1. The Credit Card transactions of INR 2500 and above will be eligible for conversion to EMI. The EMI facility is not applicable for cash withdrawals, card fees and Gold and Jewellery.

20.2. EMI facility is available to you at our sole discretion. We reserve the right to accept or reject the EMI request.

20.3. EMI facility is available for various months. You may call the 24*7 credit card customer care number regarding interest rates, processing charges, pre closure charges.

20.4. Once approved and processed EMI request cannot be cancelled. The interest rate and processing fees confirmed at the time of booking will be applicable. Tenure confirmed at the time of booking cannot be changed.

20.5. Monthly payment dues include EMI, interest and applicable taxes on the interest amount of the EMI. These monthly payment dues will be billed in the monthly statement starting from the immediate billing cycle date and be part of the Minimum Payment Due appearing in your monthly credit card statement or as decided by us from time to time.

20.6. The first EMI shall be billed on the first billing date for the Credit Card that falls post the date of the transaction on the Credit Card that is being converted into EMI as per the EMI plan.

20.7. All billing of EMIs in the subsequent months shall be on the billing date of the Credit Card for that month.

20.8. A transaction can be converted to EMI only before it is billed.

20.9. Credit limit to the extent of the transaction value shall be blocked. It will be released in proportion of repayment done by you.

21. INSURANCE

21.1. We may take various insurance covers from time to time for your benefit. The cover amount shall be decided at our sole discretion and we reserve the right to continue/ withdraw the facility without notice.

21.2. Insurance facility is available to primary cardholders only.

21.3. Insurance Cover is extended only in case of Accidental Death of Primary cardholder. You understand that natural death is not covered under the policy.

21.4. No separate policy copy or document will be provided to you.

21.5. The amount of the cover may vary from year to year depending upon the type of cover taken for the particular year. (For details of existing policy, please refer to our website www.bobinancial.com)

21.7. No insurance is payable for blocked/ cancelled/ irregular card account.

21.8. In the event of settlement of claim by the insurer, the claim amount shall be first adjusted against the outstanding credit card dues, if any and the administrative charges as under:

Administrative Charge (<)

If no/less usage in the card is observed

21.9. The adjusted claim sum as referred above shall be released to the person, as may be nominated by you from time to time, excluding other family members.

21.10. In other case the amount may be released to your legal heirs, subject to receipt of satisfactory proof of their inheritance and other documents, as may be required by the insurer from time to time.

21.11. You shall take utmost care to nominate one of your family members for getting the settled claim, if any. We shall not take any responsibility for the delay caused, if any, in releasing the claim amount, for want of proper documents/ nominee.

21.12. We are taking insurance from various insurers for your benefits. In the event of rejection of claim by the insurer, we shall not be liable to settle the claim on behalf of the insurer. We shall not be responsible for any dispute arising due to claim settlement.

21.13. It is clarified that for matter relating to settlement of insurance claims, we are acting as a facilitator only and in any case, the same shall be decided between the insurer and you.

21.14. The liability to clear outstanding dues shall not be affected merely by existence of a pending claim or a dispute between you and the insurer.

21.15. In the event of non-clearance of outstanding dues by you/nominee, as the case may be, we reserve our right to not to entertain any request/ correspondence towards insurance settlement.

21.16. We may charge a nominal fee (subject to one-month prior notice) for extending the insurance cover to you, if you opt to avail the facility.

21.17. Insurance is optional and a subject matter of solicitation.

21.18. You further acknowledge that the insurance cover so provided will be available to you only as per the terms of the relevant insurance policy in force and only so long as the Card Account is maintained in good standing. On the Card being suspended or cancelled for whatever reason, the benefit of such insurance cover shall automatically and ipso facto cease to be available from the date of suspension/cancellation of the Card Account.

21.19. You hereby authorize us to require the insurance company to settle any Outstanding on your Card Account before payment of any compensation or claim to your heirs, nominees, benefici title: 25. TERMINATION/SUSPENSION, content: 4.3.

You may not use or permit your card to be used to make any illegal transaction. You will only use your account for transactions that are legal where you conduct them. For example, Internet gambling transactions. Display of a Visa/MasterCard logo by an online merchant does not mean that an Internet transaction is legal where you conduct it. We may charge your account for such transactions. We will not be liable if you engage in an illegal transaction. We may deny authorization of any transactions identified as illegal or regulated by law like Internet gambling, buying of cryptocurrency etc.

title: 26. PRIMARY CARDHOLDER AND ADD ON CARDS, content: 4.4. You (including any Additional Cardholder) shall strictly comply with all requirements of the foreign exchange control/management regulations/ EXIM Policy issued by RBI from time to time and in the event of non-compliance, you will be liable for action under the applicable exchange control/ management regulations. Moreover, you may be debarred from holding the Card at the instance of RBI or us.

title: 27. JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY, content: 4.5. Use of the Card at Merchant Establishments will be limited by the credit limit assigned to you by us from time to time. In case of Additional Cards issued by us, the extent of use of all Cards so issued will be limited by the Card Account's credit limit. The Outstanding on the Card Account must not exceed the credit limit at any time. In the event of breach of this provision, you will be charged an over limit fee at the prevailing rate. You must repay the excess immediately. The over limit fee is subject to change at our discretion. The credit limit may be revised from time to time at our discretion.

title: 28. MISCELLANEOUS, content: 4.6. We may, at any time without prior notice, refuse authorisation for a Charge incurred at a Merchant Establishment, and/or restrict or defer the your ability to use the Card and/or suspend or cancel the Card and/or repossess (directly or through a Merchant Establishment or any other third party) the Card if it reasonably believes that it is necessary to do so for proper management of credit or business risk or if the Card or the Card Account is being or likely to be misused or if you are in violation of the exchange control/management regulations or any other applicable law or regulation.

title: 29. INFORMATION AND PRIVACY, content: 4.7. The Card cannot be used for any purposes other than personal expenses. In the event that you are found to be in violation of this term, we will be constrained to block the Card with immediate effect.

title: 30. JURISDICTION, content: 4.8. You shall ensure that you maintain a detailed record of your transactions on the Internet. We are not obliged to make any independent verification with regard to order details provided by you and shall be entitled to rely on the details submitted by you on the Internet.

title: 31. SEVERABILITY, content: 4.9. Some transactions may attract a service charge, in addition to the amount of the Charge, at certain Merchant Establishments. We may also levy charges for collection of cheques, maintenance of the Card Accounts, and for other services that may be rendered to you from time to time.

title: Statutory Links, content: 4.10. You must collect the Charge slip, Cash Advance Slip or Mail Order Coupon at the time of incurring the Charge. Failure to sign a charge slip will not avoid liability for the Charges. You must retain your own copy of the charge slips. Copies of charge slips will not normally be provided by us. However, at our discretion, and upon your request, we may provide copies thereof subject to an additional charge.

title: COVID-19 MORATORIUM - Extension, content: Dear Cardholder,

We hope you and your family are safe and secure during the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, and are following the guidelines of the local, state and national authorities.

This communication is regarding extension of Moratorium on payments for your Bank of Baroda (BoB) Credit Card dues. This extension is as per the guidelines of RBI, where a 3-month Moratorium was first permitted for payments due from 1st March 2020 to 31st May 2020, and has been extended now for payments due from 1st June 2020 to 31st August 2020. For your convenience, we are offering the Moratorium to all customers who have been paying regularly till 29th February 2020.

The moratorium is summarised below:

arrow As advised by the RBI, the Moratorium, first granted for payments falling due between 1st March 2020 and 31st May 2020 has now been extended to payments falling due till 31st August 2020 arrow The Moratorium is applicable for your BoB Credit Card dues as indicated in the statements dated 1st June 2020, 1st July 2020 and 1st August 2020 arrow You are eligible for the Moratorium if your statement dated 1st March 2020 did NOT mention "IMMEDIATE" under the "Payment Due Date" column.

arrow If your 1st March 2020 statement mentioned "IMMEDIATE" under Payment Due Date, please make the payment as advised on the statement or on call from our representatives, to make your BoB credit card account regular. Once your card account is regular and your statements of 1st June, 1st July and 1st August do not mention "IMMEDIATE", you will be eligible for the remaining Moratorium period.

arrow If you are eligible for the Moratorium, you may choose not to make any payment towards the dues indicated in the 1st June, 1st July and 1st August statements. No Late Payment Charges will be levied as part of the Moratorium. Your card account will continue to be regular and will not be reported as overdue/delinquent during the Moratorium period.

arrow However, as advised by the RBI, interest will continue to occur on the unpaid balance and fresh transactions, unless you pay the Total Payment Due. We recommend you continue to make payments to avoid/reduce accrual of interest.

arrow Please note that any payments already made towards your 1st June statement

arrow If you have opted for Auto Debit, we will debit your BoB savings account towards the payments due in the 1st June, 1st July and 1st August statements. If you do not want us to debit your BoB savings account during the Moratorium extension, please respond to the SMS and E-mail you'll receive from us shortly.

arrow As per current guidelines, the Moratorium will end on 31st August 2020. Hence, the statement dated 1st September 2020 will require you to pay at least the Minimum Payment Due by the Payment Due Date, to avoid levy of Late Payment Charges and your credit card becoming overdue/delinquent. The statement will also have the interest accrued during the Moratorium period, and will be part of payment due.

For more questions about the moratorium, please check the FAQ. You can also check the Most Important Terms & Conditions to understand how interest is charged on the unpaid balances and fresh transactions, if you don't pay the Total Payment Due.

As you are aware, our customer service helpline is working with minimal staff. We encourage you to visit the customer portal for self-service of your credit card account to the extent possible. If you still need help, please write to crm@bobfinancial.com and we will try and respond at the earliest possible.

We are with you as we navigate the COVID-19 pandemic together, and assure you of our best services always.

Warm Regards,

title: Some valuable points to ponder to avoid misuse on your credit card:

, content: Never keep your card insecurely in your pockets or bags. Always keep your credit card at the same place in your wallet/purse so that you may notice immediately if it is lost/stolen/misplaced. Never leave your credit card unattended under any circumstances. Do not share credit card PIN with anyone including the family members. Once PIN mailer has been received, memorize the PIN and destroy the mail. Do not keep written record of your PIN in any form anywhere and never write it on your credit card. Always ensure that merchant uses your card in your presence and ensure they do not write your card details. Please verify the returned card belongs to you. Always call our helpline number if you have any suspicion that your card is lost, stolen or being misused. Never divulge your credit card number/expiry date/PIN/CVV and your personal details to an e-mail soliciting for the same. Never divulge your credit card number/expiry date/PIN/CVV and your personal details to any telephonic survey or telemarketing executive. Never seek assistance of strangers while using your card at ATMs or POS. Never share your card details with anyone (including the family members and closest friends) to attempt transaction on your behalf. Never handover/return the consignment containing card back to the delivery boy once delivered to you under any circumstances.

title: Some simple steps can protect your card while you shop online:

, content: Please sign up for the Verified by VISA and/or MasterCard Secure Code program(s). Avoid shopping on such sites which allows transactions with basic details like Card Number and Expiration date only. Look for Secure symbols like <https://> or the icon which indicates that the site is secured. Be careful do not update your account details in any pop-up window. Always type the address of the site concerned directly in the browser bar, avoid accessing the site through links sent in e-mailers/other unsecured sites. Beware of such offers that ask you to verify the confidential account details such as Credit Card Number, Expiration Date, CVV/CVC number etc. Please ensure to log off from the website(s) after using it. Do not close your browser directly. In case accessing online transaction thru Cyber cafe, ensure to clear the browser history and delete all temporary files/cookies at the end of the session so that your account information is removed. While performing an IVR (Over phone) transactions please ensure that you are typing your credentials on an automated system.

title: Secured Transactions, content: Customers are advised to protect their cards, and their credentials; and do not share confidential personal information like Card number, Card Verification Value (CVV), Expiry date, PIN(s) or OTP (one time password) (setup to process online transaction) to any other person / third party (including subsidiaries, bank, and its officials). If the customer is disputing OTP enabled / ATM transactions™ which got processed after authenticating the PIN, it is considered as secured transactions. Customers would be fully liable for such transactions because such transactions™ considered as a secured method.

title: Unsecured Transactions

, content: Customers are required to promptly report any fraudulent usage on their cards, so that the cards are blocked for further usage. This can be done by calling BOBCARD Limited helpline number (helpline number and timing will be provided here). Customers™ are advised to keep their personal information like mobile number & email address up to date with BOBCARD Limited to receive regular transactions alerts, it will help BOBCARD Limited also to reach out to the customers in-case of any suspicious activities.

title: Email Fraud

, content: Several signs can help you determine if an email is legitimate or a spoof. Learn how to recognize and protect yourself from fraudulent emails asking for card information.

title: What is a spoof?

, content: Spoof emails (also known as phishing or hoax emails) appear to be from well know companies. To bait you, an email may say there is an urgent situation concerning your card/ bank account, then asks you to click a link back to a spoof website to provide personal information. Even if you don't supply any information, just selecting the link, may enable fraudster to access your computer, record your keystrokes, and capture your passwords. Also, beware of spoof web forms that ask you to provide confidential information like; Date of Birth (DOB), PAN , Credit or Debit card number and bank account number etc. that a legitimate company would not ask the customer.

title: How to spot a spoof?

, content: Sense of urgency - Messages claim your card/account will be closed or temporarily suspended, and warn you'll be charged if you don't respond urgently. Spelling errors - There may be obvious spelling errors, which help spoof emails avoid spam filters.

Name & email address mismatch " At times, when a spoof email is received, name of the sender & email address do not match. It may say X name wherein email id suggests different name or company.

title: How to protect yourself?

, content: Go there directly - The best way to get to any site is to type its address (URL) into your browser and then bookmark it.

Segregate Email Accounts - Create separate email accounts for personal and official activities. It is recommended to select email id with Secure Socket Layer (SSL) certificate for Bank related communication. (URL should start with https:// and NOT http://).

title: It's compulsory now

, content: Well, there's no way you can wriggle out of this one now. Under the FASTag toll plaza rules, the government has decreed that all lanes will be FASTag only. So it's now compulsory for all vehicles to have it from 15 January 2020.

title: How to buy FASTag

, content: You can buy FASTag at over 20 banks, including Bank of Baroda, and other point-of-sale outlets like toll plazas. You can even order them online through Amazon.

title: What are the documents you need to get FASTag?

, content: To get a FASTag, you will need to submit documents like registration certificate (RC) of the vehicle, passport-size photograph and KYC documents. A driver's licence will suffice for ID and address proof.

title: How to activate FASTag?

, content: Once you have purchased the FASTag, you can activate it at your Bank of Baroda branch. You will need to submit your documents at this stage.

title: How to pay tolls using FASTag ID?

, content: This isn't necessarily one of the rules of FASTag; however, after you buy it, attach it to the windscreen of your car. Each time you pass a toll plaza, an electronic reader reads the tag using RFID technology and charges you the toll. This amount is automatically deducted from your account or your wallet.

title: What are the charges that I have to pay for FASTag?

, content: You have to pay a one-time activation fee of Rs 100, as well as a security deposit. The security deposit will depend on the vehicle and ranges from Rs 200 to Rs 400.

title: Can I use one FASTag for multiple vehicles?

, content: No, this is not possible. FASTag is meant for one vehicle only.

title: How to recharge FASTag?

, content: If you have chosen the wallet option instead of direct debit from your account, you need to recharge it from time to time. It's a relatively simple process. You can log in to your account using your ID and password and use Debit or Credit Card or Internet Banking to top up your account. You can also use other methods like UPI.

title: Do I get a discount on tolls if I live near a toll plaza?
, content: You can get a discount on tolls paid through your FASTag if you live within 10 km of a toll plaza. You will have to submit proof of residence to avail of this benefit.

title: What happens if I don't have a FASTag?
, content: Well, you'll have to pay double the toll fee, which you have to pay at a hybrid lane that accepts payments over the counter.

So now that you know all FASTag rules don't hesitate any more get a FASTag account today at Bank of Baroda!

title: Begin with an emergency saving account , content: "An emergency fund turns a crisis into an inconvenience". One of the most crucial avenues to help you tide over uncertainties is to start an emergency savings account. An emergency savings account is special savings account that you only use in case of an emergency, such as a job loss, medical bills, or other miscellaneous expenses. By having an emergency fund, you can avoid going into debt if something unexpected happens. There are a few things to keep in mind when starting an emergency savings account:

1. Start small

If you don't have much money to start with, that's okay. Just start with what you can and build up from there.

2. Make it automatic

Set up automatic transfers from your checking account to your savings account so you don't have to think about it.

3. Keep it separate

Keep your emergency fund in a separate account from your other savings so you're less tempted to spend it on non-emergencies.

4. Invest for growth

Once you have a little bit saved up, consider investing some of your emergency funds so they can grow over time.

An emergency savings account provides you a great cushion in case of turbulence and thus must be given appropriate priority.

title: Creating an emergency fund, content: Assuming you don't have an emergency fund start with a small amount. Let's say putting Rs. 500 to Rs.1000 into an emergency would be a great start. Now you can save automatically by setting up a direct deposit from your paycheck into a separate savings account. You can pay yourself first by making saving a priority. Remember, do not dip into your emergency fund for non-emergencies and once you have saved 3-6 months of living expenses, you can start investing your money.

title: Trim your regular outgoings - practice cost-optimizing

, content: The first step to saving money is reducing your regular outgoings. There are a number of ways you can do this:

Review your current expenses and identify areas where you can cut back.

Make a budget and stick to it. This will help you track your spending and ensure you're not overspending in any one area.

Shop for better deals on insurance, utilities, and groceries. You can get a lower rate by switching providers or negotiating with your current service provider.

Use cash instead of credit cards. This will help you stay mindful of your spending and avoid racking up debt.

Consider downgrading your cable package, cell phone plan, or other luxuries. Do you really need that extra channel or unlimited data? Probably not!

title: Review your monthly expenses and make changes

, content: If you want to save money, one of the best things you can do is review your monthly expenses. This will help you identify areas where you may be able to cut back or make changes.

Some things to look at include:

1. Housing costs

Housing is one of the biggest expense heads in an Indian household. One may look at optimizing this expense by trying to explore better rental deals basis one's requirement.

2. Transportation costs

With crude oil prices skyrocketing, practicing carpooling or using smart public transport can help optimize expenses

3. Utility costs

As a family we spend a considerable amount on utilities primarily food and energy. Smart changes can help lower expenses as well as offer a more healthy lifestyle

4. Entertainment costs

One can periodically re-evaluate recreation and entertainment costs and look at augmented savings

Once you've reviewed your monthly expenses, make changes where you can. Even small tweaks can add up to big savings over time.

title: Take advantage of tax deductions and credits available

, content: When it comes to saving money, taking advantage of tax deductions and credits available to you is a great way to boost your savings. There are a variety of deductions and credits available, so be sure to do your research to see what you may be eligible for. Some standard deductions and credits include the following:

a. Section 80C – Deductions on Investments

One of the most well-liked and popular sections among taxpayers is Section 80C because it enables taxpayers to lower their taxable income by making tax-saving investments or incurring qualified costs. The highest annual deduction from the taxpayer's gross income is ₹1.5 lakh. Both individuals and HUFs are eligible to take advantage of this discount. Businesses, partnership businesses, and LLPs are not eligible for this deduction. Subsections 80CCC, 80CCD (1), 80CCD (1b), and 80CCD are all part of Section 80C.

The overall ceiling for claiming a deduction, including the subsections, is ₹1.5 lakh, with the exception of an additional deduction of ₹50,000 permitted under Section 80CCD (1b). Various investment avenues where investments can be claimed under section 80C are as follows:

Public Provident Fund

National Savings Certificate

National Pension Scheme

Employees' Provident Fund

Tuition fees

Post Office tax-saving deposits

Five-year bank deposit

Life Insurance Premium

Equity Linked Saving Schemes

Sukanya Samriddhi Account Deposit Scheme

Post Office Senior Citizens Savings Scheme

b. Income Tax Deduction under Section 80D

Income Tax Deduction under section 80D is for the premium paid for Medical Insurance. This section allows deductions on the health insurance premium paid by an individual or HUF. You can claim a deduction of ₹25,000 for self, spouse and dependent children and an additional deduction for insurance of parents of less than 60 years of age, which is up to ₹25,000. Parents above the age of 60 can seek a deduction of ₹50,000.

c. Income Tax Deduction under Section 80E

Interest on loan paid for education is eligible for Section 80E. Please note that principal repayment on loan cannot be claimed as a deduction. The loan should have been taken for yourself, your children, and your spouse or for an individual for whom you are a legal guardian.

d. Income Tax Deduction under Section 80EEA

Section 80EEA allows a deduction for interest payments up to ₹15,00,000. This deduction is over and above the deduction of ₹2,00,000 available under section 24. An individual should not own any house on the date of a loan sanction to claim this deduction.

title: Find sources of passive income

, content: There are a number of sources of passive income that can provide you with additional income during tough economic times. Rental properties, for example, can provide a steady stream of income if you are able to maintain occupancy levels. Other sources of passive income include investments in stocks, bonds, and mutual funds. If you're looking to boost your income during a slowdown, consider utilizing some of these sources of passive income. With a little effort, you can find yourself in a much better financial position when the economy eventually recovers.

title: Clear off your debts/liabilities

, content: If you're in debt, now is the time to start paying it off. With a recession on the horizon, it's important to get your finances in order and get rid of any debts that you may have. There are a few different ways to pay off your debts, such as You can either do it yourself or use a debt consolidation company.

If you're doing it yourself, you'll need to figure out a budget and make a plan to pay off your debts as quickly as possible.

If you use a debt consolidation company, they will work with you to create a repayment plan that fits your budget.

Whichever method you choose, make sure you stick to your plan and don't add any new debt. This will help you stay afloat financially and avoid getting buried in debt.

title: Assess the risk factor , content: When it comes to saving money, there are a few key things to keep in mind. First and foremost, you need to assess the risk factor. How much can you afford to lose? This will help determine how much you need to save. If you think there's a chance you may lose your job or have your hours cut back, it's important to have a cushion of savings to fall back on. Experts recommend saving enough money to cover three to six months' worth of living expenses title: Plans helpful in financial planning

, content: Here's a list of some suitable plans that can help in building a reliable corpus of finance for your future needs in a recession:

1. Retirement Plan

Generally, you should start making retirement plans long before you reach middle age. Very few individuals are aware that 25 years of age is the minimum requirement for purchasing a retirement plan. Bank of Baroda offers Indiafirst

Guaranteed Retirement Plan at 25 years (For regular premium and limited premium, No minimum age is applicable for a single premium). In order to provide you with returns on maturity when you need financial support during retirement, it is essential to have your money invested in a market-linked plan. A plan like IndiaFirst Guaranteed Retirement Plan provides you with guaranteed benefits, making it a secure and trustworthy alternative.

2. Child Education Plan:

Ensuring their child's bright future and a solid foundation for their profession and overall well-being is every parent's dream and responsibility. A child education plan like the Bank of Baroda IndiaFirst Life Little Champ Plan offers liquidity features of guaranteed payouts, bonus accumulation, and life insurance benefits. Your financial goals of paying for your child's schooling, higher education, and other necessities can be significantly aided by such a strategy.

3. Health Insurance Plans

Health insurance policies, often known as mediclaim insurance, provide a great deal of assistance during hospitalization and adequately cover hospital-related charges. Bank of Baroda offers more than 10+ different categories of Health Insurance Plans that cover more than simply your bills and reimbursements. They provide a lump sum payment upon illness diagnosis in order to provide the finest therapy available including other benefits.

4. Term Plans

As they primarily offer a life insurance policy to the investor, term plans are a good option to be considered when it comes to financial planning. Term insurance provides you with safety cover and financially protects your family in difficult times. It gains importance since it may offer a significant quantity of coverage for comparatively lower prices. Term plans from Bank of Baroda like IndiaFirst Group Term Plan and IndiaFirst Life e-Term Plus Plan are two of the best options to go for.

title: Conclusion : financial Planning

, content: Financial planning is a must in view of anticipated recession and it doesn't have to be difficult. There are several simple strategies to reduce expenses. You may achieve financial success by making some little adjustments. You can maximize your emergency savings in the long term and master your money management by simply adjusting your financial habits.

title: Reasons for losing Capital, content: "1. Acting on tips" Investing on tips is a reliable way to lose money. Most tips even from 'informed sources' are usually hearsay and lack any investing merit for long-term investors.

"2. Riding the bandwagon" In many cases investors don't understand fundamental attributes of an investment and invest in it only because it's in vogue with the base assumption that since everyone is investing in them it must be a good investment. Most times, retail investors enter at near peaks & exit at the bottom.

"3. Investing all at once" Investing all at once can especially backfire if the investment is made at higher prices, which goes against the basics of investing i.e. buy low, sell high.

"4. Putting all your eggs in one basket" Usually, two assets that account for disproportionate investor interest are equities and real estate. Going overboard in any asset class can prove detrimental during say a prolonged downturn in equities or illiquidity in real estate.

"5. Overestimating risk-taking ability" Investors can have a high opinion of themselves when it comes to handling risk. Especially in times of euphoria investors believe they can handle any risk (read downturn) in these investments.

title: Introduction: investing, content: When investing, a fixed deposit fixed deposit investment features essentially in almost everyone's investment portfolio. This low-risk, stable saving lets you enjoy steady capital gains at the end of maturity. However, even fixed deposit investment demands careful planning. We will enumerate 5 common mistakes that people tend to make while opting for fixed deposit accounts.

title: Typical Investment Mistakes Fixed Deposit Investors Must Avoid:, content: Investing in a fixed deposit is a great idea, but certain factors must be kept in mind before rushing into a hasty investment. So, think, observe and read this blog thoroughly for fixed deposit investment tips and to know what to avoid when investing in fixed deposits. "1. Investing without a target" Fixed deposits are safe but optimize your saving with an investment plan. Your savings, other investments and fixed deposit if aligned can diversify and strengthen your financial goals. Read about different fixed deposit schemes and research online for the bank with the highest fixed deposit interest rate. Prioritize your investment goals based on factors like liquidity, stability, long-term or short-term lock-in and flexible tenure while keeping funds for emergencies. Your individual needs are best known to you, therefore planning accordingly will maximize gains on your fixed deposit investment.

"2. Investment not backed by research" Your money counts, and with almost every bank sharing detail on fixed deposit schemes, thorough research will help you zero in on the bank with the highest fixed deposit interest rate. Go by the books and take the best-informed investment decision you can.

"3. Not using a diverse planner" For a fixed deposit investment to succeed, the golden rule is not to play by one. Making multiple fixed deposits in the bank with the highest fixed deposit interest rate will culminate in robust returns. Evaluate both short-term and long-term fixed deposits when you are setting investment goals.

"4. Not closely watching the investment progress" After investing in fixed deposits, keep a close watch on the growth trajectory of the fixed deposit amount every day. Only eyeing the maturity date is not enough.

"5. Thinking FDs are immune to inflation" Even Fixed deposit investments are affected by inflation. Hence, tap the opportunity when high interest rates are offered on fixed deposits for investments.

title: What is PPF Account?, content: The Public Provident Fund account is a type of long-term savings-cum-investment account that offers tax deduction under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act of 1961. You can deposit up to Rs 150,000 per annum in your PPF account and earn interest on your deposits. The deposited funds, interest earned, and the maturity amount are entirely tax-free. The minimum investment tenure for PPF is 15 years, and you can extend your account in blocks of 5 years.

title: PPF – Latest Rules, content: The GOI made some tweaks to the existing PPF Account rules in 2019. Below are the five new PPF rules. 1. PPF Account Extension" You need to submit Form 4 to extend your PPF scheme account after it matures. You must do so within one year of the maturity date of your original PPF account or the extended PPF account. You no longer need to submit Form H. Moreover, you can retain your PPF account after it matures without depositing more funds and continue to earn interest on your account balance per the applicable PPF interest rate.

"2. PPF Account Deposits" Earlier, you could deposit funds in your PPF account only twelve times during a financial year. However, per the new PPF rules, there is no restriction on the number of deposits. You can deposit funds in multiples of Rs 50, but, per usual, your maximum annual deposits cannot exceed Rs 150,000. Also, you must still deposit a minimum of Rs 500 per annum in the PPF account.

"3. Premature Account Closure" Earlier, you could close your PPF account prematurely only under certain specific circumstances. For instance, you could close the account prematurely if you needed money for higher education or medical treatment after five years from the account opening date. But per the latest PPF account rules, you can also close your account if your residency status changes from Resident to Non-Resident Indian. You must provide a copy of your passport, visa, or latest income tax returns if you wish to close your account prematurely.

"4. Interest Payment on Loans Against PPF" The GOI has reduced the loan interest spread over interest payment on PPF account deposits. Earlier, account holders who obtained loans against their PPF deposits had to pay a 2% interest rate per annum above the prevailing PPF interest rate. However, per the new PPF rules, the government has reduced the interest spread from 2% to 1%, thus reducing the cost of loans against PPF deposits.

"5. Loan Repayment Terms" While the government has reduced the cost of loans, new PPF rules dictate that you must repay your loan against PPF deposits within 36 months. If you fail to repay the loan, partially or entirely, you will have to pay the penal interest charged at 6% per annum.

title: How to Open PPF Account with Bank of Baroda?, content: You can now open your PPF account with Bank of Baroda online, from the comfort of your home, or by visiting your nearest Bank of Baroda branch. You must submit copies of your KYC documents and deposit at least Rs.500 to open your account. Visit the bank of Baroda website to know more about the PPF account benefits.

title: Tokenisation: Will It Make Your Online Card Transactions Secure?, content: Thanks to digitalisation, the number of online transactions is higher than ever. You can use a host of payment methods to make online payments - credit card and debit card payments being one of them. The cards allow you to make quick payments at stores as well as online. At the time of online checkout, all you need to do is enter your debit or credit card details and verify the transaction through OTPs. Some mobile shopping apps also let you save your card details. However, this will not be possible after 30th September 2022. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has rolled out multiple notices about tokenisation. It is a security measure aimed toward maximising prevention against online payment fraud. Read on to know more about tokenisation of card transactions and find out whether it can make your online card transactions safer.

title: Introduction : Banking Mantra, content: Do you need money to pay the security deposit on your rented flat? Or perhaps you are facing a medical emergency that goes beyond the coverage of your health insurance plan. A personal loan is a type of unsecured loan that helps you get access to quick cash in such situations of need. Features of personal loans include collateral-free applications, speedy approvals and disbursements, attractive interest rates, and no end-use restrictions, to name a few. Now, let us look at the factors affecting personal loan interest rates.

title: Personal Loan Interest Rates

, content: When a financial institution like a bank lends you money, the cost of lending you that money is taken through the interest rate. An ideal personal loan would be one with the lowest interest rate as this will reduce the overall amount that you need to pay back to the lender.

title: How Is Personal Loan Interest Calculated?

, content: How Is Personal Loan Interest Calculated?

First we find the EMI, where  $EMI = P \times R \times (1+ROI)^N / [(1+ROI)^N - 1]$  where,

P = Principal Loan Amount

N = Loan tenure in months

ROI = Monthly Interest Rate = Annual Rate of interest/12/100

If Annual ROI for a Personal Loan is 10%, then monthly ROI =  $10/12/100 = 0.0083$ , P = INR 20,00,00 and N = 36 months, then EMI = INR 64,534 and the total interest payable would be INR 3,23,237.

Now that we know how to calculate personal loan interest rate, here are the factors that affect this interest rate.

1. Monthly Income

Regardless of whether you are salaried or self-employed, a lender will consider your loan application based on your monthly income. A higher income provides more assurance to the lender that they will get their money back. Thus, a higher income increases your chances of getting lower interest rates. The number of years you have been employed at an organisation also plays a part. The longer you have been employed at a particular company, the better is your stand for negotiating for the lowest personal loan interest rate.

2. Credit History

The personal loan interest rate depends on your credit history as well. A good credit history means that you were able to repay previous loans or credit card debts promptly and this increases the lender's trust in you. The Credit Information Bureau of India Limited (CIBIL) is one of several credit information companies licensed by the Reserve Bank of India. CIBIL is an industry-wide used score to check your credit history. The CIBIL score is a 3-digit numeric code ranging from 300 to 900. A score above 700 is a good credit score that can land you a lower interest rate.

Before applying for a personal loan, check your credit history to understand your positioning. If your credit score is low, this could be because you are not repaying your debts on time. Gradually improve your score by taking suitable measures to build your score. You can build your credit score by paying off any ongoing debt and by paying credit card bills in full and on time.

The credit report shows your credit payment history across all debts and credit institutions. The RBI has made it mandatory for all credit information companies to offer one credit report free of cost every year.

Will A Personal Loan Affect My Credit?

Taking on more debt does have an effect on your credit. However, how you manage and repay your debt will determine whether this effect will be good or bad. Timely repayment of the personal loan will only improve your score and missing out on payments can end up damaging your score.

3. Your Relationship With The Lender

A lender is more likely to charge you lower personal loan interest rates if you are a trustworthy customer. The trust between the two parties is cultivated through several years. For instance, if you possess a credit card issued by the lender and pay the dues on time, the lender will consider your negotiation for a lower interest rate – a feat hard to achieve for newer customers. A longer and loyal relationship with the bank entails higher negotiating power since losing you as a customer would be a loss to the bank.

4. Reputation Of The Organisation That You Work For

Your employer's status is also one of the important factors affecting interest rates. As mentioned above, personal loans do not require collateral. Therefore, the lenders must find ways to make sure that you are able to repay the loan. Working with a reputed organisation makes you stand out as a financially secure borrower. Lenders may sometimes offer flexible lending policies to borrowers associated with reputed organisations. This gives you an edge while asking for lower interest rates.

title: What If I Am Self-Employed?

, content: Self-employed individuals who maintain a good rapport with the lender can also apply for a low-interest personal loan. Your business should be older than the lender-specified number of years to be eligible. If income from your business is noteworthy, the lender will have fewer reservations about lending you money.

5. Debt-To-Income Ratio

A debt-to-income (DTI) ratio indicates your monthly debt payments divided by your monthly gross income, expressed as a percentage. Lenders use DTI to determine how well you manage your monthly debts and whether you have the potential to repay the loan.

For instance, if your monthly gross income is INR 50,000, and you are repaying an existing loan with INR 20,000 as your EMI. Then your DTI would be:

$$(\text{Monthly Debt} / \text{Monthly Gross Income}) \times 100 = (20,000 / 50,000) \times 100 = 40\%$$

For the lender, 40% DTI may or may not be high. The more your loan obligations, the higher is your DTI. An ideal DTI would range from 21% to 35%. A lower DTI will increase your chances of a lower interest rate.

title: What If Your DTI Is High?

, content: It is imperative that you constantly monitor your debt-to-income ratio. However, there are certainly ways by which you can lower your DTI if it is high.

Increase your EMI amount to repay the loan quickly. By doing so, initially, your DTI will increase; however, by paying off the loan at the earliest, you can get it down faster.

Do not apply for loans until your DTI is in the ideal range of 21% to 35%.
Increase your monthly income.
Foreclose existing loans.

title: Conclusion : personal loans
, content: Personal loans can truly save the day when you need cash urgently. Unlike home loans and car loans, where the collateral is the product itself, personal loans are unsecured. This can work in your favour especially if you do not have any collateral to pledge to the lender.

Bank of Baroda offers affordable interest rates on personal loans so that you can get the finance you need without much worry. You can use the personal loan EMI calculator tool on our website to understand how your EMIs will look. This will help you choose the right loan tenure and plan out your budget each month.

title: 5 Reasons Why A Gift Card Makes The Ultimate Present:
, content: 1. No pressure of gift selection
Instead of having to go through the challenges of selecting a gift that in all possibilities will not be liked by the receiver, or you are clueless about what the person likes or wants, you are giving the receiver freedom to choose their gift. Purchase a gift card from The Bank of Baroda that ranges from Rs500-Rs 10,000.

2. Gift cards can be procured easily
You have to visit the Bank of Baroda branch to buy a GIFT Card easily. Yes, it is that convenient. Bank of Baroda will allot a unique PIN to the card allowing the cardholder to access the account balance and get a mini statement online using the login ID (Card number) and Password (PIN). The card is valid for 12 months from the issuing date. The date is mentioned on the face of the bank gift card. The bank offers enough time for the utilization of funds. Also, the bank sends auto alerts through SMS or email, at least 30 days in advance, if the funds have not been utilized before the expiry date. There's no way that the recipient can miss utilizing the funds. Load it with the amount that you want to gift, and your gift is more than appreciated by the receiver saving you the trouble of unsatisfactory gift hunting and receiving.

3. The benefits of a gift card loaded with what one needs
When organising events people make huge investments and end up cash dry in the aftermath. Your bank gift card loaded with funds are welcome in such situations. You may argue, why host elaborate occasions at all? Well, that is a debatable subject saved for posterity, but social gatherings are huge stress busters, and we know the dopamine effect they can have on our well-being. So, going by that argument, when you are spending, why not spend with some feeling and wisdom? Besides, bank gift cards come with more advantages than one. When selecting a gift, you can overstep the budget, because you loved a stone statue more than the ceramic one and pay an extra 150. With a gift card, you stick to your planned budget.

4. They are convenient
I am sure you have had the experience of a gift being returned at least once in your life, as the receiver was candid enough to tell you that they did not like what you gifted. If you are close to the recipient, ask instead of planning a surprise, it will save trepidation. But if you are reluctant and feel that it loses the cadence of the gift, give a gift card from the Bank of Baroda. The gift cards are RuPay enabled allowing fund access anytime and anywhere in India. The recipient can purchase merchandise to experience through the bank gift card.

Offering flexibility, the multi-use facility balance can be checked from this RuPay-powered card at any ATM or with customer service portal i.e <https://bobprepaid.yappay.in/login>.

You can buy GIFT Cards by visiting Bank of Baroda branches easily. The recipient can use the fund to purchase something that they need or spend the gift amount on an experience. The value of a gift gains more worth when it is given from the heart.

title: 5 Smart Tips to Reduce EMI Of Your Existing Personal Loan

, content: Personal loans offer a great way of meeting your financial requirements without compromising your assets. Personal loans can be procured for various reasons, whether for an emergency or for pursuing your goals. Leading lenders in the country are known to provide highly flexible personal loan repayment plans; thus, you get funding and plan your finances carefully as per your needs.

Now, we all want to save money. After all, a rupee saved is definitely a rupee earned. So, it is natural to wonder how to reduce EMI of existing personal loan. Reducing your loan EMIs can help decrease your overall financial burden and allow you to put the saved money to better use.

So, here are five tips on how to reduce personal loan EMI effectively.

1. Get the right loan amount

The amount of money you borrow via a loan is directly proportional to the EMI you need to pay. Hence, the most basic way to get an EMI that fits your budget is to get the right loan amount. You should only take a loan for expenses that are absolutely necessary and cannot be paid by you. Even if you have a good credit score and are eligible to procure a higher loan amount, do not apply for a loan of an amount that is higher than what you really need. Being prudent when borrowing money will make the repayment of your debt easy. Do note that changing your personal loan amount is only possible before it has been disbursed by the lender. Therefore, it is best to create a detailed account of all the expenses you need to cover with the loan amount before starting the loan application process.

2. Choose the right loan tenure

The EMI of your personal loan is inversely proportional to your personal loan tenure. The longer the period of repayment, the lower the EMI you need to pay. Now, do note that a longer tenure may see you pay more in terms of interest. If you want to save on interest paid to the lender, you will need to choose a shorter tenure with larger EMIs. However, if larger EMIs may not fit in your monthly budget, choose a longer tenure for your personal loan EMI to keep the payments affordable. Try to map your monthly expenses and plan your EMI payments accordingly before applying for the loan.

3. Do not miss your EMI due dates

Your credit score is quite crucial in determining the interest rate you get for loans. Missing out on your EMI payments will decrease your creditworthiness and increase the hassle of procuring a loan in the future. It also makes the following EMI expensive as you would need to pay the penalties associated with late payments. You can avoid these penalties by making a note of the date on which you need to pay the EMI. Alternatively, you can also select an automatic payment system with the bank. This way, you do not have to manually remember your due date each month as the money gets automatically debited. In fact, you can even have the bank send you an SMS to remind you to keep sufficient funds.

All of this will help in building your credit score which can, in turn, help you get the best interest rates.

4. Calculate your EMIs before taking the loan

Getting a loan is quite simple. With just a few clicks, you can have a personal loan sanctioned without too many documents or hassles. However, this convenience can lead to impulsive decisions on your loan amount. So, it is better to do proper calculations of your loan and plan your finances, EMIs and loan tenure before starting the application process. Many lenders also provide an online personal loan EMI calculator to help you conveniently estimate the EMI amount and interest rate of your debt. These online loan calculators are free to use and can be easily found on the lender's website.

5. Use a personal loan to consolidate your debts

In the past, you may have had to borrow from multiple lenders to meet your financial requirements. Paying interest on several smaller loans can see you lose quite a bit of your money each month. It can also be pretty challenging to keep track of many different EMI payments, and you could end up paying late fees. You can avoid all of these hassles by taking a personal loan to consolidate all of your existing loans. This makes it easy for you to manage your EMIs and quickly repay your debts. Consolidating your loans is also a great way to lower the total EMI amount that you end up paying each month.

Conclusion

Do choose your loan amount wisely and make sure you do not skip on making the loan repayments. This would help you save money on your EMIs and have a positive impact on your credit score. The best way to pay the lowest possible EMI is to be clever and make all the calculations before applying for a personal loan. Get a thorough understanding of your financials and create a strategy to make the loan repayments with ease. If you are opting to go for a personal loan of a higher amount, consider getting loan protection insurance as well. If you are unable to make a personal loan repayment due to untimely death, disability, or job loss, the loan protection insurance provider will pay the remaining EMIs for you. This will cover your family against any resulting financial burden and provide peace of mind.

title: What is an MSME business loan?

, content: The MSME loan scheme helps individuals, small to medium business owners, and start-ups to avail of finance that can help to support their business operations. MSME loans are usually an unsecured type of debt and, therefore, one of the best ways to expand your business with improved cash flow. The funds can be used for various purposes such as expansion of business operations, fixing cash flow problems or for the purchase of new production machinery.

The tenure of these MSME loans is usually around 12 months; however, it can vary depending on the lender's annual review. Most lenders usually offer an MSME loan amount between Rs 10 lakh and Rs 5 crore. The maximum loan amount that you can avail of through the MSME loan depends on your creditworthiness, financial stability, business size, and repayment capability. Furthermore, only businesses that fulfil the following MSME loan eligibility criteria can procure this loan:

- Micro enterprises

Micro enterprises are those businesses that have a maximum investment threshold of Rs 1 crore and a maximum turnover of Rs 5 crore.

- Small enterprises

Small enterprises have a maximum investment threshold of Rs 10 crore and a maximum turnover of Rs 50 crore.

- Medium enterprises

These businesses have a maximum investment threshold of Rs 50 crore and a maximum turnover of Rs 250 crore.

title: What are the benefits of applying for digital small business loans?
, content: Previously, one would have to physically visit the lender's office to procure an MSME loan. However, with the increasing adoption of technology by the banking sector, many lenders have digitised this process of borrowing for their customers. As a result, you can now apply for an MSME loan from the comfort of your home. There are many benefits of applying for a digital business loan online. Some of them are:

- Reduced turnaround time

Turnaround time is the period between the loan application and its sanction. During the initial stages of the loan application process, the lender has to collect and verify your information. This can take a lot of time in a paper-based loan application process. The turnaround time can be further delayed if you bring the wrong set of papers to the lender's office. However, with the help of a digital MSME loan, you do not have to worry about submitting the wrong set of documents, as all the required information is made available to you on one portal. Furthermore, the digital loan application makes it easy for the lender to go through the information you have submitted and automates many internal processes. As a business owner, every minute counts. The time you save in lengthy loan application processes can be put to use elsewhere.

- Convenient loan application process

One of the major digital MSME loan benefits is that you are not required to physically visit the lender's office to start your loan application process. All you need to apply for a digital business loan is your phone and a stable internet connection. The online application process is quite easy and can be completed in just a few clicks. Furthermore, contrary to the paper-based loan application process, you can apply for a digital MSME loan from anywhere and at any time that is desirable for you. Prominent loan providers like the Bank of Baroda offer an intuitively designed website that is equipped with all the information that you may need to get started with your digital MSME loan application process.

- No need to frequently visit the lender's office

In a paper-based loan application process, you may need to visit the lender's office to submit the required documents, correct any documentation errors, or complete your KYC. However, in an online MSME loan application process, you can submit the documents and complete your KYC directly on the lender's website. Additionally, many internal processes that the lender follows are automated, like the verification of the information submitted by you. Consequently, this reduces the number of times you need to meet the lender physically and saves you a lot of effort.

- Paperless loan application process

Procuring any loan requires you to submit many different documents to the lender. However, one of the major benefits of digital loans is that you can complete the entire application process without going through a tedious paperwork process. This is because, in a digital loan application process, you can submit all the required documents to the lender through their offered website. This removes the need for you to maintain a complicated paper trail and makes the loan application process quite easy and swift. Alternatively, if you do not have soft copies of the required documents, you can simply scan the papers and upload the same on the lender's website in pdf format or the jpeg format. Furthermore, to avoid any unwanted hiccups in the application process, ensure that the documents you upload are clear and can be easily read by the lender.

Let's look at some more benefits of MSME loans in general:

- Relatively lower interest rates

The Indian MSME sector is a major contributor to the country's economy. Hence, the government has taken several steps to further develop the MSME sector in India. MSME loans are one of the most affordable start-up business loans that are available in the market today. Many reputed lenders like the Bank of Baroda charge low interest rates on MSME loans. This significantly reduces your cost of procuring the debt. Lenders usually charge an interest rate between 7% and 12% on MSME loans. As a result, MSME loans are one of the cheapest forms of debt that are available in the market today for business owners.

- Unsecured form of debt

Unlike most business loans, MSME loans are an unsecured form of debt. This means that you do not need to provide collateral to the lender to receive credit. Due to this, MSME loans are one of the most accessible business loans in India. However, many lenders provide secured MSME loans as well if that is the type you seek. So, you can offer collateral to possibly reduce the cost of procuring the loan. The right type of MSME loan for you depends on the terms and conditions of the lender and your ability to repay the debt.

title: Tips On How To Manage Student Loan Debt, content: Choose the right repayment plan

The best way to handle student loans is to choose the right education loan repayment plan. Your lender will offer you a choice of repayment options. Choose the one that best suits your budget. You need to keep in mind how long your moratorium is. This way, you know how much time you have on hand to find a job and save up before your first EMI begins. Also, do think about how much you can expect to earn in your first job. All of this will help you figure out the right tenure and EMI. Without this kind of planning, you may end up choosing a much higher EMI that might be heavy on your pocket.

Opt for a shorter loan tenure

A great way to manage student loans is by opting for a short tenure. A shorter tenure might see you pay higher EMIs, but it will also help you save a lot in interest paid towards your loan. Now, this does not mean that you go beyond your means and choose unaffordable EMIs. Rather, choose the shortest possible tenure that you can manage. You can use an education loan EMI calculator to help you understand the monthly payments you can afford.

Set up automatic payments

Missing out on loan payments can really be detrimental to your financial health. It can affect your credit score and see you end up paying up late fees too. To avoid missing out on payments, simply set up automatic debits from your savings account. These payments will go out like clockwork and save you from paying any missed EMI penalties. Regular payments will go a long way in helping you maintain a healthy credit report. A good credit report, in turn, comes in handy when you apply for loans in the future.

Pay off interest during the moratorium

When you take an education loan, your payments do not begin as soon as you get the funding. They begin after the moratorium period is complete. The moratorium is a period of 6 months or 1 year that begins when you complete your course. While your payments do not start until the end of the moratorium, the interest on your education loan begins to accumulate from the moment you receive the funding. So, it would be wise to start making payments towards this interest while you are still studying. This is, perhaps, the best student debt advice anyone will give you.

You may want to consider getting a part-time job while you are still in college.

You can put the income from this job towards paying your education loan. If you pay off this simple interest early on, you will make a huge saving in the overall amount that you need to repay your lender. If you are wondering what kind of a part-time job to get, choose something that will not stress you out too much. You can try to turn a hobby into a source of income. For example, if you play a music instrument, you can consider giving classes. You can even consider teaching lower grades of the subject you are studying.

Make extra payments towards your loan

Did you receive a bonus at work? Or perhaps, you got some money as a gift from family. If you receive some extra cash, you might want to consider making larger payments towards your student loan. This is a great way to ease the burden of repayment overall. In fact, making larger payments towards your student loan can even help you close your loan early. This is one of the best tips that will help you manage education loans successfully. However, do be sure to check whether your lender charges you any pre-payment penalty. You can ask your lender whether they have any penalties or find out from the fine print before you go ahead with your loan application process.

Think about refinancing your education loan

It is quite possible that you have debt apart from your student loan. For example, you may have credit card bills and a car loan too. If that is the case, you may want to consider refinancing to be able to better manage your loans. You can explore options of refinancing your student loan with a lender who offers you a better interest rate. This way, your payments will not be a burden. Life can be unpredictable, and you may have sudden expenses that crop up while repaying your education loan. So, even the smallest amount of money that you save in interest can go a long way in helping you. Explore options of refinancing and transfer your loan if you get a better deal.

title: 6 Easy Ways to Choose the Best Personal Loan in 2022

, content: A personal loan is an unsecured type of a loan, which means that you do not provide collateral to secure the debt. Personal loans can be procured for a maximum amount of Rs. 25 lakhs. These types of loans are one of the best ways to finance personal goals, pay for vacations, afford dream weddings, or overcome periods of financial problems. Furthermore, you can even procure a personal loan to consolidate your debts and make your EMI payments easier to manage. Out of the many loan options available in the market today, a personal loan usually requires the least amount of paperwork. These loans are also quick to get processed and disbursed by the creditor.

There are multiple personal loan providers present in the market today; thus, you get a plethora of personal loans options to choose from. However, it is important to ensure that you get the best personal loan for yourself by choosing the right creditor. This will ensure that you can clear off your debt easily without taking on any unnecessary stress.

To help you meet your financial requirements with ease, here are 6 tips on how to choose the best personal loan-

1. Check and compare interest rates

The interest is the cost of borrowing money from the lender. Different loan providers charge you different rates of interest. When applying for a personal loan, it is important that you make a good decision by choosing a bank with lowest interest rate for personal loan borrowers. This way, you can reduce the overall amount that you will need to repay the lender. Do note that banks may charge different interest rates for their existing customers. So, if you already have a good relationship with a bank, you may want to apply for your loan with them instead of going to an entirely new lender. Sometimes, banks offer lower rates of interest to employees of well-reputed companies. They may also run deals on personal loans and other types of loans during the festive season. Do look into all these possible deals before taking a personal loan.

2. Check the eligibility criteria

Lenders place certain requirements that you need to fulfil to be eligible for a personal loan. Before applying for a loan, make sure to check the eligibility requirements of different lenders. This kind of research will help you choose a lender whose eligibility criteria are simple.

The best banks for personal loans have the simplest eligibility criteria; hence, making it easy for masses to avail personal loans. Bank of Baroda too has easy eligibility, so that you get your financing without much hassle.

3. Understand the documentation process

The documents required by the lender help them verify your identity and gain confidence on your ability to repay the loan. The documents usually required by lenders for granting you a personal loan are -

Proof of your identity like your Aadhaar card, passport or driving license Proof of address like driving license, utilities bill or a valid Indian passport Proof of income like salary slips, ITRs, or bank account statements.

If you are self-employed, you need to prove to the lender that you have a regular source of income. You can do this by providing the lenders with the registration certificate of your business or by providing them with a balance sheet and the profit and loss account of income in the past 1 year.

The documents required for the approval of your loan can vary from one creditor to the other. Hence, it is better to check the documents required by the lender before beginning your application process. You can check the list of required documents either on the lender's website or by simply searching for the list on the internet. Choose a lender who requires minimal documentation so that the application process eases out for you.

4. Choose a lender who provides you the required loan amount

A higher loan amount generally requires you to have a proportionally high CIBIL score. Thus, ask your lender if your current CIBIL score is enough to get you the loan amount you require. The loan amount that gets approved also depends on your monthly salary or income. Lenders usually allow you to procure a loan that is ten times your monthly income. For example, if your monthly salary is Rs. 25,000 and you have a CIBIL score of 750, you can easily avail of a loan of maximum Rs.25,00,000. It is important to check whether you qualify for the loan amount you want or else your application will get rejected and you will have wasted precious time.

Before applying for the loan, do figure out the EMI amount you need to pay on the monthly basis. You can easily do this by using an online personal loan EMI calculator. Do not let your monthly EMI payments exceed 50% of your gross monthly income.

5. Pick the right loan tenure

A personal loan can usually be taken for a tenure that lasts up to five years. However, a few lenders even allow you to procure a personal loan for up to seven years.

An extended loan tenure helps you reduce your monthly EMI payments; however, it increases your total interest pay-out. A shorter loan tenure, on the other hand, helps you get debt-free swiftly, but also increases your monthly EMI payment amount. You can use an online EMI calculator to select the right tenure that fits in your budget.

It is important to remember that the loan tenure is the maximum time you are given to repay the debt. If you pay back the debt before the loan tenure is over, you might be charged penalties for the same. Make sure to ask your lender whether they charge any kind of prepayment penalties on their personal loans.

6. Compare the fees and charges of procuring a loan

While deciding which loan is best for you, do also check the processing fees, past due payment penalty, loan cancellation charges and other such penalties and charges that are imposed by the lender. These ancillary charges can add heavily to the total expense of procuring a loan and if these charges are high, your cost of procuring a loan goes up significantly.

The processing fee is another major expense that you need to be aware of. Processing fees are typically charged between 1% to 3% of the total loan amounts. For example, if you need a loan for Rs.5,00,000 and the processing fee charged is 2% with an interest rate of 10.5%; your total cost of procuring the loan would be Rs. 62,500, wherein, Rs.52,500 would be your interest pay-out and Rs.10,000 would be your processing fee.

Many lenders waive the processing fees under exceptional circumstances, such as the festive season. These times are regarded as the best times of the year to procure a loan as you usually get the lowest personal loan rates and the best deals.

title: Conclusion, content: Personal loans are one of the easiest loans to procure. Since these loans do not require you to pledge any collateral, you can easily get funding even if you do not have any valuables or assets to pledge as security. title: Banking Mantra, content: Buy a brand-new two-wheeler & zoom ahead in life title: Repay your debts on time, content: Whether it is your credit card bills or your loan EMIs, it is imperative that you repay your debts well in time. Missing out on repaying any outstanding debt can impact your credit rating. You especially need to be careful when it comes to paying loan EMIs because failure to do so, not only attracts penalties, but also affects your credit scores negatively. One easy way to pay your debt on time is to set reminders so that you don't forget the loan repayment dates and never miss out on making timely payments. You can also set up automatic payments so that the loan amount is directly debited from your savings account every month.

title: Don't take on multiple loans, content: A great way to improve CIBIL score is to ensure you do not take on multiple loans at the same time. Ensure that you've paid off your current loan before taking on another one. This prevents your credit scores from reducing. When you take on several loans at the same time, it shows your lender that you may not have sufficient funds to repay all of them. If you have only one loan to repay, the lender can feel confident in giving you the loan and your credit scores also remain unaffected.

title: Try to maintain a healthy mix of credit, content: Most people have to take on a variety of loans to fund the various life necessities. But when you take the loan, it is better to ensure that there is a healthy mix of secured and unsecured loans. While the home loan and car loan count for a secured loan, your credit card debt or personal loans are regarded as unsecured loans. It is necessary to maintain a balance since taking any loan in access can affect your credit rating.

title: Don't utilize your entire credit limit, content: Another important point that pops up when we talk about how to improve credit score is credit limit utilization. One of the quickest and the easiest ways to improve credit scores is not utilizing your credit card to the extreme limit provided by lenders. Try to spend only 30% of the credit limit provided on your card per month. For instance, if you have a credit limit of ₹200,000 per month, you should try to restrict your monthly credit spends to only ₹60,000. When you exceed the 30% limit, your potential lender may get the idea that your spending habits are impulsive, which can also reduce your credit scores.

title: Increase the credit limit, content: If you demonstrate good credit repayment behaviour, your bank can reach out to you to increase the credit limit on your credit card. It is better not to turn down this increased credit limit. Increasing the credit limit doesn't necessarily mean that you are going to increase your credit card spends. The idea is to have a higher credit limit but limiting your credit utilisation, and thereby improve CIBIL score. Doing this leaves a positive impact on your credit scores.

title: Ensure that your credit report is error free, content: While you may believe that your credit report is free of errors, there may be several unknown errors that may be reducing your credit score. For instance, you may have paid off your personal loan in full, but you may see that it is still unpaid owing to administrative errors. It is therefore important to check your credit score and ensure it is error-free before you apply for a loan so that your loan request is not rejected, thus further impacting your credit scores.

title: 5 Steps to Apply for a Home Loan, content: 5 Steps to Apply for a Home Loan You may have heard people say that real estate is the best kind of investment. Its value appreciates over time, and you also get several tax benefits under various Sections of the Income Tax Act of India, 1961. But with ever-escalating property rates, you may not have sufficient savings to buy a property on your own. Thankfully, you can approach Bank of Baroda for a Home Loan. The bank offers a wide variety of Home Loans at affordable interest rates. You can get financing of up to 90% of the property's value and repay the loan in affordable Equated Monthly Instalments (EMIs) over tenures lasting up to 30 years. To get you started, we have outlined the bank's Home Loan application process here. 5 Steps on How to Apply for a Home Loan Eligibility Before you begin the Home Loan application process, you need to ensure that you are indeed eligible for the loan. The bank determines whether you qualify for a Housing Loan after considering several factors such as your age, employment status, income, and monthly expenses. You have to input these details in the Bank of Baroda Home Loan Eligibility Calculator. The calculator instantly computes whether or not you are eligible for the loan. If you qualify, it calculates the maximum loan amount you can get. Note that the calculator only computes a rough estimate of the loan amount. The bank determines the actual loan amount you can get, after assessing the loan application form. Document Submission After getting a rough estimate of the loan amount you can get, you can move to the next step in the Home Loan application process. You need to fill the loan application form. You can fill the form online, directly through the bank's website. You have to provide your personal and financial details, based on which the bank confirms the maximum loan amount for which you are eligible. You also have to provide your necessary documents such as your ID, age, and income proof documents etc. You have to also submit property documents like sale or title deeds, NOC or the allotment letter etc. You need these documents irrespective of whether it's a new or existing property.

Property Evaluation Since a Home Loan is a high-value investment for the bank, the bank does its bit in evaluating the property. A surveyor appointed by the bank visits the property's site and checks the market value of the property. While the bank surveys the property, it would help to have free and clear titles. Bank also appoint a lawyer to check that the title deed and other documents are clear from legal angle.

Documentation The bank provides a format for you to draw up the loan agreement. All costs and charges relating to the Home Loan, including the loan processing fees, stamp duty charges, loan administration charges, etc., should be borne by you. You may factor in these charges as part of your loan amount as well. The Home Loan agreement document comprises details such as the bank's loan amount, the levied interest rate, the EMI payable, and the loan tenure. It also includes other essential terms and conditions regarding prepayment, default, collateral, etc., which you must read carefully.

Home Loan Disbursal In the final step of the Home Loan application process, the bank disburses the loan amount. Based on the type of Home Loan you have applied for, the money will be disbursed either to you or the builder. The bank also determines whether the loan amount should be disbursed in partial instalments or as a lump sum. Once the loan amount is disbursed, your Home Loan is officially underway. It begins when you pay your first EMI and ends when you pay the last.

Types of Home Loan Having explained how to apply for a Home Loan, let us look at the different types of Home Loans offered by Bank of Baroda. These are of 9 types:

- The Standard Home Loan that enables you to buy a new, existing pre-owned, or under-construction property.
- A Home Construction Loan enables you to construct a house on a piece of land owned by you.
- A Home Loan to buy a plot of land, on which you will construct a property in the future (within 36 months).
- A Home Extension Loan allows you to enlarge the size of your existing house, build extra floors, etc.
- A Home Improvement Loan helps to finance the costs associated with renovating your existing house.
- A Top-up Home Loan can get you additional financing on your existing Home Loan.
- A Balance Transfer Home Loan allows you to transfer your loan from another lender to Bank of Baroda and benefit from a reduced interest rate.
- A Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana (PMAY) Home Loan allows you to get subsidised interest rates on your Home Loan. This funding type is useful if you belong to the economically weaker section, a light-income group or a medium-income group per PMAY policies.
- A Pre-approved Home Loan wherein you can first get approval for a loan and then finalise the property based on your eligibility.

Documents for Home Loan Application Process Besides knowing how to apply for a Home Loan online, you should also be aware of the documents you need to submit while applying for a Home Loan. These include:

- Your age proof documents You need to provide any government-approved document with your date of birth mentioned on it. Age proof documents help banks assess if you are in the 21-65 years age group (at the time of repaying the final EMI) to be eligible for the loan. This document could be a PAN Card, Aadhaar Card, Passport, Driving License, etc.
- Your identity proof documents Any Government-approved document featuring your photograph is accepted as a valid identity proof document. It could be your PAN Card, Aadhaar Card, Passport, Driving License, Voter ID Card, etc.
- Your address proof documents Any Government-approved document featuring your current/permanent address is accepted as a valid address proof document. It could be your Aadhaar Card, Passport, Driving License, Voter ID Card, Ration Card, Utility bills, etc.
- Your income and employment proof documents You need to provide documents validating your employment, such as your offer letter and designation, salary slips, increment letters, etc. If you are self-employed or a business owner, you need to provide your bank statement, profit and loss statements, proof of business documents, etc. All applicants must also provide their income tax returns for the last three years.
- Property-specific documents Finally, you must provide all documents related to the property you intend to buy such as the No Objection Certificate supplied by the society or builder, the original sale deed, letter of allotment, bank statements and receipts showing advance payments, etc. If you are taking a Home Construction Loan, you must also provide a document on estimating the costs associated with property construction, approved map etc. Factors to Consider Before Applying Online for Home Loan Now that you know how to apply for a Home Loan online, you should consider the factors mentioned below before beginning the Home Loan application process. Consider the bank's lending rate and the maximum loan amount you can get based on your income. Consider your credit scores and ensure they are above 701 points to get an affordable Home Loan interest rate along with the repayment tenure of your choice. Consider repaying any existing loans and credit card bills to enhance your credit score, and by extension, your eligibility. Consider opting for a longer-tenure loan to reduce the monthly instalment amount significantly. As is apparent, the Home Loan application process is quite simple and straightforward. Now that you know how easy it is to apply for A Bank of Baroda Home Loan visit the Home Loan Section of our website to get started.

title: How to Calculate Car Loan EMI: A Step-by-Step Guide, content: Every individual's journey to buy a car is unique. It begins with where the individual is in his/her career, and the choice of vehicle they want, which is mainly based on why they want the car. During the process, they also focus on how they can get a car loan that suits their requirement. When you, as an individual are considering a car loan, you are likely to do your due homework in checking for affordability and the loan tenure among other factors. While it is essential to go for a car loan from a lender who has banking expertise in the sector of car or auto loans, so you get the best rate and comfortable repayment options, you can also use the EMI calculator like the Bank of Baroda's Car Loan EMI calculator that will help you make a well-informed choice in picking your car loan. In using a car loan EMI calculator, you need to key in three basic variables- the loan amount you are likely to need, the tenure or the repayment period that suits your finances and the rate of interest. Now, the rate of interest is what you get from the bank, while the other two are the ones you can play around with on the calculator. Here is why using a car loan EMI calculator works. If EMI is more: You can pick a longer loan term or You can make the loan amount smaller. If you find the EMI is coming out to be lower, then you can plan for a larger loan value or a shorter loan term. You can also use the PMT formula on Microsoft Excel to calculate the EMI (Equated Monthly Instalments), where PMT is your EMI, Rate is the rate of interest, Nper or number of periods is the total number of payments for the loan and Pv is the loan value or the principal. The formula is  $PMT(Rate, Nper, Pv)$ . You can keep trying the formula for various combinations and then choose the one with the lowest EMI, though this is a roundabout approach prone to human error. Bank of Baroda offers car loans and has a wide range of benefits, irrespective of your loan amount or type of vehicle. title: 7 Amazing Benefits Of Taking A Gold Loan , content: Almost no auspicious occasion or family function is complete without gold jewellery. In fact, gold is also one of the most precious gifts to pass on to your descendants. But the value of gold doesn't simply end there; did you know that you can also get a loan against gold jewellery/Ornaments? In fact, the gold loan sector has grown over the past few years in India and looks set to prosper even more. As gold loans are a secured form of debt, they are quite beneficial for the borrower as well as the lender. To help you understand more about this form of borrowing, here are 7 benefits of taking a gold loan in India:

- Quick turnaround time

The time taken by the lender to sanction your loan after you have completed the application process is called the turnaround time. By offering gold as Security, you essentially give a guarantee to the lender about the repayment of the debt. Hence, lenders are known to approve and sanction gold loans much more quickly when compared to other forms of debt. Thus, you can get an instant gold loan and meet your emergency expenses with ease. TAT for Gold Loan in Bank of Baroda is 15 minutes.

- Relatively low interest rates

The interest rate charged by lenders is usually proportional to the risk they bear for giving you the loan. Consequently, unsecured loans usually require you to pay a higher rate of interest. However, when you procure a loan by offering gold as security, the risk borne by the lender reduces significantly. Hence, loan providers charge relatively low interest rates when compared other forms of debt such as personal loans or business loans. This is one of the biggest gold loan benefits to note.

- Low processing charges

If you procure a loan against property, the bank will have to first check the valuation of the property and ensure that it is not a part of any major legal issues. This verification process can be time-consuming and cause the bank to bear a few ancillary costs. Thus, lenders levy processing charges to cover such expenses. However, when you procure a loan against gold, the loan provider only needs to check the purity of the metal along with its market value. This reduces the time and hassle involved in the collateral verification process. Hence, most lenders levy zero or minimal processing charges on gold loans.

- Zero prepayment charges

Nobody likes to stay in debt for an extended period of time, especially if the loan does not offer tax benefits. Now, while you can avail of tax benefits on the interest paid on gold loans for business purposes, the fact is that not many businesses use gold as an asset. If you are taking a gold loan for personal reasons, you do not get to enjoy any tax benefits. Thus, it is only logical to pay off your debt as quickly as you can. Understanding such concerns, prominent banks in the country do not charge any prepayment penalty on gold loans. Bank of Baroda is one such major bank which charging prepayment charges in Gold Loans.

- No requirement for proof of income

Lenders usually require you to furnish some proof of income to understand your repayment capability. However, when you offer gold as collateral, the lender gets the assurance of the repayment of the debt. This is because, if you fail to repay the loan, the lender can simply sell off the gold pledged by you and earn back their capital amount. Hence, one of the best gold loan features is that lenders do not require to furnish an income proof to approve your loan application. As a result, gold loans can be quite useful for people who do not have a source of income but require finances to tackle an emergency. So, if you are a homemaker or starting out as a freelancer, a gold loan might actually prove to be the best option to get simple and uncomplicated financing for your needs.

- No impact of bad credit history

Your CIBIL score reflects your creditworthiness. It is a numerical value that shows how efficiently you can manage your debts. Having a low CIBIL score can make it hard for you to procure credit and, in most cases, increase the interest that is levied by the lender on the debt. However, if you offer gold as security, lenders do not require you to have a good credit history. This is because, if you fail to repay the debt, the lender can sell the gold pledged by you and earn back their capital amount.

- Higher LTV ratio

LTV ratio, or loan-to-value ratio, is the portion of the collateral's market value that the lender can offer you as debt. For example, imagine you wish to buy a house that is worth Rs 1 crore. To finance your purchase, you procure a home loan from a lender who has an LTV of 60%. Consequently, the lender would only provide you Rs 60 lakh as the principal amount, while the remaining Rs 40 lakh would have to be paid by you. As it is evident, a lower LTV will reduce the loan amount that the lender can offer you. However, lenders who offer gold loans have a higher LTV.

Finally, once you give your gold to the lender as security, it is their responsibility to keep the precious yellow metal safe. Hence, all the gold that is taken by the lender as collateral is stored in a secured vault. Thus, you do not have to worry about your prized possession being stolen or misplaced. Once you repay the debt, the gold is returned to you safely.

title: Looking for a gold loan? Here is why the Bank of Baroda gold loan is the right choice!

We also offer you an online gold loan calculator that can help you understand the loan amount you can procure from the comfort of your home.

title: Plan your budget in advance

, content: Before you apply for any type of loan, it is important to calculate the maximum loan amount required by you. This is one of the most important car loan application tips that you must put into action. Planning helps you estimate your monthly EMIs and create a repayment plan that fits in your budget. The maximum loan amount that you are eligible for depends on your CIBIL score, age, and salary. Hence, you should also check if you are eligible for the loan amount you wish to procure from the creditor. Ideally, you can receive a maximum of up to 90% of the On Road Price of car, in the form of a loan, while the remaining 10% must be paid as margin by you. However, some lenders also finance up to 100% of the car's costs.

When planning your budget for a car, do remember to add registration charges and other such minor fees as well in your calculations. This way, you won't fall short of funds if the need arises.

title: Choose a car in your budget

, content: Once you have finalised the budget that you can manage, the next step is to find the car that fits in this budget. The car model that you choose to buy will depend on the purpose of your purchase. For example, a spacious sedan or an economical SUV or MUV will be great choices if you are looking to purchase a vehicle for going on drives with your family. On the other hand, if you are looking to buy a car for solo rides to the office, you can opt for a hatchback or a compact two-door car that is economical and provides great mileage.

When buying a car, research a few options online and then go to vehicle showrooms to test drive the models you like. Compare the various features and see which vehicle is affordable in the long run. You can also use the different car aggregator websites to compare the different cars that are available in your budget.

title: Choose the right loan tenure

, content: A longer loan tenure increases the interest you pay while choosing the shortest possible tenure helps you keep the interest on your loan at the bare minimum. Car loans typically have a maximum tenure of 7 years.

If you wish to finish your loan as quickly as possible, you should consider taking a car loan with the shortest possible tenure. This, however, will result in an increase in your monthly EMIs. On the other hand, choosing a long loan tenure reduces the amount you need to pay as your monthly EMIs but increases the interest amount that you need to pay for procuring the car loan. Try to strike the right balance when taking a car loan. Choose a tenure that will uniquely fit your monthly budget and help you save on extra interest. So, if you can finish paying a car loan in five years, do not simply stretch the tenure to six or seven years even if the lender allows you to. This is one of the car loan tips that will help trim down the money you pay in interest.

title: Compare car loan interest rates and other charges

, content: When buying a car loan, make sure to compare the various rates of interest charged by different lenders. The rate of interest heavily impacts the total amount that you will need to repay to the lender. Finding the lowest possible rate of interest will really help you save on money. Also, remember that you will also need to bear ancillary costs like the processing fees when taking a car loan. Make sure to compare these fees levied by different lenders to find the loan provider whose charges suit your pocket. Do also ask what kind of penalties are levied in case of late payments or missed payments. As rates of interest and charges keep changing, this tip can help you find the best car loan in 2022.

title: Maintain a healthy credit score

, content: If you have a credit score above 701, you can easily apply for a loan and negotiate for lower interest rates. A high credit score also helps you procure loans of a higher value. Maintaining a healthy credit score proves that you are a creditworthy individual with a sound history of repaying your debts. Having a good credit score also can make you eligible for pre-approved loans. So, it helps to look into your credit score before you apply for a loan. Take steps to clear existing debt and pay your credit card bills in full and on time as doing this helps bring up your credit score.

title: Do not miss your monthly EMI payments

, content: Missing your EMIs will have a negative impact on your CIBIL score. Missing payments also increases the amount you need to pay the following month due to penalties or late fees levied by the lender. If you have defaulted on the EMI payments of your car loan for three consecutive months, the lender considers the loan provided to you as an NPA (Non-Performing Asset). Due to this, the lender can take possession of the vehicle financed and you will lose your car.

Hence, being regular with your monthly EMI payments is beneficial for you in so many ways. It gives a boost to your CIBIL score and helps you avoid any extra penalties that you may incur due to late payments. In order to avoid late payments, you may want to consider setting up automatic debits of the EMI from your bank account. This is really great car loan advice that can help you save a fortune in fees and penalties.

title: Stay connected with your bank

, content: Loans are granted by lenders only after they gain trust in your abilities to repay the debt. Communication plays a significant role in building trust between the lender and the debtor. If you face any problem with the repayment of the loan, it is better to communicate the same with your lender and be transparent with them about your issues. Lenders typically do not like to take the legal route to recover their money as it can turn out to be quite expensive. Due to this, they help you by pushing your EMI payments to the consecutive months or by decreasing the monthly EMI amount by increasing your loan tenure. They will work with you to find a suitable solution, so always keep them informed about your situation.

title: Conclusion, content: It is quite important to choose the right car loan as this decision will also impact how well you can repay your debt. Moreover, your loan does have a direct impact on your CIBIL score. Follow the car loan tips mentioned here to get the loan option that best suits your needs and budget. This way, you can make a guided choice that will truly give you peace of mind.

Bank of Baroda offers car loans at attractive interest rates with up to 90% financing. Our loans are available for salaried individuals, businessmen, and even NRIs and PIOs. Get in touch with us today to finance the vehicle of your dreams!

title: Government bonds, content: Government bonds are bonds offered by the government for direct purchase by individual investors. Earlier, these individual investors could only trade in government bonds through mutual fund investments. However, any individual investor can now directly invest in government bonds. The central idea of opening government bonds to individual investors was to encourage the domestic participation of investors in sovereign bond markets.

These bonds are issued by both the state and central government from time to time. The government declares the date of their offering beforehand. The state government bonds are known as state development loans (SDLs), while the ones issued by the central are known as G -sec or simply government bonds.

You can get these government bonds from E - Kuber, commercial lenders listed by the government, stock exchange, and brokerage companies. Government bonds are one of the best investment options as being backed by the government these bonds do not have any credit risk associated and can usually offer a predictable rate of return (if the investor stays invested till the maturity of the bond).

title: Sovereign gold bonds (SGB), content: Opting for sovereign gold bonds is a great way to invest your money if you do not wish to invest in physical gold. A major benefit of investing in sovereign gold bonds is that you get the entire value of gold per gram prevailing on the day of sale. This is different from the sale of physical gold as you end up losing out on some percentage since most vendors deduct making charges. Further Sovereign Gold Bond investors also get a semi-annual pay-out of interest on the Initial investment (current interest rate for SGB is 2.5% on the initial investment).

Sovereign gold bonds are issued solely by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI). You can buy these bonds at any bank or post office in your locality. Some stock brokerage companies also offer to sell sovereign gold bonds.

Sovereign gold bonds are quite easy to maintain as they are available in denominations of one gram of gold. The minimum value of gold bonds that you can buy is one gram. The maximum limit of gold bond holdings is 4 kg for individual buyers and 20 kgs for trusts. Over the years, sovereign gold bonds have proved to be an ideal higher-return investment.

title: Fixed deposits, content: For years, fixed deposits have been a popular investment option among all kinds of investors. They are one of the most secure forms of saving and considered to be one of the best investment plan for 3 years. Investing in fixed deposits is a great way to accumulate interest gains for both short and long periods.

Fixed deposit interest rates tend to be higher than what a regular savings account offers. A great benefit of a fixed deposit is that it can be liquidated quickly. So, if you need money for any emergency, you can go ahead and withdraw the funds with ease albeit with a penalty depending on the timing of exit. Further, you do not have to worry about losing your principal amount as fixed deposits are safeguarded from market volatility. So, you can be assured of receiving fixed investment returns.

You can also choose to renew your fixed deposit after 3 years if you wish to do so. The process of fixed deposit renewal is quite simple and hassle-free since you can set the renewal instructions when you create the deposit.

title: Mutual Funds, content: One of the prominent investment options in India as well as across the globe - Mutual funds are an ideal investment avenue which can potentially offer wealth creation and capital appreciation over the long term. It is a market-linked investment alternative, which invests money in various financial instruments such as equity, debt, money market instruments etc. The returns are generated as per market performance of the underlying investments.

Even though Investments in Mutual Funds are subject to market risks and risk exposure in mutual fund investments is usually higher, these products can potentially offer better returns as compared to other investment options in the market. Investors are advised to assess their risk profile as well as investment horizon to better evaluate investments in Mutual Funds.

Various types of Mutual Funds like Equity, Hybrid and Debt Mutual Funds can help an investor to address Short, Medium and Long term financial goals and generate inflation beating returns over the long term.

title: Gold exchange-traded funds (ETFs), content: Gold exchange-traded fund investments are similar to buying physical gold. The key difference is that the physical gold will be stored with the depositor, and you will be offered bond units for them. The physical gold is used to derive the actual value of the units you hold.

To invest in gold exchange-traded funds, you need to have a Demat account. A Demat account is where your units will be stored. In case you do not have a Demat account, you can choose to invest in gold funds offered by a few banks.

One unit of the gold exchange-traded fund is equivalent to one gram of gold. So, the value of your unit rises each time the gold rate goes up. Gold exchange-traded funds are considered by many to be one of the best investment plan with higher returns because they can be traded like equity mutual funds in the open stock market. So, if your ETFs are performing really well in the market, you can expect to gain more profitable returns from them.

Another plus point about ETFs is that they have no mandatory lock-in period associated with them. You are free to sell your EFT units at any given point in time.

title: Public Provident Fund (PPF), content: PPF account is one of the best investment options for individuals who have a low-risk appetite. PPF is a government-backed scheme, and the investment is also not market-linked. Due to this, it offers guaranteed returns to protect the investment needs of many people. As the returns from PPF accounts are fixed, they are used as a diversification tool for the investor's portfolio. Additionally, they also offer tax-saving benefits as PPF falls under the Exempt-Exempt-Exempt (EEE) category. In other words, all deposits made in the PPF are deductible under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act (subject to maximum contribution of Rs 1.5 Lakh). Furthermore, the accumulated amount and interest is also exempt from tax at the time of withdrawal. It is however important to note that a PPF account cannot be closed before maturity.

title: National Pension Scheme (NPS), content: NPS is one of the best investment option, which is government-backed and offers pension solutions. The fund invests in, bonds, government securities, equity and other investment alternatives as per the investor's preference and risk profile. It offers two options- auto and active. Under the auto option, the funds are invested automatically in different assets, whereas the active option enables the investor to invest in assets as per their choice.

The lock-in period depends on the investor's age, as the scheme only matures when the investor turns 60. As per this scheme, the accumulated interest is tax-free. And when one chooses for the lump-sum payment upon maturity, 40% of the maturity proceeds are tax-exempt. If one opts to receive the pension post maturity, the amount is taxable as regular income.

An investor may ideally confer with a financial advisor for more information on safe investments with optimal returns in India. They will be able to help you opt for an investment plan encompassing various different investment products that suit your financial goals – short term as well as long term.

title: 7 PPF Account Benefits You Should know About

, content: If you are looking for a low-risk investment option, a Public Provident Fund or PPF is the answer for you. It is a long-term investment tool that helps you save money as well as enjoy tax benefits. The returns on a PPF investment are high, too, making it one of the most popular investment products of India. PPF account and its benefits are endless but here are seven top benefits you should know about:

Low risk: One of the biggest Public Provident Fund benefits is that it is a safe investment product. Since PPF account is not linked to any markets and is backed by the Government of India, an important PPF account benefit is that it has little to no risk. The returns on your investment are guaranteed by the government, so you can invest in a PPF and relax. An additional PPF account benefit is that if, unfortunately, you default on your debts, the funds in your PPF account cannot be attached by a court order to pay off the debt.

Tax benefits: Any investment up to Rs 1.5 lakh in a year into a PPF account is eligible for tax benefits under section 80C of the Income Tax Act. So your investments will be deducted from your taxable income. Another Public Provident Fund tax benefit is that the interest you earn on your investment is completely tax free.

Nomination benefits: A PPF account can be opened by anybody, including minors. Minors can invest in a PPF account under the guidance of a legal guardian. An important public provident fund benefit is that the account comes with a nomination option. So, you can nominate a beneficiary to your account in the unfortunate case of your death.

No minimum limit: With a PPF account, there is no minimum limit on deposits. You can start as low as Rs 500 and go on increasing the funds up to Rs 1.50 Lakhs.

Good returns: While you have the liberty to invest as low as you want, your returns are guaranteed by the Government of India. One of the PPF account benefits is you can also decide if you want to invest monthly or at once. For Quarter Jan-Mar 2020, the interest rate on a PPF account is 7.9% compounded annually.

Liquidity and loan facilities: A PPF account goes a long way at your time of need. One of the PPF account benefit is that you are eligible to get a loan from the Bank against a PPF account you hold with them from the 3rd F.Y. till end of 6th FY. In case of emergency, you can also make partial withdrawals from your PPF account on completion of five years from the end of the year in which the account was opened.

Flexible tenure: A PPF benefits after 15 years when the account tenure is over. Upon maturity you can decide to withdraw the entire amount or further invest in the PPF for an additional five years by applying for account extension within one year of maturity.

These are the top benefits of a PPF account. There are more advantages such as a PPF account can be transferred from your bank to a post office or other bank near you. You can also have your PPF account moved to a different Bank of Baroda branch. To invest in a safe and reliable investment tool, click here.

title: It All Begins with Your Passwords

, content: The cardinal rule for transacting online or via your smartphone is, you must have a strong password and change it regularly. This is one of the most critical and necessary safe internet banking tips. Use random numbers, symbols and letters that only you will remember. Most banks will recommend a combination of all three and some will even prompt if your password isn't strong enough. Using upper- and lower-case letters help too. Stay away from familiar things like birthdays, names, house numbers etc. Finally, do not share your passwords with anyone, no matter what. Your passwords are unique and meant only for you.

Do not save passwords / credentials on browser and/or any apps for login.

title: Keep a Close Watch on Your Accounts:

, content: Monitor your accounts' activities frequently, especially if you transact a lot. It is one of the few tips for safe internet banking of which we become careless. You have to check your bank balances and monthly statements for any debits that appear suspicious. Reach out to your bank in case you find such or similar transactions.

title: Use a Secure Internet Connection

, content: To prevent anyone from misusing your private information, one of the safe online banking tips is to use a secure, internet connection. Make sure that the wi-fi is password-protected and not free; if you're travelling, connect with your smartphone's hotspot. You can even choose a private browser to access your bank's netbanking platform.

title: Get Notified

, content: One of the safe internet banking tips is to turn on your bank's notifications from your mobile phone. You can also opt for receiving SMS alerts. Many banks allow you to customise notifications and alerts, e.g. you can choose specific triggers like in case your account balance goes below or above a particular limit.

title: Sign-Out, Every Time

, content: Once your netbanking or mobile banking session is over, remember to sign out. This is one of the tips for safe internet banking that few are aware. Uncheck the 'Keep me signed in' box and log out. In fact, as an added precaution, clear your browser history and cache after you log off.

title: Sift the Real From Fake

, content: Phishing and calling scams have increased over the last few years. Among the safe online banking tips, you may already know of this one. Your account information, passwords, card CVV numbers, OTPs etc. are confidential. Never entertain or answer an e-mail or call that requests for any or all of these details, unless you have initiated the transaction.

Do not click on the any link provided in the email / SMS message etc. Always type the bank website URL in the address link of browser to access your account.

title: 5 Steps to Apply for a Home Loan, content: Eligibility

Before you begin the Home Loan application process, you need to ensure that you are indeed eligible for the loan. The bank determines whether you qualify for a Housing Loan after considering several factors such as your age, employment status, income, and monthly expenses. You have to input these details in the Bank of Baroda Home Loan Eligibility Calculator. The calculator instantly computes whether or not you are eligible for the loan. If you qualify, it calculates the maximum loan amount you can get. Note that the calculator only computes a rough estimate of the loan amount. The bank determines the actual loan amount you can get, after assessing the loan application form.

Document Submission

After getting a rough estimate of the loan amount you can get, you can move to the next step in the Home Loan application process. You need to fill the loan application form. You can fill the form online, directly through the bank's website. You have to provide your personal and financial details, based on which the bank confirms the maximum loan amount for which you are eligible. You also have to provide your necessary documents such as your ID, age, and income proof documents etc. You have to also submit property documents like sale or title deeds, NOC or the allotment letter etc. You need these documents irrespective of whether it's a new or existing property.

Property Evaluation

Since a Home Loan is a high-value investment for the bank, the bank does its bit in evaluating the property. A surveyor appointed by the bank visits the property's site and checks the market value of the property. While the bank surveys the property, it would help to have free and clear titles. Bank also appoint a lawyer to check that the title deed and other documents are clear from legal angle

Documentation

The bank provides a format for you to draw up the loan agreement. All costs and charges relating to the Home Loan, including the loan processing fees, stamp duty charges, loan administration charges, etc., should be borne by you. You may factor in these charges as part of your loan amount as well. The Home Loan agreement document comprises details such as the bank's loan amount, the levied interest rate, the EMI payable, and the loan tenure. It also includes other essential terms and conditions regarding prepayment, default, collateral, etc., which you must read carefully.

Home Loan Disbursal

In the final step of the Home Loan application process, the bank disburses the loan amount. Based on the type of Home Loan you have applied for, the money will be disbursed either to you or the builder. The bank also determines whether the loan amount should be disbursed in partial instalments or as a lump sum. Once the loan amount is disbursed, your Home Loan is officially underway. It begins when you pay your first EMI and ends when you pay the last.

title: Types of Home Loan

, content: Having explained how to apply for a Home Loan, let us look at the different types of Home Loans offered by Bank of Baroda. These are of 9 types:

The Standard Home Loan that enables you to buy a new, existing pre-owned, or under-construction property.

A Home Construction Loan enables you to construct a house on a piece of land owned by you.

A Home Loan to buy a plot of land, on which you will construct a property in the future (within 36 months).

A Home Extension Loan allows you to enlarge the size of your existing house, build extra floors, etc.

A Home Improvement Loan helps to finance the costs associated with renovating your existing house.

A Top-up Home Loan can get you additional financing on your existing Home Loan.

A Balance Transfer Home Loan allows you to transfer your loan from another lender to Bank of Baroda and benefit from a reduced interest rate.

A Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana (PMAY) Home Loan allows you to get subsidised interest rates on your Home Loan. This funding type is useful if you belong to the economically weaker section, a light-income group or a medium-income group per PMAY policies.

A Pre-approved Home Loan wherein you can first get approval for a loan and then finalise the property based on your eligibility.

title: Documents for Home Loan Application Process, content: Besides knowing how to apply for a Home Loan online, you should also be aware of the documents you need to submit while applying for a Home Loan. These include:

Your age proof documents

You need to provide any government-approved document with your date of birth mentioned on it. Age proof documents help banks assess if you are in the 21-65 years age group (at the time of repaying the final EMI) to be eligible for the loan. This document could be a PAN Card, Aadhaar Card, Passport, Driving License, etc.

Your identity proof documents

Any Government-approved document featuring your photograph is accepted as a valid identity proof document. It could be your PAN Card, Aadhaar Card, Passport, Driving License, Voter ID Card, etc.

Your address proof documents

Any Government-approved document featuring your current/permanent address is accepted as a valid address proof document. It could be your Aadhaar Card, Passport, Driving License, Voter ID Card, Ration Card, Utility bills, etc.

Your income and employment proof documents

You need to provide documents validating your employment, such as your offer letter and designation, salary slips, increment letters, etc. If you are self-employed or a business owner, you need to provide your bank statement, profit and loss statements, proof of business documents, etc. All applicants must also provide their income tax returns for the last three years.

Property-specific documents

Finally, you must provide all documents related to the property you intend to buy such as the No Objection Certificate supplied by the society or builder, the original sale deed, letter of allotment, bank statements and receipts showing advance payments, etc. If you are taking a Home Construction Loan, you must also provide a document on estimating the costs associated with property construction, approved map etc.

title: 9 Best Home Loan Tips 2022

, content: A home not only provides a roof over your head, but also doubles up as an investment. Your property can be sold for money at some point in the future. It can also function as collateral for a loan. Home loan is one of the best ways to finance the purchase of your dream flat or house. A home loan helps you safeguard your savings and gives you all the required flexibility to repay the cost of your property with comfort and ease by the way of EMI.

Now, there are so many options of home loans available out there. Choosing just one among all these can be quite confusing. To help you get the best option, here are a few home loan tips that can prove helpful.

title: Check your CIBIL score

, content: Home loans are typically of high amounts and long tenures; thus, they can only be given to individuals who have a good credit history. The minimum home loan credit score required by most of the banks in India is ranges between 650-750. Furthermore, your CIBIL score is directly proportional to the loan amount you are eligible for. This means that having a higher CIBIL score helps you procure loans of higher amount. Generally, having a CIBIL score of 750 and above is considered ideal for procuring a good and substantial value of a home loan. If you check your CIBIL score and find it to be below 650 or just at par with 650, it is better to work on increasing your score before applying for a home loan. Having a good CIBIL score can also help you procure a loan at a relatively lower interest rate.

It is recommended to check your CIBIL score every 3 to 6 months. This will help you keep track of your creditworthiness and devise a strategy to increase your score.

title: Start saving for a down payment

, content: It is important to plan your finances and save up for the down payment before initiating your application for a home loan. This is, perhaps, the best home loan advice that anyone can give you. Lenders typically require you to pay 10% to 30% of the total purchase value of the house or property as down payment depending on your loan amount.

With increasing expenses, it can be quite difficult to save for your home loan down payment. However, making small changes in your monthly budget can ensure that a portion of your income is put aside in a savings account/Investment account etc. to build a corpus for the down payment.

title: Get your financial documents in order

, content: When you take a home loan, you will be required to provide your lender with certain documents such as your recent salary slips, ITRs, and bank account statements, among other paperwork. It helps to keep these documents ready in advance so that you do not have to rush at the eleventh hour to find what you need.

The list of documents required for a home loan can vary between lenders. The documents required can change slightly depending on whether you are salaried or self-employed. Hence, it is better to check with the lender about the records that are required by them. You can easily get a list of required documents by visiting the lender's website or by calling them up directly.

title: Use a home loan EMI calculator

, content: Understanding your EMI payments is one of the most important home loan repayment tips to keep in mind. Calculating your monthly EMI payments before applying for a home loan can help you avoid taking on debt that you cannot afford to repay.

EMI calculations are dependent upon the interest rate charged and tenure of the loan among many other factors; hence, EMIs are not that easy to calculate manually. Fortunately, you can use the lender's home loan EMI calculators online to get an idea of the loan amount that you can afford to borrow.

title: Select the right type of home loan

, content: There are many different types of home loans offered by every lender. Bank of Baroda offers its customers different types of home loans including top up loan, home improvement loan, and a home loan takeover scheme, among others. Each type of home loan offers different benefits to borrowers. Hence, it is better to compare bank loans and choose the right home loan that best suits your needs.

When taking a home loan, you can also choose between a fixed interest rate home loan or a floating interest rate home loan. While a fixed interest rate loan will have a constant interest rate throughout the loan tenure, the floating interest rate will see the interest rate change as per the market.

title: Compare the different home loan offers , content: The cost of procuring a home loan varies between lenders too. When selecting a home loan, you should consider the interest rate charged, home loan processing fees, application fees, technical valuation charges and other such expenses before starting your application process.

To get the best home loan in 2022, do make sure to compare the different loan offers and the other ancillary costs that are associated with borrowing. This research will help you make a smart choice. Remember that a home loan is debt that you take for a long term – generally between 20 to 30 years. So, you would want to pick the best loan provider who fulfils your financial needs for peace of mind.

title: Stay connected with your lender

, content: After you submit your loan application, the lender may require some additional information from you before processing it ahead. Giving quick responses to the lender will help you get the loan amount disbursed swiftly.

It is also imperative to stay in touch with your lender throughout the loan tenure. This will help you build trust with the lender and get the timely help if needed.

title: Keep your credit score maintained during the loan processing period

, content: Lenders typically check your credit score before accepting your loan application. However, they can also pull up your scores again before sanctioning the loan. This helps them ensure that you are a creditworthy individual and are consistent in repaying your debts. Hence, do not get lax on your payments after the lender has accepted your home loan application. Rather, pay more attention to your credit card bills and ensure that they are paid on time. It is also better to avoid applying for new loans until your home loan is sanctioned. This will help you maintain your credit score.

title: Read all the loan related documents carefully

, content: It is particularly important to understand the different terms and conditions of the home loan before signing the documents. Ensure that you go through the documents and get comprehensive knowledge of what you are signing up for. You can contact your lender and ask them for any help you need in understanding the fine print.

title: Conclusion : Banking Mantra, content: At Bank of Baroda, we understand the important role played by a home loan in helping you buy your dream house. So, we offer a wide range of home loans with very competitive pricing.

title: Everything you need to know about Loan Against Securities

, content: Loans can be broadly classified into two forms, secured debt and unsecured debt. Home loans, car/bike loans, and secured lines of credit are all examples of a secured form of debt. This means that to procure such loans, you need to pledge collateral to the lender. Collateral, in simple words, is a valuable item of a certain value that the lender can sell to cover your loan if you fail to make payments. Banks and financial institutions usually accept real estate, gold, and other such assets as forms of collateral. Now, did you know that you can also get a loan against securities?

Let's find out more about what is loan against securities and how it works.

title: Loan against securities meaning , content: When you pledge your mutual fund units, equity investments and other such security investments in the form of collateral to procure a loan, you are said to have taken loan against securities. These loans are usually offered as an overdraft facility in your bank account. This means that by procuring a loan against security, the lender allows you to withdraw more money than what is present in your bank account. Excess money can be withdrawn keeping aside certain percentage of margin on market value of collateral you offer

Furthermore, the lender only charges you interest on the amount of excess money you withdraw from your bank account. The interest levied is always in proportion to the time it takes to repay the debt. This means that the longer you take to repay the loan, the more interest you will end up paying.

Let's take a look at a quick example to gain a better understanding. Imagine that you have procured a loan of Rs 4 lakh by offering securities worth Rs 5 lakh as collateral. Now, if you withdraw Rs 75,000 through the overdraft facility, you only have to pay interest on the withdrawn amount instead of the entire Rs 4 lakh.

Here, it is important to understand that securities are usually volatile in nature. Due to this, their value can depreciate any time into the future. Hence, while offering loans against securities, the lender not only bears the risk of credit from the debtor but also takes on the market risk associated with the pledged securities. Consequently, loans against securities are only offered to individuals with an excellent credit history. A majority of the lenders require you to have a CIBIL score of above 700 to be eligible to procure loan against securities. To further mitigate the exposure to risk, lenders can sell your pledged securities if you default or if the LTV (Last Traded Value) of the securities falls below a certain threshold that is pre-defined by the lender. The securities sold by the lender cannot be invoked by the debtor even if they repay the debt in full.

title: Loan against securities benefits

, content: There are a lot of benefits of procuring a loan against securities, such as:

- No restriction on use

Unlike a home loan that you can only use to purchase a property, you can use the money from a loan taken against securities as per your discretion. So, you can take a loan against securities to meet contingencies and personal needs only. This is because when you take a loan against securities, the lenders credit the funds to you upon request. While making a transaction, the funds are transferred from your account to the vendor's account. So, this type of a loan can be used for almost any expense, from emergency medical bills to funding your child's education.

- Access to a high loan amount

Well-known loan providers can help you avail funds up to Rs 5 crore by pledging your security investments as collateral. However, the maximum loan amount usually depends on the type of security you wish to pledge. These loan terms do vary from one lender to the other. At Bank of Baroda, we offer a maximum loan amount of Rs 20 lakh for shares, equity mutual funds in Demat form, debentures, and bonds in Demat form. Alternatively, if you pledge debt oriented mutual funds in the unit or Demat form, you can procure a maximum loan of Rs 5 crore. We wish to make this scheme accessible to as many creditworthy debtors as possible. Hence, if equity mutual funds are in demat form maximum loan that can be granted is Rs 20 lakhs and if equity mutual funds are in non demat form maximum loan that can be granted is Rs 10 lakhs.

- Protect your investments

Imagine you invest in the equity market and have accumulated equities worth Rs 5 lakh till date. You estimate these equities to grow your portfolio by about 48% in 20 years. However, a few months after the transaction, you are in urgent requirement of money and need about Rs 4 lakh to tackle the personal emergency. Here, if you do not have any other savings, it makes sense to want to sell your security investments and raise the required funds. However, if you take a loan for the same amount by pledging your securities as collateral, you can avoid selling your investments pre-maturely and still raise the funds that you need to tackle your emergency. Suppose you pay 12% interest on your loan, your total profit potential at the end of 20 years is 36%!

title: What is UAN Number?

, content: The UAN full form is Unique Account Number. It is a 12-digit code that helps you access your Employee Provident Fund (EPF) account. The UAN can help access various services linked to your EPF account such as checking your PF account balance, applying for a PF loan or withdrawing money from your PF account. It is assigned to you by the EPFO (Employee Provident Fund Organization) through your employer at the time of subscription. The UAN remains the same regardless of the jobs you change and hence, it can help you get independent access to your provident fund account. Whenever you change your job, the EPFO generates a new EPF account ID and links it to your UAN. This way you do not have to create new PF accounts every time you switch your job and enables you to view and reconcile your EPF account history quite conveniently.

title: How to find UAN Number?

, content: If you are wondering how to know UAN number, here are two ways to do so:

Find your UAN through the employer

You can find the UAN linked to your PF account by checking the salary slips provided by your employer. Alternatively, you can also contact the HR of your company to find your PF UAN number.

Find your UAN through the UAN portal

If, due to any reason, you are unable to find out your UAN through your employer, you can find the same using a UAN portal. All you must do is follow the steps listed below to receive your UAN number on your registered mobile number.

Step 1

Visit the UAN member portal. The web address of the portal is - <https://unifiedportal-mem.epfindia.gov.in/memberinterface/> .

Click on the 'Know Your UAN' tab and enter your registered mobile number and captcha.

Step 3

Click on the 'Request OTP' button and enter the code.

Step 4

Once you have entered the OTP on the portal, you will be redirected to a page where you will need to enter your date of birth and details of either your PAN card, Aadhaar card or member ID. After you have entered all the required information, click on the 'Show My UAN' button.

Step 5

Once you have clicked on the 'Show My UAN' button, one more OTP will be sent to your registered mobile number. Enter the one-time password into the online form and click on the 'Validate OTP and get UAN' button.

Step 6

The UAN linked to your PF account will sent to your registered mobile number.

title: What are the Features and Benefits of UAN?

, content: The introduction of UAN has made it easy for employers to verify employee details. The EPFO also uses the UAN to keep track of the multiple job changes of the employee. The UAN has helped EPFO to extract the bank account and KYC details of the member without any assistance from the employer. This has helped employees to get independent access to their PF accounts and has made it easy for them to withdraw money online. The UAN also ensures that the employer cannot access or avoid paying the employee their PF money. The unique number has further centralised the data of employees present throughout the country; hence, making it easy for the EPFO to maintain records.

title: How to Generate UAN Number?

, content: If you are wondering how to get UAN number, do not worry for it is typically generated by the employer on behalf of the employee. The UAN number can be generated by the employer by following the steps given below:

Step 1

Visit the EPF's employer portal and login with your establishment's login id and password.

Step 2

Go to the Member section and click on the 'Register Individual' tab.

Step 3

Enter the required information about the employee such as their DOB, PAN card number, Aadhaar card number, bank details and other such data as needed.

Step 4

Go to the 'Approval' section and approve all the details.

Step 5

After you have approved the details, a new UAN is generated by the EPFO. The employer can then link the newly generated UAN to the PF account of the employee.

title: What are the Documents Required to Generate UAN?

, content: The following documents are required for UAN activation and generation:

ID proof such as driving license, passport, or voter ID

Address proof such as a utility bill that is older than 3 months, driving license, or rent/lease agreement.

PAN card

Aadhaar card

ESIC card

Bank details such as bank account number, IFSC code, and branch name.

title: How do you Activate The UAN?

, content: After the UAN has been generated, it is important to activate it as well. Here are the steps to activate your UAN:

Step 1

Visit the EPFO website and click on the 'Activate UAN' button under the tab named 'Important Links'.

Step 2

You will then be required to either enter your UAN, member ID, Aadhaar card number, or PAN card number. You will also be required to provide information about yourself such as your name, mobile number, date of birth and email ID.

Step 3

After you have entered all the required details, click on the 'Get Authorization PIN' button. Doing this will help you receive an OTP on your registered mobile number.

Step 4

You will then be required to enter the PIN received on your mobile number and click on the 'Validate OTP and Activate UAN' button. Consequently, your UAN will be activated.

title: How to Link UAN with Aadhaar card?

, content: There are many ways to link your Aadhaar card to your UAN account. You can complete the linking process online by either using the EPFO website or the Umang mobile app. Additionally, you can also link the two offline by visiting the EPFO or Common Service Centres (CSC) outlets. To link your Aadhaar card to UAN through the EPFO website, follow these steps:

Step 1

Visit the EPF's online member portal and sign in with your UAN number login and UAN password.

Step 2

Go to the 'Manage' section and click KYC option.

Step 3

You would then need to click on the 'Aadhaar' option and enter your Aadhaar number along with your name.

Step 4

Once you have entered all the required details, click on the 'Save' button. Consequently, your Aadhaar details will be verified by the UIDAI.

Step 5

Once your Aadhaar details are verified, your UAN and Aadhaar will be linked. You will also be able to find 'Verified' written against your Aadhaar card details.

title: How to Link Multiple EPF Accounts with one UAN?

Step 1

Visit the EPFO web portal and click on 'Our Services' tab.

Step 2

Click on the 'For Employee' button followed by 'One Employee – One EPF Account' button.

Step 3

Fill in the required details such as your current member ID, mobile number, and UAN.

Step 4

You would then be required to click on the 'Generate OTP' button. This will send a one-time use code to your registered mobile number that you enter on the webpage.

Step 5

The last step is to enter your old EPF ID, accept the declarations and submit your request.

It is important to note that you can only link multiple EPF accounts if your UAN has been activated. The linking service is also only available after 3 days of UAN activation.

title: Conclusion

, content: Having a provident fund account helps you build a financial corpus for your retirement and enjoy free insurance along with many other benefits. Furthermore, withdrawal from your PF account is exempted from income tax after you have completed 5 years of dedicated service in a company. Knowing and keeping your UAN updated is the best way to reap these rewards. This unique number is also mandatory for online withdrawals from the PF account.

We hope that this has been an informative read for you today.

title: Banking Mantra, content: Buy a brand-new two-wheeler & zoom ahead in life title: Table of Content, content: What is a Car/Auto loan?

title: What is a Car/Auto loan?, content: Car/ auto loans are an amount borrowed by an individual to purchase a private car. You can also take a loan for purchasing commercial vehicles. You do not require collateral as the vehicle is hypothecated to the lender as collateral. Individuals can opt for loans on new cars, and used cars, (two-wheeler loans are under a separate category and so are commercial vehicle loans). Banks offer almost 90% of the cost for new vehicles and 75% on second-hand vehicles. The payment is on monthly basis within

title: What are the Types of Car Loan?, content: As we go into the know-how of the types of car loans in detail, as a buyer, you must have decided on the type of car you want. Your loan depends on the type of car you plan to purchase, the amount borrowed, or the principal, the rate of interest that varies from lenders, and the duration of loan repayment. Car loans fall under two types: • New car loans" this is the loan for those who want to buy a brand-new car from the showroom and pick up their dream model. New car loans come at attractive interest rates. Borrowers can loan from Rs. 2 Lac to Rs. 5 Crore at 8.4 to 11.90% interest rate (as of date i.e 24.01.2023) from the Bank of Baroda and the repayment term is up to 84 months.

"• Pre-used car loans : " Cars should not be more than 5 year old and repayment period is upto 96 month of the car age. The loan amount offered is between Rs. 2 Lac to Rs. 50 Lac at an interest rate of 8.4 to 11.90% and the tenure extends up to 60 months.

title: Documents Required for Car Loan, content: Once you have decided on the loan amount and the tenure of payback, ensure you have all the documents. What documents required for car loan ?

title: Identity proof:, content: Car loan eligibility works on different factors. While applying for a car loan, ensure that you fulfil the following criteria so that your application meets with hassle-free approval:

title: Credit score:, content: Apart from these, the other mandatory eligibility criteria are:

title: CIBIL Score for Car Loan, content: Just like any other loan application, CIBIL score for car loan is an important factor for loan approval. The bank considers this to be a qualifier when it comes to a loan sanction. Though the CIBIL alone is not the only criterion considered by the bank, it is an important factor. A higher CIBIL score makes your loan approval journey smooth. If your score is 701, you have an advantage.

title: Car Loan Interest Rates, content: Your car loan interest can be fixed or floating. Fixed car loan interest rates remain the same all through the loan tenure. It is a preferred option as the level of uncertainty in this type of loan is nil and enables better loan return management.

title: Car Loans Prepayment, content: Car loan prepayment works just like any other loan prepayment. Making a prepayment on the bank loan gives you a chance to repay a part of the principal. The lender, therefore, offers a lower rate of interest. Prepayment reduces the overall amount. However, banks have standard charges on the processing of a loan that include foreclosure penalties and processing fees. A foreclosure penalty is applicable when the borrower repays part or full loan amount before the maturity date. The processing fee is applied when the bank approves the loan. If you are taking a car loan from the Bank of Baroda, you can make a prepayment after paying 1 EMI. No penalty is applied to the prepaid amount.

title: Car Loan Tenure, content: When you are planning for a car loan, how do you decide which tenure to choose? Car loans offer no tax reduction, however, if you are opting for a high-priced model, then a shorter tenure will increase the EMI payment. Before moving forward with the loan application make sure you use the Bank of Baroda car loan EMI calculator to check the maximum suitability.

title: Surplus:, content: Bank of Baroda offers one of the lowest interest rates on car loans. You can enjoy low monthly EMIs on vehicle loans up to a tenure of 7 years. Bank of Baroda charges low processing fees, and prepayment charges are nil. Car loan borrowers can avail of a concession of 0.5% on the interest rate for those who offer 50% liquid security collateral. If the applicant is repaying a home loan with the Bank of Baroda and maintains a healthy repayment track record, the individual gets a discount from the bank on the car loan interest rate. Apply for Bank of Baroda car loans online directly by calling, SMS, or through their website, <https://bit.ly/3tRMXoK>. Existing Bank of Baroda customers can apply using Mobile Banking (bob World).

title: Car Loan Process in India - A Complete Guide, content: That expensive car you have your eyes on is now a possibility more than ever. You can get a loan from banks and other financial institutions to fund it. Not long ago, having a home of your own or a family car used to be considered luxurious most people found themselves unable to afford. But with the variety of loan products on offer these days, one does not have to have unfulfilled dreams anymore.

title: Car Loan Foreclosure & Prepayment Process, content: While car loans are a great way of purchasing high-end new or used cars, repaying the loan is a responsibility that keeps borrowers on their toes. A good plan of repayment will help lenders systematically manage their EMI without delaying or defaulting. Once you calculate your EMI, based on the types of car loan, new or pre-used, ensure you have a well-researched repayment plan ready. No matter what the size of your loan, a properly researched repayment plan will increase the loan sanction eligibility from banks. Following the EMI repayment tenure that the bank has set, is one way to pay back a major part of the full loan through prepayment or foreclosure, closing the loan can ease a bit of the borrower's pressure. Banks and financial institutes annually allocate large funding towards loans. Thus, repayment and foreclosure are attached to certain terms and conditions as lenders incur losses through foreclosure or part payment. The loan process rests upon an agreement where the borrower agrees to pay regular EMI to the bank or the lender, so borrowers may have to pay car loan closure charges when they choose these repayment options. Banks offer borrowers the flexibility to pay off the entire or part of the loan balance ahead of the term reducing the interest liability. In this article let us explore these repayment processes that lenders offer to borrowers.

title: Advantages of Digital Banking, content: "It's imperative that every step in the customer journey will begin by the bank understanding the customer's history and context--everything they have accrued during their journey so far," says Elad Hoffman, VP of Product, Voca. While banks reimagine their interaction with customers, let us understand what will drive customers towards this complete change. Customer-centric digital solutions will hold the key to this transformation. Digital banking features advantages to woo more and more people towards a smart digital culture.

title: Tapping convenience:, content: During COVID, the dependency on digital banking increased. Digital banking has promoted technology-based account opening, digital lending, wealth and investing. Banking is more accessible, and customer appetite for better technology is growing. However, with the growing demand and digital banking pressure, banks are being challenged to cope with the new customer behaviour in various facets of digital banking compliance. Here is a quick overview.

title: Shift in Banking Habits and Products through Innovation, content: With quick customer service being the primary focus, banks face challenges in providing a speedy network and facilitating customer agility on their digital platforms. With digital transactions growing popular and the volume of non-cash payments rising, creating financial solutions through interactive tools and customised products should be the main lookout for all financial services. Products that meet customer demands should be presented in the vernacular language in a manner that it reaches the less literate population especially in tier 2 and beyond sectors of the country. Dispute management should be efficiently handled while introducing new products. Customer real-time insights analysis offering greater accuracy should be speedily recovered to address customer choice and product requirements. The technology-enabled change should shift the bank's focus from data-intensive tasks to activities like product enhancement, business development, building compliance and boosting relationships with customers.

title: Security Concerns, content: With digital banking gaining momentum for customer convenience, the threat of fraud in financial transactions leaves both customers and banks exposed to swindlers. Banks are working towards spreading awareness amongst customers on the nature of threats that customers could face. They must never diverge confidential financial information to unknown callers/emails/messages. They should practice due diligence while performing financial transactions and change the secure credentials/passwords from time to time. Banks operate on layered security checks enabling customers to stop at any point if doubtful of a transaction. Banks advise customers never to click unknown links without checking Uniform Resource Locator (URL). For banking transactions official banking app or the official website of the bank must be

Frauds are a constant threat attempting to get confidential information through:

title: Technical Issues:, content: Failed connectivity and lack of consistent and accurate data is a major concern with banks. Banks are working towards pre-empting the problems with greater demand load rising from digital technologies. Relying on technically upgraded systems as customer expectations are rising and improved and speedy banking is the minimum expectation. Banks should deploy SaaS teams of engineers to scale the infrastructure based on core banking systems that are somewhat outdated to meet the new technologies of today. They must ensure that the banking digital service can upgrade and embrace future technologies. Banks should keep front-end focus ramping with new-age technology and innovation and prepare to be future-ready to meet customer pressure. In UPI payments too, banks should be able to control technical decline (TD). UPI downtimes need to be efficiently managed by banks.

title: Lack of Personal Relationships, content: Customer service is an important factor through which banks retain and gain their new client base. A bad experience with the service provider not mitigated at the right time by the relationship officer can be a damper on the bank's reputation. With technology being the first face in digital banking, non-human bots and customer care helplines are gradually replacing the personalised service that customers still love. These automated services can frustrate customers to the point of quitting. Most online banking apps are creating sets of possible questions for customers, hoping to solve problems. But not all questions address specific problems customers throw. People lack time and are mostly impatient. They prefer being attended to immediately. Therefore, when someone wishes to know what the loan-taking process involves, they are directed to a list of similar questions, that irritate and demotivate customers to another service provider. Personalised support cannot be completely removed and will need to exist alongside AI. Customers cannot be made to wait in long queues and quick attendance must be the lookout. The automated system needs greater improvement, supporting the exact customer query.

title: Growing Customer Expectations, content: Customers are switching rapidly to innovative online products and services. The increasing rise in India's digital payment through Unified Payments Interface (UPI) worth INR 10.4 lakh in August 2022 is proof of this transformation. Online banking and mobile banking also took off rapidly during the pandemic. Customers are looking for faster and better performance from their banking apps. Legacy technologies need to be revamped by a younger agile workforce operating with risk tolerance. Amping security further at every level and diminishing vulnerabilities will increase customer trust.

title: Table of Content, content: The Fundamentals of Mutual Funds title: The Fundamentals of Mutual Funds, content: A mutual fund is a type of investment instrument that pools money from several investors to buy securities like stocks, bonds, and other assets. Professional fund managers are in charge of managing the fund and choosing investments on the investors' behalf. A mutual fund's investment strategy aims to produce returns for its investors by diversifying its portfolio of holdings. The diversification helps to reduce the risk of losses, since the investments are spread across a range of securities. Mutual funds are a popular investment choice because they provide investors with access to a diverse array of assets that would be hard to duplicate on their own.

title: Advantages of Mutual Funds, content: Mutual funds provide a number of advantages, including: Diversification: One of the most significant advantages of mutual funds is that they provide investors with a diverse range of assets. The risk of losses is reduced by investing in a mutual fund since your money is distributed among a number of securities.

Professional Management: Professional fund managers with years of market expertise and understanding oversee mutual funds. On behalf of the investors, they are in charge of making investment decisions, and they also are responsible for and track the performance of the funds.

Liquidity: Mutual funds are extremely liquid investments, which means they may be bought and sold quickly. Mutual fund units may be redeemed at any time, making them a convenient investment choice.

Flexibility: Mutual funds are classified into several kinds, including equity funds, debt funds, hybrid funds, and others. You can select the sort of mutual fund that perfectly suits your investing objectives and risk tolerance.

Low Minimum Investment: The minimum investment amount for mutual funds is modest, so you may start investing with as little as a few thousand rupees. Because of this, they are a sound investment choice for investors from all economic strata.

Reasons to Invest in Mutual Funds If you are still unsure about whether to invest in mutual funds, here are some reasons why you should consider them:

Long-term Wealth Creation: Mutual funds are a great long-term investment that can help you accumulate money over time. You may reap from the power of compounding by investing consistently and staying invested for the long term.

Tax Benefits: Certain mutual funds, such as equity-linked savings schemes (ELSS), are eligible for tax breaks under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act.
Convenience: Investing in mutual funds is convenient and hassle-free. You may invest online or via a mobile app, and the fund managers will make investing choices on your behalf.

Low Cost: When compared to other forms of investments such as stocks and real estate, mutual funds are a low-cost investment alternative. Mutual fund schemes have a low expense ratio because of massive economies of scale, making mutual fund fees often cheaper than other types of investment fees.

Before Investing in Mutual Funds: Points to Think About Before you invest in mutual funds, here are some important points to consider:

Risk Appetite: Before investing in mutual funds, assess your risk tolerance. Various types of mutual funds contain varying degrees of risk, and you should select a fund that suits your risk tolerance.

Investment Horizon: You should consider your investment horizon before putting money into mutual funds. You should be ready to hold onto your mutual fund investment for many years as it is a long-term investing strategy.

Fund Performance: You should examine the track record of the mutual funds before making an investment. Look out for funds with a demonstrated history of long-term price appreciation.

title: Who Should Invest in Mutual Funds?, content: Mutual funds are a good investment choice for people of all income levels and risk tolerances. They are a great option for first-time investors who wish to start small. Mutual funds are also an excellent option for those looking to diversify their portfolio while limiting risk exposure.

title: Wrapping it up:, content: Mutual funds provide an excellent opportunity for investors to invest in a diverse portfolio of assets managed by professional fund managers. They are a convenient and accessible way to invest with reasonable minimum investment requirements and low fees.

title: What is an Agri EMI Calculator?, content: Agri EMI Calculator is a free, online tool that enables you to figure out the Equated Monthly Instalments, or EMIs, on loans secured for funding agriculture and operations closely related to agriculture. You can calculate the EMIs Payable against loans secured to support various agricultural activities using the Agri EMI Calculator. These include:

Crop Cultivation

Animal husbandry

Fisheries

Procuring raw materials

Storage and construction

Purchasing farming equipment

Purchasing tractors and other commercial four-wheelers

Other agricultural activities

With the help of the calculator, you can instantly calculate the EMI due in relation to the borrowed money over the course of a predetermined repayment period and an established interest rate.

title: How does the Agriculture EMI Calculator work?, content: The agricultural EMI calculator operates similarly to other EMI calculators. These easy instructions are listed below for your reference.

The calculator's first tab, labelled "Loan Amount," is where you should enter the desired loan amount. The minimum loan amount you can enter is Rs. 3,000, and the maximum loan amount you can enter is Rs. 2 crores.

After confirming the lender's minimum rate, choose a reasonable interest rate. You can consult a bank representative for assistance on the interest rates charged.

Specify the loan term in months. One year to 15 years (180 months) of repayment terms are available.

The calculator will instantly calculate the monthly EMI after you enter the values. To adjust the input values to lower or raise the EMI amount to fit your budget, feel free to do so.

title: How to use an Agri EMI Calculator?, content: An online calculator for calculating the EMI of agricultural loans is called the "Agri EMI Calculator." You can calculate the EMI payable with accuracy by entering various permutations and combinations of the loan amount, interest rate, and loan tenure. Simply enter the necessary loan amount, interest rate based on the lender's band, and your preferred repayment period after evaluating the lender's maximum term. If you want affordable EMIs, you can select a longer loan repayment period. However, you can choose a shorter term and pay lower interest rates if you want to repay your loan more quickly.

title: What are the advantages of using an Agri EMI Calculator online?, content: The calculator is simply accurate, available 24x7, is freely available and thoroughly efficient.

title: AI-driven Architecture
, content: Dear Reader,

The arrival of modern technologies such as artificial intelligence, machine learning, augmented reality, and more in the health and fitness world has brought a remarkable change in this industry. It has changed the way people used to exercise and keep themselves fit and healthy. Now, a visit to gym or health club is no longer needed to stay fit; these technologies have made it pretty easier to do all those exercises from the comfort of your home.

Zenia is a popular fitness startup that uses computer vision to develop and deploy an AI-driven fitness trainer. Users can choose from thousands of yoga asanas and do it from the comfort of their home. The AI-based trainer in the app helps them to correct their posture. The company has received huge funding during 2020 that has added to its valuation.

Aaptiv, the popular fitness startup connects people to a wide range of fitness trainers for home and outdoor workouts. Users can do the wellness sessions provided by trainers on their own without the need for equipment. In short, the app offers a no-equipment workout. Each one of Aaptiv's thousands of workouts, which span every type of exercise and a wide variety of activities, combine the guiding voice of an expert Aaptiv trainer with motivating music. This audio-based format eliminates distractions and provides the flexibility many people require - allowing them to focus on their fitness goals, as it suits them.

Tonal, the home fitness startup raised a huge sum of $110 million in its latest round of funding. The startup received this funding from the existing investor L Catterton and the new investors Mousse Partners, Delta-v Capital and Amazon's Alexa Fund along with renowned athletes Michelle Wie, Paul George, Bobby Wagner, and Stephen Curry. With this funding, Tonal's total funding has reached up to $200 million. Tonal is a home fitness application that focuses on training users smartly. Users can choose a coach-led workout, make their own workout, track their progress and achieve fitness goals. Digital weights, 170 moves with one equipment and adjustable arms are some of the key features of this app.

Freeletics, the digital fitness firm provides tools to promote and offer mindset coaching, mental strength, confidence, and physical fitness among people. The fitness app uses artificial intelligence to offer its services. This AI-powered fitness app has secured $25M Series B funding led by U.S.-based JAZZ Venture Partners and Causeway Media Partners, with support from KKCG. Freeletics has more than 48 million users in more than 160 countries.

The modern fitness apps are facilitating all types of fitness, including yoga, meditation, aerobics and other exercises. This growing popularity and use of fitness applications are one of the biggest reasons that investors worldwide consider them profitable and investing huge money in them.

title: AI in Defence sector

, content: Dear Reader,

India holds the 4th rank in terms of the Army strength, with US, Russia and China placed ahead of it. The Indian startups are leveraging technology to come up with innovative solutions for empowering the nation's defence and security. These startups are from different locations in the country and have specialisation in areas such as drones, advanced materials, cyber security, IoT, etc.

Gurugram-based CRON Systems is developing IoT-based products to help the armed forces deploy border security solutions. CRON Systems initially began focusing on building laser walls for the Border Security Force (BSF). But it eventually expanded its products and services to include automation for drones, rovers and a central dashboard to control the applications through its command, control, communication & information (C3i) hub miCRON.

Bengaluru-based Asteria Aerospace is a robotics and artificial intelligence startup, which provides drone-based solutions to the military, paramilitary and police forces for security and surveillance purposes. Asteria Aerospace's product line currently includes three drones. Its CYGNUS drone is a mini fixed-wing drone known for its endurance, range and payload capabilities and is used for ground-up surveillance and security operations. Asteria's second product, DGCA certified A200, is a micro sized drone deployed for enterprise operations. Thirdly, the A400 is a mini drone whose vertical takeoff and landing allows quick deployment and surveillance from confined locations.

Ahmedabad-based Optimized Electrotech is an electro-optic startup that provides security and surveillance solutions. The startup provides electro-optics system, which can be used for the surveillance of smart cities, satellite-based imaging, border surveillance, medical imaging, access control, machine vision, automotive (Advanced driver-assistance systems, i.e., ADAS) and consumer electronics. The startup's InfiVision product series can detect a tank from a distance of 30 km.

Chennai-based defence tech startup Big Bang Boom Solutions (BBBS) is involved in developing integrated warfare systems for defence purposes. Some of the products developed by the startup include: T-Series Unmanned Tank Development, BN (boron nitrate) based Hybrid Personal Combat Armour, 360 Advance Battle Interface, Flying Warden-drones for riot control and a smart fencing system.

Iowa and Chennai-based Vinveli, focuses on providing solutions to the aerospace and robotics industry. The startup is involved in building Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV) for both commercial and defence purposes.

The possibility of AI-ushered advancements has opened the scope of an arms race where the conventional military capabilities will matter much less in future. In November 2019, the Indian government said it was looking to fund at least 250 defence startups over the next five years in order to come up with new cutting-edge solutions for the armed forces.

title: AI in Entertainment

, content: With the emergence of various innovative technologies, filmmakers are effectively saving time and money by automating their film creation process to a large extent. Filmmakers are utilizing AI in various stages of filmmaking, right from pre-production, production to the post-production stage.

Cinelytic, Los Angeles based startup, has developed AI software for filmmakers to predict the probability of a movie's success based on the casting of actors/actresses. If the filmmaker is unsure of which actor to cast for a role, he can enter their names into the program and see which actor might Belgium based ScriptBook, has developed an AI cloud-based software Script2Screen to analyse the script and predict box office success or failure. The user can upload their screenplay on the platform which generates an AI-based assessment indicating the commercial and critical success of a project, along with insights on the storyline, target demographics, market positioning, distribution parameters etc.

Vault ML, an Israeli startup, launched an artificial intelligence platform 4CAST. It uses over 40 years of box office data, 4 lac plus movie scripts and numerous other film data to predict opening weekend box office sales. Its predictions are right 75 % of the time and thus it helps filmmakers in their business risk management.

On the other hand, 20th Century Fox has launched the AI/ML program Merlin to help review trailers before they are released. The AI program optimises the marketing and distribution efforts in order to generate wider publicity for the specific movie or web series. It predicts and recommends appealing clips and flags them as the parts of the trailer which the audience will enjoy the most.

Similarly, Microsoft has developed an AI speech translation engine Azure for dubbing Hindi movies into different languages. On this platform, Bollywood movies are dubbed with the help of AI in different languages.

Looking at the fact that there is a plethora of data available in the film ecosystem, many companies are coming up with innovative solutions where these softwares read the historical data about movie performances over the years, then cross-references it with the current information and thus helps in writing scripts, simplifying the production process, casting actors, composing music, editing movies, plan marketing and distribution and calculate the return of investment.

title: All About Mid Cap Funds, content: Mid-cap funds are mutual funds that primarily invest in stocks of companies with mid-sized market capitalizations. Investors can consider mid-cap funds for diversification into stocks with moderate to high level of risk and potential for higher returns compared to large-cap funds.

title: 10-Year Performance of Mid Caps, content: nan title: Features of Mid-cap funds, content: 1. Mid-Cap funds invest predominantly in companies ranked between 101 and 250 in the list of stocks according to market capitalization i.e. they target companies roughly in the Rs 10,000 crore to Rs 30,000 crore market cap range. 2. Growth potential" These funds offer a balance between the growth potential of small-cap stocks and the stability of large-cap stocks. Potentially, they are tomorrow's large caps.

"3. Market volatility" Mid caps funds have historically outperformed large caps over a longer tenure however are more volatile in nature owing to mid cap funds investing in mid-size investee companies.

"4. Investment horizon" It is imperative to treat funds invested midcaps as long term investments (atleast 5 years) due to their volatile nature and potential to evolve into large cap companies over longer periods.

title: All about Mutual Fund Returns, content: Mutual fund returns are important because they indicate how well an investment has performed over time, helping investors assess the fund's profitability and suitability for their financial goals.

Returns are the gains or losses generated by an investment over a specific period of time. In the context of mutual funds, let's dig deeper into several types of returns that investors should keep in consideration.

title: An Illustration, content: Absolute returns represent the actual percentage change in the value of an investment over a specified period of time. For example, if you invest Rs.1,000 in the above fund and after a year it has grown to Rs1,200, your absolute return is 20% (200 gain / 1,000 initial investment).

title: CAGR, content: CAGR (Compound Annual Growth Rate) is the annualized rate of return on an investment over a specified period of time. It allows you to compare the fund's performance to other investments or to set realistic expectations for future returns based on historical data.

title: XIRR, content: XIRR- Unlike CAGR (Compound Annual Growth Rate), which assumes a consistent rate of return over a specified period, XIRR is useful where there are multiple cash flows. It is particularly useful for investments where contributions or withdrawals occur at different points in time in case of SIP, SWP.

title: Table of Content, content: What is sovereign gold bond?

title: What is sovereign gold bond?, content: Introduced in 2015 by the Government of India, sovereign gold bonds were launched under the Gold Monetisation Scheme. The Government issues gold bonds every year (since 2015). Gold is issued in tranches by the RBI, in consultation with the Government.

title: Basic Features and benefits of sovereign gold bond schemes, content: Now that we know what is gold bond scheme let's look at the basic features and advantages of the scheme.

title: How Sovereign Gold Bonds Work?, content: Sovereign Gold Bonds (SGBs) are a type of government security and a great substitute for physical gold investments. These are issued by RBI on behalf of the Government of India and it tracks the price of actual gold. SGBs are issued in the denomination of one gram of gold i.e., each bond will represent the price of one gram of gold. As the price of gold increases or decreases, so does the value of the bond. Further, investors are paid an interest of 2.50% per annum which makes it a more attractive opportunity than physical gold. The bonds come with a lock-in period of 8 years. However, investors are provided with an option to exit after a period of 5 years. The gains on SGBs are tax-free. However, the interest portion is taxable at the tax rate applicable to the investor title: Sovereign Gold Bonds (SGBs), content: As Sovereign Gold Bonds (SGBs) are government securities, it does not pose a default risk for the investors. However, SGBs track the price of gold. Therefore, there is a risk of capital loss in case the gold prices fall. This is not an SGB-specific risk but an asset-class risk that is equally applicable to SGBs. Further, the lock-in period reduces the liquidity of the investor as one cannot redeem the SGBs for at least 5 years after investment. Therefore, it should be considered for investment if the investor has a time horizon of at least 5-8 years.

title: Essential facts about the sovereign gold bond scheme, content: Having explained what sovereign gold bond scheme is, here's a look at some crucial facts about this scheme.

title: Things to Know Before Investing in SGBs, content: Before investing in SGBs, one should consider the exit options and lock-in period. Redemption is allowed only after 5 years. Further, taxation becomes an important aspect as while capital gains are exempted from tax, interest is still taxable. SGBs also serves as collateral assets that can be used to avail of financing facility. This can help you get gold loans at affordable interest rates.

title: Final word: sgb, content: Knowing what sovereign gold bond is essential before investing. Speak to your investment advisor before you invest in the scheme.

title: Features and Benefits of Car Loan, content: The greatest advantage of a car loan is the ease with which you can possess a car with a bit of planning. A loan allows you to improve your lifestyle if you create an advanced strategy to tackle expenses while meeting other investments that you are already committed to. Owning a car not just improves your social status, but also acts as a huge advantage offering freedom to travel where and when you want at your ease. Apart from these advantages, a loan comes with many other features and benefits. We will help you understand all the features and benefits of a car loan.

title: All you need to know about the Senior Citizen Savings Scheme , content: Old age often brings uncertainty. Senior citizens face questions about their physical, emotional and financial health. The Government of India recognises the importance of financial security for the senior citizens and has started the Senior Citizen Savings Scheme (SCSS). Apart from providing financial security to senior citizens, it is one of the best tax saving options for senior citizens.

title: Who is eligible for the SCSS?

, content: An Indian resident aged 60 years or above.

Indian resident above 55 years but below 60 years who have retired under the Voluntary Retirement Scheme rules or have appropriate superannuation. Under this, the SCSS account needs to be opened within a month of receipt of retirement benefits.

Retired defence personnel (excluding defence civilians) meeting particular terms and conditions can also avail the scheme on attaining the age of 50 years.

Non-Resident Indians, Person of Indian Origin, and members of a Hindu Undivided Family are not eligible for the SCSS.

title: Where can one avail the SCSS?

, content: An eligible individual can avail the scheme through a private or public sector bank or the Indian Post Office. Since SCSS is a Central Government scheme, the rules and regulations of the scheme are standard across these institutions.

title: What is the interest rate on the SCSS?

, content: The interest rate on the SCSS changes every quarter. The amount is calculated and credited every quarter, too. For the ongoing financial quarter of 2023-24 i.e. October- December 2023, the interest rate is 8.2%.

title: What is the minimum and maximum deposit limits?

, content: Individuals availing the SCSS can make lump sum deposits into their account. The account shall be opened with a minimum deposit of Rs. 1,000 or any sum in multiples of Rs. 1,000 not exceeding Rs. 30, 00, 000 title: When will the scheme mature?

, content: The deposited amount matures 5 years after the date of account opening. The account holder can extend the account , by a period of 3 years. However, the application for maturity extension needs to be made within one year of account maturity.

title: What is the interest on senior citizen scheme taxability?

, content: There is SCSS tax exemption under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act, 1961. However, SCSS tax benefit is capped at Rs. 1, 50, 000. In case of interest amounting to more than Rs. 50, 000, for a fiscal year, TDS is applicable title: What are the different benefits of the SCSS?

, content: Being a government initiative, the depositor is protected by the facts associated with government schemes. This means, the depositor will not be affected by the economy. The Senior Citizen Saving Scheme tax benefit serves as a good way of saving money as the SCSS tax is deductible under the Section 80C of the Income Tax Act, 1961. In case of financial emergencies, the depositor can prematurely withdraw the amount with applicable penalties. Now that you know how SCSS works, you can understand if it is the best financial option for you.

Risks, Vigilance & Prevention

The emerging digital payment channel comes with its own fair share of risks.

Recent events give insights to the lack of awareness and negligence on the part of the customer which has resulted in huge loss of money to the customers. From Vishing to suspicious app download to spoofing, the socially engineered techniques to dupe customers has evolved drastically. Major Modus Operandi are as under

UPI SMS Spoofing Fraud

UPI Collect Request Fraud

UPI AnyDesk Fraud

Branches and staff are required to educate customers regarding the risks associated with the application used. More the clarity about the product, less will the unauthorized transactions in the accounts. As it is rightly said, "With more power comes more responsibility" and this is true in case of a payment channel so convenient and easy to use, UPI.

title: Significance & Future

, content: UPI as a collection medium is growing drastically. The recent pandemic has helped to propel the transaction and usage of the application as it promotes contactless payments and with Government bringing in key initiatives driven by Digital mode, this product is said to shatter all known barriers and emerge as the most used payment mode in the ecosystem.

The interoperability is vital to facilitate transactions in a financial world of different account types. This has been made possible by the most advanced form of digital payment i.e. Unique Payment Interface (UPI) which justifies its name - "UNIQUE".

UPI is a game-changer for Bank as an organization and which is laid out insightfully can consolidate Bank's brand and enhance acceptance & penetration among masses and classes.

title: Parameters To Analyse Mutual Fund Performance, content: Analysing mutual fund performance is a critical aspect of investment management. By assessing various parameters, investors can gain valuable insights into the strengths, weaknesses, and overall suitability of their mutual fund investments. This section highlights key parameters to consider when analysing mutual fund performance. By understanding and evaluating these parameters, investors can make informed decisions to optimise their investment outcomes.

1. Analyse Fund Performance vs Benchmark Performance Comparing the performance of your mutual fund against an appropriate benchmark is crucial to evaluate its relative performance. A benchmark is a standard index or a group of securities representing the market or a specific sector. By comparing your fund's returns to its benchmark, you can determine whether it has outperformed or underperformed in the market.

2. Check the Expense Ratio of Funds The expense ratio is a vital parameter to consider when analysing mutual fund performance. It represents the annual fees and expenses charged by the fund company for managing the fund. A higher expense ratio can significantly impact investment returns over the long term.

mutual fund performance When evaluating the expense ratio of a mutual fund, it is important to compare it with similar funds in its category. Lower expense ratios are generally preferred as they leave more of the fund's returns available to investors. However, it is crucial to consider other factors alongside the expense ratio.

Fund Size: Investment Strategy: Certain investment strategies, such as actively managed funds or funds focused on niche sectors, tend to have higher expense ratios due to the costs associated with research, analysis, and trading. Passive index funds generally have lower expense ratios as they aim to replicate the performance of a specific market index.

Investment Strategy: Performance: While a lower expense ratio is desirable, it should not be the sole determinant of fund selection. It is essential to consider the fund's historical performance relative to its expense ratio. If a fund consistently delivers superior returns despite a slightly higher expense ratio, it may still be a viable option.

Performance: Examining the historical performance of a mutual fund provides insights into its consistency, volatility, and ability to generate returns over different market cycles. Consider the following aspects of fund history:

title: Performance during different market conditions:, content: Managerial changes and tenure: Evaluate any changes in the fund's management team or fund manager. A stable and experienced management team often instills confidence in investors. Assess the tenure of the current fund manager and their track record to determine their ability to deliver results consistently.

title: Managerial changes and tenure:, content: Fund objectives and strategy alignment: Understand the fund's investment objectives and strategy. Ensure that the fund's historical performance aligns with its stated objectives. A fund that consistently deviates from its stated strategy may not be suitable for your investment goals.

Assessing the strength of a mutual fund's portfolio is crucial in analysing its performance. Here are some key factors to consider:

title: Asset allocation:, content: Sector and industry exposure: Evaluate mutual funds holdings to determine their exposure to various sectors and industries. A balanced allocation across sectors can help mitigate concentration risk. Assess whether the fund's sector exposure aligns with your investment objectives and reflects your views on different industries.

title: Sector and industry exposure:, content: Quality of holdings: Evaluate the quality of the individual securities held by the fund. Look for strong companies with solid financials, competitive advantages, and growth potential. Assess the fund's holdings based on factors such as market capitalisation, credit ratings (for fixed income securities), and the fund manager's investment thesis.

title: Quality of holdings:, content: The portfolio turnover ratio measures the frequency with which a mutual fund buys and sells securities within its portfolio. A high turnover ratio may indicate that the fund manager is actively trading and making frequent changes to the portfolio.

title: Also Read - How to Invest in Mutual Funds: Explained in Easy Ways, content: When investing in mutual funds, it is essential to consider the maturity period of the fund's holdings. The maturity period indicates the average time until the underlying bonds or fixed-income securities within the portfolio reach their maturity date.

title: Yield Curve Sensitivity:, content: Investment Horizon and Risk Tolerance: Consider your investment horizon and risk tolerance when evaluating the maturity period. If you have a shorter investment horizon or a lower tolerance for volatility, funds with shorter maturity periods may be more suitable. Conversely, if you have a longer investment horizon and can tolerate higher fluctuations, funds with longer maturity periods may offer higher potential returns.

title: Investment Horizon and Risk Tolerance, content: Yield and Income Generation: Longer maturity periods often provide higher yields and income potential, as they include bonds with higher coupon rates. However, it is important to assess the credit quality and diversification of the underlying bonds to mitigate default risk.

title: Yield and Income Generation:, content: Market Conditions and Economic Outlook: When comparing maturity periods, evaluate the prevailing market conditions and economic outlook. For instance, in a rising interest rate environment, shorter maturity funds may be more appealing as they are less impacted by interest rate fluctuations.

title: Market Conditions and Economic Outlook:, content: While evaluating mutual fund performance, it is crucial to assess risk-adjusted returns, which consider the level of risk taken to generate investment returns. Some key metrics to consider include:

title: mutual fund performance, content: Standard deviation: This measures the volatility or fluctuation in a fund's returns over a specific period. A lower standard deviation indicates lower volatility and potentially lower risk.

title: Standard deviation:, content: Beta: Beta measures the sensitivity of a fund's returns to changes in the market. A beta of 1 indicates that the fund's returns move in line with the market, while a beta of less than 1 suggests lower volatility than the market, and a beta greater than 1 indicates higher volatility.

title: Beta, content: Sharpe ratio: The Sharpe ratio assesses a fund's risk-adjusted returns by considering both the returns generated and the level of risk taken. A higher Sharpe ratio indicates better risk-adjusted performance.

title: Sharpe ratio:, content: Analysing mutual fund performance is crucial for informed investment decisions. By comparing against benchmarks, checking expense ratios, studying fund history, analyse mutual fund portfolio strength, examining turnover ratios, comparing maturity periods, and evaluating risk-adjusted returns, you can gain valuable insights into your investments. title: A Step-by-Step Guide to Apply For an Education Loan

, content: We have all heard the age old saying that the path to a great career and successful life is paved through a quality education. Holding a higher education degree opens up many career avenues and helps you secure your financial future. But with the ever-rising cost of college and university fees, students and parents have no choice but to take on an education loan to fund higher studies. Education loans cover a host of expenses related to higher education such as the tuition and examination fees, hostel fees (if applicable) cost of books and apparatus, conveyance charges and so on.

title: Education Loan Application Process – Easy Steps to follow
, content: Here's the education loan procedure you need to follow.

Step 1 - Do your research and choose the lender

Before you begin with the loan application procedure, you need to get the admission offer letter from the school you wish to attend, finalise the lender and then visit them online or in person. Let's say you choose Bank of Baroda as your preferred lender.

Step 2 - Fill the loan application form

If you apply for the education loan online, you can find the loan application form on the lender's website. As per the instructions of the Department of Financial Services, Ministry of Finance, Government of India, all education loan applications (including applications received by Bank in physical format) are to be applied through Vidya Lakshmi portal

Step 3 - Appear for the interview round

The procedure to take education loan continues with the interview round. Whether you apply for the loan offline or online, the bank may call you to appear for a personal discussion. The student wishing to study further is considered as the principal loan applicant, which is why he/she must be present for this discussion. The bank generally asks student applicants some basic questions regarding their overall academic performance, the degree they wish to pursue and the school they wish to attend and so on. They also ask questions regarding the possible income that can be generated from their chosen field. Based on the information provided by the applicant, the bank decides whether to proceed with the loan.

Step 4 - Provide the documents

The bank also asks you to provide some documents as part of the Bank's education loan procedure. You need to submit the admission offer letter provided by your chosen university. The bank will also do its due diligence and verify your enrolment.

Step 5 - The bank approves the loan

After verifying your credentials, your student loan may be approved. The student's one of the parents/guardians are listed as co-borrower or guarantors and the bank also checks the guarantor's /co-borrower's credit scores before approving the loan. Additionally, the applicant must also sign a promissory note and other prescribed loan documents, assuring the bank that the loan will be repaid within the stipulated tenure.

Step 6 - Loan disbursal

The last step in the education loan procedure is loan disbursal. After all formalities are completed, the bank disburses the loan amount directly into the bank account of the university the student wishes to attend. Disbursement can be done partially (-semester wise) or fully, at one go.

title: Automated Driving

, content: Dear Reader,

Automated driving normally refers to self-driving vehicles or transport systems that move without the intervention of a human driver. These features generally fall into logical groups based on how they combine acceleration, braking and steering. Autonomous vehicle market is projected to surpass US$ 65 billion by 2027 with companies such as Tesla, Autoliv Inc. being the key players.

Drivers need to be able to process a great deal of information as it is a skill that must be learned – this not only applies to people but is also true for automated and autonomous vehicles. In order for driverless cars to react correctly and safely in all situations, they require artificial intelligence and an electronic “brain” that must possess immense computing power.

With the new generation of its AI-capable control unit, ZF ProAI, has developed advanced driver assistance systems (ADAS) which rely on cameras and radars. Companies like Waymo are working on the next stage: autonomous driving. When cars can drive themselves, human error – statistically the most likely cause of accidents – will no longer be an issue.

Today, cars are being developed with cognitive abilities similar to that of a human brain so that they can make decisions which are not included in their code. In a fraction of a millisecond, self-driving cars must be able to process 360-degree view of the environment, interpret this information, verify the position of the vehicle itself, track the position of any sources of danger, calculate and carry out driving manoeuvres. Thus making, Vision Zero - the goal of ending motoring accidents a reality.

Chinese car sharing operator Pand Auto is already testing automated cars in Beijing. The Chinese government is supporting the construction of large test sites and has opened the first test center for autonomous vehicles in Beijing, creating what is literally a driving school for autonomous vehicles.

The trend toward automation is not just limited to passenger cars. Companies like ZF Friedrichshafen have long been working on self-driving mass transit and cargo movers, automated commercial vehicles, parcel delivery services, intelligent forklift trucks and innovative agricultural machinery.

On the other hand, Amazon is planning to put 100,000 electric delivery vehicles on the road by 2030, with deliveries starting as soon as 2021. They plan to buy these vehicles from Rivian, an electric automaker in which Amazon has invested $440M. Similarly, Microsoft is joining forces with Cruise, the self-driving subsidiary of General Motors, to help speed up the commercialization of autonomous vehicles. Looking at the potential possibilities, we can safely conclude that self-driving cars on roads don't seem to be a distant dream.

title: Automobile Commerce

, content: Dear Reader,

The auto industry has been facing the heat to move digital more than ever as the pandemic has brought upon new challenges and deepened the need to shift toward digital solutions. Auto dealers have been slow to adopt digital car-buying solutions, but with lockdowns closing dealership doors, the pandemic accelerated the shift to omni-channel auto retail.

Online car buying has taken off in a big way during the pandemic. According to Publicis Sapient, many digitally enabled OEMs are seeing increased, higher quality leads that are 30 percent more likely to buy and a two to four-fold surge in website traffic compared with pre-COVID-19. These online tools are, in some instances, responsible for more than 20 percent of new leads during the second quarter of 2020.

More recently, a number of digitally focused disruptors such as Carvana, Carmax and Tesla have entered the market, offering unique, omni-channel experiences like flexible return policies, virtual auctions, home deliveries, online negotiation and virtual trade-in valuations. These digital leaders recognized a shift in customer expectations and focused on creating seamless user experiences across the entire shopping journey.

Online used car seller Vroom noticed a considerable growth in demand as a result of the pandemic, with people turning to digital methods for purchasing cars. Similar to its competitor Carvana, Vroom offers no-haggle pricing and a no-questions-asked return policy. Another Used car marketplace Shift Technologies went public via SPAC in October 2020. Shift allows users to buy, sell and finance cars online. The company offers a "buy it now" option that allows a buyer to purchase a vehicle online without a test drive. Similarly, Cazoo, a UK based company, sells refurbished cars online, delivers them to customers' homes within 48 hours, and offers a seven-day free returns policy.

Then there are digital platforms that help the dealerships move their businesses online. Take for example, Modal which makes software for car dealerships to move the entire buying process online. Another company, Digital Motors builds a car-buying platform for auto retailers, dealerships, brands and manufacturers.

The new car ownership model of subscription offers ease and convenience to customers like never before. Switzerland-based Carvolution offers car subscriptions where Customers pay a monthly price for a vehicle and are free to switch cars as they like.

We believe that, the winners in this industry will be defined by how quickly they adapt to technological innovations. The dealers and OEMs who adjust can thrive, while those reluctant to change will fall further behind.

title: Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav

, content: In the last 75 years of independence, India has evolved rapidly. The wheels, propelled by contribution from the agriculture, manufacturing and services sectors have played a large role in bringing about this change. An imperative catalyst to this exponential growth has been the involvement of the financial sector in providing end-to-end banking services to customers in India and abroad.

India embarked on the banking outreach journey way back in the 1970s, with the nationalization of commercial banks in 1969, introduction of the Regional Rural Banks thereafter in 1975s and Self Help Group Programmes in 1980s & 1990s and introduction of Banking Correspondents (BCs) in 2000s. Banking outreach also got a renewed fillip in the second half of the 2000s when the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) urged banks to make available a basic banking 'no frills' account either with 'nil' or very low minimum balances ensuring greater financial inclusion. Another landmark milestone in banking outreach was the announcement of the Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan Yojana (PMJDY) by the Government of India in 2014 aimed at providing basic financial services to the masses in an affordable manner. These efforts have changed the landscape of banking outreach with monumental success both in terms of bank accounts and deposits accrued.

Bank of Baroda, which began operations as a region centric bank till 1947, post-independence in 1953, expanded beyond the national realm to start its first international branch in Mombasa, Kenya. Today, we are one of the largest premier Public Sector Banks in the country and have been actively participating in all the programmes and schemes towards banking outreach.

Even during the pandemic, our mantra of 'customer and employee first,' motivated us to ensure a seamless banking experience, while adhering to the tenets of a safe banking environment. All through the pandemic year, the bank was a frontrunner to the call of an Aatmanirbhar Bharat, implementing all government policies, thereby providing much needed relief to retail and MSME consumers by infusing liquidity at a critical juncture of our economy.

Innovation has been the key in our vision of banking the unbanked. An evident to this vision is the recently launched bob World App of our Bank which provides an anytime, anywhere banking with all inclusive features such as save, invest, borrow & shop to users across categories.

On the gracious occasion of Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav, as the country turns 75, the Hon'ble Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi has identified 5 pillars for celebration of these 75 years – Freedom Struggle, Ideas at 75, Achievements at 75, Actions at 75 and Resolve at 75. In-tandem with our belief of providing best in class services and amplifying the government's programs to reach each and every citizen, we urge one & all to participate in 'Jan Utsav' activities/events that are being planned for the upcoming 75 weeks.

title: Balancing control and flexibility a FinTech Startup would want to offer
, content: Dear reader,

FinTech startups will have a very fine line between moving from the old school way and the trust factor. Banks are now moving towards the path of digital transformations and bringing in new technologies with the intent on building leaner, faster, cheaper products than traditional banks. Brands have been created to be approachable and emotionally engaging, differing from the more traditional bank's approach that Indian customer base is used to.

Customers does not want opaque financial institutions, rather they like customized services, more transparency, more mobility, flexible banking, lower fees and faster transactions. And now customers are spoilt with choices in the market.

But the challenge as this evolves is how you stand out, while gaining people's trust. People have to be able to remember your name and who you are, but also trust you with their money.

Keep it simple and clean:

Now that it's a new change to adapt, it should not be jargon. People need to understand clearly who you are, what you offer and why they should care. You need to be quick and simple to understand Know Your Customer:

Understanding your customer, designing and delivering the value that matters most to customers is the key for the success of your product. In case of a diverse mass customer base, you can quickly get a 'map' of your audience's life and world, and make sure all product decisions, features and communications are guided towards fitting in easily there.

Right attention to touch points: Small touches of delight you add, on top of the basics, make your experience more memorable and, thereby, more sticky. Building stickiness or virality into the design of your products and onboarding experience has more power than any amount of content marketing.

Nurturing partnerships:

As more technology companies spring up, covering a wide base of offers, becoming the preferred partner in your category is essential. This means cultivating a community and partnership strategy as soon as possible in your lifecycle. As the competition for banking services intensifies, FinTech startups will have to take more bold steps to set themselves apart in the market. Agile, fast, and focused execution are quintessential for success.

title: Bank of Baroda Lowers Home Loan Interest Rate

, content: Most of us dream of one day buying our own home. A home where we can make memories with our loved ones. Bank of Baroda offers one of the lowest rate of interest on home loan in India to help you fulfil your dreams of getting your own house or apartment. Bank of Baroda now charges interest as low as 6.50%* on home loans taken after October 7, 2021. This is the lowest home loan interest rate Bank of Baroda offers and was implemented to keep up with the enthusiasm of the festive season and help individuals purchase the home of their dreams. Do note that the reduced interest rate is only available till December 31, 2021. Hence, if you are thinking about buying a house and need a loan to finance the purchase, take advantage of these promotions for smooth and affordable financing.

To give you a better idea of how beneficial these interest rate drops are, here is a comparison table between the interest rates charged by Bank of Baroda in November 2021 vs. the interest rates charged in October 2021 -

The revised lower interest rates help decrease the interest paid towards the loan; thus, lowering EMI payments. To help you understand better, here is an example -

Suppose you need a home loan for Rs. 50,00,000 and plan to repay the debt in 30 years. If you apply for the loan with the new rates, you are only charged 6.5% p.a. interest rate and your monthly EMIs amount to Rs.31,603.

On the other hand, if you had applied for a loan with the same loan amount and tenure at the old rates, you would have had to pay a minimum interest rate of 6.85% p.a. Your EMI payment, in this case, would have been Rs.32,763.

So, the new interest rates really help your savings add up!

Moreover, Bank of Baroda charges a floating interest rate. Interest rate on various Retail Loans is linked with Baroda Repo Linked Lending Rate which is linked with Repo Rate declared by RBI. Any revision in repo rate will be effected in loan in the following month. Thus with decrease in Repo Rate, interest being charged in home loan will also decrease.

title: What are the benefits in the Bank of Baroda festive season offer?

, content: Bank of Baroda wishes to make this festive season a truly happy one. The Bank of Baroda housing loan interest rate has been cut down by 0.25% for loan takeovers. Additionally, processing fees too have been waived. This provides a good incentive for prospective customers to transfer their existing home loans to Bank of Baroda or apply for a new one.

The waiver of the Bank of Baroda home loan processing fee is a huge relief for individuals are looking to either apply for a home loan or transfer their existing debt to Bank of Baroda. The processing fees are usually 0.50% of the total loan amount with a lower limit of Rs. 8,500 and an upper limit of Rs. 25,000. The processing fee must be paid along with your down payment. With the waiver of processing fees by the Bank of Baroda, procuring a home loan has really become economical this festive season.

title: What are the benefits of taking a home loan from Bank of Baroda?

, content: The Bank of Baroda offers many benefits on home loans, such as -

Free accident insurance

Bank of Baroda offers free accident insurance on loans. Thus, you get peace of mind knowing that your family will not be burdened with any debt in your absence.

Comfortable repayment tenure

You do not get charged any extra fee for the foreclosure of your debt or for making prepayments. Home loans have a maximum tenure of 30 years; thus, you get to spread out your repayments and get to enjoy an EMI that is comfortable for you.

Affordable interest rates

Bank of Baroda is one of the few banks with lowest home loan rates. The interest charged is quite reasonable throughout the year.

Higher loan amounts

Bank of Baroda covers up to 90% of property purchase costs for a fresh flat or house subject to loan limit. An individual applicant can expect a loan up to a maximum of Rs 20 crores.

title: Financing your dream home has never been this easy

, content: Bank of Baroda makes borrowing easy. You can simply visit our website and check your home loan eligibility with a few clicks. Once you have the information you need, go ahead, and start your application on the website too. For any assistance with the process, you may reach out to our helpful staff for support and answers to your questions.

title: Current Interest Rates for Senior Citizens

, content: Currently, the senior citizen FD rates are anywhere between 3.5 % to 7.5 % depending upon tenure in our Bank currently (subject to change). This is after the increase in the repo rates by the RBI in the last few months.

title: Hike in interest rates for senior citizens

, content: The RBI hiked interest rates thrice, beginning in May 2022 when it hiked 40 bps, then 50 bps in June 2022, and again 50 bps in August 2022. This was followed by another rate hike of 0.50% in September 2022 end. Therefore, the interest rates have increased by 1.90% in the past five months.

title: Types of Fixed Deposit Accounts

, content: The following are some of the most common types of fixed deposits:

Cumulative fixed deposit

In terms of Reserve Bank of India directives, interest shall be calculated at quarterly compounding intervals on Term deposits and paid at the rate decided by the Bank depending upon the period of deposits .In this scheme , depositor gets benefit to earn interest on both principal and interest components. Our bank is having Cumulative fixed deposit in the name of Baroda Regular Income cum Recurring Deposit.

Non-cumulative fixed deposit

In this scheme / product interest is not accumulated but paid to the depositor at regular intervals. This ensures a passive income for the depositor. Our bank is having Non -cumulative fixed deposit in the name of -Baroda Regular Income PLAN - MONTHLY INCOME PLAN, Baroda Regular Income PLAN -QUARTELY INCOME PLAN.

Tax saving fixed deposit:

These fixed deposits come with a lock-in period of five years and are eligible for deductions under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act, 1961. The maximum amount of deduction that can be claimed is up to Rs. 1, 50,000 /- per annum as per Income tax guidelines .Bank of Baroda is having the tax saving fixed deposit scheme in the name of BARODA TAX SAVINGS TERM DEPOSIT ACCOUNT.

Flexi fixed deposit:

Selective schemes of Savings and Current accounts have facility of Auto Sweep where balances above a certain threshold are swept out to Flexi Deposits in multiples of a sweep out account (Threshold amount ,Sweep out amount and deposit period are scheme specific ).Whenever the balance in savings /current account fall short below (stipulated balance requirement ) to clear any debits in the operative account ,the FFD can be broken in last in first Out (LIFO ) principle (in multiples of sweep amount specific to scheme )as per the guidelines of the Bank .

title: Should Senior Citizens Consider Opening Fixed Deposits with Bank of Baroda for Higher Rates?

, content: For senior citizens, the security of the capital invested is important, and therefore, they always prefer senior citizens fixed deposits. Normally, interest rates for senior citizen fixed deposits ranges anywhere around 0.5 % additional to that of the interest rates offered to the General public. Currently maximum rate of interest for senior citizens is 7.5%.

Therefore, opening fixed deposits with the Bank of Baroda will not only allow you to secure your investments but also earn a higher return on your investments.

title: Advise to Investors

, content: Senior citizens have less risk appetite, and therefore, they prefer investing in safer investment avenues. Fixed deposits ensure that senior citizens earn good returns with minimal risk. If you are a senior citizen considering opening a fixed deposit, then Bank of Baroda offers you a great opportunity not only to invest securely but also to earn good returns. If you want to calculate your returns, you can use the FD calculator and earn lucrative returns on your investments.

title: What is salary account?

, content: A bank account in which the employer transfers your monthly salary is known as your salary account. There are many salary account benefits for all involved parties. This account helps the employee to enjoy the advantages of a savings account, while the employer gets to enjoy convenient administration and the ease of making transactions in bulk. The monthly deposit of salaries is good for the bank's business as well, so a salary account is a win-win banking solution for all. It is important to remember that a salaried account can only be opened through a company and its banking partner.

If you are looking to open a salary account, you can opt to open a Bank of Baroda salary account. This is an employee salary savings account that offers you a multitude of benefits along with a wholesome banking experience. Here is everything you need to know about the Baroda Salary Classic Account.

title: What is the Baroda Salary Classic Account?

, content: The Baroda Salary Classic Account is targeted towards salaried employees who have a monthly net credit of salary that is less than Rs 50,000. It is a zero-balance account and does not have any account maintenance charges. Since the Baroda Salary Classic Account works as a savings account, you also earn interest on the money saved.

This account is suitable for entry-level employees or for trainees who do not yet have their own savings account. This Baroda salary classic account can be easily opened wherein Aadhar is a must KYC to open an account. One proof of address and one proof of identity is required.

title: What are the key features of the Baroda Salary Classic Account?

, content: The key features of the Baroda Salary Classic Account are:

Free debit card

The Baroda Salary Classic Account comes with a free Baroda Rupay Classic Debit Card. This debit card is free for the first year, after which, standard charges are levied. The Baroda Rupay Classic Debit Card has a daily cash withdrawal limit of Rs 25,000.

Demand draft and banker's cheque

Dedicated relationship manager

If you become a part of our privileged and premium customer segment, you are assigned a relationship manager. You would only need to contact one person and get all of your banking needs sorted.

title: Bank of Baroda Salary Classic Account benefits

, content: We care for our customers and have thoughtfully designed the BOB salary account. The Baroda Salary Classic Account offers several benefits, such as:

Overdraft facility

The overdraft facility gives you the ability to withdraw more than what is present in your current account. Consequently, overdraft is a type of loan. We, at Bank of Baroda, understand that life is unpredictable and the requirement for additional funds can crop up any time. Hence, after three salary credits in the BOB salary account, an overdraft facility is made available to you. The overdraft amount limit will be based on the average of the net salary that is credited into your account, rounded off to the nearest thousand. Through this credit line, you can procure funds up to Rs 50,000.

Free credit card

If you open a salary classic account with BOB, you also get a free credit card. Depending on your salary, you can avail of different schemes that can help you avail of fee waivers. You can even enjoy lifetime free credit cards depending on your salary band. We care for family's financial future and offer a free complimentary air accidental insurance of Rs 15 lacs and other accidental insurance cover of Rs 5 lacs title: Discounts on locker rentals and loans

, content: Banks offers lockers to help you store valuable items like jewellery, property documents, etc., in a secure vault. Through the Baroda Salary Classic Account, you can enjoy 5% discount on locker rentals. Furthermore, the BOB salary account can also help you enjoy 25% waiver on the processing of mortgage loans, housing loans, education loans and auto loans. Additionally, there are no processing charges levied on personal loans. Also, if you have previously availed home loan from the Bank of Baroda, you can get a 0.25% concession on the ROI of your BOB auto loan.

Complimentary zero balance account for spouse

We, at Bank of Baroda, understand your financial world and offer a complimentary zero balance account for your spouse. Having two zero balance accounts from the same bank in the same household can help you enjoy the ease of making multiple transactions without worrying about your balance going low, thus offering you a convenient way to manage your home finances.

Sweep facility

The sweep facility allows you to set a minimum amount of money, above which any excess gets automatically transferred to a sweep-in fixed deposit by the bank on your behalf. This can help you save a significant amount of money in the long run. Moreover, the excess money that is transferred to the fixed deposit earns higher interest over the course of time.

Discount of depository services

If you open a Baroda Salary Classic Account, you get to enjoy a 50% waiver on the charges levied for depository services and annual maintenance of your account. You can open a Demat account through our mobile application and enjoy more 225 banking services at your fingertips.

Other benefits

The Baroda Salary Classic Account helps you enjoy a 25% waiver on the charges levied on the issuance of gift cards and travel cards. You also receive free alerts related to the activities carried out in your bank account. This increases the safety of your account and keeps you updated about the funds available in your account.

The Baroda Salary Classic Account is one of the best salary account schemes that are available to you in the market today. You can open salary account online and get it activated instantly. The account opening process is completely digitised and does not require you to go through tedious paperwork. If you are employer, you can reach out to a Bank of Baroda representative and have them help you make the Bank of Baroda your proud business partner.

title: beauty-trends-2021, content: Dear Reader,

The global beauty industry (encompassing skin care, color cosmetics, hair care, fragrances, and personal care) has been shaken by the COVID-19 crisis. With months of lockdown, retail businesses closed and international travel ban, consumer's purchase and usage behaviour has witnessed a dramatic change leading to fall in sales across many beauty segments.

Beauty sales declined as much as 30% in the first half of the year, according to a McKinsey report and even major brands took a blow. With more than a year under pandemic, brands are now working towards better ways to deal with the humongous shift in consumer values and expectations.

In this effort, brands are adopting new technologies at a faster speed to redefine personalisation. Some companies such as L'Oréal offers AI powered at-home devices, which can measure user conditions, like the emergence of dark spots or surrounding environmental concerns, on a daily basis. L'Oréal's Perso device accounts for this data to dispense custom-formulated makeup every day. Another company Atolla uses AI capabilities to customize facial serums for consumers by using data collected through quizzes and tests measuring oil, moisture, and pH levels.

As per a CB Insights report, Johnson & Johnson, has invested in new engineered preservatives that could be used in items like haircare or body care products. The company invested in Curie Co, a startup that makes biomaterials to replace preservatives in everyday beauty and personal care products, through its JLABS incubator.

Another apparent trend is BigTechs offering retail channel for beauty products. Amazon launched a private label beauty brand called Belei in 2019 and recently invested in India-based D2C beauty site MyGlamm. China-based tech giant Alibaba offers livestreaming and AR features which it has used to attract luxury beauty brands to its e-commerce platform.

Virtual try-on tech leverages augmented reality to allow shoppers to test how different beauty products will look without actual trial. Remarkably, virtual try-on can also help brands personalize the beauty shopping experience, enhancing product discovery and making tailored recommendations about foundation shades, skincare products, and more.

In December 2020, Google launched an AR-powered cosmetics try on tool in Google Search, partnering with brands like L'Oréal, Estée Lauder, MAC Cosmetics, and more to let users try on searched-for makeup products using front-facing mobile phone cameras.

Going forward, we expect to see beauty brands and tech giants alike turn to virtual try-on to gather shopper data and make more personalized product recommendations.

title: The Benefits of Joint Home Loan

, content: It always helps to have a bit of support when applying for a loan. The same holds true when you apply for a home loan. Here are some of the major benefits of a joint home loan –

Higher sanctioned loan amount

The most obvious benefit of a joint home loan is that you stand a chance of getting a higher sanctioned loan amount. This happens because the lender now considers two incomes instead of one in the application. So, you no longer need to worry about having to compromise on your ideal home due to a shortage of funds. You can raise your budget and go for the flat or house you want in the locality you want. After all, buying a home is a once in a lifetime decision for most of us; you would not want to compromise on the perfect pick of a property because you are falling short of a few lakhs of rupees.

Easier repayment

When you have a co-applicant in your housing loan, the responsibility of repaying the loan too is shared between two people. So, the financial burden of heavy EMIs is not shouldered by one person alone. The fact that two people are responsible for repaying the loan automatically brings peace of mind and makes things a lot easier. While your spouse or family member may agree to help with a housing loan that is in your name, officially registering them as a joint applicant can possibly make them more responsible towards paying the EMIs with you on time as it will increase their ownership of the situation.

Moreover, if you have a co-applicant on the loan, you might even end up paying off your debt quicker. Since you have two incomes to pay the loan instead of one, you can opt for higher EMI values each month. So, instead of taking a 30-year tenure on your home loan, you can possibly opt for a lower tenure, such as 20 years or less. With a shorter tenure on your home loan, you will save a lot of money that would have otherwise been spent on repaying the interest associated with a longer tenure.

More tax benefits

Both co-applicants can also enjoy separate tax benefits on the home loan. The principal and the interest of the loan are eligible for tax benefits. These home loan tax benefit for joint applicant co-owners are given under section 80C of the Income Tax Act. However, it is important to note that the co-applicant or co-borrower of the loan must also be a co-owner in order to avail these tax benefits.

title: Who Can Co-Apply for A Joint Home Loan?

, content: A close relative can be added as Co-Applicant in home loan for higher loan eligibility. Close relative need not necessarily be co-owner of the property.

Other than close relative can also be added as co-applicant, provided he / she is the co-owner of the property.

The co-applicant can also be a non-resident Indian (NRI).

title: Joint Home Loan Eligibility and Documentation

, content: You can easily check home loan eligibility for joint applicants online on the website of your preferred bank or financial institution. The most important eligibility criterion is the relationship of the co-borrower with yourself. They should be either a parent, sibling, or your spouse. Some lenders even insist that the co-borrower must also be a co-owner of the house.

The joint applicants must also submit all relevant documents that are required by the lender. These include identity proof (Aadhaar card, passport, voters ID, or driving license), address proof (Aadhaar card, passport, or utility bills), income proof (salary slips or income tax returns for those who are self-employed), property sale documentation, and NOC of the property. All these documents need to be submitted by the main borrower as well as the co-applicant to the home loan.

Do remember to check your credit score as well as the co-applicant's credit score before applying for a home loan. If either one of you has a low credit score, your home loan application can possibly be impacted. You can check your credit report and your co-applicant's credit report at Experian, CIBIL, CRIF Highmark, and Equifax which are the four credit bureaus in the country. Most major banks in the country offer customers free access to their Credit Bureau score online. Knowing your CIBIL score for home loan can help you understand whether your current score will qualify for a good deal on your home loan or whether you need to work towards increasing your score.

Quick tip – Co-owning your property with a female family member offers many benefits. She will pay lower stamp duty charges and that can help you save a fortune. Even if the reduction on stamp duty is only 1%, you have to remember that it is 1% of a very expensive property.

title: How To Check Eligibility for A Home Loan?

, content: You can easily check your eligibility for a home loan online. There is a special tool known as the home loan eligibility calculator which can help you understand how much funding you qualify for. This tool is simple to operate and free to use. All you need to do is enter a few basic details into the tool to understand your eligibility. These details will include –

Interest on the loan

Tenure of the loan

Other liabilities, expenses, and EMIs

These details will help you get an estimation of how much funding you can expect to receive. Do bear in mind that the final decision on your home loan will also depend on other factors such as your age, CIBIL score, and existing loans. Your co-applicant's details will also factor into the equation.

It is advisable to close all other major loans before you apply for a home loan. Having less debt in other places will increase your eligibility for a higher amount in your home loan. The same applies for the co-applicant too – if they have a lot of debt, their eligibility will go down and impact the joint loan application.

title: Why You Should Prepay Your Student Loan? Know the Benefits

, content: When taking an education loan, you need to carefully plan loan repayment even before your EMIs are due. This way, you can save yourself from falling into a financial crisis in the first few years of your career. Now, you may wonder – should I pay off my student loans before the tenure of the loan is complete?

The answer to that question can vary between people. For some, repaying education loans before the tenure is due can be advantageous whereas for others, it might be better to let the loan run its pre-set course.

Today, we will show you how repaying student loan EMIs before the tenure is complete can be quite beneficial for you. To help you gain a better understanding, here are some of the benefits of prepaying your student loan.

- Decreases your DTI

DTI or Debt to Income ratio is the summation of your monthly debt payments divided by your monthly income multiplied by 100. For example, if your monthly debt pay-out is Rs 10,000 and your monthly income is about Rs 25,000, then your DTI is 40%. This means that about 40% of your monthly income is allocated towards the payments of your debts. DTI is one of the most important parameters taken into consideration when you apply for major loans, such as a home loan.

Typically, having a DTI that is lower than 35% implies that you have enough money to take on more debts. However, a DTI above 50% goes to show the lender that you have quite a lot of debt left to repay. This could portray you as a risky borrower. Having a DTI above 50% significantly decreases your chances of procuring other types of loans such as home loans, car loans, and personal loans. If you plan to take on any of these other types of loans soon, you might want to prepay your student loan first.

- Promotes better control of finances

If you have loans, you are forced to keep aside a fixed amount of money every month for the EMI payments even if you wish to use your funds for some other purpose. Hence, you do not have complete control over your finances. This can prove to be a major obstacle especially if you need the money for making an investment, or simply for that vacation you really need. You would also need to think twice about using your money for an emergency if funds have been allocated for your monthly EMI payments. This kind of debt can get in the way of sudden and unforeseen expenses. With this in mind, you may want to complete your student loan payments as quickly as possible to get better control over your finances.

Quick Tip:

Lenders generally provide a moratorium period for their education loans. This moratorium period is usually 12 months after completion of course. While your EMIs are not due until after the moratorium, you can consider starting payments earlier by taking a part-time job alongside your studies. This will help reduce the burden of your education loan. Remember that the moratorium period is not exempt from interest; interest continues to get charged on your education loan even though your EMIs are not yet due.

title: What happens to the tax deductions that you get through your student loan?, content: Under Section 80E of prevailing tax laws, you get tax deductions for your student loan. More specifically, the interest you pay on the student loan qualifies as a deduction. There is no deduction for the principal loan amount. This deduction can be claimed by the self or by parents of the student or the spouse of the student. The deduction is only valid for an education loan that has been taken from an approved financial or charitable institution. A loan borrowed from personal contacts – such as friends – will not qualify for this deduction.

It is important to note that this tax deduction can only be claimed while the loan is active. This means that once you prepay the loan, you can no longer avail the tax exemptions on the interest paid on your student loan. Therefore, if you are planning on prepaying your student loan, you need to evaluate the benefits of prepaying the loan against the benefits of letting the loan run its natural course.

title: Should I pay off my student loans first and then invest or vice versa?, content: If you have enough money saved up to repay the student loan without defaulting, you should definitely focus on investing your money. However, if the only money you have is allocated towards the repayment of your student loan, it is better to avoid investing it in an opportunity that poses a risk of capital erosion. Furthermore, student loans and home loans are some of the cheapest forms of debt if you provide collateral. Hence, it is better to not prepay them aggressively. It is important to plan your finances before you take on any debt. You can use an online education loan calculator to make such calculations with ease and efficiently come up with a loan repayment plan.

title: Prepayment penalties on student loans

, content: Before you decide to prepay your student loan, you need to contact your lender to understand whether they will levy any kind of prepayment penalty. Most leading lenders do not charge any kind of prepayment penalty on education loans. Others may allow you to make larger payments than the EMIs that are due without charging you any penalty. Make sure to find out these charges when signing up for the loan so that you have your information at hand.

If the prepayment penalty is higher than the amount you will save by paying off your student debt early, then you may want to keep your loan running for its original tenure. However, if you have other financial obligations cropping up in the near future, then incurring the penalty might be worthwhile. For instance, if you have plans to buy a home or a car soon, you would definitely want to close your student loan first to free up more credit.

If education loan repayment calculations seem overwhelming, you can always reach out to your lender for help with the same.

title: Features of life insurance

, content: Let's look at the features and advantages of life insurance policy:

Protection: The first and foremost objective of a life insurance policy is to ensure the financial protection of your family, and this could include dependent parents, spouse, children or siblings. The demise of the sole earning member could put dependents to considerable hardship, especially since cost of living is very high these days. Life insurance gives you the assurance that your family members will be looked after in the event of your untimely demise.

Contract: Life insurance is basically a contract between the insurers and the individual who takes out the policy. You pay premiums every quarterly/half yearly/yearly to the company. In return, the insurer will give a lump sum to your family in the event of your demise.

Premiums: Premiums are paid quarterly / half yearly which you need to pay to get life insurance. The amount will vary from person to person, depending on the tenure of the policy, age of the policyholder, health and type of policy.

Affordable: Life insurance is an affordable way of ensuring the financial well-being of your family. Premiums on policies, particularly term insurance, are quite low and worth your while for the protection they offer.

Easy to buy: Buying insurance from company is quite easy. Insurance companies have specified persons, who will visit you at your home or office and help you with options and paperwork. You can also do it online at your convenience.

Tax benefits: Another one of the benefits of life insurance policy is that you can deduct the premiums you have paid from your taxable income. Under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act.

Savings: There are some life insurance products that combine savings and insurance. This can be a good way of saving for the future and protecting your family at the same time title: Types of life insurance

, content: Now that we've seen the essential features of life insurance policy, let's look at the types:

Term insurance

This is the most basic, and most popular, of life insurance policies. You purchase a policy for a certain period for which you pay premiums. For example, if a policyholder wants a policy till the age of 60, he or she can take one. And if the policyholder passes away before 60, the nominee is paid the death benefits.

Unit-linked Insurance Plan

A Unit-Linked Insurance Plan (ULIP) combines investment with insurance. At the end of the policy, the policyholder gets a certain sum. This is unlike a term plan where the payout is made only on the death of the policyholder. Part of the premium is paid for life insurance, while the remainder is invested in either stocks or bonds, depending on the investor's risk appetite and investment goals.

The investments yield returns which are then given to the policyholder after the end of the policy period title: Benefits of Applying for Personal Loans

, content: Urgent Financial Requirement

If there is an immediate need for money, personal loans are the best option. They are considered better than credit cards or loans from family members or unorganized lenders, since the rate of interest is reasonable and the lender is a credible organization. Credit cards come with strict credit limits, which is not the case with personal loans. Funds taken from the bank as personal loan also resolve the issue of certain vendors not accepting payment through credit cards.

Breathing Time For Repayment

Also, the credit card bills need to be paid off by the due date which generally falls in the next month whereas you get some breather in repaying a personal loan EMI over a period of time, generally ranging from 3-4 years.

Flexibility Of Use

Funds from a personal loan are flexible in the way you use them. They can be used for several purposes- home renovation, travel, wedding and medical expenses or for any other purpose as per one's personal obligations...

Loan Amount

The loan amount you can borrow under a personal loan is also significant. For example, with Bank of Baroda offer personal loan amounts based on the eligibility of applicants.

Confidential

Personal loans may also be private loans since these loans are often used to meet cash requirements or personal contingencies and thus kept private to a great extent.

Flexible Repayment Structure

These loans are generally of the nature of short to medium term loans and come with a flexible repayment structure.

Easy To Get

For example, Bank of Baroda is popular for personal loans that are quick to get, fast processing, minimal documentation required and offered at attractive rate of interests. Most salaried persons, self-employed and professionals can apply for these personal loans.

title: What are the Tax Benefits on Personal Loan?
, content: No tax benefit is available in Personal Loan. However, if loan avail for purchase of dwelling unit, one can take tax benefit on personal loan under section 80 C (the principal portion of the EMI paid for the year is allowed as a deduction under Section 80C subject to a maximum amount that can be claimed is up to Rs.1.50 lakhs). While under section 24 income tax benefit on interest on personal loan includes the interest portion of the EMI paid for the year can be claimed as a deduction from total income up to a maximum of Rs.2.00 lakhs.

title: Why Choose Bank of Baroda Personal Loan?
, content: Bank of Baroda offers a swift and hassle-free personal loan that comes with several benefits such as providing emergency funds, added advantage over credit cards, no strict credit limits, pay via cheque and bank transfer or cash facility, extended timelines for repayment, flexible usage of funds, and higher borrowing amount. Visit Bank of Baroda Personal Loan to know the complete details and apply for a personal loan.

title: Personal Loan: Borrower's Guide – Do's and Don'ts
, content: Do's:

While taking a personal loan is easy, it should be taken only in case of emergency.

Check the rate of interest provided by your bank

Check the eligibility criteria and the documents required for personal loan

Calculate the EMI for your personal loan

Don'ts:

Personal loans, being unsecured are costly. It would be foolish to buy an asset with a personal loan, especially when there are financial products available these days to buy a mobile or any other household equipment.

One should avoid using personal loans to repay loans that are cheaper in cost. But they can be used to repay higher cost loans like credit card bills or something similar.

If one is using personal loan to meet the operating expenses of the house then he or she is falling in a debt trap.

One loan will lead to another and before the person understands it, he would have fallen in a debt trap.

Rather than using the personal loan as a saviour to come out of the debt trap the person would have fallen in it using personal loans.

Personal loans should be used only for intermittent emergencies.

title: Benefits of Reverse Mortgage Loans for Senior Citizens

, content: Mrs Patel is a 65-year-old retiree. She lives in a self-owned flat while her son resides overseas. Mrs Patel is unable to keep up with the rising costs with her savings alone. She seeks financial advice from her relationship manager, who informs her about Reverse Mortgage Loans, where she can make money using her self-owned property. Let's understand what a Reverse Mortgage Loan (RML) is and how it works.

title: What Is A Reverse Mortgage Loan?

, content: A Reverse Mortgage Loan is essentially a loan against property aimed at providing an income source to senior citizens. In a Reverse Mortgage, a senior citizen who owns a house can mortgage the property with a bank. Instead of paying EMIs to the bank like with a regular home loan, the bank makes monthly payments to you in a reverse mortgage. Moreover, you can occupy the house and are not required to repay the loan.

title: How Do Reverse Mortgages Work?

, content: Individuals above 60 years of age can mortgage their loan-free and self-owned residential property to receive regular income. Individuals living in rented accommodation are ineligible for Reverse Mortgages. Banks typically offer 60% to 80% of the property's market value, but the maximum loan amount is capped at Rs 1 Crore. The banks make lump sum, monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or annual payments to you over 15 to 20 years.

The most appealing feature of Reverse Mortgage is that the borrower is not required to repay the loan. They can continue to live in the house. After the borrower's demise, the bank can sell the property or wait for a legal heir to repay the loan amount and take back the property. After the death of the primary applicant, their spouse can continue to occupy the property until death.

title: Example Explaining Reverse Mortgage Loans

, content: For example, Mrs Patel chooses the Reverse Mortgage route to enjoy a regular income. The bank evaluates the property and offers her Rs 80 Lakh as the RML amount with a 15-year tenure and monthly payment plan. Mrs Patel continues living in the house while receiving monthly income to finance various expenses. She pays all the house-related costs, such as maintenance, property tax, insurance, etc., while alive. However, upon Mrs Patel's unfortunate demise, if her son wishes to take ownership of the house, he must pay back the loan amount. Otherwise, the bank can sell the property and recover the loan amount.

In the above example, Mrs Patel will not receive Rs 80 Lakh entirely. The bank will disburse monthly payments amounting to Rs 80 Lakh at the end of the tenure, including the interest payment. So for a 10% interest rate, Mrs Patel will receive Rs 19,302 as the monthly payment. After 15 years, the bank has paid a total of Rs 34,74,360. ( $19302 \times 180$  months). The difference between the loan amount and the actual amount paid by the bank is the interest amount.

title: NHB Guidelines for a Reverse Mortgage Loan

, content: The National Housing Bank (NHB) is a housing finance regulatory body under the Reserve Bank of India. It has set the following guidelines for Reverse Mortgage Loans in India.

Reverse Mortgage Loans do not apply to commercial properties.

Homeowners can take back the property anytime by repaying the loan amount.

Lenders can pay up a maximum amount of Rs 50,000 per month.

Homeowners use the loan amount to renovate or extend the property for medical emergencies and other daily expenses.

Lenders can only disburse a maximum of Rs 15 Lakh in lump sum payments, which the homeowner can use for medical treatment for self, spouse and dependents only.

Lenders must provide up to 2 months' notice before selling the property.

title: How Much Do Reverse Mortgage Loans Cost?

, content: Following are the costs associated with Reverse Mortgage Loans:

Interest rate: A Reverse Mortgage is a type of a loan wherein banks charge fixed or floating interest on the pay-outs rather than on the entire loan amount.

Insurance: Reverse Mortgage insurance is a mandatory cost that borrowers must bear.

Pre-payment/Foreclosure: Per NHB regulations, lenders may not levy pre-payment penalties.

Borrowers must also incur stamp duty costs, registration charges, property survey and valuation fees, third-party verification costs, appraisal and inspection fees, title examination fees, etc. However, the lender must include these costs in the Reverse Mortgage Loan product offerings.

title: Reverse Mortgage Loan Eligibility

, content: The following are the Reverse Mortgage Loan Eligibility Criteria:

You should be 60 years or older.

If you apply jointly with your spouse, your spouse's age must be no less than 55 years.

You may mortgage a self-acquired and self-occupied residential property in India. The property cannot be a gift or an inherited property.

The residential property should be debt-free.

The residual life of the property should not exceed 20 years.

title: How Senior Citizens Can Benefit From Reverse Mortgage Loans

, content: As a senior citizen, you enjoy the following benefits:

Multi-purposeful: With the RML pay-outs, you can finance your everyday household expenses, travel, and medical bills. Except for the lumpsum pay-out, there are no end-use restrictions.

Tax Benefits: Under Section 10(43) of the Income Tax Act, 1961, the RML pay-outs are not to be treated as income. Therefore, borrowers enjoy tax exemption on Reverse Mortgage Loans. Moreover, the RML amount spent for home renovations is eligible for tax deductions.

Loan repayment is unnecessary: Repaying any debt during old age is nearly impossible. With RML, the bank has the right to sell off the property to recover the loan amount after the borrower's demise. Hence, you need not repay the loan.

title: Bottom Line

, content: The standard monthly income for most people ceases upon retirement, whereas their medical costs increase, and their pensions may not be sufficient. At such a time, the Reverse Mortgage Loan serves as a lifesaver. Bank of Baroda offers Baroda Ashray Reverse Mortgage Loans to senior citizens looking for a regular income source. Call us on 1800 5700 or visit your nearest Bank of Baroda branch for more details.

title: Benefits of Applying for Education Loan, content: The interest rate on education loans is lesser than on personal loans.

Education loans come with a moratorium period, the time until which the EMIs don't start or the student is not required to make any payments to the bank. Education loan interest subsidy schemes by GOI gives the waiver of the education loan interest charged during the moratorium period to the economically weaker section title: What are the Tax Benefits of Education Loan?

Section 80E of the Income Tax of 1961, enables the borrower to avail of the education loan income tax exemption.

, content: As the cost of education continues to sky-rocket, students have little choice but to take out an education loan. Thankfully, the government offers some respite on education loans in the form of education loan tax benefits. Here's all you need to know about education loan tax benefits under Section 80E of the Income Tax Act:

- Section 80E of the Income Tax Act of 1961

Students intending to take a loan for higher studies, also known as an education loan, can avail tax deductions under Section 80E of the Income Tax Act of 1961. This section of the IT Act specifically caters to education loans. Students may avail education loan tax exemptions for pursuing higher education in India or abroad.

Students who've opted to go abroad for higher education often incur higher expenses as compared to those pursuing higher degrees in India. Apart from paying high tuition fees, they also have to incur costs such as boarding or dormitory charges, travel costs, purchasing study materials and equipment (engineering boards, laptops, etc.) Keeping all these expenses in mind, the government introduced Section 80E of the IT Act. Under this section, students can avail some relief in repaying the interest component of their education loan.

title: What is covered under Section 80E?, content: Under Section 80E of the IT Act, students can avail income tax benefit on education loan, when they become taxpayers.

The tax benefit is extended on the interest portion of their education loan under Section 80E.

The 80E specific deduction does not apply to the principal loan amount.

While calculating the annual taxable income, students can deduct the entire amount paid as interest, while repaying the loan, i.e. the interest amount paid against the education loan is not taxed.

You can avail deductions on the entire interest component of the loan.

title: Terms and Conditions under Section 80E, content: To avail education loan deduction in income tax under Section 80E, you need to consider the below terms and conditions:

You can avail tax deductions on education loans taken on behalf of your children (biological and adopted) or your spouse.

Under 80E, you may also avail the deduction if you are the legal guardian of the student.

You can avail 80E deductions only if you have applied for the loan from a recognised financial institution like a bank or an NBFC, or a charitable institution.

You may not avail 80E deductions if an employer or a relative sanctioned the loan.

80E deductions are applicable only for individuals availing the loan and not Hindu Undivided Families (HUFs). Companies or firms can also not avail 80E deductions.

Final Word:

Today, most students have to rely on education loans to get into a good school. Keeping this in mind, the government also offers student loan tax deductions of ₹150,000 on the principal loan amount under Section 80C of the IT Act.

title: Beyond Organic, consider Hydroponic

, content: Dear Reader,

With climate change becoming a prime concern for the world alongside other contemporary world environmental issues and the Indian government's mission to dramatically increase the incomes of our farmers, we are presented with yet another opportunity for a revolution. And this revolution can come in the form of hydroponic farming for not just agricultural communities but also urban dwellers struggling in the relatively worse-off environment situation in the cities.

Hydroponics is a contemporary method of horticulture or growing plants, usually farm produce, without using soil. In this method, the crops are grown on water, rich in essential micro and macronutrients. According to studies, plants grown hydroponically grow faster and healthier than plants in the soil, since they are provided nutrients directly to their roots through the water in the form of an aqueous solvent, and not through the soil.

Several startups in India are using this technique to produce organic food in the obvious lack of land availability considering the expense of buying a large piece of land for business. These are startups that are also helping urban inhabitants build urban gardens in limited spaces. Leveraging technology to grow high-quality, low-cost vegetables for the masses while promoting a healthier way of living, Eeki Foods is a venture by IIT alumni that provides nutritious and residue-free vegetables at affordable prices all year round. A wholesale hydroponic, organic gardening and wellness product distribution company, with a focus on integrating sustainable and moral concepts into a modern economic model.

Acqua Farms is helping urban Indians grow their own food using the limited material available for farming activities in an urban setting with a starter kit. They also offer larger planter systems with 24, 48, 72, 96, and 1,000 depending on the user's demands, a subscription-based service to individuals who are unfamiliar with hydroponics, in which they assign the customer an agronomist who takes care of their plants and monitors them once a week for a monthly charge. Urban Kissan, another startup aims to incorporate the 'In My Backyard' concept into sustainable farming. With the Urban Kissan's assistance and supervision, you can now grow fresh food such as lettuce, herbs, greens, and exotic veggies all year. They may be grown everywhere, from rooftops to balconies.

As more startups are sure to come into the hydroponics space, Urban farming will pick pace in India and indeed around the world. What is needed is for rural agriculture, the primary agriculture, to also make use of this method that does not require high-end technology but provides environmental as well as economic benefits. The country which has been feeding the world, not just in the way of exports but in the sense that India makes 1/6th of the world, should garb on to this innovation for the collective benefit of the world.

title: Voice Payments: The future of Payment technology, content: Voice payments is a process of paying, transferring and receiving money from individuals using voice command where you speak to a AI powered device such as speaker or smartphone for making payments. The process of setting up a voice payment account is very similar to that of paying through any online wallet. Once the payment app is opened on the device, the device will recognize your request, process the payment and respond with confirmation. This technology comes from the advancements made in artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML) where it utilizes Natural language processing (NLP), a branch of AI that allows computers to learn, understand, respond, and produce content in human languages. It works closely with voice recognition engines where human speech is converted from analog to digital form which is being used in Google Assistant, Amazon's Alexa or Apple's Siri.

title: The future of Buildings - Self Repairing Houses, content: Home ownership can be a drag. It's expensive and maintenance is time consuming. Today we rely on concrete and steel to build our world, but these materials are difficult to produce, transport, and assemble, and they eventually wear out or break down.

title: Benefits of buying a car in the festive season, content: The festive season is considered to be very auspicious for embarking on new beginnings. Therefore, buying a car during such times is said to bring in positive energy and prosperity.

title: Car loan benefits while buying a new car, content: Before you plan to buy a car, you need to have a budget in mind and know how you are going to finance it. If you are looking to take a car loan, then one of the best car loan tips that anyone can give you is to plan your purchase during festivals, such as Diwali. During festivals, car dealers are known to partner with banks to offer some of the most attractive interest rates on car loans.

title: Car loan advantages, content: Taking a car loan is one of the easiest ways to finance the vehicle of your dreams. These days, car loan application processes are quick, effortless and require minimal documentation. If you plan to foreclose your loan, you do not need to pay foreclosure charges or pre-payment penalties. Additionally, some banks are known to offer added benefits, such as a good car loan interest rate, to existing home loan borrowers with good credit history.

title: Tax benefit on car loan, content: Did you know that if you are self-employed, you can actually save on taxes with a car loan? All you need to show is that your car is used for business purposes. In this case, the interest payment is calculated as a business expense. You can then claim a tax deduction under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act. However, salaried employees cannot avail of this provision as cars are considered as luxury items in this case.

title: How to pick the right car?, content: Before you zero in on your choice of car, you need to gauge whether buying a vehicle is a practical option for you and your family. While the car should suit your needs, you should not also compromise on your dreams. Here are a few parameters that will help you decide the right car model for you:

title: Car category:, content: Finally, choose between manual and automatic models to suit your comfort.

title: Car loan checklist, content: Once you have finalised the type of car you prefer, you must consider the financing options. Here is a quick car loan guide to help you with your car purchase:

title: Credit score, content: Your car loan eligibility depends on various factors. These include your current income, the car value that you intend to buy and an assessment of your repayment capability title: Documents required for car loan, content: If you fit the eligibility criteria for a car loan, the next stage is to check if you have your documentation in place. You will need to provide the following mandatory documents, which will be verified by the lender:

title: The down payment, content: Banks generally finance 90% of the on-road price of the car. You need to figure out how you will arrange to finance the remaining part, which is the down payment. Remember that a higher down payment will help reduce the overall loan amount. If your loan amount is lower, your financial burdens too become lighter.

title: Car loan interest rates, content: Car loan interest rates start at 7.00% per annum and are calculated on the daily reducing balance. You can avail of a loan of up to Rs. 500 lakhs ( Rs.3.00 Crore for Individuals and Rs.5.00 Crore for Corporates ) title: Car loan tenure, content: The tenure to repay your car loan generally ranges from 12 months to 84 months. If you opt for a shorter tenure, you will end up paying higher EMI amounts. Shorter tenures reduce the interest costs. So, a shorter tenure will help you pay off your loan sooner at a lower cost.

title: Conclusion : car loan, content: Buying a car may be a dream for you right now and the right car loan can make this dream a reality. Make sure to talk to your lender about how you can easily finance your favourite car today. Bank of Baroda offers easy and hassle-free car loans. Get in touch with us today.

title: Bank of Baroda Lowers Home Loan Interest Rate, content: On the other hand, if you had applied for a loan with the same loan amount and tenure at the old rates, you would have had to pay a minimum interest rate of 6.85% p.a. Your EMI payment, in this case, would have been Rs.32,763.

title: Table of Content, content: What is the Need for Foreclosure & Pre-closure title: What is the Need for Foreclosure & Pre-closure, content: While car loans are a great way of purchasing high-end new or used cars, repaying the loan is a responsibility that keeps borrowers on their toes. A good plan of repayment will help lenders systematically manage their EMI without delaying or defaulting. Once you calculate your EMI, based on the types of car loan, new or pre-used, ensure you have a well-researched repayment plan ready. No matter what the size of your loan, a properly researched repayment plan will increase the loan sanction eligibility from banks. Following the EMI repayment tenure that the bank has set, is one way to pay back a major part of the full loan through prepayment or foreclosure, closing the loan can ease a bit of the borrower's pressure. Banks and financial institutes annually allocate large funding towards loans. Thus, repayment and foreclosure are attached to certain terms and conditions as lenders incur losses through foreclosure or part payment. The loan process rests upon an agreement where the borrower agrees to pay regular EMI to the bank or the lender, so borrowers may have to pay car loan closure charges when they choose these repayment options. Banks offer borrowers the flexibility to pay off the entire or part of the loan balance ahead of the term reducing the interest liability. In this article let us explore these repayment processes that lenders offer to borrowers.

title: Car Loan Foreclosure Procedure, content: Foreclosure is the process of returning the outstanding loan amount through lump sum payments. This lump sum can be a part payment or full payment before the due date making borrowers financially debt-free from the cycle of the periodic EMI till the term end. When the loan balance amount is paid in full through a single payment before the term, it is called a foreclosure. However, for choosing this option, the borrower needs to follow the conditions set by the bank. A foreclosure can be done after paying a certain number of EMIs. This can be paid after a month or a few months of paying the EMI. You can plan a foreclosure when applying for the loan and discuss it with the lender.

title: How to calculate foreclosure?, content: You can make a car loan closure both online and in-person at the lending branch title: What car loan documents will the borrower receive from the lender upon foreclosure:, content: By prepaying car loans, you are paying part of the loan in advance of its maturity date. Before applying for a car loan, you must have a financial plan. From the Car Loan EMI Calculator, calculate the amount best suited for you. Do you wish to make the repayment till the full term, or if there is cash coming from one of your investments, do you want to make a pre-payment? A prepayment will shorten the car loan tenure as the remaining outstanding principal is reduced, and the interest liability is adjusted accordingly through EMIs for the remaining term. Car loan pre-payment charges differ between financial retailers, therefore, before choosing a retailer, go through their pre-payment terms and conditions if you are planning pre-payment. Lenders charge car loan pre-payment penalty as the lender loses the anticipated interest compensating the amount through a penalty. Pre-payment can be made in parts and a pre-closure or foreclosure suggests that the amount is fully paid, and EMI is closed. A borrower can make many pre-payments to close the loan by paying part of the loan before the term ends, thus reducing the principal outstanding. Some banks do not allow pre-payments in parts.

title: Steps for pre-payment, content: Most banks do not levy foreclosure charges within 6-months from the date of availing the loan. If the pre-closure is within 1 year, from the 7th EMI, a 6% penalty on the principal outstanding is imposed. If within 13-24 months, a 5% penalty in the principal outstanding is levied from the 1st EMI. If pre-closure is posted between 13-24 months, a 3% penalty will be charged from the 1st EMI. Bank of Baroda allows foreclosure after the first EMI is paid. The bank does not levy any extra penalty on foreclosure.

title: Car Loan Prepayment Charges, content: Most banks allow prepayment after 12 EMIs are paid to the lender. Prepayment can be paid twice at any time, once a year. The payment must not increase by 25% of the principal outstanding. If prepayment is within 13-24 months from the 1st EMI, 5%-penalty is charged. If post 24 months from 1st EMI, a 3% penalty is levied. Bank of Baroda allows pre-payment after the first EMI is paid. The bank does not levy any extra car loan pre-payment charges.

title: Important Points to Consider Before Pre-Closing your Car Loan, content:

Before considering a pre-closure of the bank loan, you should take these points into account for making an informed decision.

title: FAQs: Car Loan Foreclosure & Prepayment Process, content: How to Get Original Car Loan Documents?

title: How to Get Original Car Loan Documents?, content: Is it good to foreclose a car loan?

title: Is it good to foreclose a car loan?, content: Pre-closure helps you save on significant EMI that you were going to pay overtime. However, pre-closure needs the lender's approval, and, in some cases, lender charges a pre-closure/foreclosure penalty compensating for the lost interest. Pre-closure affects the CIBIL score for car loan. However, the Bank of Baroda has made pre-closure free after the first EMI is paid.

title: How do I close a car loan?, content: A car loan is closed when the borrower completes paying the instalments before or till the tenure. Borrowers can pre-close a loan by paying the loan amount before the end of the term. Some lenders charge a penalty on pre-closure in exchange for the lost interest. The penalty is based on the outstanding loan amount. Before opting for a closure ensure you calculate the penalty on foreclosure.

title: How can I get rid of my car loan without penalty?, content: "If you want to make a foreclosure without penalty opt for a car loan from the Bank of Baroda. Bank of Baroda is not taking any penalty for foreclosure or part payment." The bank offers up to 90% loans on new cars and up to 75% loans on used cars. title: Insights from the Infinite Mind: Exploring the World of Chat GPT, content: Let's talk about the app which took just 5 days to reach 1 million online users. We would call it FOMO if we don't hear or know about Chat GPT amongst our peers or colleagues, and our newsletter is no exception. For starters, when asked chat GPT to talk about itself it says, "I am ChatGPT, a language model developed by Open AI. I was trained on a vast corpus of text data, including books, articles, and websites, using deep learning algorithms to learn the structure and patterns of language. As a language model, my primary function is to generate human-like responses to natural language input. I am capable of answering a wide range of questions, from the trivial to the complex, and can engage in conversations on a variety of topics."

title: Voice Payments: The future of Payment technology, content: Voice payments is a process of paying, transferring and receiving money from individuals using voice command where you speak to a AI powered device such as speaker or smartphone for making payments. The process of setting up a voice payment account is very similar to that of paying through any online wallet. Once the payment app is opened on the device, the device will recognize your request, process the payment and respond with confirmation. This technology comes from the advancements made in artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML) where it utilizes Natural language processing (NLP), a branch of AI that allows computers to learn, understand, respond, and produce content in human languages. It works closely with voice recognition engines where human speech is converted from analog to digital form which is being used in Google Assistant, Amazon's Alexa or Apple's Siri.

title: Table of Content, content: Car Loan Eligibility Criteria title: Car Loan Eligibility Criteria, content: If you are wondering whether you fulfil the bank loan eligibility criteria, a glance through these pointers can help you get a better understanding. Before you start calculating the EMI or the types of car loans you require, go through these once. Eligibility criteria: The eligibility scores vary vendor-wise, however, the most common eligibility requirements by most vendors are these.
Age limit: These broad car loan eligibility criteria apply to all individuals. But banks operate on more specific segregation working out car loan eligibility benchmarks based on your profession. Car loans for salaried persons and self-employed individuals are different. Read on to know in depth.

title: Car Loan Eligibility for Salaried Individuals, content: For salaried individuals getting a car loan from a reputed bank is relatively easy for new passenger cars, multi-utility vehicles (MUVs), SUVs, etc. for private use. If you belong to a good company from either the private or public sector and have served your company for a few years with continuous service, you have a high chance of getting a car loan. So, we share a few pointers for car loan eligibility for salaried individuals:

title: Car Loan Eligibility for Self-employed Professionals, content: Self-employed individuals are divided into four sections enabling them to understand how to procure car loans. They can be sole proprietors, belong to partnership firms, be owners of private limited companies, or directors in public limited companies. So, let us look at the eligibility criteria for car loans individually.

title: Self-employed professionals as sole proprietors, content: Those offering tuitions, or working from home as freelancers, attached with home delivery of food or products, offering services of various kinds can also apply for car loans easily. For them, the car loan eligibility criteria are mostly the same.

title: Car Loan Eligibility Calculator, content: Most banks these days offer car loan eligibility calculators on their websites. This highly efficient tool helps individuals calculate car loan amounts easily. Individuals can adjust the figures to check the most suitable EMI, comfortably helping them to make easy repayment. The calculator contains three fields the loan amount, varying from bank to bank, rate of interest which is the differentiating factor for choosing your lender and the loan term is mostly stable in all banks of 84 months or 7 years. So, check your capacity and apply for the loan amount that will be sanctioned easily by the bank. Your income and EMI ratio should be maintained as mentioned in the division. Once the payment is over you can be the proud owner of your car.

title: For example, content: Car loan calculators calculate the loan amount to determine preowned and new car loan eligibility. While buying a preowned car ensure that the age of the car must not exceed 5 years.

title: Factors affecting Car Loan Eligibility, content: While banks make car loans easily available for all individuals, not everyone falls under the bank's eligibility criteria. Read carefully through the factors that could affect loan-taking capacity.

title: Why opt for BOB Car Loan, content: The Bank of Baroda offers one of the most attractive car loan features. Applicants seeking a loan from the bank can apply for loan amounts of up to 100% (on selected models) of the on-road price. Loan amounts up to Rs.500 Lakh (5 crores) are available from the bank. This gives individuals the opportunity to buy the most expensive cars. The bank calculates the interest rate on a daily reducing balance which is dependent on the CIBIL Bureau score of the borrower. The minimum car loan eligibility CIBIL score is 701. Borrowers can repay the loan in a tenure of 84 months and set their EMI accordingly with help from the EMI calculator. Auto loans require no collaterals as the bank hypothecates the vehicle until full loan payment. Once the borrower completes the entire payment the bank removes hypothecation. The bank has made it possible for a wide list of individuals like salaried employees, businessmen, professionals, corporates as well as NRIs / PIOs / OCIs to apply for car loans. The eligibility age for car loans is 21 years at the time of application and the maximum age of full repayment must not exceed 65 years. This extensive period proves to be extremely convenient for borrowers. The bank has brought down processing charges to a minimum. Bank of Baroda will support you through the loan procurement process with online and offline assistance. Offering the best rates with car loans; documents kept to a minimum. Contact Baroda Car Loan and get the fastest car loans.

title: Car Loan Foreclosure & Prepayment Process, content: While car loans are a great way of purchasing high-end new or used cars, repaying the loan is a responsibility that keeps borrowers on their toes. A good plan of repayment will help lenders systematically manage their EMI without delaying or defaulting. Once you calculate your EMI, based on the types of car loan, new or pre-used, ensure you have a well-researched repayment plan ready. No matter what the size of your loan, a properly researched repayment plan will increase the loan sanction eligibility from banks. Following the EMI repayment tenure that the bank has set, is one way to pay back a major part of the full loan through prepayment or foreclosure, closing the loan can ease a bit of the borrower's pressure. Banks and financial institutes annually allocate large funding towards loans. Thus, repayment and foreclosure are attached to certain terms and conditions as lenders incur losses through foreclosure or part payment. The loan process rests upon an agreement where the borrower agrees to pay regular EMI to the bank or the lender, so borrowers may have to pay car loan closure charges when they choose these repayment options. Banks offer borrowers the flexibility to pay off the entire or part of the loan balance ahead of the term reducing the interest liability. In this article let us explore these repayment processes that lenders offer to borrowers.

title: Types of Car Loans, content: At Bank of Baroda, you can get financing of up to 90% of the on-road price of a brand new car of your choice if you opt for Car Loan. Anyone can avail of a Bank of Baroda Car Loan, subject to their eligibility. These are available for a maximum loan tenure of 7 years, and the loan amount can be as much as Rs 1 crore. The bank gives a 0.25% concession on the interest rate to its existing home loan customers with a clean credit history. What's more, Concession of 0.50% in rate of interest on Car Loans to those applicant/s who offer minimum 50% of Loan limit as liquid collateral security e.g. Fixed Deposit of our Bank, NSC, KVP or LIC Policy.

title: Banking Mantra : Set a target, content: "1. Set a target" One of the best ways to truly achieve any goal is to first write it down. This way, your plans become much more tangible. Note down how much you wish to save on a monthly basis and how you plan to save this amount. When creating a target, remember to also note down surplus expenses that you make each month. Then, you can focus on reducing these expenses and increasing your savings. Cutting down on outside coffees, movie at the cinema, and takeout can truly make a huge difference on your monthly budget. This is not to say that you should not enjoy your money by buying the things you love. You simply need to budget and spend a bit less, so you can save a lot more.

"2. Open a new savings account" Now, you probably already have a savings account where you keep your money and deposit your salary. However, this account probably ends up as a spending account. Most of us have our savings account linked to all our bills and online wallets. As a result, it's not too long before the cash supply runs dry. To really build your savings, you need to consider opening another bank account into which you will deposit money without spending it.

"3. Start a recurring deposit" One of the easiest ways to grow your savings automatically is by opening a recurring deposit (RD). For years, our parents and grandparents depended on RDs as a method of saving money with ease. The concept of an RD is really simple – all you need to do is select an amount of money that gets auto-debited from your savings each month into the deposit. This debit continues for a selected period of time that can range anywhere from a few months to a couple of years. Once the tenure of the RD is complete, the entire accumulated amount and interest comes back to you. You can choose to convert the matured RD into a fixed deposit (FD) and reinvest your funds. Or you can opt to get the money credited to your savings account.

"4. Pay off debt" Ask any expert how to increase savings and they will probably ask you whether you have any debt that can be paid off. One of the best ways to put more towards your savings is by lowering the amount that you pay towards loan EMIs each month. Now, paying off debt is easier said than done. So, start small with realistic targets. Focus on clearing loans that have higher interest rates. If you earn a bonus at work or some money from freelance projects, try to prepay loans. Do check, however, whether you will be charged a penalty for prepayments. If you are making just the minimum due towards your credit card bills each month, try to pay more than that so you can close at least one form of debt faster.

"5. Use technology to your advantage" Doing manual calculations with your money can prove to be tedious. With so many other thoughts cluttering the mind, you may even make a mistake. So, use technology to help you in this task. You can use apps to help you budget your money. These apps can help you track your income, analyse expenses, and set goals for savings. If you are not much of a smartphone user, simply take the help of an Excel sheet on your laptop to easily add up your expenses.

"6. Consider investing" Once you have built up a good corpus of funds, consider growing it by investing. You can consider various forms of investment, such as mutual funds. If you are new to investing, you may want to take some help from an experienced financial advisor. A financial advisor will guide you with the right investment strategy and tools according to your capacity and goals.

"7. Review subscriptions" Most of us have subscriptions to accounts and items that we barely use. For instance, you may be subscribed to over 4 or 5 OTT platforms, but actually use just 1 or 2 of them regularly. Review all your subscriptions and cancel the ones that you hardly ever use. The same goes for any magazine or product that you have subscribed to. The money that you save by cancelling on these excess expenses can be put towards your savings.

title: Why is it important to save money?, content: Expenses often crop up without warning and it can be very hard to borrow money at the eleventh hour. Imagine a situation in which you need cash for medical treatment in the middle of the night. At this hour, your bank is closed, and your friends are probably asleep. Swiping your credit card might see you incur even more debt that can be unaffordable in the long run. And applying for a loan will probably take a couple of hours, if not days to get the funding you need. Having your own savings means you can get access to the help you need when you need it. Most importantly, it means that you can live life comfortably, on your own terms. Plus, having savings also helps you have the down payment you may need when you apply for loans such as a car loan or a home loan.

title: What is a CIBIL score?

, content: A CIBIL Score or Credit Score is issued by the Credit Information Bureau of India Limited to every borrower that denotes his or her creditworthiness which is determined by factors such as payment and credit history, types of credit and number of loan accounts, due loan amount, etc. It is a three-digit number that ranges between 300-900 which is calculated on the basis of the financial history of the applicant.

So, how much CIBIL Score is required for a personal loan? Well, if you have a CIBIL score of 750 or more, you are good to go.

In Bank of Baroda minimum CIBIL Score for Personal Loan is 701.

You can check your CIBIL on a CIBIL report that gives an overview of your credit health, worthiness and utilization.

title: Why is a CIBIL Score Important while Applying for A Personal Loan?, content: A CIBIL Score or credit score for a personal loan is very important for you because of the following reasons:

Credit Status: A CIBIL score helps you to know your credit status. Your loan application approval somewhat depends on your CIBIL score.

Higher Limits: If you have a good CIBIL score, you may get twice or even three times higher loan eligibility when you apply for personal loan which is not possible in a low CIBIL score.

Lower Interest Rate: If you have a very good CIBIL score, the bank may grant you a loan at a lower interest rate whereas with lower CIBIL score for personal loan, you may get a loan at a higher rate of interest.

Longer Loan Duration: If you have an average credit score, you can get instant personal loan for 3 years and with a high credit score you will be able to get personal loans for as long as 5 years. (This statement is not true in Bank of Baroda's prospective).

Minimum Paperwork: If you have a very good CIBIL score, the bank may grant you a loan with minimum paperwork whereas the paperwork maximizes, if you have a lower CIBIL score. (This statement is not true in Bank of Baroda's prospective).

Fast Processing & Quick Approvals: If you have a low credit score, the bank may take time to cross-check your details. This makes the approval process slow and time consuming. On the other hand, a high credit score makes the approval of personal loan process a cake walk for you.

Easy Approval on Leased or Rented Properties: A good credit score may get you easy loan approval on rented or leased properties like homes, commercial complexes, apartments, etc.

Higher Negotiation Authority: If your CIBIL score is very high, you have the negotiation authority to bring down your interest rate, customize your payment personal loan tenure or ask for other benefits and privileges.

title: Things You Should Consider to Improve Your CIBIL Score for a Personal Loan

, content: Though getting a personal loan without CIBIL score is a tough nut to crack, ways to improve your CIBIL score for a personal loan is no rocket science. Some of the necessary things which you can do to improve your CIBIL score are:

Regular credit payments - You must ensure that your outstanding payments, including loan EMIs, credit card bills, etc. are paid on time because not paying your bills on time will impact your credit score for a personal loan.

Monitor your credit utilization ratio - Basically, underutilization and overutilization, both can be harmful to your CIBIL score but never utilize your entire credit limit on your credit cards, if any. You should avoid using more than 30% of your credit limit to keep your credit scores high. For instance, let us assume your credit limit is one lakh rupees (INR 1,00,000), in this case it is a good option not to spend more than thirty thousand rupees (INR 30,000) on that credit card.

Demonstrate solid repayment history - You must always maintain a clean and reliable record of all your payments and clear debts because banks keenly observe your credit report.

Upgrade credit limits - Take no time in taking up new credit cards or higher credit limits upgrades offered by your existing bank as this will present you as a creditworthy customer.

title: How to Get a Personal Loan without CIBIL Score?

, content: Though CIBIL score acts as a catalyst in your personal loan application, there are personal loans for holders who can avail a personal loan without a CIBIL score or with a low CIBIL score. Here are some of the ways that can help you with a personal loan without CIBIL score.

Apply for collateral-based loan - If you have a low or no credit score, you can offer a security on a personal loan. All you need to do is pledge any of your valuable assets as collateral on the loan.

Show your creditworthiness - If you have a stable source of income and have paid your bills on time, you can easily avail a personal loan without a CIBIL score.

Displaying your salary slips or bank statements has a higher possibility of getting a personal loan without CIBIL score and income proof is the life saver here. (This statement is not true in Bank of Baroda's prospective).

Get a co-applicant or a guarantor - You can apply for a personal loan with a co-applicant or a guarantor with stable income and records will increase your chances of getting the loan approved. (Co-applicant is not allowed in Personal Loan in Bank of Baroda).

Avoid applying for a higher loan amount - If you have a low credit score, you can apply for a lower loan amount. (Loan limit is not directly linked with CIBIL Score).

Request for a History not Available (NA) or No History (NH) on your credit report - You can ask your bank to mark NA or NH on your credit report in case of the absence of any previous credit activity and credit in the last 3 years.

title: CIBIL Score for Bike Loan, content: CIBIL score is one of the critical factors for determining eligibility for a loan. Even if it's a bike loan, borrowers need to have a minimum CIBIL score to avail of the bike loan. A CIBIL score depicts the borrower's credibility, credit performance and repayment history. It is the basis upon which the lender assesses whether the borrower will be able to repay the loan. But what's the minimum CIBIL score for a bike loan? Let's find out!

title: Minimum CIBIL Score for Bike Loan, content: A CIBIL score above 701 is considered an admissible CIBIL score for bike loans. Most lenders would be ready to finance a bike loan to a borrower with a CIBIL score above 701. However, even if the CIBIL score is slightly lower, the lenders would still extend the bike loan to the borrowers.

title: Clearing up Space Debris
, content: Dear Reader,

Various entities are putting more and more satellites into Earth's orbit every year making it extremely crowded with defunct satellites and debris. Scientists around the world are worried about accidental collisions affecting new space missions. Governments and start-ups are now working on numerous ways to fix this humungous mess.

NASA has a special ORBITAL DEBRIS PROGRAM OFFICE according to which more than 23,000 orbital debris larger than 10 cm are known to exist. The estimated population of particles between 1 and 10 cm in diameter is approximately 500,000. The number of particles larger than 1 mm exceeds 100 million. As of January 1, 2020, the quantity of material orbiting the Earth exceeded 8,000 metric tons.

NASA recently gave out a handbook on how to avoid crashes for commercial satellite providers, and this month signed an agreement with SpaceX to ensure that both prioritize safety during launches and orbital manoeuvres.

Astroscale, is a Japanese startup which wants to remove hazardous clutter from an already congested space environment. It has achieved a critical breakthrough with the successful launch of its ELSA-D debris removal spacecraft last week.

Russia's GK Launch Services sent ELSA-D into space on a Soyuz rocket from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan. The system works by attempting to attach itself to dead satellites and push them towards the earth for burning up in the atmosphere, using a magnetic docking technology.

Apart from Astroscale, ClearSpace SA, a Switzerland-based startup founded in 2018, is aiming to launch the world's first active debris removal mission in collaboration with ESA by 2025. The mission's objective will be to remove a fragment of the Vega rocket launched in 2013. It is a bulky piece, about a hundred kilos and a similar size to many satellites in orbit, which is why it has been selected.

The concept is relatively simple—a vehicle will be launched with several mechanical arms that will trap the piece in orbit. Once captured, a descent manoeuvre will be initiated with which the spacecraft and the piece of junk will disintegrate due to the atmosphere's friction.

In India, young Bengaluru-based space startup, Digantara Research and Technologies, is working towards setting up an orbit rubble tracking and monitoring services.

Another Japanese company - Sumitomo Forestry and Kyoto University have joined forces to develop what they hope will be the world's first satellites made out of wood by 2023. This partnership will begin experimenting with different types of wood in extreme environments on Earth.

These strategies will be critical since, by 2029, there will be an estimated 57,000 satellites in orbit. Fortunately, this time around, we have the knowledge and tools to resolve the situation before the accumulation of space junk becomes unsustainable.

title: Cloud kitchen Startups on Cloud9
, content: Dear Reader,

The F&B industry is poised for transformation due to technology shifts, changing consumer habits, and rising disposable incomes. Cloud kitchens are one such emerging segment gaining popularity & it is expected to gain more traction as Gen Zs enters the market.

Cloud kitchens are delivery-only restaurants where the preparation + packaging of food takes place while operating at a fraction of the costs incurred by traditional restaurant establishments (rentals, decor, equipment, & wait staff can be saved while operating virtual cloud kitchen brands). Simply put, a cloud kitchen is a 4-walled kitchen structure from where food is dispatched to customers who're ordering from their offices or homes.

Consumers place their orders via food delivery aggregators such as Zomato, Swiggy, or direct-ordering platforms such as DotPe, Thrive, etc. These orders are then accepted on POS Systems such as Posify, Posist, & Limetray.

In the end, direct orders are fulfilled via third-party logistics (3PL) providers such as WeFast, Dunzo, Pidge & others.

Foodtech & cloud kitchens are highly scalable, profitable, & asset light compared to traditional F&B concepts. Consequently, their investments & ROIs have reached record highs in 2021 and are expected to grow to a $4 billion industry in India by 2024, up from $1 billion in 2021. The restaurants without physical stores, which only deliver and operate through cloud kitchens, could outpace growth of physical outlets in the next 12 months, despite the reopening of dine-in.

Rebel Foods, an Indian startup which is also backed by Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and Sequoia Capital, entered the Unicorn club to achieve a billion-dollar valuation after securing $175 million in a funding round led by the sovereign wealth fund Qatar Investment Authority.

It said it's growing at 100% annually and moving toward profitability with an annual run rate of over $150 million. It operates more than 45 brands from Behrouz Biryani to Ovenstory Pizza and Faasos wraps across 10 countries including India, Indonesia, the United Arab Emirates and Malaysia.

Founded by Kiran Prasad, Hygiene BigBite pivoted to a multi-brand cloud kitchen model in 2017 which has raised $15 million from Falcon Edge. It currently operates 10 brands – including Gunpowder and Biryani Trip – across 50 kitchens.

Cloud kitchens will continue to gain the edge by accelerating cost-savings and margins by leveraging trends like kitchen automation, drone delivery, the gig economy, and rising real estate costs in urban areas. The myriad models are peaking investor interest in the F&B space and when it comes to innovation in this space, we have seen only the tip of the iceberg yet!

title: Table of Content, content: 10 Common Internet Banking Frauds title: 10 Common Internet Banking Frauds, content: Here are the top 10 most common types of online frauds in banking services that one needs to be aware of:

1) Identity Theft Identity theft is one of the most common forms of Internet banking fraud. Here, cybercriminals steal personal information such as usernames, passwords and other confidential data to impersonate the victim.

2) Malicious Software Malicious software, also commonly known as malware, is software that is designed to infiltrate or damage computer systems. Malware can be used by fraudsters to gain unauthorised access to the net banking credentials of a person.

3) Employee Initiated Fraud Employee-initiated fraud is a type of net banking fraud where employees of a financial institution misuse their access to sensitive information and banking systems for personal gain. They can use this information to conduct embezzlement, insider trading and other forms of fraud.

4) Fraudulent Email (Phishing) Phishing is a common tactic used by fraudsters to trick individuals into sharing their personal information. This is usually done through fraudulent emails that appear to be from legitimate financial institutions. They ask for confidential information such as usernames, passwords and account numbers.

5) e-Transfer Interception Fraud e-Transfer interception fraud occurs when cybercriminals intercept and redirect legitimate e-transfers intended for a victim's bank account to their own account. They may use various tactics, such as social engineering, malware or hacking.

6) Vishing Vishing is another common online banking fraud where cybercriminals use voice calls to deceive victims into sharing their personal information. The fraudster usually represents themselves as an executive from a legitimate financial institution and asks the victim to provide their confidential information over the phone.

7) Opening an Account in the Victim's Name (Application Fraud) Application fraud is a type of Internet banking fraud where cybercriminals open bank accounts in the victim's name without their consent. They may use stolen identities and other fraudulent documents to open these accounts. These bank accounts are then used for illegal activities such as money laundering or transferring stolen funds.

8) SIM Swap SIM swap is a type of e-banking fraud where cybercriminals trick a victim's mobile service provider into transferring the victim's mobile phone number to a SIM card in their possession. Once they have control of the victim's phone number, they can use it to bypass two-factor authentication measures. Through this, they gain unauthorised access to the victim's online banking accounts.

9) Automatic Transfer System (ATS) ATS is a serious type of online banking scam that increases financial losses over time if not rapidly solved. Here, fraudsters set up automatic transfers to their own accounts without the victim's knowledge or consent. These automatic transfers may occur at regular intervals automatically.

10) Fake Apps Fake applications are malicious application copies that are designed such that they mimic legitimate banking apps. These fake applications deceive users into providing their personal information. They are often downloaded from unofficial app stores or websites. In most cases, they contain malware or other malicious software.

title: Common Challenges Faced with Overseas Education Loans and Their Solutions, content: Following are some of the common challenges in education loans for abroad and their effective solutions:

1. CIBIL Score Issues

One of the key challenges in obtaining an overseas education loan is maintaining a good credit score. Many applicants may not have a credit history or a low credit score due to their limited financial exposure. This can negatively impact loan approval.

Solution: To overcome this issue, students can consider applying for an education loan for students with a co-applicant who has a strong credit history. The co-applicants credit score will help strengthen the loan application and increase the chances of approval.

2. Multiple Loan Enquiries and Applications

Students often face the dilemma of selecting the right lender for education loans for study abroad. They end up applying to multiple lenders simultaneously to increase their chances of loan approval.

This becomes another significant education loan problem. However, multiple loan enquiries and applications can negatively impact their credit score and create confusion during loan approval.

Solution: It is advisable to research and shortlist a few reputable lenders that specialise in overseas education loans. Rather than making multiple enquiries and applications, students should focus on presenting a strong application to their preferred lenders.

3. Academic Performance of the Applicant

Some lenders may consider the applicant's academic performance as a factor in loan approval. If the student's academic record does not meet the lender's criteria, it can lead to loan rejection.

Solution: Students can address this issue by providing additional documentation or explanations highlighting their potential and commitment to their chosen course.

This can include letters of recommendation, statements of purpose or evidence of extracurricular activities that demonstrate their dedication and aptitude in the field of study.

4. Inadequate Documents

Documentation becomes an important criterion in education loans for study abroad. Insufficient or improper documentation is a common problem loan applicants face, leading to delays in processing and approval.

Solution: Students should carefully review the documents requirement for education loan provided by the lender and ensure they submit all the necessary documents in the prescribed format. They should ensure that the documentation is complete and accurate, as this reduces the chances of rejection due to inadequate documents.

title: Introduction :Credit Card, content: Credit cards are a great way to manage your finances and build credit. With the right strategy, you can use them to pay for purchases, earn rewards, and even get cashback. In this article, we'll cover everything you need to know about credit cards - from the basics of how they work and how to apply for one, to building your credit score and using rewards programs. Let us understand what is the meaning of a credit card.

title: What is a Credit Card?, content: A credit card is a plastic or a virtual card that gives the cardholder a line of credit to use for purchases. Banks, credit unions, and other financial institutions issue credit cards. It is a payment card that allows you to make purchases and manage your finances. It's convenient to access funds and pay for goods and services without carrying cash or writing cheques. With a credit card, you can buy items online and in stores, pay bills, and transfer balances from one account to another. Credit cards also provide rewards programs, which can help you save money when you use your card for everyday purchases.

title: How Do Credit Cards Function?, content: After knowing the credit card definition, let us discuss the functioning of the credit cards. Within your predetermined credit limit, you can use a credit card to make purchases both online and offline. Your credit card information is transmitted to the merchant's bank in both scenarios. The lender for your loan receives a verification request from the bank. Your payment will only be executed if your lender authorizes it and checks your information.

title: What is APR?, content: The term annual percentage rate (APR) is the interest rate you pay when borrowing money. When using a credit card, interest is not applied if the amount is paid in full and on time each billing cycle.

title: What are the Different Types of Credit Cards?, content: There are several kinds of credit cards offered by banks and other financial institutions that you can apply for:

title: Pros and Cons of Credit Cards, content: Credit cards come with benefits but have certain limitations as well. Let us look at the advantages of credit cards:

title: What is a Credit Card Score?, content: A credit card score is a score that indicates how likely you are to repay a loan or how good your credit is. A high score can increase your chances of being approved for credit cards, loans, and mortgages, while a low score can decrease your chances. Your credit will improve if you use your credit card and pay your bills promptly.

title: What should I Look for in a First Credit Card?, content: Your first credit card should ideally be one you wish to keep open indefinitely since it will help you increase the length of your credit history with each month that goes by. The first credit card has to be one without an annual fee so you won't have to pay to keep it open each year.

title: EASY & SELECT BoB Credit Cards are a perfect fit for the first-time credit card users., content: For people with little credit history, secured credit cards are very common. You must pay a refundable security deposit to obtain this kind of card. The credit card company may be more lenient with whom it authorizes since it receives a deposit in advance.

title: • Rewards and Incentives -, content: Rewards are the cherry on top, after all, it's not a terrible perk to earn points from your first credit card offers and avail discounts while using it.

title: Credit Cards Vs. Debit Cards, content: Given below is a comparison between credit cards and debit cards to help you understand the difference better:• Based on the Source of Funds - "Using a credit card is similar to borrowing money. The credit card company makes the payment on your behalf, and you must repay the balance at a later, prearranged date. On the other hand, when you use a debit card, money that is already in your bank account is used."

- Based on Maximum Usage Limit - Your usage is limited to the credit limit on your card since credit cards have them. Debit cards, on the other hand, do not have any restrictions, and the only thing limiting your usage is the amount you currently have in your bank account.
- Based on Repayment - When using a credit card, you must repay the amount borrowed before the due date. However, because debit cards employ pre-existing cash, you are not required to make any repayments.
- Based on Interest and Penalties - "If you do not pay your credit card bills by the due date, you will be charged a penalty and interest on the outstanding balance. There are no such duties with debit cards. When you use your credit card to make a purchase, you receive attractive points, offers, and savings and debit cards provide incentives as well, but there are fewer of them."
- Based on Effect on Credit Score - Your credit score is unaffected by using a debit card. On the other hand, the way you use credit cards might have a favourable or negative effect on your credit score.

title: Also Read: Difference Between Credit Card & Debit Card, content: Ask the issuer for the highest credit limit available when you apply for a credit card online. The larger credit limit will boost your credit score in addition to raising your • Recognize the benefits - To get the most out of the rewards and perks, thoroughly examine the reward point system and utilize the card intelligently. The majority of credit cards come equipped with a variety of reward programs and bonuses for certain types of purchases.

- On-time payments - Pay your debts on time if you want to avoid incurring those high-interest rates and penalties. Additionally, this will raise your credit scores.
- Maintain minimum due payment - The companies that provide credit cards tack on a large interest fee on the debt. Therefore, you must attempt to pay the dues in full each month if you want to avoid incurring such fees.
- Regularly review your statements - "Make sure to thoroughly review your statement each month and comprehend the charges that are applied to your bill. Additionally, check for any questionable transactions. The reason for this can be credit card fraud. Never give out your credit card information to anyone."

Also Read: Things to Keep in Mind While Using a Credit Cards "Without a credit card, it is far more difficult to establish a credit history. Poor credit history can have a wide-ranging impact on your life. The most apparent is that if you ever need to borrow money, you will have difficulty getting authorized by lenders. Furthermore, it may result in you being denied when applying to rent a property, and in many areas, it may result in increased vehicle insurance premiums."

- For Secured Payments: "Security-wise, credit cards are the most reliable form of payment. You can acquire a new card and have the fraudulent charges cancelled if a thief uses your credit card to make unauthorized purchases. Additionally, the majority of card issuers even offer zero-liability rules, meaning that you won't be held

title: Table of Content, content: Why Do Women Need Banking Finance?

title: Why Do Women Need Banking Finance?, content: Women's banking is the most empowered tool directly linked to savings. Even now, a large percentage of the women population in the country gets paid in cash despite the government and banks' efforts to channel salaries through banks, and cash can often be mis-utilised. Banking can stop this misuse, and help women plan and secure better future for themselves and their families. Banking services for women also allow them to take loans that open wider opportunities, along with a list of other facilities that come with a bank account.

title: Why are Banking Services for Women so Significant?, content: The first step towards financial freedom is opening a savings account with a bank.

Women's banking is largely promoted with personal finance assistance for women by banks. Whether a woman is self-employed, a service holder, a housewife, a single woman or a senior citizen, the bank will offer attractive facilities with the account and is ready to provide assistance based on one's requirements.

title: Banking Services for Single Women, content: A single woman can better her life with the right financial advantage. With access to the right banking facilities, she can open a savings account at a high-interest rate. Some accounts have a flexi-fixed facility, with other perks such as personal accidental insurance, discount on two-wheelers, Health Insurance, Education Loan for higher studies and a lot more. Women above the age of 18 years in India can make full use of all these banking services.

title: Banking Services for Housewife, content: Even if you are a homemaker, saving is a habit that every woman is born with. To add impetus to these savings, opening a savings account in the bank under the Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan Yojana (PMJDY) adds wings to small investments. A woman can make a monthly deposit of only Rs. 500, and within five months they are entitled to Rs. 10,000 loan facility. This financial facility gives women with low income a means to think big and expose them to wider financial opportunities.

title: Banking Services for Working Women, content: To encourage the use of a bank account, banks in collaboration with government agencies have introduced incentivised saving to pull women from economic hardships such as COVID-19. Loan facilities were provided for working women. The convenience of online banking enabled women to open digital banking accounts and to avail different types of loans. Banking apps, Internet banking, WhatsApp banking, and online applications for lockers were available for all women account holders. This title: Banking Services for Women Senior Citizens, content: Banking services are similar for all senior citizens, both men and women. Banks realize that with age, senior citizens tend to lead a sedentary lifestyle and physical attendance in banks may not be possible. Doorstep banking facilities by leading banks, for both financial and non-financial services for senior citizens, are provided with pickups of cheques and draft/pay orders. Requesting account statements, asking for delivery of a new chequebook and requisition slip, acceptance of 15G/15H forms, TDS/Form 16 certificate issuance, delivery of pre-paid or gift cards, submission of digital life certificate, addition/deletion/modification in nominee name, SCSS and other Govt. Schemes have become convenient for those in their senior years. Financial facilities such as cash withdrawals and fund transfer facilities at the doorstep are specially designed banking services for women senior citizens.

title: Banking is Empowering Women in India in Multiple Ways:, content: Touching across sections of society, banking for women is hugely beneficial. A formal financial service can help women control their funds securely and invest, which may not be possible with liquid cash. Providing women with a wealth of financial opportunities, banks are empowering women with loans, driving them towards higher achievements.

title: Women Entrepreneurs Loan, content: With equal opportunities for women springing up in every field, the finance sector is also leaving no stone unturned in working towards a more inclusive system. Certain banks offer special facilities in which women entrepreneurs are encouraged to set up Greenfield projects in the manufacturing, services or trading sectors and activities allied to agriculture. This is made possible through entrepreneurial schemes like the Stand-Up India Scheme that promotes women entrepreneurship. Such initiatives provide a fillip for the status of women.

title: Personal Loan for Women, content: By following their dreams and meeting diversified future goals, women can carve a better life for themselves. From their dream homes to education, auto loans, financial planning for women can unfurl their ambitions and help them think big. Banks also provide personal loans to women who are either salaried or self-employed, based on a certain eligibility criteria. The interest rates are quite attractive, and the loans require minimal documentation.

title: Home Loan Benefits for Ladies, content: Helping women become independent homeowners, home loans for women extend from buying an apartment or a house to renovating an old home. Women are eligible for loans upto INR 20 crores, with a payment tenure for a maximum of 30 years. These loans come at low-interest rates and processing charges. Thanks to these features, women can get a higher loan amount with a longer repayment tenure, while enjoying the pride and joy of home ownership.

title: Mudra Loan for Women, content: The Pradhan Mantri Mudra Yojana or PMMY is a loan scheme for micro and small women-led enterprises, thus bringing them under a formal financial structure. Women-led enterprises generating income through manufacturing, trading and services can benefit from this loan and scale their business. This finance for women requires no collateral and processing fee. The loans are divided into three categories - Shishu, Kishore and Tarun. Though there is no minimum loan amount in this scheme, the maximum that can be availed is INR 10 Lakhs. The interest rate is set according to the RBI guidelines.

title: Financial Planning for Women, content: Financial planning begins with opening a bank account. A women's savings account is the stepping stone to greater investment milestones. Once women start with structural financing and gain confidence in savings, they can expand to investing. However, choosing traditional low-risk investments like recurring deposits or fixed deposits is better than high-risk investments for risk-averse investors. One must not embark without complete knowledge of the investment instrument in order to make quick profits. Safer investment options like government and sovereign bonds, tax-saving public provident funds (PPF) and National pension schemes can prove to title: Retirement Plans for Women, content: While retirement is inevitable, women who start late with their careers may not achieve as much financial solvency as their male counterparts, because of the unfortunate but existing pay disparity. However, if the right goals are set, nothing can stop them from securing a stronger future. Retirement planning from whatever stage they begin is a pragmatic approach. Practises such as saving more and spending less, investing in places where money compounds, following a strict financial discipline, investing in health schemes, and taking the help of a financial advisor will help with financial growth and security.

title: Introduction : credit card

, content: Credit cards are a great way to manage your finances and build credit. With the right strategy, you can use them to pay for purchases, earn rewards, and even get cashback. In this article, we'll cover everything you need to know about credit cards – from the basics of how they work and how to apply for one, to building your credit score and using rewards programs. Let us understand what is the meaning of a credit card.

title: What is a Credit Card?

, content: A credit card is a plastic or a virtual card that gives the cardholder a line of credit to use for purchases. Banks, credit unions, and other financial institutions issue credit cards. It is a payment card that allows you to make purchases and manage your finances. It's convenient to access funds and pay for goods and services without carrying cash or writing cheques. With a credit card, you can buy items online and in stores, pay bills, and transfer balances from one account to another. Credit cards also provide rewards programs, which can help you save money when you use your card for everyday purchases.

BOB Financial (wholly owned subsidiary of Bank of Baroda) offers an array of consumer & commercial credit cards and caters to all segments of customers with varied needs, including but not limited to everyday Shopping Cards, Travel Cards, Business Cards for large corporates as well as MSMEs. Discover range of Bank of Baroda credit cards at www.bobfinancial.com title: How Do Credit Cards Function?

, content: After knowing the credit card definition, let us discuss the functioning of the credit cards. Within your predetermined credit limit, you can use a credit card to make purchases both online and offline. Your credit card information is transmitted to the merchant's bank in both scenarios. The lender for your loan receives a verification request from the bank. Your payment will only be executed if your lender authorizes it and checks your information.

title: What is APR?

, content: The term annual percentage rate (APR) is the interest rate you pay when borrowing money. When using a credit card, interest is not applied if the amount is paid in full and on time each billing cycle.

title: What are the Different Types of Credit Cards?

, content: There are several kinds of credit cards offered by banks and other financial institutions that you can apply for:

- Rewards Credit Cards
- Cashback Credit Cards
- Travel Credit Cards
- Business Credit Cards
- Student Credit Cards
- Secured Credit Cards
- Store Credit Cards
- Lifetime Free Credit Card
- Co-Branded Credit Cards
- Fuel Credit Cards
- Credit Cards for Women
- Contactless Credit Cards
- Entertainment Credit Cards
- Premium Credit Cards
- Signature Credit Cards

title: Pros and Cons of Credit Cards

, content: Credit cards come with benefits but have certain limitations as well. Let us look at the advantages of credit cards:

- Eliminate the need to carry cash
- Widely accepted as a mode of payment
- Provide hassle-free shopping experiences.
- Allow easy cash withdrawals.
- Come with a host of discounts, offers, rewards, and cashback.
- Useful in case of financial emergencies
- Improve your credit score.

Here are some of the disadvantages of credit cards:

You will be assessed interest on whatever debt you have on your credit card. If you're not cautious, you will have to spend a lot of money on interest because the interest rate on a credit card is often greater than the interest rate on a loan.

The ease of using credit cards to spend more money than you have is another risk.

You will be ending up with a huge debt that you won't be able to pay off if you use your credit card to purchase items that you cannot afford.

It's crucial to use your credit card only for purchases you can afford and to make monthly full payments.

title: How to choose the Right Credit Card

, content: Analyze your lifestyle and spending habits -

The best credit card for you will match your lifestyle. Lenders now provide credit cards that are specifically designed for different lifestyle demands, from shopping to vacation. Keep in mind that the incentives you might receive depend on the sort of card you choose. A travel credit card, for instance, would be the ideal option if you frequently fly as you can take advantage of travel benefits like priority boarding, hotel discounts, lounge access, etc. ETERNA & PREMIER Bank of Baroda Credit Cards offer elevated travel & lifestyle benefits - Check them out now at www.bobfinancial.com

- Check Fees and Penalties -

Credit cards include some hidden costs, such as fees. For example, if you fail to pay your monthly credit card account in full or in part by the due date, you may be charged a fee. Similarly, there are annual and renewal fees for credit cards. Because these data differ from one lender to the next, you should compare them before applying for a credit card.

- Check Rewards Program -

Always check if the benefits will be paid out in points, cashback, or frequent flier miles. To choose which rewards program is appropriate, compare the suggested incentive structure with your spending patterns and way of life. The ability to redeem your rewards is also crucial, as certain lenders may only permit this at partner websites or physical locations. You must check IRCTC BoB Credit Card with rewards on train ticket bookings, Snapdeal BoB Credit Card with cashback & rewards on online shopping and HPCL BoB ENERGIE Credit Card with rewards & savings on fuel purchases. Visit www.bobfinancial.com to know more

- Check Payment Options -

Choose a card that permits payments through a variety of channels to make sure your credit debts are paid off quickly.

- Check Add-On Benefits -

Examine the additional credit card add-on benefits, such as welcome bonuses and special offers for shops and restaurants.

title: What is a Credit Card Score?

, content: A credit card score is a score that indicates how likely you are to repay a loan or how good your credit is. A high score can increase your chances of being approved for credit cards, loans, and mortgages, while a low score can decrease your chances. Your credit will improve if you use your credit card and pay your bills promptly.

title: What should I Look for in a First Credit Card?

, content: No yearly charge -

Your first credit card should ideally be one you wish to keep open indefinitely since it will help you increase the length of your credit history with each month that goes by. The first credit card has to be one without an annual fee so you won't have to pay to keep it open each year.

EASY & SELECT BoB Credit Cards are a perfect fit for the first-time credit card users. Visit www.bobfinancial.com to know more.

- No security deposit -

For people with little credit history, secured credit cards are very common. You must pay a refundable security deposit to obtain this kind of card. The credit card company may be more lenient with whom it authorizes since it receives a deposit in advance.

- Rewards and Incentives -

Rewards are the cherry on top, after all, it's not a terrible perk to earn points from your first credit card offers and avail discounts while using it.

title: Credit Cards Vs. Debit Cards

, content: Given below is a comparison between credit cards and debit cards to help you understand the difference better:

- Based on the Source of Funds -

Using a credit card is similar to borrowing money. The credit card company makes the payment on your behalf, and you must repay the balance at a later, prearranged date. On the other hand, when you use a debit card, money that is already in your bank account is used.

- Based on Maximum Usage Limit -

Your usage is limited to the credit limit on your card since credit cards have them. Debit cards, on the other hand, do not have any restrictions, and the only thing limiting your usage is the amount you currently have in your bank account.

- Based on Repayment -

When using a credit card, you must repay the amount borrowed before the due date. However, because debit cards employ pre-existing cash, you are not required to make any repayments.

- Based on Interest and Penalties -

If you do not pay your credit card bills by the due date, you will be charged a penalty and interest on the outstanding balance. There are no such duties with debit cards. When you use your credit card to make a purchase, you receive attractive points, offers, and savings and debit cards provide incentives as well, but there are fewer of them.

- Based on Effect on Credit Score -

Your credit score is unaffected by using a debit card. On the other hand, the way you use credit cards might have a favourable or negative effect on your credit score.

title: How To Use Credit Cards?

, content: Ask for a higher credit limit -

Ask the issuer for the highest credit limit available when you apply for a credit card online. The larger credit limit will boost your credit score in addition to raising your buying limit.

- Recognize the benefits -

To get the most out of the rewards and perks, thoroughly examine the reward point system and utilize the card intelligently. The majority of credit cards come equipped with a variety of reward programs and bonuses for certain types of purchases.

- On-time payments -

Pay your debts on time if you want to avoid incurring those high-interest rates and penalties. Additionally, this will raise your credit scores.

- Maintain minimum due payment -

The companies that provide credit cards tack on a large interest fee on the debt. Therefore, you must attempt to pay the dues in full each month if you want to avoid incurring such fees.

- Regularly review your statements -

Make sure to thoroughly review your statement each month and comprehend the charges that are applied to your bill. Additionally, check for any questionable transactions. The reason for this can be credit card fraud. Never give out your credit card information to anyone.

title: Why do I need a Credit Card?

, content: For Credit Building:

Without a credit card, it is far more difficult to establish a credit history. Poor credit history can have a wide-ranging impact on your life. The most apparent is that if you ever need to borrow money, you will have difficulty getting authorized by lenders. Furthermore, it may result in you being denied when applying to rent a property, and in many areas, it may result in increased vehicle insurance premiums.

- For Secured Payments:

Security-wise, credit cards are the most reliable form of payment. You can acquire a new card and have the fraudulent charges cancelled if a thief uses your credit card to make unauthorized purchases. Additionally, the majority of card issuers even offer zero-liability rules, meaning that you won't be held responsible for any fraudulent payments.

- For Earning Incentives:

The finest credit cards frequently include cashbacks, travel points, or other kinds of rewards. This enables you to get a return on your investment.

title: Important Credit Card Terms

, content: Credit Card:

A credit card is a physical card connected to a credit account. You can make transactions with the card using that credit account.

Unsecured Credit Card:

A credit card for which the cardholder is not required to put up a security deposit is typically an unsecured credit card.

Secured Credit Card:

A credit that needs a security deposit made when the account is opened is referred to as a secured card.

Cash Advances:

The act of withdrawing cash via a credit card against your credit limit is known as a cash advance. It is not advisable to take out cash advances because they often have higher APRs and instantly begin to accrue interest.

Balance Transfer:

Transferring a balance from one credit card to another, typically because one card has a better APR, is known as a balance transfer. This function is not available on all credit cards.

Credit Limit:

A credit limit is the maximum balance that a credit card is permitted to carry. Different cash advance limitations apply to several credit cards.

Available Credit:

The available credit on your card is the amount you can spend before your credit limit is reached.

Revolving line of Credit:

It is a credit line that is available for borrowing at any time while the account is open, up to the credit limit.

APR:

The yearly cost of borrowing money is expressed as an APR, or annual percentage rate.

Minimum Payment:

Minimum payment is the least amount you must pay by the due date on your credit card. The card issuer may impose a late fee if you don't pay at least this amount.

Statement Balance:

A credit card statement balance is the amount you owe on your last billing cycle to your card provider.

Credit Score:

Your creditworthiness, or the likelihood that you'll return the money you borrow, is shown by your credit score.

title: Bottom Line

, content: The right credit card can be a powerful tool. It can help you build credit and provide convenience and security. When used responsibly, it can also offer cashback rewards and travel points that help you save money. Before choosing a credit card, make sure to ask yourself whether or not you need it and if so, which type of card best fits your needs. Understanding APR rates, fees associated with different cards, eligibility requirements, and other factors are important when selecting a card. Knowing how to use credit cards responsibly is essential for getting the most out of your chosen product while keeping debt under control.

title: What is Fixed Deposit (FD)?, content: A fixed deposit is a type of deposit in which a sum of money is locked for a fixed period of time. However, the tenure for the fixed deposit is decided by the person who invests his funds. This tenure could be anywhere from a few days to several years. In return for locking in these funds, fixed deposits pay the depositor a fixed rate of interest. Once the term comes to maturity, the account holder or depositor receives the invested principal sum with maturity interest.

A fixed deposit is one of the most popular investment avenues in India, particularly among risk-averse middle-class investors. How does fixed deposit work? Let's take a look.

title: How Does a Fixed Deposit Account Work?, content: For that we have to understand that there are two parties involved here. One is the bank and the other is the customer. Banks need money, which they lend to borrowers from whom they charge interest. Banks obtain that money from its customers mainly through various accounts - current account, savings account etc.

One way of obtaining that money is through fixed deposits for which they offer certain rates of interest. The funds that they get is lent to borrowers for a slightly higher rate of interest. The difference between the interest rate on FDs and on loans is called the spread, which is the bank's earnings.

title: How does fixed deposit work?, content: If you have some spare cash and want to invest in fixed deposits, there are many options available for you. You can deposit money for periods ranging from a few days to a few years. Of course, the interest rates for shorter periods will be lower than those offered on fixed deposits of longer maturities. For example, if you want an FD for 30 days, the interest rate could be around 6 percent. If the deposit is for a year, the interest rate could be 7 percent.

The interest rates charged by different banks vary, so you might have to do a comparison to find the best rate. However, differences tend to be small. Smaller banks, like cooperative banks, may offer higher rates of interest than the large banks. However, you must remember that there is a direct correlation between risk and returns. High interest rates will always mean a higher level of risk.

Whether or not you choose to invest in a fixed deposit depends on how much returns you are satisfied with, and the amount of risk you are prepared to bear. Generally, returns on fixed deposits are lower than other investment avenues like equity, but the risks too are lower.

title: Benefits of Fixed Deposit (FD), content: Assured Rate of Return Tax Threshold for Interest Flexible Tenure
Easy Liquidation

title: Types of Fixed Deposit (FD), content: In India, different types of fixed deposit schemes are available. One can invest in any one or more of these types of FDs as per their financial goals.

Listed below are some of the types of FDs one can apply for:

Cumulative Fixed Deposit: In terms of Reserve Bank of India directives, interest shall be calculated at quarterly compounding intervals on Term deposits and paid at the rate decided by the Bank depending upon the period of deposits. In this scheme, the depositor gets the benefit to earn interest on both principal and interest components. Our bank is having Cumulative fixed deposit in the name of Baroda Regular Income cum Recurring Deposit.

Non-cumulative Fixed Deposit: In this scheme / product interest is not accumulated but paid to the depositor at regular intervals. This ensures a passive income for the depositor. Our bank is having Non-cumulative fixed deposit in the name of Baroda Regular Income PLAN - Monthly Income Plan, Baroda Regular Income Plan - Quarterly Income Plan.

Tax Saving Fixed Deposit: These fixed deposits come with a lock-in period of five years and are eligible for deductions under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act, 1961. The maximum amount of deduction that can be claimed is up to Rs. 1,50,000 /- per annum as per Income tax guidelines. Bank of Baroda is having the tax saving fixed deposit scheme in the name of Baroda Tax Savings Term Deposit Account.

Flexi Fixed Deposit: Selective schemes of Savings and Current accounts have facility of Auto Sweep where balances above a certain threshold are swept out to Flexi Deposits in multiples of a sweep out account (Threshold amount, Sweep out amount and deposit period are scheme specific). Whenever the balance in savings /current account fall short below (stipulated balance requirement) to clear any debits in the operative account, the FFD can be broken in last in first Out (LIFO) principle (in multiples of sweep amount specific to scheme) as per the guidelines of the Bank.

title: How to Open Fixed Deposit (FD) Account?, content: One can open a fixed deposit account by 1) visiting the nearest bank branch where they want to open their FD account, 2) through net banking, or 3) by using the mobile app of the bank where they are willing to open their FD account.

title: Who is Eligible for FD?, content: Eligibility to open a fixed deposit account is as follows:

An individual in his own name.

More than one individual in joint name.

Minor of age 10 and above on terms laid down by the bank. Accounts can also be opened in the name of minor with their father/mother, as guardian.

Clubs, associations, Educational Institutions, Partnerships and joint stock companies, provided they are registered, and bank is satisfied that the account is opened for genuine savings purpose.

title: Documents Required for Fixed Deposit, content: The documents required for a fixed deposit account are as follows:

The Customer should complete the KYC procedure with the OVD (Officially valid document) such as:

The passport

The driving licence

Proof of possession of Aadhaar number

The Voter's Identity Card issued by the Election Commission of India

Job card issued by NREGA duly signed by an officer of the State Government Letter issued by the National Population Register containing details of name and address

Also, the documents required for completing the KYC depends on the constitution of the account.

title: How is Interest of Fixed Deposit (FD) Calculated?, content: The interest on an FD can be calculated in two ways: compound interest (CI) and simple interest (SI).

Banks might use both methods to calculate interest on FDs, depending on the deposited amount and the tenure.

Under the SI method, the interest is calculated using the formula below:

$$S.I. = (P \times R \times T) / 100$$

where P = principal amount, T = time period (in years), and I = rate of interest.

For example, Mr. Ajay invests Rs. 5,000 at 7% p.a., for 4 years. To calculate the interest that Ajay will receive across 4 years, he will get to apply for the S.I. formula:

Step 1:  $5,000 \times 7 \times 4 = \text{Rs. } 140,000$

Step 2:  $140,000 \div 100 = \text{Rs. } 1,400$

Interest = Rs. 1,400.

Under the CI method, the interest is calculated by using the formula given below:

$$CI = P \{(1+i/100)^n - 1\}$$

where P = Principal Amount; n = number of years; and i = rate of interest

For example, Mr. Vinay invests Rs. 7,000 at 8% p.a. for 5 years. Then, under the CI method, the amount of interest that Mr. Vinay will earn can be calculated by using the CI formula:

$$7,000\{(1+8/100)^5 - 1\} = \text{Rs. } 3,285.29.$$

Thus, the interest earned will be Rs 3,285.29

title: What Does Loan Against FD Mean?, content: A loan against a fixed deposit is a secured loan where one can pledge their FD as loan collateral and receive a loan amount in return.

If one fails to repay the loan, the bank will procure it from the FD amount. Banks offer a loan against a fixed deposit by charging a nominal interest, and the amount of loan one can avail ranges from 75% to 95 % of the value of one's FD, depending on the bank.

A loan against a fixed deposit is extended to all FD holders. However, FD in the name of a minor does not qualify for this facility. Moreover, a loan against an FD has lower interest rates, zero prepayment penalties, and processing charges. title: Taxation on FD Earnings, content: The returns on FDs are taxable under the Income Tax Act of 1961. The interest accrued on the FD is adjacent to the "income from other sources" category and is taxed per the investor's income tax slab provisions.

In addition, if the total interest earned on the FD exceeds Rs. 40,000 for individuals (other than senior citizens), banks deduct 10% TDS when the interest is credited to the investor's FD account.

In the case of senior citizens, the threshold amount is Rs. 50,000. If the total interest earned on the FD is less than Rs. 40,000, then no TDS will be deducted from the interest amount. However, the interest would be taxed as per the investor's income tax slab.

If one's interest income from an FD is above Rs. 40,000, one must submit their PAN details to the concerned bank.

If one does not furnish their PAN card in such cases, a 20% TDS on FD interest will be deducted from the total interest amount. After this, one's earnings will be subject to taxation as per the income tax slab.

title: Is FD transferable?, content: FDs are transferable from one branch to another of the same bank. You must contact the branch manager of your bank from where your FD was made and apply with a written request for transfer along with the FD receipt. Once the account is verified the account will be transferred to your requested branch.

FDs cannot be transferred from one bank to another bank. In such a situation you will be required to prematurely close the FD from the bank and open a fresh FD

title: What should be done if the account holder is not alive by the time of maturity?, content: If the account holder is not alive at the time of maturity, then the nominee can come forward and claim the maturity amount. However, if the investor didn't choose a nominee, then family members of the deceased have to produce a succession certificate or legal heir proof to claim the maturity amount.

title: What are the minimum and maximum deposit amounts for FDs?, content: The minimum deposit amount for FDs differs from bank to bank. Moreover, there is no maximum limit to the amount of money one can invest in FD.

title: What is an FD nomination?, content: An FD nomination is the process of appointing a nominee by the account holder so that if the account holder dies, the maturity amount can be withdrawn by the nominee.

title: Pre-approved Personal Loans - An Overview, content: Pre-approved Personal Loans are instant Personal Loans that lenders offer their existing customers based on their credit worthiness. When you repay your debts on time and have a good income, the lender offers a set amount, which you can borrow as a Personal Loan. Banks also provide Pre-approved Micro Personal Loans of up to Rs 50,000 to finance offline and online purchases. When you apply for a Pre-approved Personal Loan, the lender credits the loan amount to your Savings Account within minutes.

title: Eligibility For A Pre-Approved Personal Loan, content: An excellent credit score and stable monthly income are the prerequisites to get a Personal Loan. Plus, if you are a long-standing customer of the bank with a sound financial record, you may be eligible for Pre-approved Loan offers. Maintaining sufficient account balances also enhances your chance of securing a pre-approved loan.

title: How To Increase Your Chances of Obtaining an Instant Pre-Approved Personal Loan, content: Since Pre-approved Personal Loans are offered to existing bank customers, documents are not required. The lender has your KYC information in their records. However, in some cases, the lender may ask for income proof, KYC proof (Aadhaar, PAN, Voter ID) and a cancelled cheque.

title: Can I increase the Pre-approved Personal Loan amount?, content: You can apply for Pre-approved Loans online, but the loan amount is pre-set. However, you can speak to your lender and enhance the approval limit if you want a higher loan amount.

title: Can my instant Pre-approved Personal Loan get rejected?, content: Yes. A Pre-approved Loan does not indicate the bank's guarantee to sanction your loan. The lender can reject your loan if you furnish incorrect information or if the lender finds errors during the verification process.

title: What is the validity of the Pre-approved loan offer?, content: The validity differs from person to person. Lenders offer this loan for a specific period, after which the offer expires.

title: What Is A Current Account And How Does It Work?, content: A Current Account is a bank account that enables business owners and entrepreneurs to manage their business transactions. As a business owner, you may need to deposit and withdraw money frequently to manage your business' cash flow. Since a Savings Account comes with limits on withdrawals, you need a different account that enables these transactions. An account that provides this facility is known as business bank account or a Current Account.

title: Why Is A Current Account Important For Any Business?, content: As a business owner, you cannot be bothered by restrictions on cash flow. You need to be able to deposit and withdraw money freely, without any transaction limits. You also do not want to be weighed down by how much money you can withdraw, deposit, send to, or receive from your clients. Moreover, you should be able to conduct these transactions from any bank branch near you.

title: Advantages Of Current Accounts For Business, content: Whether you wish to open a Current Account for a small business or an established one, there are several benefits of Current Accounts. They include the following."• You can easily move money between accounts" With Current Accounts, you can move your money easily without worrying about transaction limits. You can perform unlimited transactions of whatever amounts you please at any frequency you deem appropriate. As such, you get complete control of fluidity for funds to run your business operations smoothly.

"• You can manage personal and business assets separately" Opening a business current account allows you to keep your personal and business assets separate or disjoined from one another. You can easily track your cash inflows and plan your budgets and expenses for your business expenses separately. Doing so also allows you to interpret your financial records separately, which proves incredibly useful during tax filing season.

"• You get access to Pan-India transaction facilities" Another critical benefit of Current Accounts is that you are not tied to deposits and withdrawals at your home branch. You can conduct transactions from any branch of your bank across the country. You can also conduct effortless online transactions via facilities like NEFT, IMPS, and RTGS, which allow you to send and receive funds in real-time within minutes.

"• You can customise Current Accounts based on your business needs" Most banks offer different types of current accounts based on your business size, type, and needs. For instance, new entrepreneurs and small business owners can open the best current account for small businesses, as can multi-national corporations, trusts, educational institutions, and charitable organisations. The charges associated with handling these different accounts also vary. Thus, you can choose accounts with lower or higher maintenance fees, per your preference.

"• You can get monthly cheque allowances" With Savings Accounts, banks typically provide one cheque book per year and charge you extra if you need a new cheque book. However, if you open a business bank account, you get a separate cheque balance or monthly allowance of cheques at no extra cost. This facility allows you to make hassle-free vendor payments.

title: How To Choose The Right Account For Your Business?, content: With increased competition in the banking sector, choosing the best business bank account can be pretty overwhelming. Here are some helpful tips.

title: What Do You Need To Do To Open A Current Account For Business?, content: The standard procedure to open a current account is the same as any other account. You typically need to fill out an account opening form and submit your personal and business-specific documents. You must also complete the Know Your Client or KYC-compliance formality. The bank evaluates your documents and completes the account opening process. Post-evaluation, the bank sends you your account details, including cheque book, internet banking credentials, debit card, etc. Some banks also allow you to open business current accounts online.

title: What is a Mutual Fund?

, content: Mutual funds, in essence, are the democratic soul of the investing world. They cater to the small retail investor looking to dip their toes into the vast ocean of equities, bonds, or other securities, and also to the seasoned player wanting to diversify their portfolio. Managed by professional money managers, these funds aggregate the investments from numerous individuals to buy a wide range of securities.

Buying a Mutual Fund is like buying a ticket to an amusement park where each ride (read, asset class) promises a unique thrill (read, returns). So, whether you are a thrill-seeking investor with a taste for high-risk-high-reward equity funds, or a conservative investor looking for the steady ride of debt funds, mutual funds have something for everyone.

title: How do Mutual Funds Work?

, content: Mutual funds collect money from a group of investors and use this pool to buy a portfolio of stocks, bonds, or other securities. Each investor fund effectively owns a portion of this total pool.

Let's assume we have a mutual fund focused on tech stocks - let's call it the "Tech Titans Fund". The fund is managed by an Asset Management Company (AMC) that has a team of professional money managers. These professionals are experienced in market research and investment decision-making.

Suppose this fund has attracted investments from 1000 different individuals who have each invested INR 10,000. The total amount collected would then be INR 1,00,00,000. The fund manager, based on their research and market conditions, will use this money to buy shares of various tech companies like Infosys, TCS, Wipro, etc. This forms the fund's portfolio.

Now, suppose you're one of those 1000 investors. The INR 10,000 you invested will give you units of the fund. If the fund has a Net Asset Value (NAV) of INR 100 when you invest, you'll receive 100 units (INR 10,000 / INR 100). The NAV of the mutual fund, which is the value of one unit of the fund, is calculated by dividing the total value of all the securities in the portfolio by the total number of units issued to the investors.

So, you indirectly own a small fraction of all the stocks that the fund has in its portfolio. As the value of these stocks rises or falls, the NAV of the mutual fund will also change. If the fund does well and the NAV increases to INR 110, the value of your investment would rise to INR 11,000 (100 units * INR 110).

The fund manager continually monitors the market and adjusts the portfolio by buying and selling stocks to maximise returns. The objective is to earn a return on the money you and other investors put in, minus the costs of managing the fund (known as the expense ratio).

That's the essence of how a mutual fund works. It pools money from various investors, invests that in a diversified portfolio of securities managed by professionals, and aims to provide a return to the investors.

title: Features of Investing in Mutual Funds:

, content: Professional Management: Mutual funds are managed by professional fund managers who make investment decisions based on extensive market research. Diversification: Mutual funds invest in a wide range of securities, spreading out the risk. This ensures that the poor performance of a few securities doesn't significantly impact your entire investment.

Liquidity: Mutual fund units can be bought or sold (redeemed) on any business day, providing high liquidity.

Low Minimum Investment: Mutual funds typically have a low minimum investment requirement, making them accessible to small investors.

Flexibility: They offer flexibility in terms of investment methods like lump-sum investment or Systematic Investment Plan (SIP), where you can invest a fixed amount at regular intervals.

Choice of Funds: There are various types of mutual funds available, such as equity funds, debt funds, hybrid funds, sectoral funds, index funds, etc.

Investors can choose funds based on their risk tolerance and investment goals.

title: Benefits of Investing in Mutual Funds:

, content: Potential for Higher Returns: Compared to traditional investment options, mutual funds have the potential to earn higher returns, especially over the long term.

Convenience: Investing in mutual funds is easy and convenient. Units can be bought or sold online, and the process is user-friendly.

Transparency: Mutual funds are highly regulated and offer transparency in operations. Investors receive regular updates about the performance of their investments.

Suitable for Long-term Goals: Mutual funds are ideal for long-term financial goals, like retirement planning, buying a house, or funding higher education.

Tax Benefits: Certain types of mutual funds like Equity Linked Savings Schemes (ELSS) offer tax benefits under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act in India.

Automatic Reinvestment: Mutual funds offer the option of reinvesting the income generated, allowing your investment to grow through compounding.

title: Different Types of Mutual Funds in India

, content: Each type of mutual fund has its own risk and reward parameters and is designed to cater to the varied investment goals and risk tolerance levels of investors.

Equity Funds: These are funds that primarily invest in stocks of companies. Based on the size of the companies they invest in, they can be further divided into large-cap, mid-cap, and small-cap funds. Equity funds are considered to have a high risk-reward ratio and are more suited for long-term investment and for investors with a higher risk appetite.

Debt Funds: Debt funds primarily invest in fixed-income securities such as corporate bonds, government bonds, treasury bills, and other money market instruments. They aim to provide stable returns and are suitable for investors with a lower risk appetite.

Hybrid or Balanced Funds: These funds invest in a mix of equity and debt to balance the risk and returns. The allocation could vary - some may have a higher allocation to equity and others to debt. These are suitable for investors who prefer a balance between risk and return.

Index Funds: These funds mimic the portfolio of a particular index such as the BSE Sensex or the Nifty 50. The performance of these funds is tied to the performance of the chosen index.

Fund of Funds: These funds invest in other mutual funds. A Fund of Fund provides a way for investors to achieve greater diversification and spread out their risk.

ELSS Funds (Equity Linked Saving Scheme): These funds provide tax benefits under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act in India. They have a lock-in period of three years and primarily invest in equity-oriented securities.

Liquid Funds: These are a type of debt funds that invest in short-term market instruments like treasury bills and government securities. They are considered to be low-risk and are suitable for investors looking for short-term investment options.

title: Eligibility to Invest in Mutual Funds in India

, content: Age: The investor must be at least 18 years old. Investments for minors can be made through parents/legal guardians.

Residency: Both residents and non-resident Indians (NRIs) can invest in mutual funds in India. Certain mutual funds also accept investments from Persons of Indian Origin (PIO) and Overseas Citizens of India (OCI).

Bank Account: An investor should have an operational bank account in India. NRIs should have an NRE/NRO account.

PAN Card: A valid PAN card is mandatory for investing in mutual funds in India. For NRIs, the PAN card should be linked with the overseas address.

KYC Compliance: Know Your Customer (KYC) compliance is necessary. This includes verification of identity, address, and signature.

Payment Options: Payment for the investment can be made through Indian bank accounts only. NRIs can invest through their NRO/NRE account.

title: How to Invest in Mutual Funds?

, content: Investing in mutual funds is a straightforward process:

Complete your KYC: Before investing, you need to be KYC-compliant. This involves submitting identity proof, address proof, PAN card, and a photograph.

Choose the Right Fund: Choose a fund that aligns with your investment goals, risk appetite, and investment horizon. You can select from equity, debt, hybrid, sectoral, or thematic funds based on your requirements.

Choose the Investment Mode: Decide if you want to invest a lump sum amount or opt for a Systematic Investment Plan (SIP). SIP allows you to invest a fixed amount at regular intervals.

Invest through AMC or Distributor: You can directly invest through the Asset Management Company's website or through a mutual fund distributor. You can also invest through various fintech platforms that provide mutual fund investment services.

Fill out the Application Form: You need to fill up an application form providing details like name, address, PAN number, the scheme in which you want to invest, the amount of investment, etc.

Make the Payment: Finally, you need to make the payment through net banking, debit card, cheque, or demand draft as per your convenience.

title: How to Calculate Mutual Fund Returns?, content: The most common way to calculate mutual fund returns is through the use of the Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) for investments held for more than one year.

Here is the formula:

$$\text{CAGR} = [(\text{Ending Value} / \text{Beginning Value}) ^ (1 / \text{Number of Years})] - 1$$

For SIP investments, the method used is called the XIRR (Extended Internal Rate of Return) which takes into consideration the time and amount of each investment made.

title: Difference Between SIP and Mutual Fund

, content: A Systematic Investment Plan (SIP) is not a type of mutual fund; it's a method of investing in mutual funds. While 'mutual fund' refers to the pool of funds collected from various investors and invested in diversified assets, SIP is a way to invest in these funds systematically. Instead of investing a lump sum amount at once, SIP allows you to invest a fixed amount at regular intervals (weekly, monthly, quarterly) in a particular mutual fund scheme. It's a disciplined approach to investing and also helps in averaging out the cost of investing due to rupee cost averaging.

title: Monitoring and Managing Your Investments

, content: It's important to regularly analyse your mutual fund investments :

Regular Reviews: Conduct periodic reviews of your mutual fund portfolio to assess the performance of your funds.

Compare with Benchmark: Compare the performance of your funds with their respective benchmarks to see if they are meeting their investment objectives.

Look at the Fund's Holdings: Keep an eye on the securities your fund is holding. Frequent changes may indicate instability.

Check the Expense Ratio: A high expense ratio can eat into your returns. Be sure your funds aren't charging excessive fees.

Changes in Your Risk Profile: Your risk profile may change over time based on changes in your income, age, and financial goals. Ensure your investments align with your current risk profile.

title: Conclusion : mutual funds, content: In this investment journey, a reliable and robust platform is your best companion. That's where the Bank of Baroda comes into play. Known for its customer-centric approach and simplified investing experience, Bank of Baroda offers a comprehensive platform to invest in a wide array of mutual funds. It helps you make informed decisions, ensuring a smooth investment experience, whether you're a first-time investor or a seasoned one.

title: What is Personal Loan? (Meaning & Definition of Personal Loan)

, content: A personal loan does not require the borrower to provide collateral and so it is an unsecured loan.

The purpose or intention of a personal loan is to fund immediate financial contingencies.

It could be for business capital, marriage, medical expenses, or even foreign trips, though the end use of the capital really depends on the borrower, as long as it is for a legitimate financial need.

Let us look at the different aspects in this complete guide to personal loan.

What are Different Types of Personal Loan?

Unsecured Personal Loan - borrowed without any asset or collateral.

Secured Personal Loan - borrowed against collateral, such as a home, car, savings account, insurance, gold or another asset.

Personal Line of Credit - borrowed whenever needed by accessing a line of credit up to a specific amount.

Personal Loan Against Credit Card - borrowed against credit card's available balance.

Pension Loan - borrowed by retired personnel or senior citizens.

Wedding loan - borrowed to meet wedding expenses.

Vacation loan - borrowed to finance a holiday trip.

Home renovation loan - borrowed to make renovations to the home. It helps to increase the value of the house in the real estate market.

Consumer durables loan - borrowed to buy consumer goods such as home and electrical appliances.

title: Personal Loan Eligibility, content: Since these loans are unsecured- at what rate of interest you will get the loan and how much, whether or not you will get the loan-depend on the credit quality of the borrower. If you have good creditworthiness, you are likely to get the loan at an attractive rate of interest. If you have been a long time customer with the bank, with sound track record of financial discipline, you may also get a pre-approved personal loan sanction.

title: Personal Loan Fee & Charges

, content: Processing fees: It is a maintenance & administration fee varying between 0.5% and 2.50% charged by banks while processing a loan.

Verification charges: To check the loan repayment capacity of the loan applicant, the bank usually hires a third-party agency for verifying the credentials. This extra cost is borne by the applicant.

Penalty on late EMI: When a borrower fails to repay the EMI on time, a penalty is imposed on him.

Penalty on prepayment or foreclosure of loan: In case of prepayment or foreclosure of a loan before the stipulated tenure the bank might charge a penalty at the rate of 2% to 4% on the borrower.

Fees for duplicate statement: A bank might charge a fee of Rs.200 and Rs.500 for generating a duplicate statement of the payment schedule and outstanding loan balance.

title: Your CIBIL Score for Personal Loan

, content: Your CIBIL Score for Personal Loan enables you:

To know your credit status

To get twice or even three times higher loan eligibility

To get a loan at a lower interest rate

To get instant personal loan for a longer duration

To get a loan with minimum paperwork

To get fast processing & quick loan approval

To get easy loan approval on rented or leased properties like homes, commercial complexes, apartments, etc.

To have a higher negotiation authority to bring down your interest rate, customize your loan payment tenure or ask for other benefits of personal loan and privileges title: Calculate Your Personal Loan EMI, content: The formula used to calculate EMI on personal loan is:

$$EMI = [P \times R \times (1+R)^n] / [(1+R)^n - 1]$$

Where P= Principal loan amount

R= Rate of interest &

n= Number of monthly installments.

For example:

Let us assume, P= Rs. 3 lakh, R= 15 percent per annum= 15/12= 1.250 per month, N= 60 months then,

$$EMI = [300000 \times 1.250/100 \times (1+1.250/100)^{60}] / [(1+1.250/100)^{60} - 1] = \text{Rs. } 7,137$$

title: Prepayment of Personal Loan

, content: Prepayment refers to paying off your personal loan before the designated repayment tenure ends. It helps the borrower save on the interest compounded on the principal loan throughout the repayment tenure. It also enables the borrowers to successfully clear the debt and free up his/her finances.

title: Personal Loan Tenure

, content: Personal Loan tenure may vary from a minimum of 12 months to a maximum of 84 months depending on the borrower's income, credit history, etc.

title: What is Public Provident Fund?

, content: The "PPF" in full form in banking, stands for Public Provident Fund, a popular long-term savings and investment instrument in India. This government-backed scheme enables individuals to build a secure retirement corpus or meet other financial goals while enjoying tax benefits under Section 80C.

This comprehensive guide offers all the essential information about Public Provident Fund (PPF) accounts in India, enabling investors to make informed decisions.

title: What is the Interest Rate on PPF?

, content: The interest rate on PPF is determined by the Indian government and is subject to change every quarter. As of the last update in 2023, the PPF interest rate stands at 7.1% per annum, compounded annually.

title: How Does the PPF Account Work?

, content: A PPF account is a long-term savings instrument designed to encourage individuals to save while enjoying tax benefits. The account has a minimum lock-in period of 15 years, with an option to extend the account indefinitely in 5-year blocks.

Individuals can deposit a minimum of Rs.500 and a maximum of Rs.1.5 lakh per financial year. The interest earned on the PPF account is tax-free, and the principal amount invested also qualifies for tax deductions under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act.

Example 1:

Let's assume Anil opens a PPF account and deposits Rs.50, 000 each year for the next 15 years. At an interest rate of 7.1% per annum, compounded annually, his total investment of Rs.7.5 lakh would grow to Rs.13,56,070 at the end of the 15-years. The interest earned during this period, Rs.6,06,070 would be tax-free.

Example 2:

If Anil decides to invest Rs.1 lakh per year for 15 years, with the same interest rate of 7.1% per annum compounded annually, his total investment of Rs.15 lakh would grow to Rs.27,12,139 at the end of the 15 years. The interest earned, Rs.12,12,139 would be tax-free.

Features and Benefits of Investing in a PPF Account

This section provides the Public Provident Fund scheme details.

Tax Benefits: One of the most attractive features of a PPF account is the tax benefit it offers. Investments made in PPF qualify for tax deductions under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act, up to a maximum limit of Rs.1.5 lakh per financial year. Additionally, the interest earned on PPF investments is tax-free, making it an excellent choice for individuals seeking tax-efficient, long-term savings.

Safe Investment: PPF is a government-backed scheme, which means that an investment is secure and carries minimal risk. The government guarantees both the principal amount invested and the interest earned, making PPF a highly reliable and safe investment option.

Long-term Savings: PPF encourages long-term savings and financial discipline, as it comes with a minimum lock-in period of 15 years. This long-term investment horizon allows investors to build a substantial corpus for their retirement or other financial goals while benefiting from the power of compounding.

Competitive Interest Rates: PPF offers competitive interest rates compared to other fixed-income investment options like fixed deposits. The interest rate on PPF is determined by the government and is subject to change every quarter.

Loan Facility: At any time after the expiry of one year from the end of the year in which the initial subscription was made but before expiry of five years from the end of the year in which the initial subscription was made, the account holder may, apply in Form-2, to the accounts office for obtaining a loan consisting of a sum of whole rupees not exceeding twenty-five per cent of the amount that stood to his credit at the end of the second year immediately preceding the year in which the loan is applied for.

title: What is a Recurring Deposit?, content: A recurring deposit is a basic monthly saving plan, which helps customers to regulate their savings for higher returns with liquidity.

title: How does a Recurring Deposit Work?, content: Any person can open an RD if their savings or current account is KYC compliant.

title: Different Types of Recurring Deposits, content: Any financial institution or post office should be able to help you to know how to open an RD account and get you started. Be as specific as possible with the terms, including the total amount to be paid, the payment schedule, the duration of the deposit, the nominee, and so on. After that, visit a bank or post office to pay the first month's deposit in cash or via cheque and provide further identification documents such as a PAN card and proof of address. Within the timeframe specified, the bank representative will complete the application procedure.

title: Eligibility Criteria for RD Account, content: The requirements that must be met to open a regular deposit account:

title: List of Documents Required for Recurring Deposit Account, content: Recurring Deposits are among the simplest to trade among the many types of financial instruments available. The primary objective of setting up automatic contributions is to help people establish savings habits and build a nest egg for future use.

title: How to Calculate RD Interest Rate, content: How much interest an investor earns varies across different deposits and schemes. Further, if the interest is compounded each quarter, then the effective interest rate increases. To know how to calculate RD interest, investors can use the RD calculator. By entering the deposit amount, interest rate, and tenure, investors can know the amount of interest that they will earn.

title: How much is the TDS on Recurring Deposits?, content: The interest income is taxable at the time of maturity. Banks deduct TDS tax deducted at source on the interest earned on RD investments as per prevailing Income Tax ACT.

title: How does a Loan against RD Work?, content: In addition to making loans, banks also offer the option of loan against recurring deposits. The percentage that a bank will lend a customer based on the amount in their regular deposit account ranges from 90% to 95%.

title: Difference between Recurring Deposit and Fixed Deposit, content: Refer to the table below to know differences between recurring deposits and fixed deposits :

title: What is Flexi Recurring Deposit?, content: A Flexi RD plan is a variation of the traditional Recurring Deposit that allows the depositor to put away any amount of money at any time that is convenient for him. The initial core investment and subsequent flexible instalments are entirely up to the discretion of the depositor. If the depositor sets Rs.500 as the base amount, he may deposit any whole Rs.500 or any multiple thereof.

title: Who Should Invest in RD?, content: Unlike Fixed Deposit, which require a sizable initial investment, RD schemes allow investors to put down smaller amounts regularly. With RD investments, investors must put away only a percentage of their monthly take-home pay. This makes it a valuable tool for teaching young people to save money and encouraging them to limit unnecessary spending.

title: Conclusion : recurring deposit, content: Recurring deposit accounts are safe from the effects of market volatility because they generate fixed income. That's why they're often cited as a reliable option for putting away cash for the future, whether to fund a specific project or to have it on hand in an emergency.

title: Various Types of Fixed Deposits for Your Investment Needs, content: Fixed deposits (FD) are among the most popular types of savings and investments. They allow you to earn interest on the amount you deposit for a fixed period. If you do not like to take risks when it comes to investments, you can choose from different types of fixed deposits. FDs are perfect as you can redeem your original amount and interest as soon as they mature.

title: RD vs FD - Difference Between Recurring Deposit and Fixed Deposit, content: Today, maintaining a bank account has become a norm. You need to provide your bank account number on various occasions; like receiving the salary from employer or subsidy from the government under a scheme. And most people open either fixed deposits or recurring deposits.

This tells the applicant how much they need to pay as per their opted loan amount and tenure. This gives them an idea to sort out the monthly funds required to repay the loan and other financial obligations.

title: Two-Wheeler Loans Prepayment, content: Foreclosure or prepayment penalty or pre-closure charge is usually applied by lenders when one wishes to repay the loan before the tenure ends. However, Bank of Baroda charges no penalty for two-wheeler loan foreclosure, which allows one to free themselves from other financial obligations or loans in the future.

title: Two-Wheeler Loan Tenure, content: Bank of Baroda provides affordable and convenient EMI options so that one can repay without any worries. Additionally, the bank allows applicants to choose their two-wheeler loan tenure depending on their financial condition and income. The maximum repayment tenure extends up to 5 years or 60 months. One can utilise the two-wheeler loan EMI calculator to ensure the best EMI option for themselves.

title: Summing Up, content: A two-wheeler cuts down not only the travelling time but also day-to-day expenses. No one said a motorcycle necessity could not be one of dreams and ease. Since saving up to purchase a dream two-wheeler is tedious and difficult, a bike loan can give one the financial support they need to carry out their financial obligations yet ride in happiness. To that effect, it is vital that one carefully make their decision. And to do so, the Bank of Baroda is there to fully support its customers' needs financially.

title: Understanding Personal Loan Part Prepayment and Closure, content: Personal loans are unsecured loans offered by banks and financial institutions to meet the financial needs of individuals. These loans may be used for buying a vehicle or a home, paying off a debt or funding an emergency; the list goes on. Personal loans are easy to obtain and come with a flexible repayment tenor. Nonetheless, these loans are often extended at high-interest rates and rigid terms and conditions. At times, a borrower may be instances where a borrower may want to close the loan before the due date. There are standard procedures for this, which can vary from one lender to another.

title: How to Calculate Car Loan EMI: A Step-by-Step Guide

, content: Every individual's journey to buy a car is unique. It begins with where the individual is in his/her career, and the choice of vehicle they want, which is mainly based on why they want the car. During the process, they also focus on how they can get a car loan that suits their requirement.

When you, as an individual are considering a car loan, you are likely to do your due homework in checking for affordability and the loan tenure among other factors. While it is essential to go for a car loan from a lender who has banking expertise in the sector of car or auto loans, so you get the best rate and comfortable repayment options, you can also use the EMI calculator like the Bank of Baroda's Car Loan EMI calculator that will help you make a well-informed choice in picking your car loan.

In using a car loan EMI calculator, you need to key in three basic variables- the loan amount you are likely to need, the tenure or the repayment period that suits your finances and the rate of interest. Now, the rate of interest is what you get from the bank, while the other two are the ones you can play around with on the calculator. Here is why using a .

title: If EMI is more:

, content: You can pick a longer loan term or

You can make the loan amount smaller title: If you find the EMI is coming out to be lower, then you can plan for a larger loan value or a shorter loan term.

, content: You can also use the PMT formula on Microsoft Excel to calculate the EMI (Equated Monthly Instalments), where PMT is your EMI, Rate is the rate of interest, Nper or number of periods is the total number of payments for the loan and  $P_v$  is the loan value or the principal. The formula is  $PMT(Rate, Nper, P_v)$ .

You can keep trying the formula for various combinations and then choose the one with the lowest EMI, though this is a roundabout approach prone to human error.

title: Contextual Fencing

, content: Dear Reader,

From sending a tailored promotion when a customer enters a retail store to powering order-ahead food delivery, geofencing plays a key role in making mobile apps contextually aware. Geofencing is a location-based service in which an app or other software uses GPS, RFID, Wi-Fi or cellular data to trigger a pre-programmed action when a mobile device or RFID tag enters or exits a virtual boundary set up around a geographical location, known as a geofence.

Think about geo-fencing like an electric fence. In the real-world Geo-fencing allows for the setup of virtual fences or areas, wherein the entry and exit through the areas triggers a response or action by the individual or company monitoring the geo-fence. So, geo-fencing triggers alerts for a business owner when key things happen: a customer visits a store, for example, or the store of a competitor.

BMW is an industry leader in the automobile industry. BMW uses geofencing to enhance their customer service. Cars with BMW Trackstar monitor the position of the vehicle. Once a customer activates their service, the position of their car is tracked and pinpointed every 20 seconds. Customers can use their mobile application to track the location of their car if it's parked in a garage or somewhere on the city streets. That way they never have to worry about forgetting where they parked. Furthermore, this service also helps prevent theft. Geofencing helps them go the extra mile to provide customer service, which is a profitable strategy.

Apple Maps is constantly tracking our location. Based on our habits, this app can predict where one is most likely to go. For example, if you leave work around the same time every day and drive straight home, Apple Maps will recognize this habit. If the app knows that you're not home, based on being outside of a geofenced area, it will send a push notification informing how long it will take to get home and what the traffic will be like.

Today's use of geofencing has evolved beyond simply tracking where a target customer is at any given time. With privacy concerns challenging companies to rethink their use of geofencing, companies like Radar are leading the way in innovating how geofences can improve the user experience.

Having data about consumer behavior can be helpful to design better and personalized products. Uber first implemented the geofencing feature to identify airports to notify people in airports about available cabs and special offers on booking.

In the times to come we expect to see companies use geofencing more strategically to send contextually relevant messages.

- Purchase Now :

Pay Later: One of the main benefits of a credit card is the fact that you can get access to credit without delay. This type of card works on a basis of delayed payment, allowing you to purchase items now and pay for them later. This means that the money you use does not come out of your bank account, thus there is no immediate impact on your finances with each transaction.

- Build & Maintain Credit History :

Credit cards are a great way to build a good & maintain your credit history. This helps banks to evaluate your credit score by tracking your credit card payments and spending. Credit card utilization is also used to measure the trustworthiness of people who are applying for loans, so possessing a credit card is essential for future loan and rental requests.

- EMI Payment Facility :

Paying through EMI is more affordable than taking out a personal loan to make heavy purchases. If you want to buy something costly and don't want to use up all your savings, you can use your credit card to delay the payment. Furthermore, you can decide to pay for it in equal monthly installments, so you don't need to pay a hefty amount at once and reduce your bank balance.

- Rewards, Offers & Discounts :

With frequent and regular use of your credit card you can earn reward points on every purchase that can later be redeemed while making payments on travel or other e-commerce platforms. Credit cards are generally loaded with cashback and other discount offers depending on the card type.

- Interest-free Period :

Credit cards provide a window of interest-free time, lasting somewhere between 45-60 days, in which you don't need to pay extra for any remaining balance. If the entire amount due is paid before the date specified on your credit card bill, then you can use the credit without having to pay interest.

- Credit Card Statement :

Every purchase made by using a credit card is documented, and the list of these transactions is included in the statement sent each month. This record can be used to monitor and manage to spend, create a budget, and for tax-related matters.

- Secured Purchase :

Credit cards offer a secured way of making purchases as compared to other modes of payment.

title: What to look for in a Credit Card

, content: We have already discussed the pros and cons of a credit card. Let us just see things to keep in mind while using a credit card:

- Acceptance -

Prior to deciding on a card issuer, it is advisable to research the scope of their acceptance to guarantee it is widely acknowledged.

- Security -

Always check the security features of the credit card. Banks generally waive off charges in case of proven credit card fraud.

- Charges -

When utilizing a credit card, there may be a variety of fees to be aware of, such as annual charges, foreign transaction fees, balance transfer expenses, and late payment charges. Ideally, by using the card responsibly, certain fees like late-payment charges may be avoided. However, other fees like annual charges may be unavoidable and will have to be paid each year.

APR -

Credit cards can have various Annual Percentage Rates (APRs) such as an introductory APR, balance transfer APR, standard purchase APR, cash advance APR, and penalty APR. To make an informed decision, you should be aware of all of them and evaluate how they differ between credit cards.

- Rewards & Promotional offers -

Credit card benefits come in a variety of forms, ranging from cash returns and air miles to hotel points and store advantages. Every rewards credit card has its own distinct advantages and terms regarding how rewards can be accumulated and cashed in. Promotional offers such as welcome bonuses that give you extra rewards for a limited time, initial APRs, or 0% APR on balance transfers are common ways for card issuers to entice new applicants.

title: Conclusion

, content: Credit cards have become a necessary part of our lives because of their ease of utilization and comfortable repayment options. The discounts, benefit and offers that a credit card offers are unparalleled by any other financial product and can be extremely beneficial for those who use it wisely. Nonetheless, credit cards can become a source of mounting debt if not handled with caution, or if you spend more than you can pay when it's time to settle the bill.

title: Savings Account Meaning

, content: A savings account is an interest-bearing deposit account held at a bank or other financial institution. Though these accounts typically pay a modest interest rate, their safety and reliability make them a great option for parking cash you want available for short-term needs.

title: Current Account Meaning

, content: Current account means a form of Demand Deposit where from withdrawals are allowed any number of times depending upon the balance in the account or up to a particular agreed amount.

Having a bank account is essential for modern-day living. You need it to receive and make payments, and there are very few transactions that do not require a bank account. Of course, cash is still king in India for large sections of the population, but the number of those people is steadily declining. Besides, Internet banking has made banking so much more convenient, allowing people to carry out most transactions online, without the need for messy paper bills and cheques.

The majority of bank customers open either a current account or a savings account. Some people get confused between the two terms and are unable to tell the difference between current account vs savings account. Of course, these are very different, and it's important for you to understand what is the difference between current and savings account?

title: All about Demat Account Charges & Ways to Reduce Them
, content: Trading and investing in the share market are gaining momentum among Indian investors. While there can be huge gains by investing in the share market, it also comes with certain associated costs. For trading or investing in the share market, you first need to open a demat account with a stockbroker.

Once your demat account is active, you can begin investing and trading in different segments and instruments. But, certain demat charges are levied for opening and maintaining the demat account and conducting transactions using the same.

What are those demat account charges?

title: All About Demat Account Annual Charges

, content: Following are some of the different Demat charges that you should always consider before selecting the stock broker:

Demat Account Opening Charges

The process of opening Demat account has become quite simple and convenient. It requires the presence of a Depository Participant. This can be banks providing stock brokerage services or stock broking platforms. These participants offer the services of opening the demat account against which they charge nominal demat account opening charges. These charges can vary among different participants.

Different participants can have different policies for charging the demat account opening fees. Some might even charge zero fees for a certain period. However, one should always ensure that lower fees do not compromise the quality of services.

Demat Account Annual Maintenance Charges

It is also called demat account AMC charges. After you open the demat account, you can start trading and investing in the stock market. However, most depository participants charge an Annual Maintenance Charge (AMC).

These DP AMC charges are levied annually to maintain your demat account with the stockbroker.

Again, the policies are usually different for different depository participants.

Some participants may even provide a free demat account with no annual charge for a certain period. Further, SEBI also allows Basic Services Demat Account (BSDA), recommended for small investors. The DP AMC charges for BSDA are waived if the balance is less than Rs. 50,000.

Demat Account Transaction Charges

Each transaction conducted through a demat account attracts transaction charges. These charges are levied against the debiting and crediting of securities. Demat transaction charges are not fixed and differ among different brokers.

Further, even the same broker can have multiple schemes, and transaction charges can differ under each scheme. While some brokers can charge demat transaction charges based on the number of transactions, others can charge a flat fee or a percentage of each transaction's value.

Traders and investors should always compare transaction charges, especially when they are seasoned traders and investors.

Demat Account Safety Charges

It is also known as custodian charges. Earlier, traders and investors had to store physical share certificates. Thus, the share certificates' storage and safety rested with the traders and investors. However, the securities are now stored online after dematerialisation and the advent of demat accounts and electronic transactions.

It is the responsibility of the depository participant as they act as the custodian of securities. Thus, they can charge minimal custodian fees depending upon the number of securities held in the Demat account.

title: How to Reduce Demat Account Charges?

, content: It can be assumed that many charges are associated with the demat account. While the charges are nominal, one can save them if one makes smart moves. Here's how one can save demat charges:

One can open a Basic Services Demat Account (BSDA). This is especially beneficial for small and retail investors. These are low-cost demat accounts for those investors who do not invest regularly. Some of the depository participants even waive the maintenance charges for BSDA.

Investors should skim through different brokers and select the lowest charges demat account without compromising the quality of services. Always go through the demat account charges list before finalizing the broker.

Another method is to browse through different plans offered by the stockbroker. Brokers often have multiple plans for the investors and traders, and the demat account charges are usually different for each plan. One should try to select the minimum brokerage charges demat account.

Wrapping Up

Demat account charges are nominal, and if you are fortunate and accurate enough, you can cover these charges through a single investment or trading decision. However, you must select the right broker and plan to avoid unnecessarily high charges.

Further, one should remember that the above list of charges only covers the Demat account charges. Taxes are separately leviable. Opt for Bank of Baroda brokerage services for cost-effective and convenient services.

Being one of the leading financial institutions, Bank of Baroda understands your needs and offers feature-rich stock broking services at minimal charges to investors and traders.

title: What is a debit card?

, content: A debit card is a card that is linked with your savings or current bank account. When you open your bank account, the bank issues a card that you can use at ATMs and PoS terminals to withdraw money or pay for your expenses, respectively. The sums are automatically and instantly debited or deducted from your debit card. Banks provide free debit cards and charge a small annual maintenance fee.

title: What is a credit card ?

, content: A credit card is another type of bank card through which you can borrow money for a bank or financial institution. The issuer provides you with a line of credit, also known as a credit limit. This limit is determined based on your income and can be increased from time to time. The issuer bills you for your credit card expenses, and you need to pay them off by a stipulated date. If you fail to repay the sums borrowed on credit, the issuer levies an interest rate on the money borrowed.

title: Credit card vs debit card

, content: Having explained the meanings of credit and debit cards, let's find out what is the difference between credit card and debit card. They are as under:

- Bill vs account statement

People who have a credit card are sent a bill for the expenses incurred on the card each month. The issuer sends a bill explaining the minimum and total sums due. In the case of debit cards, the account holder can directly access the savings account to see the expenses incurred.

- Linking the card

The debit card is linked to your savings account, whereas the credit card is linked to the financial organisation or issuing bank offering the credit facility.

- Credit vs spending limit

Typically, credit card companies provide a credit limit, and you cannot borrow sums exceeding the credit limit. In the case of debit cards, banks issue daily cash withdrawal as well as PoS spending limits.

- Interest charged

The credit card issuer levies an interest rate if one is unable to repay the amounts borrowed on time. However, in the case of debit cards, money is not borrowed on credit, so no interest is charged.

title: What is a Fixed Deposit?, content: Fixed deposit or FD (also so known as term deposits) refer to the financial instruments provided by banks through which one can lock away a sum of money for a specific duration and earn a monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, annual or cumulative interest at the end of the term. As the term 'fixed' suggests, one cannot withdraw money from a FD until the end of the term. If you choose premature withdrawal of fixed deposits, you have to pay a penalty to the bank.

title: What is a Recurring Deposit?, content: A recurring deposit, on the other hand, refers to a disciplined way of putting away a fixed sum of money in an account every month. One needs to open a special recurring deposit account and can earn the same interest rate as offered on FDs. RDs are a great way to put away savings every month until a more substantial amount of money is accrued, which can then be put away as an FD.

title: FD vs RD - Which is Better?, content: If a comparison is drawn between FD and RD, then FD is bound to come out as a better investment option. This is because of the following reasons:

The minimum investment tenure in the case of an FD is 7 days. Whereas the minimum deposit tenure of an RD is 6 months. Thus, FD has more liquidity. While there is a tax saving FD that allows one to claim for tax deductions up to Rs. 1.5 lakhs, there is no such option in the case of an RD.

In the case of FDs, the monthly or quarterly payout is available, whereas, in the case of RDs, most banks do not offer quarterly or monthly payout.

The option for auto-renewal is available in the case of an FD. But RDs cannot be automatically renewed.

title: What Should You Choose - FD or RD?, content: Since both FD and RD have their share of advantages and disadvantages, deciding which one to choose might often seem difficult. To make it easier, one might do the following:

If one has a handsome amount of money and is looking forward to investing it as a lump sum, that person should go for FDs. FDs are an ideal option for earning more in the long run.

However, if one does not have a sizable amount to invest in a lump sum, then the wisest decision would be to invest it in an RD. In the case of an RD, one can deposit small but equal amounts of money each month.

title: Conclusion, content: FDs are one of the simplest ways to invest one's surplus money. Thus, one needs to decide the investment tenure and the investment amount as per one's financial goals and conditions. However, before investing in an FD, one must use an FD calculator to calculate in advance the return amount one is likely to receive. This will help one make an informed decision.

title: Major Differences Between: Recurring Deposit V/s Fixed Deposit:, content: Following are the differences between recurring deposits and fixed deposits:

title: What Should You Choose RD or FD?, content: When it comes to choosing between FD and RD, the above differences can be of great help. RD allows the investors to systematically save small amounts each month whereas FD requires the investor to invest a lumpsum amount at once. Ultimately, whether to invest in FD or RD depends upon the investor's goals and preferences.

title: A Complete Guide to Recurring Deposit, content: Recurring Deposit (RD) is a common financial instrument in India since it is low-risk and offers moderate profits guaranteed to be paid out regularly. Customer options for investment quantity and term length are among its many desirable features.

title: How to Calculate Recurring Deposit Interest Rate?, content: A recurring deposit is one of the best ways a small investor can invest funds and grow them. In a recurring deposit, a fixed amount of money is invested at a fixed duration for a fixed period of time. These installments all mature on the same date.

Essentially, a recurring deposit is like having multiple fixed deposit investments, all of which mature on the same day.

title: Difference Between Secured and Unsecured Loans

, content: A loan is one of the best ways to finance your dreams or meet sudden expenses. There are several types of loans available in the market today that serve various purposes. For example, a car loan is designed to finance the purchase of your dream vehicle whereas a home loan is curated to help you buy a house. You can also opt for a personal loan that has no restriction on the end use. Now, each of these different loans are categorised based on security charged with the lender. Accordingly, your loan may be classified as secured or unsecured. Let's gain a deeper understanding of the differences between secured and unsecured loan types.

title: What is secured loan?

, content: A secured loan is a type of loan that requires you to provide Security i.e. tangible security properly charged to the Bank and do not include intangible securities such as guarantees to the lender if you want to borrow money from them. Real estate, vehicles, securities, jewellery, and other such assets of high monetary value are accepted by the banks as collateral.

Secured loans generally help borrowers enjoy a comparatively lower rate of interest and lenient borrowing terms. This is because collateral-backed loans are usually less risky for the lender as they have an assurance of repayment.

However, life is unpredictable and there may be times when you do not have enough money to make the monthly EMI payment. If you default on the EMI payments of a secured loan, the lender has the legal right to take possession of the collateral. This is done so that the lender may recover the money that you borrowed from them. Fortunately, lenders typically provide a three-month duration for you to clear off all your defaults and get back on track with your EMI payments.

title: What is unsecured loan?

, content: An unsecured type of loan does not require you to provide any Tangible security to the lender when taking a loan from them. These may have comparatively higher interest rates as compared to secured loans due to the absence of security. The creditor grants you the loan mainly by assessing your ability to repay the debt. This is done by analysing your bank account statements and CIBIL score, among other factors. Having a stable source of income can help you procure an unsecured loan with ease. A stable employment history along with references are also considered by banks when reviewing your application for an unsecured loan. Lenders also take into consideration your monthly income in combination with your existing debts. This helps them accurately understand your financial capacity for repaying the loan.

An unsecured loan is a great option for people who need to borrow money but have no collateral to pledge. Thus, even if you do not have assets like a home or jewellery, you can still get the funding that you need.

title: Secured vs unsecured loan: Which is better?

, content: Now, you may wonder which is the better option between these two types of loans. Honestly, there is no right or wrong answer as the loan choice depends on your unique needs and capacity as a borrower.

Opting for a secured loan, also known as a collateral loan, is beneficial if you are seeking a relatively lower rate of interest to pay and want to enjoy a longer loan tenure. On the other hand, an unsecured loan is the apt choice for individuals who are looking to borrow money but do not have any tangible security to offer to the lender. If you have a good credit score and a stable source of income, an unsecured loan can be procured quite easily.

title: Types of secured loan and unsecured loans

, content: Secured loan example

Here are some of the main types of secured loans available:

Car loans

These loans are designed to help you finance the purchase of a car. You need to make a certain percentage of down payment and the lender finances the rest. Lenders generally finance up to 90% of the car loan

Home loans

A home loan can be taken to buy new property or even to renovate your existing home. The home itself is the collateral in this loan. Lenders usually finance up to 90% of the value of cost of house / flat in a home loan

Gold loan

True to its name, a gold loan is a loan that is given against gold that you keep with the lender as collateral. Once you pay off the loan, you get your gold back. If you default or cannot pay, the lender make keep the gold to recover their dues.

Unsecured loan example

There are many types of unsecured loans as well. Here are a few examples:

Personal loans

Personal loans can typically be taken for a sum up to Rs. 15 lakhs. These loans do not require you to provide capital and usually charge a higher rate of interest. Personal loans can be used for various purposes and there is no restriction on how you spend the money. For instance, you may take a personal loan to consolidate many smaller loans or to pay for sudden expenses that come your way.

Education loans

These loans are used by students to pay for their college fees and finance their living expenses while at university or college. Do note that student loans taken for a larger sum of money may require you to produce collateral to the lender. This collateral could be property, gold or any other assets deemed as acceptable by the lender.

title: How to Address Digital Banking Risk

, content: Banks had attracted several customers to their digital platforms in the last half of the century, even before the pandemic. However, concerns and hesitation from customers regarding risks in digital banking were obstructing this transformational journey. COVID-19 accelerated the adoption of Digitech. Digital banking products and services are now flourishing both in payment and lending domain. On one hand, we see openness to adoption, on the other hand, with increasing growth, increase in various systems and technology risk comes into play. Keeping these concerns in view, we will discuss common risk in bank's digital domain and actions taken by banks to mitigate these risks underpinning customers' confidence. Let us take you through the risk and its management practices followed by banks in digital banking procedures.

title: What Are the Major Types of Banking Risks?

, content: Before we go any further, let us understand what threatens digital banking? Banking risks in the digital space can be classified into two categories, data security risk and cyber security risk. Cyber security and data security are closely linked as both protect against information breaches. For a better understanding we can say that cyber security protects data from outside invasion. Safe banking cyberspace is protected from cyber-attacks that encompass cybercrimes and fraud. Professionals monitor the digital space to take immediate action against active threats and Advanced Persistent Threats (APT). Data security involves protecting the information provided by the customer, such as the date of birth or KYC details, from being accessed, modified or removed by unauthorized users. Security measures strengthen confidentiality and integrity through digital risk management. To understand let us see the major types of risks that banks are likely to encounter.

Payment Risk: Digital space payment methods like NEFT, RTGS, UPI, and Wallet payments are the popular modes of payment. The booming success of payment service providers (PSPs) has increased the risk of digital payment crimes. Weaknesses in regulations from many electronic payment platforms are a continuous concern for regulators. We take you through various digital payment modes and the risks and concerns involved with them.

NEFT: National Electronic Funds Transfer (NEFT) is a centralised Reserve Bank of India (RBI) owned and operated nationwide digital payment system. This allows round-the-clock payment securely to the beneficiary. The system operates on layers of verification. Banks urge NEFT transactions through banking websites or use sites with https. Avoid banking on free networks.

RTGS: Real-Time Gross Settlement is Reserve Bank of India (RBI) owned. This is a low-risk settlement of instant payment transfer dealing with high-value minimal-risk transactions.

UPI: Unified Payments Interface enables peer-to-peer and person-to-merchant transactions. Frauds accounted for 35.4 per cent while total cybercrime complaints stood at 2.37 lakh in Q1 & Q2 of 2022. (Report by Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre <https://bit.ly/3EBbdAh>). Different types of UPI scams involve phishing scams, unverified links, remote screen monitoring, deceptive UPI handles, fake calls, money mule, sim cloning, and malware.

E-Wallets: These are safe payment modes, but they are vulnerable to cyber theft if you lose your phone, or your phone gets stolen and does not have lock protection. These wallets do not offer insurance to users. If you are using unsecured public networks to initiate payment you invite hackers to steal your data. Download reliable digital wallets only.

Lending Risk: Digital inclusion in the lending platform has given impetus to digital lending from non-financial, non-regulated services increasing mis-selling digital loans especially consumer and instant loans. Neo banks are at greater risk as opposed to their traditional counterparts, as they are prone to higher risk-taking in their security portfolio. Fintech loans follow an aggressive growth strategy.

Operational Risk: Operational risk is related to people, processes, systems and procedures and external frauds. The risk stems from internal deficiencies within the system that compromise its reliability and integrity. Electronic banking systems supported by electronic money systems are vulnerable to security, system, design, implementation and maintenance and inadequate designs.

Security risk arises when controls of a bank's critical accounting and risk management systems are threatened by hackers accessing, retrieving, and using confidential information of customers. Third parties accessing the bank's computer can inject viruses into the system.

Employee fraud is another source of operational risk. Employees can acquire customer data or steal stored vault cards. Error from employees can compromise the bank's system.

Counterfeiting electronic money escapes the bank's vigilance leading to operational risks.

Banks facing interruptions or slowdowns in existing systems from the absence of compatible requirements need outside service providers. These experts support portions of the banking activities and banks allow outsourcing for activities they cannot provide on their own exposing themselves to operational risks.

The rapid pace at which technology is changing is a risk for banks, as channels offer updates, which if monitored by malicious individuals can break through the banking security shield.

Fast-changing technology is a challenge to banking employees as the innovative technology may take time for the employee to comprehend resulting in operational errors.

Risk is posed when customers do not follow banking instructions.

Customers enter personal information in non-secure electronic transmission allowing criminals to gain access to their accounts.

Reputational Risk: Banks inculcate corporate values and commitment to the internal banking structure with clear segregation and responsibilities. Taking special and immediate measures towards risk management, the customer trust is not allowed to slip. Operational risks attract fear of reputational risks seeding distrust in customers. Therefore, built in robust systems banking operations that can handle digital operations effectively and are customer friendly. This establishes and prioritizes organizational culture, ensuring complete adherence to risk management in banking. Customers stay tied to a bank as they trust the system. Reputational risk in banks is an outcome of poor services, fraud, and corruption. Customers' loss of confidence in a bank can lead to loss of business, increase liquidity concerns and in extreme scenarios may lead to even bank run. Reputed banks do not allow such a situation to arise.

Legal Risk: If banks do not adhere to operational safety norms and fail to maintain their reputation, legal risk in banking is a natural outfall. Non-Adherence to compliance of regulatory guidelines/ policies by statutory authorities governing bank like RBI, introduction of a new product/process without proper testing, not having a proper Risk Mitigation Plan (RMP) / Monitorable Action Plan (MAP) for its products and processes can lead to Legal Risks for banks. Banks sometimes even must face penalties for such violations.

Strategic Risk in Banking: Banking risk is exacerbated by the poor layout of a strategy directed mostly towards prevention, with little or no attention to anticipated risks. Reputed banks, therefore, recognise the impact and power of strategy, formalising the banking process to alleviate strategic risks in banking. As discussed earlier, banking operations are regulated by a board of directors and senior management who establish a framework, taking into view fundamental and evolving transformation in financial services and integrating risk management strategies in banking operations. A special risk lens is applied in areas such as product development, sales and culture, and regular internal audits to control the internal framework to help identify oversights. Using strategic tools that monitor risk management in layers, control technologically driven internal models, lessening risk possibilities.

title: What Are the Key Trends in Risk Management?

, content: When we talk of the key trends in digital banking that may pose risks to the banking structure, we must understand just like other risk factors these could be hidden and may not appear in plain sight of the bank employee. Reputed bank employees are trained to take an intuitive approach to every aspect of their organisational operations to spot any signs of risk, threatening customer interest or the bank's reputation.

Changing financial ecosystem: As banks rely more on digital technology, customer data is their greatest asset. Most reputed banks take firm measures in scanning, regulating, and monitoring their hosting system. However, with third-party payment options, banks must identify these suppliers, and know how much customer data they have.

Automated operations: Digitalization of process has reduced the degree of errors caused by humans earlier. With the digital first concept, other risk related to systems arises and banks management must be vigilant about the ever-changing digital methodologies which gives rise to new risks frequently.

Rising demand of customer expectations: With advancing technologies and various products being tailored as per customer demands, online new risk portfolios can arise for some banks, where other financial institutes may use a product without testing. Therefore, proper testing processes and stricter system check to avoid any revenue leakage should be a part of defined policies and processes of the bank.

Still getting used to new technologies: New banking technologies are rapidly emerging every day, and so are tampering mechanisms. Data infrastructure proves to be a mine of information, and internally more goes into analysis than management.

title: Creating a Digital Risk Function to Address Banking Risks

, content: As banks embrace new technologies, the risk posed by these technologies goes side by side. The RBI's Risk Based Supervision (RBS) model is addressing emerging challenges with efficient governance and a risk management culture that deals with emerging technologies.

Automating risk management and compliance activities

Situations like the pandemic showed how banking and financial institutes can crumble, having to deal with non-performing loans. Banks should therefore set up agile risk backend profiles that recalibrate and tide over these situations. Banks and other financial institutes need to submit granular data to regulations; they should be able to handle high-volume data with low latency and standardisation in maintaining data integrity. Digital adoption on a large scale is creating avenues for financial frauds. Advanced techniques, like biometrics, and pattern recognition, and AI-enabled predictive modelling for fraud detection can address banking risks. An increase in processes like KYC to protect against breaches of personally identifiable information (PII) should be applied to prevent security and financial risks to institutes.

Accurately measuring and mitigating risks

Banks should study their overall operating model and incorporate risk management measures that correspond with the risk appetite of the bank.

The banks should evaluate both traditional and emerging risks and frame policies around the findings to measure and mitigate them.

Defining clear Standard operating Procedures (SOPs) that include fallback mechanisms Service level agreements (SLAs) with clearly assigned roles and responsibilities
Validation of risk reports by relevant recipients within a timeframe Reporting exception identified during the reviewing process Maintaining transparency
Creating risk data models complying with master data management (MDM) Developing comprehensive uniform, consistent and accountable references can reduce risk latency. This could include

Risk monitoring and credit underwriting Making risk-based supervision compulsory with quantitative data points Related analytics can identify risks through early warnings systems
Basel disclosures
Employee adherence to risk principles
Banks should have clearly defined risk management policies for data governance and strictly follow regulatory compliance. Setting up a data risk governance council that chiefly focuses on the management, availability, use and integration of high-risk data.

Data guidelines should be applied assigning access to data based on the user group making data privacy an important consideration when allowing data access and ownership to users.
Data management authorities should oversee the entire process of data management.

title: What Are the Challenges for the Digital Transformation of Risk Function?
, content: The changing work environment in banking, balancing traditional banking with digital banking across the internet and branches, pose challenges for banks. Banks are under a great deal of pressure now dealing with the digital transformation challenges of automating banking with digital-first initiatives alongside brick-and-mortar onsite banking. Legacy banks are built on strong governance that helps them make a seamless digital transformation journey. Let us look at the challenges that financial institutes are likely to encounter.

Managing data: With the overwhelming flow of data covering transactions, sales, marketing and more, the security risk of banks is set to increase. Banks should upgrade their data governance systems and channel them into organised silos enabling complete assessment.

Third-party access: Cyber security in digital space faces an immense challenge with open banking, as third-party APIs have now access to financial services.

Hesitancy in corporate mindsets: When digital banking is in the phase of its rapid growth, cyber security is of the utmost concern in banking operations. For internal employees to embrace this change there is a need to show agility in adopting tools and techniques for risk management.

Innovative thought leadership: Banks should constantly audit thought leadership scopes for better ideas to mitigate strategic risk.

title: What Are the Technologies that Strengthen the Risk Function?
, content: Banks need to follow innovative measures in financial analysis and forecasting to meet the demands of customer experience. Risk management in banking is closely associated with regulatory compliance that involves countless resource-intensive, error-prone document verifications. Machine learning (ML) and Artificial Intelligence (AI) automate and largely take care of this change management system. But risk management in banking needs a central regulatory system which is why banks can use Model Risk Management (MRM) structures to bring risk factors down.

Uniform definition of AI/ML: While banking needs are being gauged better with business analytics, these efficient computer systems rely on self-learning to perform tasks replacing human intelligence. Banks should work on established models defining the exact inclusions of these models for confirmed banking practices.

More transparency in the model: Both AI/ML models come with risks that can emerge from materiality, uncertainty etc. By addressing and improving these grey areas, banks can take inherent risk factors better.

Working out new risk appetite guidelines: ML models do not follow the traditional statements for risk appetite. They need different regulations, so peer networks combined with industry intelligence can draft fresh statements dealing with risk appetite.

Introducing accountability platforms: With the increase of risk management independent platforms like compliance, Operational Risk Management (ORM), MRM, Data Management and Controls, banks need to rely on governance structures that can clearly define the roles of each for risk management in banking.

Internal skill enhancement: Skill set boosting internally through external Subject Matter Experts (SME) will help banks meet and edge the approved standards of banking.

Testing products at all stages: Testing products based on the technology models during their design stage, implementation stage, operational stage, and validation process and throughout their life cycle should be an essential part of digital risk management.

Blockchain technologies: Banks can benefit from Blockchain technology for data management that decentralizes ledger technology. Allowing suitable coordination, it establishes better regulations in data sharing. Customer information can be stored in decentralised blocks ensuring safety from third party intrusion.

title: Wrapping Up

, content: Digital banking comes with a wealth of facilities that are undeniably more attractive to the common consumer. When banks are focusing on customer experience, concentrating on risk management in digital banking is equally important. Banking with a dependable financial institute will help customers participate in safer banking while exploring and investing in wider opportunities.

title: Digital Banking Trends to Keep in Mind for 2023

, content: With the advent of technology in banking, we are already experiencing a significant change in the way digitalization in banking is affecting the Indian population. Indian consumers, merchants and local vendors are getting used to the technology of cashless financing. Banking apps are also focused on customer ease and solutions, tapping all customer need with intuitive analysis, hosting payment gateways to other more complex solutions, this trend is bound to take off more in the coming years. Though the trend has caught more with the younger generation, it is equally important to upskill the older generation less proactive to the change. Also, while the urban population is holistically gripped by fintech through payments, investments and credits, the digital divide is strongly noticed in rural sectors that still lack technology, education, and training. While COVID-19 leapfrogged mass digital inclusion, bringing the entire population under the Digital Ecosystem will require greater accessibility through regional language, region-specific studies with organic development through offline ambassadors creating a local connection. We know that in India, the government has already set these initiatives in motion, let us see what digital banking trends 2023, hold for fintech digital banking.

title: Digital Banking Trends 2023

, content: Preference for digitalization in banking

Contactless digitalization in banking will be a point of preference for consumers. Offline banking will soon lose customer attention and digital banking trends will gain traction. Physical banks may reduce in the future but in 2023, we will continue to see operational physical banks.

Banking will boil down to customer experience

Digital banking trends already reveal how much customer experience is a determinant factor that edges financial service providers towards customer retention. Products and services that enable customer-friendly applications while fulfilling their needs independently without human intervention, and one window operation will make a difference. The constant endeavour of banks to upgrade their service quality is in the process of customer feedback. Therefore in 2023, it can be expected that banks will work with greater experience wrapping advanced analytics, customising products, anticipating needs and reducing costs. The greater the thrust on individual customer experience the more loyalty and retention will bring profits into the business.

Increasing digital channels in banking

With neo banks gaining ground in the Indian financial landscape, open API banking gives data access to third-party fintech. Apps with faster transaction ease are providing secure service to customers. These open banking apps have reached the smallest vendor level upselling products and enabling transactions. With data integration, they are equally conscious of customer experience and fast innovation. Introducing automated variation and other facilities also opens doors for hacking. However, the API preference has made room for a customer comfort game changer. Developers will ensure data leakage to external parties is prevented and will find the best security measures to integrate these technologies.

AI upped digitalization in banking

As we come close to Q4 of 2022, many banks are laying thrust on digital solutions to extend their customer base. To prevent fraud and violation banks are involving pure technology companies that can save them from future breaches through better management of specialised data analytics. Reaching out to the customer in their language of comfort and greater inclusion of FAQ replace call centres with chatbots and virtual assistants. Some banks have already started including chatbots for customer ease. The younger customer seems well adjusted to chatbots and this technology will surely emerge stronger in digital banking trends. Chat bots, besides handling customer queries on banking services, will also have access to the customer's financial data. This would enable this AI application to play a more significant role in customer relationships by suggesting various products that the customer could benefit from. Working with customers, voice payments in banking will act like virtual assistants to simulate the physical and digital capabilities of the bank, benefiting the customer with the best service. So, it can be predicted that in 2023 digitalization in banking will find greater AI involvement.

Fintech digital banking unwraps new competition

Banks will need to gear up and stay ahead of the competition posed by new financial players in the market. Fintech solutions such as peer-to-peer (P2P) platforms, those that offer Robo-advisors and digital wealth management tools provide a fillip to open API enabling account management through self-service. Fintech digital banking solutions pioneered by various digital payment solutions and have now emerged as competitors. Banks are partnering with these fintech digital banks to create better banking solutions.

BNPL

The rapid progress of Book Now Pay Later (BNPL) over the last two years has been significant. Customers enjoy greater freedom in using their funds for e-commerce shopping and instant credit through the BNPL platforms. The instant payment facility allows flexibility to online shoppers who can buy now and pay later in EMIs. The BNPL apps became the preferred credit offering provider during the COVID-19 times. Small ticket-size loans supported by NBFC lenders also caught up with customers. The future holds greater regulations on short-term time lending products for BNPLs, controlling the growth in easy loan disbursement for this segment.

Digital Banking Units

Banking services are set to touch the last mile with the 75 Digital Banking Units (DBU) initiative. Embracing greater banking inclusivity, India is poised towards a progressive banking system consolidating the digital ecosystem by facilitating improved and seamless banking for all. In the future, the country is ready to boost digital initiatives in banking that touch the hinterland and combine all under uniform digital financing.

The larger role of Big Data and Analytics

The importance of big data has been realised by banks for understanding customer behaviour and personalising service through predictive tools. The future enhancements in digitalization in banking will depend on translating the results of analytics into practice. While intuitive data collection will make a powerful appearance, understanding the actual intent of the customer will demand greater study leading to business conversion.

Blockchain in the banking sector will take on a larger role

Financial activity will be inclusive through blockchain banking. KYC and due diligence that requires verification, contract execution, tracing, and data protection will be enabled through blockchain which does not allow alteration or deletion of the stored data increasing task completion without intermediaries further releasing the pressure and role of traditional banks. Banks will include regulated and standardised cryptocurrencies that require blockchain technology. Users can trade, exchange, lend and borrow from the digital currency that will emerge as an alternate digital currency option for users.

Opportunity for metaverse in banking

After digitalization, the next big change that would affect banking is metaverse technology. What does this entail? This technology would enable you to virtually enter your bank branch and be assisted by a virtual customer representative avatar who could take you through a loan process or access your vault. Metaverse will probably bring back the read-write practice of building security that mobile banking applications have changed. Blockchain holds great relevance for various banking applications and not just NFTs and cryptocurrencies. Metaverse combined with Blockchain can open new possibilities in trade, purchase, and transaction. AI, VR combined Metaverse will foster healthy customer servicing and train future banking employees.

No-code/low-code (LCNC) platforms enabling faster banking service

Customer-centric products expect cutting-edge technology like No-code/low-code platforms. The technology makes it possible to complete the development of user-friendly programs in days rather than months making platforms easier to access and simple to handle. LCNC paves way for banks to become more self-serving than relying on external agencies to help them fulfil the role of digitalization in banking. These offer unprecedented speed boosting which is 10 times faster and scaled for user ease. It allows rapid application development and deployment in days as opposed to low-hand coding which can take months to develop.

title: Digital Banking Trends to Keep in Mind for 2023, content: With the advent of technology in banking, we are already experiencing a significant change in the way digitalization in banking is affecting the Indian population. Indian consumers, merchants and local vendors are getting used to the technology of cashless financing. Banking apps are also focused on customer ease and solutions, tapping all customer need with intuitive analysis, hosting payment gateways to other more complex solutions, this trend is bound to take off more in the coming years. Though the trend has caught more with the younger generation, it is equally important to upskill the older generation less proactive to the change. Also, while the urban population is holistically gripped by fintech through payments, investments and credits, the digital divide is strongly noticed in rural sectors that still lack technology, education, and training. While COVID-19 leapfrogged mass digital inclusion, bringing the entire population under the Digital Ecosystem will require greater accessibility through regional language, region-specific studies with organic development through offline ambassadors creating a local connection. We know that in India, the government has already set these initiatives in motion, let us see what digital banking trends 2023, hold for fintech digital banking.

title: Future of Digital Banking in India, content: Covid- 19 has successfully established a new dimension to the future of digital banking in India. title: All You Need To Know About UPI, content: With the booming Digital Payment Ecosystem, India's Financial Sector is soaring new heights. The newer payment models, sophistication in the acceptance infrastructure multiplied with customer's need of convenience coupled with reliability has given an unrivalled thrust to the economy. In this digital age where mobile applications & payment systems are ruling over the masses, Unified Payments Interface (UPI) is placed in the top-drawer of all payment models. Not only the ease but also the robustness of UPI has enticed users from all strata and demographics of the society to use this remarkable application. What is UPI? Unified Payments Interface is a real-time payment system that channels multiple bank accounts into a single application mobile application. This concept was developed by National Payment Corporation of India (NPCI) for facilitating instant fund transfer, merchant payments and collection of funds. The unique feature of this application is the "Peer-to-Peer" collect request which can be scheduled as per desire and convenience. The application offers a two factor authentication (2FA) which enhances the security and protects the interest of the customers. Customer will create Login PIN as well as UPI PIN in UPI. Customer has to use Debit Card credentials like Last 6 digits of the card and card expiry and create the UPI PIN by authenticating the same with OTP received on the registered Mobile Number. Digital on-boarding process in BHIM Baroda Pay UPI APP Please go to Google Play Store (Android Users) or iOS AppStore (iOS Users) for downloading - BHIM Baroda Pay UPI application. Post complete download, the application will install on the device. Click on the installed application to register and accept all app permissions to start the registration process. Enter your registered mobile number and select the SIM Slot in which your registered mobile number is placed. A silent SMS will be sent from your registered mobile number. Make sure sufficient mobile balance is available for sending silent SMS. After mobile number verification, application prompts to enter name and proceed. Select the Bank where your Bank account exists under the same registered mobile number. Post selection of account, application will display the list of all eligible accounts for UPI. Select any one / all the accounts and create a VPA (UPI ID). Create login PIN, select security question and create answer. Accept the Terms and Conditions and proceed, which completes the registration in BHIM Baroda Pay UPI. Post registration, generate UPI PIN to be used for transaction. In the home screen under added accounts, UPI PIN status will be displayed (Set / Not Set). Click on the three dots icon under desired account. Select the option - > Set UPI PIN. On the next screen -> Enter last 6 digits of debit card issued in the same account. Enter the card expiry and proceed. An OTP will be received on registered mobile number. The same will be auto read by the application. In case of devices where auto read facility is by default disabled, manually key in the OTP. Now create UPI PIN and reconfirm the same. UPI PIN is successfully set. Now you are ready to do UPI transactions &hellip;&hellip;. UPI for Collection Purpose Merchants can use UPI channel for receiving / collection of payment from their customers. Customer can pay to the merchant either by sending money to merchant's UPI ID or by scanning the QR code displayed at merchant location / website. Bank's UPI platform is having capability to provide customized UPI based payment solution to merchants. Bank's UPI platform supports low integration and transaction cost to merchant to enable UPI as a payment mode for transaction in addition to debit card, credit card, wallet and net banking to accept the payment from the customer in convenient, easy and hassle free manner.

Risks, Vigilance & Prevention

The emerging digital payment channel comes with its own fair share of risks. Recent events give insights to the lack of awareness and negligence on the part of the customer which has resulted in huge loss of money to the customers. From Vishing to suspicious app download to spoofing, the socially engineered techniques to dupe customers has evolved drastically. Major Modus Operandi are as under: UPI SMS Spoofing Fraud, UPI Collect Request Fraud, UPI AnyDesk Fraud. Branches and staff are required to educate customers regarding the risks associated with the application used. More the clarity about the product, less will the unauthorized transactions in the accounts. As it is rightly said, "With more power comes more responsibility" and this is true in case of a payment channel so convenient and easy to use, UPI.

Significance & Future

UPI as a collection medium is growing drastically. The recent pandemic has helped to propel the transaction and usage of the application as it promotes contactless payments and with Government bringing in key initiatives driven by Digital mode, this product is said to shatter all known barriers and emerge as the most used payment mode in the ecosystem. The interoperability is vital to facilitate transactions in a financial world of different account types. This has been made possible by the most advanced form of digital payment i.e. Unique Payment Interface (UPI) which justifies its name - "UNIQUE". UPI is a game-changer for Bank as an organization and which is laid out insightfully can consolidate Bank's brand and enhance acceptance & penetration among masses and classes.

Very soon, it will revolutionize every area of our life, including medicine. Artificial intelligence will prove to be the next successful area of cooperation between humans and machines. This collaboration shall enhance efficiency benefitting many around the world. DeepMind Technologies is a UK based artificial intelligence company and research laboratory founded in September 2010 which was acquired by Google in 2014. DeepMind's health team merged with Google Health so as to build products that support care teams and improve patient outcomes. Google Health is tapping into AI's potential to help in cancer diagnosis, predicting patient outcomes, averting blindness and more. Together with the company's DeepMind branch, Google Health has recently come up with an AI-based solution for identifying cancer. IBM's dedicated health branch, Watson Health, was set up as a service to bring AI's helping hand to stakeholders within the healthcare sector from payers to providers. With the power of cognitive computing, Watson Health has aided several renowned organizations like Mayo Clinic with its cancer clinical trial and Biorasi to bring drugs to the market faster while slashing costs. Researcher Frost & Sullivan said artificial intelligence systems will generate $6.7 billion in global revenue from healthcare by 2021. Traditional ML technologies are incompatible with biomedical raw data formats, and there are few standards for data standardization, normalization and harmonization. BioSymetrics solves this problem by deploying its primary solution, Augusta, which is a pre-processing and analytics platform that can process large amounts of data (siloes and raw data) for predictive analytics. This is useful for capturing the huge amount of data released from the 25B IoT devices and other biomedical data types (EEG, MRI and others) and deriving actionable insights from them. The customized and flexible tool can be used by scientists, providers, hospitals, biopharmaceutical companies etc. Augusta is the first biomedical specific machine learning framework. Augusta is designed to transition time from data pre-processing and integration to model building and interrogation using familiar toolsets within Python. Sensely is an avatar-based, empathy-driven platform that leverages natural user interfaces to intelligently connect insurance plan members with advice and services. By utilizing Sensely's scalable platform technology architecture, insurance companies can converse with their members in an entirely new way, combining the empathy of human conversation with the efficiency and scalability of technology. Artificial Intelligence will redesign healthcare. AI could help medical professionals in designing treatment plans and finding the best suited methods for every patient.

title: Internet of Value: Internet 2.0, content: Internet in its current phase, has revolutionised almost all businesses across geographies. However, the current phase, 'Internet of Information' focuses solely on information exchange in the form of documents, images and videos. Although information moves around the world instantly, a single payment from one country to another is still slow and expensive. In the US, a typical international payment takes 3-5 days to settle, has an error rate of at least 5% and an average cost of $42. Worldwide, there are $180 trillion worth of cross-border payments made every year, with a combined cost of more than $1.7 trillion a year. With the emergence of blockchain, a new phase of internet called 'Internet of Value' has emerged. Internet of Value is underpinned by blockchain, which is the evolutionary technology that supports digital currency. With Internet of Value, a transaction such as a foreign currency payment can happen instantly, just as how people have been sharing information online for decades. Internet of Value can also enable the exchange of any asset that is of value, including stocks, frequent flyer points, securities, intellectual property, music, scientific discoveries etc. Multiple startups have started working on this front. Fusion is an innovative blockchain solution created to bridge the interoperability gap between different blockchains through cross-chain transactions. It also has the potential to create off-chain transactions as the inevitability of a value-driven economy becomes more pronounced. Similarly, Wanchain offers a unique solution for overcoming the limitations on cross-chain transactions through mass-market adoption of blockchain technology. It is developing a new distributed financial infrastructure that will connect the world's digital assets. In order to facilitate the digitization of assets, Wanchain has built an internal private blockchain through which users can build smart contracts for a practical transfer of value. Currently, there are various blockchain-based platforms which are not compatible with each other. Hence, assets on these platforms can't be freely exchanged. For the internet of value to become a reality, uniform industry standards must be adopted in order to homogenize the world's different financial systems. We believe that this process of standardization can have a transformative impact on businesses in today's world. This impact can be as instrumental as globalization efforts in 1950s or standardization of web protocols in the 1980s.

title: 10 FASTag Rules you must know, content: You must already be familiar with FASTag, the path-breaking tag that enables you to zip through toll plazas without pausing. But are you familiar with all the FASTag new rules? If you aren't, here's what you should know so that you don't encounter any roadblocks on your way to getting one for your vehicles. It's compulsory now. Well, there's no way you can wriggle out of this one now. Under the FASTag toll plaza rules, the government has decreed that all lanes will be FASTag only. So it's now compulsory for all vehicles to have it from 15 January 2020. How to buy FASTag? You can buy FASTag at over 20 banks, including Bank of Baroda, and other point-of-sale outlets like toll plazas. You can even order them online through Amazon. What are the documents you need to get FASTag? To get a FASTag, you will need to submit documents like registration certificate (RC) of the vehicle, passport-size photograph and KYC documents. A driver's licence will suffice for ID and address proof. How to activate FASTag? Once you have purchased the FASTag, you can activate it at your Bank of Baroda branch. You will need to submit your documents at this stage. How to pay tolls using FASTag ID? This isn't necessarily one of the rules of FASTag; however, after you buy it, attach it to the windscreen of your car. Each time you pass a toll plaza, an electronic reader reads the tag using RFID technology and charges you the toll. This amount is automatically deducted from your account or your wallet. What are the charges that I have to pay for FASTag? You have to pay a one-time activation fee of Rs 100, as well as a security deposit. The security deposit will depend on the vehicle and ranges from Rs 200 to Rs 400. Can I use one FASTag for multiple vehicles? No, this is not possible. FASTag is meant for one vehicle only. How to recharge FASTag? If you have chosen the wallet option instead of direct debit from your account, you need to recharge it from time to time. It's a relatively simple process. You can log in to your account using your ID and password and use Debit or Credit Card or Internet Banking to top up your account. You can also use other methods like UPI. Do I get a discount on tolls if I live near a toll plaza? You can get a discount on tolls paid through your FASTag if you live within 10 km of a toll plaza. You will have to submit proof of residence to avail of this benefit. What happens if I don't have a FASTag? Well, you'll have to pay double the toll fee, which you have to pay at a hybrid lane that accepts payments over the counter. So now that you know all FASTag rules don't hesitate any more get a FASTag account today at Bank of Baroda! Your browser does not support HTML5 video.

title: Know how to get FASTag for your vehicle, content: When driving on a toll road is that you have to stop from time to time to pay the toll. Sometimes the lines are long, and you have to rummage in your wallet/ purse to give exact amounts to the attendant, who more often than not, doesn't have any change. But that could all be in the past with FASTag. So what do you need to know about FASTag? Well, it's a tag affixed to your vehicle's windscreen, which allows you to zip past a toll booth. The amount is automatically deducted (using Radio Frequency Identification Technology, or RFID for short) from a pre-paid account that you need to fill. Well, you may have no choice to get FASTag, since the government has mandated that all vehicles will need to have these tags. What's more, the over 400 toll plazas over the country will no longer accept payments over the counter. So how to get FASTag for my car is what every vehicle owner needs to know right now. How to get FASTag for cars? Where to buy: You can visit any of the points of sale (POS) locations like toll plazas or banks like Bank of Baroda. What documents do I need: You will need the following documents to get FASTag: Registration certificate (RC) of the vehicle, Your passport-size photograph, KYC documents. What KYC documents do I need: If you are an individual vehicle owner, a valid driving licence should suffice for address and ID proof. You can also use the Aadhaar card, PAN card, voter ID card, and so on. What charges you need to pay: You have to pay a one-time issuance fee of Rs 100 for the Baroda FASTag, and a refundable security deposit, which depends on vehicle type. How to access FASTag account: When you purchase a FASTag card, you will get a username and password for the web portal, which you can use to recharge, make complaints, get details of transactions and so on. What is the process for toll payment? You have to deposit a certain amount in your FASTag account. Each time you go through a toll point, the amount gets automatically deducted from the amount. How will I know how much has been deducted? You will get an SMS on your registered mobile phone number each time the FASTag has been used to cross a toll plaza. So you can track every transaction you make. &nbsp; How to recharge the FASTag account: Recharging the account is a simple process. You can do it online through Debit or Credit Cards, through Internet Banking or other methods like UPI. You can also do it by visiting any of the POS locations. What is the minimum amount for recharge or top-up: The minimum amount is Rs 100. However, you may want to put more so that you have adequate balance in your account to ensure smooth driving. What if I don't have enough balance in my FASTag account? If you don't have enough balance in your account and pass through a toll plaza, you will be blacklisted. That is, you will not be allowed to pass another time until you pay up the amount. How to affix FASTag on the car: You will need to affix FASTag on the front windshield. However, your bank will give you instructions on how it's done. Can I use FASTag for more than one vehicle: No, you cannot do that. The FASTag is for one specific vehicle only. You will need different FASTags for different cars. What if I'm charged wrongly for any transaction? If you are charged incorrectly for any transaction, you can complain online using your User ID and password. You can call customer care on 18001034568 at any time of the day or night. What is the validity period of the FASTag card? The FASTag is valid for five years. Who is implementing FASTag? FASTag is being implemented by the Indian Highways Management Company Limited (IHMCL) a company incorporated by National Highways Authority of India and National Payment Corporation of India (NPCI). title: 7 Safe Online Banking Tips You Must Know, content: Indian banks are gradually edging toward having most of their processes online. From sending money to paying bills and even investing, stepping away from traditional methods has become necessary. Though almost half of India's population have accepted the change to online and mobile banking, many are still hesitant. The main concern is internet safety, which is valid; however, it shouldn't hold anyone back from transacting. Here are safe online banking tips you can follow to enjoy a seamless and convenient banking experience: It All Begins with Your Passwords The cardinal rule for transacting online or via your smartphone is, you must have a strong password and change it regularly. This is one of the most critical and necessary safe internet banking tips. Use random numbers, symbols and letters that only you will remember. Most banks will recommend a combination of all three and some will even prompt if your password isn't strong enough. Using upper- and lower-case letters help too. Stay away from familiar things like birthdays, names, house numbers etc. Finally, do not share your passwords with anyone, no matter what. Your passwords are unique and meant only for you. Do not save passwords / credentials on browser and/or any apps for login. Keep a Close Watch on Your Accounts: Monitor your accounts' activities frequently, especially if you transact a lot. It is one of the few tips for safe internet banking of which we become careless. You have to check your bank balances and monthly statements for any debits that appear suspicious. Reach out to your bank in case you find such or similar transactions. Use a Secure Internet Connection To prevent anyone from misusing your private information, one of the safe online banking tips is to use a secure, internet connection. Make sure that the wi-fi is password-protected and not free; if you're travelling, connect with your smartphone's hotspot. You can even choose a private browser to access your bank's netbanking platform. Get Notified One of the safe internet banking tips is to turn on your bank's notifications from your mobile phone. You can also opt for receiving SMS alerts. Many banks allow you to customise notifications and alerts, e.g. you can choose specific triggers like in case your account balance goes below or above a particular limit. Sign-Out, Every Time Once your netbanking or mobile banking session is over, remember to sign out. This is one of the tips for safe internet banking that few are aware of. Uncheck the 'Keep me signed in' box and log out. In fact, as an added precaution, clear your browser history and cache after you log off. Sift the Real From Fake Phishing and calling scams have increased over the last few years. Among the safe online banking tips, you may already know of this one. Your account information, passwords, card CVV numbers, OTPs etc. are confidential. Never entertain or answer an e-mail or call that requests for any or all of these details, unless you have initiated the transaction. Do not click on the any link provided in the email /

SMS message etc. Always type the bank website URL in the address link of browser to access your account.

title: Disaster Management

, content: Dear Reader,

We are living in the midst of a revolution. Supervised learning, a branch of Machine learning allows engineers to develop models that can train themselves. In turn, these models are helping solve crisis management problems before disaster strikes.

Technologists have long modeled data to harness machine learning for disaster relief. After the Chernobyl crisis, scientists analyzed satellite imagery and weather data to track the flow of radiation from the reactor. Today's algorithms far outpace their predecessors in analytic and predictive powers. Machine learning models are able to deliver more granular predictions. NASA has developed the Landslide Hazard Assessment for Situational Awareness (LHASA) Model. Data from the Global Precipitation Measurement (GPM) is fed into LHASA in three-hour intervals. If a landslide-prone area is experiencing heavy rain, LHASA then issues a warning. Analysts then channel that information to the appropriate agencies, providing near-real-time risk assessments.

Roofing material is a major risk factor in resilience to natural disasters. So, a model that can predict it is also one that can predict which buildings are most at risk during an emergency. In Guatemala, models are identifying "soft-story" buildings—those most likely to collapse during an earthquake. "Forecast funding" can mitigate damage by providing the most vulnerable with cash assistance to prepare for disaster. Bangladesh and Nepal are nations that are already implementing this strategy.

Natural disasters, such as earthquakes, hurricanes and floods affect large areas and millions of people, but responding to such disasters is a massive logistical challenge. Crisis responders, including governments, NGOs, and UN organizations, need fast access to comprehensive and accurate assessments in the aftermath of disasters to plan how best to allocate limited resources. To help mitigate the impact of such disasters, Google in partnership with the United Nations World Food Program (WFP) Innovation Accelerator has created "Building Damage Detection in Satellite Imagery Using Convolutional Neural Networks", which details a machine learning (ML) approach to automatically process satellite data to generate building damage assessments. As per Google this work has the potential to drastically reduce the time and effort required for crisis workers to produce damage assessment reports. In turn, this would reduce the turnaround times needed to deliver timely disaster aid to the most severely affected areas, while increasing the overall coverage of such critical services. The World Food Programme was awarded the 2020 Nobel Peace Prize and they thanked Google and its team of engineers in pioneering the development of artificial intelligence to revolutionise humanitarian operations.

The application of machine learning techniques to satellite imagery is revolutionizing disaster relief. Crisis maps and image comparisons are helping relief organizations to deliver aid with precision.

title: Documents Required for Loan Against Property - A Complete Checklist, content: Meeting significant expenses like the cost of an overseas education, a wedding, home renovation, or medical expenses can be challenging. Your credit card may not be sufficient for meeting these costs. At times like these, your asset holdings – such as a home – come in handy. You can opt to apply for a loan against these assets. This particular type of loan is known as a mortgage loan.

A mortgage loan is a secured loan that you can avail by providing your asset or property as collateral. Your property remains with the lender as security until the loan amount is entirely repaid. The interest rate offered on such a secured loan is usually lower in comparison to the interest rates of unsecured loans since the lender has lower risk due to the presence of collateral.

This particular blog will help you understand the concept of a mortgage loan against property. It will also give you a fair idea about the application process and the documents required for loan against property. In addition, to this, we have also listed down a few essential things that you should keep a check on while applying for this type of a loan.

title: Things to keep in mind when applying for a loan against property:

, content: Here is a list of few quick pointers that you should be aware of when applying for a loan against property:

Property should be free from dispute

Before applying for a loan, make sure that the property you provide as collateral is free from any dispute. Unclear property papers and disputes among property owners for ownership can cause rejection of loan application.

Loan amount should be manageable

No one has a better understanding of the way you manage your own finances apart from you. Therefore, apply for a loan amount that you know you are capable of repaying. The bank does issue the loan based on the provided collateral.

However, they expect all borrowers to pay EMIs on time. Default in payments can cause you trouble down the road with the bank.

Choose the right tenure

It is important that you keep your repayment capacity and the interest rate in mind when planning on the tenure. You can use an EMI calculator tool to understand what you will owe the lender based on the interest rate and loan amount. This tool can help you choose the right tenure.

Check for your property value

Make sure to do this before applying for a loan. Bank provides loans consider the realizable value not market value of property only if property is purchased more than 3 years back. In case of purchase within -3- years lower of the registered value or realizable value is being considered. Moreover, you are eligible to avail 60% of value accepted by the Bank as a loan. Hence, work out the finances carefully before making a decision.

title: Conclusion, content: Taking a mortgage loan is a big decision and requires careful planning. Bank of Baroda knows how hard you work to make your dreams come true and offers you affordable loans. We also offer easy eligibility criteria, minimal documentation, and quick loan disbursement on approval. title: Table of Content, content: Documents Required for Car Loan title: Documents Required for Car Loan, content: Applying for a car loan is a great way to own a car and repay by manageable EMIs. Loans are a powerful instrument planned by financial institutes like banks, for borrowers who can aspire to a better living by planning and calibrating expenses to achieve better material goals. Loan eligibility comes with certain criteria and documents are needed to qualify a candidate for a loan. The documents are evidence of loan eligibility and a transaction between the borrower and the lender."• General Documents" Loan documents generally include documents that each borrower is required to submit. The car loan documents list will include an individual's KYC, and an estimate outlining the terms and conditions of the loan. This is the first paperwork that needs to be filled out by the lender. The loan contract binds the borrower to the lender for a specific period. Car loan application paperwork supplied by the borrower enables evaluation and the risk at which the lender is lending money to the borrower.

"• Car Loan Documents - Salaried Individuals" Salaried individuals can get car loans easily as it is easier to estimate their creditworthiness. Owing to the consistent cash flow of their income, they follow a steady savings and expense ratio. Self-employed individuals may not always have a regular flow of income making them less creditworthy. A car loan is available for salaried individuals from private limited companies, the public sector, both central and state government employees as well as a public sector undertaking. Employees are eligible for a loan from the age of 21 years and their loan maturity tenure should not exceed 70 years. This can be included with the spouse or a co-applicant (close relative).

title: Car finance documents for Salaried Individuals, content: Self-employed people include high-income professionals like lawyers, chartered accountants, doctors in private practice etc. Insurance agents, shop owners, freelancers and merchants attached to some sort of a trade, business, or service fall under this category. These individuals are required to go through extensive paperwork to qualify for a car loan eligibility. Documents like a lease agreement with the landlord as proof of rent paid per month, income proof, the most recent tax return certificate, and asset proof like banks statements or the title document for the car are used as collaterals, and credit report less than two years old is also used. Self-employed sole proprietors in the business of manufacturing, trading and service can apply for car loans at a minimum age of 21, their loan maturity period must not exceed 70 years.

title: Car finance documents Self Employed Professionals, content: Documents for Self Employed non-professionals follow the same requirement criteria as would for any self-employed person.

title: A Complete Guide to Gold Loans in India, content: For generations, people have exchanged gold for cash. In addition to being an auspicious asset, gold is significant as a source of financial stability. But what are gold loans? Gold loans are secured loans where your gold items are pledged as collateral to obtain cash for your necessities and emergencies. Gold loans are more affordable than credit cards or personal loans, especially for those seeking short term finance. But before agreeing to a financial arrangement, full awareness is required.

title: Gold Loan vs Personal Loan - Which is Better & Why?, content: Financial contingencies generally come unannounced. Often, the only way to tide over such contingencies is by taking a loan. Whether you need to fund your sister's marriage, or pay for a medical emergency, a loan can prove to be a lifesaver. While many types of loans are available in the market to meet your needs, personal loans and gold loans are two of the most popular ones.

title: What is a Joint Home Loan and What is a Co-Applicant in Home Loan?, content: A joint Home Loan is one that you can take along with another applicant or a co-applicant. A co-applicant is simply an additional applicant who is just as involved in the underwriting and approval process of the same Home Loan. When you take a loan with a co-applicant, it is deemed as a Joint Home Loan.

A co-applicant may be named as the secondary applicant on the joint Home Loan but may share the same loan repayment responsibilities and benefits that go with a Home Loan. Co-applicant may or may not be joint owner of the property. However, a joint owner has necessary to be a co applicant even if he / she is not having any income (e.g., In case of housewife). If joint owner is not having any income, then eligible loan amount would be calculated solely based on income of main applicant.

Having a co-applicant on your Home Loan can also increase your chances of getting the loan approved. Furthermore, it also helps you procure a higher loan amount to buy the house of your dreams. However, co-applicant must be your close relative.

title: Benefits of Having a Co-Applicant in Home Loan, content: Having explained what a joint Home Loan and the definition of a co-applicant is, let's take a look at a few benefits of having a co-applicant on your Home Loan.

1. The bank considers the income of both applicants.

When you apply for a Home Loan, the bank considers various factors that can affect your eligibility. This includes your income, outgoing expenses, credit scores, and so on. While you may be eligible for the loan, you may not get a higher loan amount as the sole applicant. But when you apply for a Home Loan jointly with another applicant, the bank also considers their income. A higher income typically results in a higher loan eligibility amount, enabling you to buy a better property without compromising.

2. A joint Home Loan reduces your loan burden by half.

Another advantage of joint home loan is that your loan burden is reduced considerably. You and your co-applicant can devise a strategy that distributes the loan repayment equally. This way, if either of you is faced with unpredictable circumstances leading to a loss of income, the other can ensure that EMIs are paid on time. Doing this ensures you never default on your EMI payment.

title: Conclusion : home loan

, content: Now that you know what a co-applicant is in a Home Loan, you should consider applying with one. A co-applicant reduces your loan burden and shares financial responsibility.

title: What is Self-Funding?

, content: Self-funding refers to using personal savings, family contributions, or scholarships to finance one's education. Self-funding for studying abroad involves relying on your resources and financial capacity to cover tuition fees, living expenses, and other associated costs.

title: Study Abroad Student Loans

, content: Student loans are financial tools designed to assist students in financing their education. These loans for students are specifically tailored for educational purposes and are available from various financial institutions, both private and government-backed.

An education loan for study abroad can cover tuition fees, accommodation costs, travel expenses, and other educational-related expenditures.

title: Types of Student Loans

, content: There are two main types of education loans based on the presence or absence of collateral:

Collateral Loans:

These are loans that are secured by collateral. When a borrower pledges collateral to obtain a loan, the lender has some assurance of partial payment in case of unpaid loan obligations.

If the borrower fails to make timely payments, the lender has the right to sell the collateral to recover the outstanding amount. In India, public sector commercial banks are considered reliable sources of student collateral loans.

Unsecured Loans :

These loans do not require any collateral or security. Students who do not have sufficient assets to use as collateral can still access these loans. Unlike tangible assets, unsecured student loans are typically based on the borrower's creditworthiness, income potential, academic background and also based on the institution he enrolled.

Considering the rising cost of education and the importance of quality education, many individuals now view education loans as an investment.

Competitive Interest Rates :

Education loans often come with competitive interest rates, generally lower than other types of loans. This helps to make the loan more affordable for students and their families.

Education loans often come with competitive interest rates, generally lower than other types of loans. This helps to make the loan more affordable for students and their families.

Flexible Repayment Options :

The bank provides flexible repayment terms, including a moratorium period, allowing students to start repayment after completing their education or finding suitable employment.

The maximum repayment upto 180 months after course completion + 12 months

Bank charges simple interest during Moratorium period.

Wide Range of Expenses Covered

The loan covers various expenses, including tuition fees, accommodation, travel, books, and other educational expenses, ensuring comprehensive financial support.

Need based Funding

Bank of Baroda provides upto 100% finance.

Building Credit History :

Successfully managing an education loan and making timely repayments can help students build a positive credit history, which can benefit future financial endeavours, such as obtaining other loans or securing better interest rates.

title: Education Loan Vs. Self-Finance

, content: Several factors must be considered when comparing self-financing and education loans abroad. Let's take a closer look at some of these factors:

Financial Situation :

One of the most critical factors is your financial situation. Self-funding may be a viable option if you have substantial savings or access to funding from your family. However, if you lack the necessary financial resources, student loans can bridge the gap and make studying abroad a reality.

Interest Rates :

Interest rates play a significant role in the cost of borrowing. Education loans may have fixed or variable interest rates depending on the lender. It is crucial to compare interest rates and determine whether the interest accrued over the loan term is reasonable compared to the potential return on investment from studying abroad.

Debt Burden :

Taking on student loans means taking on a financial obligation that can impact your future. Considering the potential debt burden and how it may affect your post-graduation plans, such as career choices or further education, is crucial.

Self-funding eliminates the need to repay loans and offers more financial freedom once you complete your studies.

title: Which is Better: Self-Funding or Student Loans?

, content: There is no one-size-fits-all answer to this question, as the best option depends on individual circumstances and preferences. Self-funding may be more suitable for students with significant financial resources or access to scholarships. It provides a debt-free education and greater financial independence.

When deciding between self-funding and student loans for studying abroad, it ultimately comes down to personal circumstances and priorities. Here are some final thoughts to consider:

Financial Capacity :

Self-funding is an excellent option if you have the financial means to cover your education expenses without relying on loans. It provides the advantage of graduating debt-free and offers greater financial independence after completing your studies.

Risk and Responsibility :

Self-funding risks depleting your savings or facing financial strain if unexpected circumstances arise. On the other hand, student loans come with the responsibility of repayment, which can be a burden post-graduation. It's crucial to assess your risk tolerance and long-term financial goals before deciding.

Interest Rates and Repayment Terms :

Student loans have varying interest rates and repayment options, so it's essential to research and compare different loan programs. Consider the impact of interest rates and repayment terms on your financial commitment.

Return on Investment :

Studying abroad can offer numerous benefits, such as enhanced career prospects, cultural exposure, and personal growth. Evaluate the potential return on investment from your chosen study program and assess whether the long-term benefits outweigh the cost of financing. Consider factors like the institution's reputation, the quality of education, and the potential for internships or job placements.

Future Financial Plans :

Self-funding may offer more flexibility and fewer financial obligations if you intend to pursue higher education or make significant financial commitments post-graduation. On the other hand, student loans may limit your financial choices.

title: Conclusion : student loan, content: The decision between self-funding and student loans to study abroad is complex. It requires thoroughly assessing your financial situation, risk tolerance, and long-term goals.

Self-funding offers the advantage of independence and graduating debt-free, while student loans provide the means to pursue your dreams when financial resources are limited. Remember to consider the interest rates, repayment terms, and potential return on investment when making your decision.

Ultimately, prioritise your financial well-being and choose the best option with your circumstances and aspirations.

title: Edutainment

, content: Edutainment comes from the words "education" and "entertainment." It refers to any form of entertainment that is educational. Edutainment startup aims to make the learning process smooth by engaging students and young learners mostly aged 15 and below with fun and memorable experiences through smartphones and other internet-connected devices, virtual reality-powered tools and other gamified digital learning content.

Mumbai-based Ontamo Entertainment has developed Ria Rabbit, an animated cartoon from Pashu Nagari, India, for kids in the age group of 0-6. It is India's first age-appropriate, culturally relevant home-grown intellectual property (IP) content for children. Their storytelling animated videos, audios and picture books engage the attention of kids while building the sense of Indian values which parents would want to inculcate in them through these characters.

Another startup, SP RoboticsWorks has developed a platform wherein concepts are taught using animation videos and real-world examples. It has established more than 83 dedicated centers across India called SP Robotics Maker Labs which offers courses in Robotics, Internet of Things (IOT), Image Processing, Virtual Reality (VR) and more, both in the online and offline Smart-Class mode.

Similarly, Paper Boat Apps Pvt Ltd has launched Kiddopia, a subscription-based pre-school edutainment app, which teaches a variety of skills to kids. It covers everything from Math, Language Skills, GK and Social Skills to Creativity and Self-expression by engaging kids with its visuals as well as fun and exciting gameplay.

Similarly, Panda & Wolf Holding created a mobile-gaming app Eco-warrior for children between the age of 6 - 11. It uses game-based learning to teach children about waste sorting and recycling. Through an engaging storyline and immersive stages, the app informs young users about issues plaguing the environment like deforestation, waste pollution and overconsumption.

Mumbai-based startup Shirsa Media Labs offers an app NewsPIK which is a digital newspaper for children. The Shirsa team creates news articles, events, quizzes and other information, so children are aware of the world around them. It stimulates young minds and keeps them informed.

In this pandemic situation where education has gone online, startups are combining the concepts of education and entertainment to offer children interactive learning experience.

title: Enhance Your Investment Strategy With Bond And Earnings Yields, content: While determining your equity and debt investment strategy, turn to bond and earnings yield for guidance.

title: Bond Yield, content: Bond yield is the return an investor earns on a bond, typically expressed as a percentage of its face value. It is influenced by factors like the bond's interest rate (coupon), current market price, and time to maturity. Yields help investors assess the attractiveness and risk of the bond investment.

title: Earnings Yield, content: The earnings yield represents the percentage of earnings an investor can expect to receive for each rupee invested in the stock. A higher earnings yield indicates a potentially better value investment, as it implies a higher return relative to the stock's price.

title: Exploring the world of chat gpt, content: Dear Reader, Let's talk about the app which took just 5 days to reach 1 million online users. We would call it FOMO if we don't hear or know about Chat GPT amongst our peers or colleagues, and our newsletter is no exception. For starters, when asked chat GPT to talk about itself it says, "I am ChatGPT, a language model developed by Open AI. I was trained on a vast corpus of text data, including books, articles, and websites, using deep learning algorithms to learn the structure and patterns of language. As a language model, my primary function is to generate human-like responses to natural language input. I am capable of answering a wide range of questions, from the trivial to the complex, and can engage in conversations on a variety of topics." According to Drift's 2021 State of Conversational Marketing report, 74% of companies want to implement conversational Artificial Intelligence tools with machine learning abilities to streamline workflow and Chat GPT has opened its door to unlimited industry use cases. Applications can range from across usage by marketers for creative content copywriting, customer grievance bot for corporates, an alternate search engine for people who prefer conversational and single response, tutoring across in multiple languages, a virtual assistant by automating mundane tasks and many more. The National Language Translation Mission of the Indian Government, Bhashini, is striving to develop a WhatsApp chatbot that utilizes Chat GPT technology to furnish information and respond to inquiries concerning significant government schemes. An approximate of 150 million farmers are expected to gain advantages from this endeavour. A comprehensive dataset sourced from the public is being established, which includes various Indian languages, allowing customers to use voice notes to ask questions effortlessly and receive responses in their native tongue. While Chat GPT claims to give natural human-like responses, the bot cannot answer questions pertaining to recent developments because the knowledge data set is updated till 2021, which raises a question about the bot's accuracy. The question is also on the ownership of copyright of the response provided, which gives search engines an advantage since they provide citations. All said and done, this AI-powered language model has definitely been a head turner, catching the attention of tech giants such as Microsoft, Google, and Meta with its lightning-fast processing speed and uncanny ability to converse. title: Options, content: An Option offers the buyer/holder the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell a specified amount of the underlying asset at an agreed rate on or before a specified future date. This arrangement, by natural extension, puts the obligation, not the right, to buy or sell the underlying asset at the pre-determined price at a specified future date. For the right to exercise the option, the buyer pays the seller/writer a premium, which is called the option price.

Option may either be a Call Option or a put option. Under the Call Option, the buyer has the right to buy the underlying asset whereas, under the Put Option the buyer enjoys the right to sell the underlying asset.

Among the various types of Options are the Interest Rate Options (Bonds Option, caps, Floors, Collars etc.) and Currency Options. Interest Rate Option offers the buyer the right, not the obligation, to fix at a point of time in the future, either the interest rate on a notional deposit or loan or the price of an instrument. With such instruments, buyer is protected against an adverse interest rate movement while retaining the ability to benefit from a favourable movement. A Currency Option gives the buyer the right, not the obligation, to exchange two currencies at a fixed rate at a future point of time. Under this type of Option buyer's downside risk is eliminated while retaining the unlimited upside potential.

title: Features of Debit Card
, content: Debit card benefits and features that are most significant to a common user are:

Convenience, cash withdrawal from ATM, or payment through a card, both in-person or online Allows spending within the capacity
You know your spending limit
Overdraft option, which helps you to spend even when your account has low cash Rewards points add up
These are secure cards

title: Advantages of Debit Cards
, content: The debit card is digital cash or the alternative to traditional cash. If you have money in the bank, your debit card is accordingly powered with spending capacity. Let us go through the advantages together.

Debit cards can be easily obtained

These cards are linked with savings account and current account and are issued with every new account. Once the account is opened, the account holder must request a debit card. The bank issues the debit card physically at the address mentioned by the account holder, along with the PIN (Personal Identification Number).

Very convenient to use

A cash alternative, debit cards can be conveniently used to make ATM withdrawals and deposits. These cards can be used as contactless and swiped at PoS. You can easily make online payments by entering your card details.

No more debts

Debit cards have all the advantages of a credit card without functioning on credit. A debit card uses funds from your account and acts like a bank account card. You need to be mindful of having the spending balance in your account when using a debit card. If there is not enough balance, the card will inform you of the same.

Safety

Another strong feature of debit cards is their safety. The debit card comes with a magnetic bar, or a digital chip, both of which augment its safety. The card has a PIN which adds safety during transactions. The cards are directly linked to the account and the registered mobile number of the account holder. Each time a transaction takes place, the user receives a security PIN, without which a transaction remains incomplete. These layers of safety checks make this banking instrument highly dependable.

Readily accepted

Debit cards are accepted everywhere within the country and internationally. Supported by international card networks Visa, and Mastercard, the account holder needs to inform their bank to enable its international usage.

Alternative to Cash

Debit cards are alternative cash cards. Linked to the account, you pay for purchases through this card both online and in person. You can also withdraw cash from an ATM through debit cards.

Immediate Transfer of Funds

Online money transfers can be made from a debit card safely. Money can be sent to the account of the merchant when online payment transactions are done. No manual intervention is required.

Instant Withdrawal of Cash

Cardholders can withdraw cash instantly from Automated Teller Machine (ATM)

Cardholders can insert the card in the slot of the ATM

Select from the screen the preferred language

Enter the 4-digit PIN

Select the transaction type

Enter the amount you want to withdraw Collect the cash and card with the printed receipt

Can Build A Credit Score

Debit cards do not affect credit scores as they do not involve borrowers. As the funds are deducted from one's savings, there will be no positive or negative effect on the credit score.

title: Are there any disadvantages to using a Debit Card?

, content: Now that you have learnt about the advantages of debit cards, there are a few disadvantages of debit cards that you should know.

No credit allowed

Debit cards use the funds from the account holder's savings and do not work on credit.

Additional fees on ATM withdrawals

The Reserve Bank of India regulates three free ATM financial and non-financial transactions each on debit cards from non-affiliate ATM counters exceeding which is chargeable.

No grace periods

Debit cards use funds from the account of the account holder, not like credit cards. When using credit cards, you use credit funds disposable in your account.

Potential fraud

Debit cards are the responsibility of financial institutions that protect customers from impending fraud. Customers are informed about potentially fraudulent transactions. Customers should keep themselves updated with the latest safety guidelines issued by their bank.

Debit card fees

Banks charge a nominal annual fee on debit card issuing and maintenance. The fee is automatically debited from the account of the account holder.

title: Things to Avoid while using Debit Card

, content: When using the debit card, keep an eye on the account balance

Limit using out-of-network ATMs to three times, or you will be charged

Debit cards have limits, so you cannot use them for very expensive purchases

If the account is joint, you must be extra vigilant while tracking debit

Never write the PIN on the card or divulge the PIN or CVV on your card even to the bank

Guard your debit card from theft

Notify the bank in case of a loss

Using a contactless chip-enabled technology is safer title: What to look for in a Debit Card

, content: The debit card is issued by the bank against your savings or current account

A person can hold multiple debit cards linked to multiple accounts

Some banks charge for debit cards while others give them free with the account

Withdrawing money from non-affiliated ATMs is liable to a fee

If the debit card is lost, you must inform your bank immediately for fast and effective action title: Conclusion : Debit Card, content: Most debit card users get so used to title: What are the Benefits of Demat Account?

, content: In 1997, the Indian stock exchanges transitioned to using Demat accounts. Before this, stock and share transactions had to be recorded on paper and completed in person using actual stock certificates.

Today, anyone can purchase and sell shares of stock and other items electronically using a Demat account, eliminating the need for bureaucracy and documentation.

A person's portfolio of financial assets, including stocks, ETFs, bonds, and mutual funds, may be kept in one convenient location, thanks to a Demat (short for 'Dematerialisation') account. Opening a Demat account is the first and foremost necessity for anybody interested in investing or trading in stock markets. With Demat accounts, share trading has become a simple, safe, and quick procedure.

This article discusses the function, benefits, and features of a Demat account along with why one needs a demat account.

title: Features of Demat Account

, content: Now that one has a fair idea of what is a demat account, it's time to look at some key features highlighting the importance of Demat accounts:

Quick Access: A Demat account provides convenient access to all the investments and statements through net banking, ensuring easy tracking and management.

Hassle-free Dematerialization: With the assistance of a depository participant (DP), physical share certificates can be converted into electronic form and vice versa, making the process of dematerialization seamless.

Effortless Share Transfers: Transfer of shares has become significantly easier and time-saving with the utilization of Demat accounts, eliminating the need for physical paperwork and delays.

Enhanced Liquidity: Demat accounts have simplified the process of selling shares, making it faster and more convenient to convert shares into cash, thereby improving liquidity.

title: Benefits of Demat Account

, content: The following are some of the advantages of creating a Demat account:

1. No Paper Certificates

Shares were first issued on paper, but with the advent of Demat accounts, they are now digitally represented and traded electronically. Investors who had already acquired shares were saddled with several certificates representing those shares. There was a high risk of these copies being lost or damaged, and the transfer processes were time-consuming. The introduction of Demat account computerised the entire process, saving a ton of time and effort.

2. Easy to Put Away

There is no limit to the number of shares that can be held in a Demat account. Investors can monitor your stock holdings and execute large trades with ease.

Demat accounts can also be used for the speedy transfer of shares.

3. Easy Access

Simply using a mobile device or computer, anyone can view and handle their portfolio whenever and wherever they choose. Investing for long-term financial stability is now simpler and more accessible than ever before with the help of a Demat account.

4. Nomination

The ability to nominate a beneficiary is another perk of a Demat account. Nominations must be made by the procedures established by the depository. In the event of the investor's death, the shares in the account will be transferred to the beneficiary.

5. International Transactions

Earlier, it would have been difficult for NRIs to trade in Indian stock exchanges. However, given the different Demat account types available, this is now possible. NRIs can opt for repatriable or non-repatriable Demat account types and buy or sell stock in NSE or BSE as they want.

title: Why Does One Need a Demat Account?

, content: Bonds, stock shares, treasury bills, mutual funds , and ETFs are just some of the many investment options available through a Demat account. When one purchases or sells the stock of a firm, the appropriate amount is credited to or debited from their Demat account, which functions similarly to a banking account.

This system helps simplify the share-trading process by disposing of tedious paperwork that is not essential. National Securities Depository Limited (NSDL) and Central Depository Services Limited (CDSL) are the two depositories responsible for monitoring all Demat accounts in India.

title: Tips to Choose the Best Demat Account for You

, content: 1. Verify if the monthly account fees are reasonable

There is an annual fee for keeping a Demat account open, regardless of the number of trades performed. Therefore, it's important to compare the costs of several Demat accounts before opening one.

2. Inquire about how to set up an account

The DP should make it easy and quick to create a Demat account. According to SEBI regulations, establishing a Demat account is a multi-step procedure. Using e-KYC, the DP may streamline the process.

3. Connect banking and Demat accounts

To facilitate the smooth movement of funds during the sale and purchase of shares and securities, DPs provide Demat accounts that double as trading accounts. Connecting the two accounts streamlines financial dealings and reduces costs.

4. Get personalized Demat account metrics from the DP

Earnings can be boosted using online analytics that can be tailored to the investor's specific shares, security, and investing preferences. When searching for the best Demat account, prioritize such features.

You may judge the DP's dedication to their customers by looking for indicators like a faster turnaround time (TAT) for share dematerialization.

title: Why choose Bank of Baroda's 3-in-1 Demat & Trading account?

, content: One of the most popular Demat platforms for trading stocks online is Bank of Baroda's Demat facility. Demat accounts have been provided by Indian banks since 1996. Bank of Baroda was founded in Gujarat, India, more than a century ago, and it has been expanding ever since. Today, it ranks as India's third-largest public sector bank. Around 10,000 domestic and international branches make up the bank's global footprint. This makes the bank a global financial institution.

One can open a Demat account with the Bank of Baroda and deposit electronic copies of their certificates in the account. All deals involving monetary instruments are digitally and electronically processed over the internet. Among the various Demat account types, a 3-in-1 demat account type is unique because it combines the functionalities of Demat, trading and savings accounts .

title: Can I open a Demat account without opening a trading account?

, content: An individual can have a Demat account even if they do not wish to open a trading account. However, if you do not have access to an online broking account or a Demat account, you will be limited to making IPO investments and will not be able to purchase or sell shares through the stock market.

title: Is the Demat account part of a 3-in-1 account?

, content: A '3-in-1' Demat account combines the features of a 'Demat account' and a 'trading account' to make it easier for traders to buy and sell stocks and keep track of their funds (savings account). The Demat portion of a 3-in-1 account must be associated with either CDSL or NSDL, the country's two national depositories.

title: What is the minimum balance for a Demat account?

, content: The minimum deposit required to start a Demat account ranges from zero rupees to five hundred, depending on the DP you choose.

title: Benefits of Fixed Deposit

, content: The following are the benefits of fixed deposits -

Assured Rate of Return: The major reason why people prefer investing their funds in a fixed deposit is the assured rate of return. Once you invest your funds in a fixed deposit account, you can be guaranteed of receiving the stated rate of return. Banks also have a fixed deposit interest calculator on their websites where a customer can calculate the interest, he will receive on investing a particular sum of money for a particular period.

Tax Threshold for Interest: Banks are not mandated to deduct tax on any interest until it crosses the cap as per income tax guidelines. This provides comfort to small deposit holders.

Flexible Tenure: The tenure for a fixed deposit is flexible and depends on the deposit holder. Each bank has their own minimum tenure rules however, the final decision can be taken by the deposit holder. It is also possible to decide whether to redeem the fixed deposit or to extend it for the same period.

Easy Liquidation: It is relatively easy to liquidate a fixed deposit. For FDs booked online, they can be liquidated online via net banking as well. Otherwise, most bank branches have a form to liquidate the FD.

Loans Against Fixed Deposit: An FD is a dependable instrument to keep in case of financial emergencies. Taking a loan against a fixed deposit is very easy. You can take a loan up to 95% of the fixed deposit amount depending on the bank. This makes it a dependable investment.

title: Disadvantages of Fixed Deposit

, content: Reducing Interest Rates: Even though fixed deposits have a lot of advantages; the interest rates do not move in line with inflation. This means in some cases; they may actually earn less than the inflation rate. The interest rates for fixed deposits have been falling in recent times which has reduced the attractiveness of this investment.

Locked in Funds: Fixed deposits lock in your funds for a fixed duration. These funds are not available for you to use unless you withdraw the funds prematurely. Fixed deposits are not at all liquid and cannot be converted into cash easily.

Penalties on Withdrawal: Banks charge penalty to the depositors who withdraw their fixed deposits prematurely. This penalty is in the form of a reduced rate of interest.

No Tax Benefit: The interest earned on fixed deposit is added to the taxable income of the deposit holder. There is no deduction on any interest earned. However, senior citizens get a deduction up to Rs. 50,000 on interest.

Fixed Interest Rate: The rate of interest on a fixed deposit remains the same for the entire duration of the fixed deposit. Even if the rates increase, the bank does not pay additional interest to the deposit holder title: Conclusion, content: After looking at the advantages and disadvantages of a fixed deposit account, it is clear that this is an instrument for people who do not have much of a risk appetite. If you're a person who likes to see fixed income in his account, then this is the instrument for you. The earnings from this form of investment are limited. However, banks have a sweep in facility where excess funds from a savings account can be diverted to a fixed deposit until the customer needs these funds. By enabling this feature, you can increase the returns from your fixed deposit account.

title: Features of Recurring Deposit Account, content: A recurring deposit account is an excellent investment option, especially for those who may not have a large amount to invest. There are several benefits of investing into a recurring deposit account which are as follows:

title: AI and Fintech: A Match Made in Heaven?, content: In recent years, there has been a rapid rise in the use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in the financial technology(fintech) industry. From automated investment platforms to fraud detection systems, AI has revolutionized the way financial services are delivered and managed. AI in fintech refers to the use of machine learning algorithms and other AI technologies to streamline financial processes, improve customer experiences, and reduce operational costs. With the increasing availability of data and advancements in machine learning algorithms, AI has become a gamechanger for the financial industry providing institutions with valuable insights on customer behaviour, market trends, and investment opportunities.

title: Insights from the Infinite Mind: Exploring the World of Chat GPT,

content: Let's talk about the app which took just 5 days to reach 1 million online users. We would call it FOMO if we don't hear or know about Chat GPT amongst our peers or colleagues, and our newsletter is no exception. For starters, when asked chat GPT to talk about itself it says, "I am ChatGPT, a language model developed by Open AI. I was trained on a vast corpus of text data, including books, articles, and websites, using deep learning algorithms to learn the structure and patterns of language. As a language model, my primary function is to generate human-like responses to natural language input. I am capable of answering a wide range of questions, from the trivial to the complex, and can engage in conversations on a variety of topics."

title: Catalyzing Finance for a nature-positive growth, content: It has never been more important to take immediate, real-time action to combat climate change. Many people use social media as a source of inspiration for adopting a sustainable lifestyle such as the Netflix series "Our Planet" narrated by David Attenborough, TED talks and inspiring speeches by climate activists such as Greta Thunberg, Leonardo DiCaprio, and William Nordhaus illustrate how the planet can become uninhabitable over time if we do not take steps to stop it.

title: Voice Payments: The future of Payment technology, content: Voice payments is a process of paying, transferring and receiving money from individuals using voice command where you speak to a AI powered device such as speaker or smartphone for making payments. The process of setting up a voice payment account is very similar to that of paying through any online wallet. Once the payment app is opened on the device, the device will recognize your request, process the payment and respond with confirmation. This technology comes from the advancements made in artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML) where it utilizes Natural language processing (NLP), a branch of AI that allows computers to learn, understand, respond, and produce content in human languages. It works closely with voice recognition engines where human speech is converted from analog to digital form which is being used in Google Assistant, Amazon's Alexa or Apple's Siri.

title: BFSI at 5G Speed, content: 5G will bridge our hyperconnected world to the future of digital transformation as the next generation of wireless data networks. It brings new bandwidth available at rates two to ten times faster than 4G, resulting in a huge expansion of the information superhighway.

title: The future of Buildings - Self Repairing Houses, content: Home ownership can be a drag. It's expensive and maintenance is time consuming. Today we rely on concrete and steel to build our world, but these materials are difficult to produce, transport, and assemble, and they eventually wear out or break down.

title: Invisible Banking - Banking that you don't have to think about, content: Buy Now, Pay Later (BNPL) is a type of short-term financing that lets you pay in instalments by the end of the specified time period. There are quite a few online merchants and fintech companies in India offering BNPL as a convenient payment option and an excellent alternative to credit cards which includes ZestMoney, LazyPay, Simpl, Amazon Pay Later, Ola Money Postpaid, Paytm Postpaid, Flexmoney, EPayLater, Capital Float, etc. By offering no-cost EMIs and being accessible, and transparent, BNPL is all set to revolutionize the lending landscape, especially for young adults. A new report released by financial technology company FIS says BNPL is India's fastest-growing online payment method. By 2025, BNPL is expected to contribute 8.6% of e-commerce market value, up from just 3% in 2021. BNPL loans may be dispensed on pre-paid instruments, wallets or bank accounts, powering commerce across a large number of merchants who would have been acquired and enabled by banks and networks. The cost of actual delivery of credit cards into rural towns will be around Rs. 250-300, and also credit activation rate is 20% now, but in the case of BNPL, the cost is negligible. Taking BNPL beyond the online channel could play an important role in its growth trajectory and opportunities for credit access which are particularly low for young people and new-to-credit customers, who struggle due to a lack of credit histories and track records for lenders to assess and manage risk. The physical card form factor allows customers to use the digital credit line across touch points. Regulation is also driving collaborations between fintechs, traditional banks and NBFCs. The report of the RBI working group on digital lending, released in November 2021, recommended that BNPL financing should be treated as balance sheet lending. "Since these products do not meet the requirements of traditional credit facilities, a suitable notification may be issued by the Government of India in this regard," the report said. As a result, new-age lenders are choosing to work with their tightly-regulated counterparts to grow the market. Banks, NBFCs and card networks play a vital role in enabling fintechs to deliver BNPL solutions. A large number of fintechs have the ability to underwrite credit using AI/ML (artificial intelligence/machine learning) models. However, these loans may be based on capital from NBFC, banks or their own capital in some cases. With UPI credit, Buy Now Pay Later (BNPL), and branchless banking, the roadmap towards inclusion will be significantly accelerated. With Regards, Akhil Handa Chief Digital Officer Bank of Baroda title: Banking in Metaverse, content: For the uninitiated, Metaverse is fundamentally a virtual, 3D space for people to interact with one another and with businesses. There are various definitions floating in the market and as per Statista, the metaverse is a virtual space that allows digital representations of people, avatars, to interact with each other in a variety of settings, using virtual reality (VR) headsets, augmented reality (AR) glasses, smartphone apps, or other devices. The global Metaverse revenue opportunity could approach $800 billion in 2024 vs. about $500 billion in 2020, based on Bloomberg's analysis and Newzoo, IDC, PWC, Statista and Two Circles data. The Metaverse idea has been touted to have immense potential as it could be applied to just about anything. Talking about the banking sector, Korean banks have been the first to explore the opportunities that Metaverse has to offer with Korean banks such as Hana and Woori having launched their branches in the metaverse setting. For enhanced customer engagement, KB Kookmin Bank has created KB Financial Town on metaverse platform Gather. The town consists of Financial and Business centre, Telecommuting centre and a playground. The first part has been prepared as a virtual branch where the customers can move with their avatars and talk to their banking advisers through video chat that will automatically start as soon as they stand in front of the latter. The bank also plans to use the virtual branch for educating young people on finance as well as training their employees. Although this may sound like something that is still future-looking, but Financial Institutions are increasing gearing up for the virtual world. Last October, Bank of America has launched virtual reality (VR) training in nearly 4,300 financial centres across USA. This will allow approximately 50,000 employees to practice a range of routine to complex tasks and simulate client interactions through a virtual environment. In metaverse, digital banks will be in the right position to begin facilitating transactions in the environment. For example, the digital Bank viz. Mercobank, based in UK, has begun putting strategies to develop virtual environments for enabling its customers to access banking services online and manage financial transactions in the metaverse, "similar to real life." We believe that while traditional financial institutions may not be the primary players in the Metaverse, the technology will gradually gain popularity. When it does, finance will be a significant part of its operations and how it generates value, both for individuals and organizations. Highlights of Issue 5 of FinTalk are: • Our Home title: Beyond Organic, consider Hydroponic, content: With climate change becoming a prime concern for the world alongside other contemporary world environmental issues and the Indian government's mission to dramatically increase the incomes of our farmers, we are presented with yet another opportunity for a revolution. And this revolution can come in the form of hydroponic farming for not just agricultural communities but also urban dwellers struggling in the relatively worse-off environment situation in the cities. Hydroponics is a contemporary method of horticulture or growing plants, usually farm produce, without using soil. In this method, the crops are grown on water, rich in essential micro and macronutrients. According to studies, plants grown hydroponically grow faster and healthier than plants in the soil, since they are provided nutrients directly to their roots through the water in the form of an aqueous solvent, and not through the soil. Several startups in India are using this technique to produce organic food in the obvious lack of land availability considering the expense of buying a large piece of land for business. These are startups that are also helping urban inhabitants build urban gardens in limited spaces. Leveraging technology to grow high-quality, low-cost vegetables for the masses while promoting a healthier way of living, Eeki Foods is a venture by IIT alumni that provides nutritious and residue-free vegetables at affordable prices all year round. A wholesale hydroponic, organic gardening and wellness product distribution company, with a focus on integrating sustainable and moral concepts into a modern economic model. Acqua Farms is helping urban Indians grow their own food using the limited material available for farming activities in an urban setting with a starter kit. They also offer larger planter systems with 24, 48, 72, 96, and 1,000 depending on the user's demands, a subscription-based service to individuals who are unfamiliar with hydroponics, in which they assign the customer an agronomist who takes care of their plants and monitors them once a week for a monthly charge. Urban Kissan, another startup aims to incorporate the 'In My Backyard' concept into sustainable farming. With the Urban Kissan's assistance and supervision, you can now grow fresh food such as lettuce, herbs, greens, and exotic veggies all year. They may be grown everywhere, from rooftops to balconies. As more startups are sure to come into the hydroponics space, Urban farming will pick pace in India and indeed around the world. What is needed is for rural agriculture, the primary agriculture, to also make use of this method that does not require high-end technology but provides environmental as well as economic benefits. The country which has been feeding the world, not just in the way of exports but in the sense that India makes 1/6th of the world, should garb on to this innovation for the collective benefit of the world. credit : Akhil Handa title: Cloud kitchen Startups on Cloud9, content: The F&B industry is poised for transformation due to technology shifts, changing consumer habits, and rising disposable incomes. Cloud kitchens are one such emerging segment gaining popularity & it is expected to gain more traction as Gen Zs enters the market. Cloud kitchens are delivery-only restaurants where the preparation + packaging of food takes place while operating at a fraction of the costs incurred by traditional restaurant establishments (rentals, decor, equipment, & wait staff can be saved while operating virtual cloud kitchen brands). Simply put, a cloud kitchen is a 4-walled kitchen structure from where food is dispatched to customers who're ordering from their offices or homes. Consumers place their orders via food delivery aggregators such as Zomato, Swiggy, or direct-ordering platforms such as DotPe, Thrive, etc. These orders are then accepted on POS Systems such as Posify, Posist, & Limetray. In the end, direct orders are fulfilled via third-party logistics (3PL) providers such as WeFast, Dunzo, Pidge & others. Foodtech & cloud kitchens are highly scalable, profitable, & asset light compared to traditional F&B concepts. Consequently, their investments & ROIs have reached record highs in 2021 and are expected to grow to a $4 billion industry in India by 2024, up from $1 billion in 2021. The restaurants without physical stores, which only deliver and operate through cloud kitchens, could outpace growth of physical outlets in the next 12 months, despite the reopening of dine-in. Rebel Foods, an Indian startup which is also backed by Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and Sequoia Capital, entered the Unicorn club to achieve a billion-dollar valuation after securing $175 million in a funding round led by the sovereign wealth fund Qatar Investment Authority. It said it's growing at 100% annually and moving toward profitability with an annual run rate of over $150 million. It operates more than 45 brands from Behrouz Biryani to Ovenstory Pizza and Faasos wraps across 10 countries including India, Indonesia, the United Arab Emirates and Malaysia. Founded by Kiran Prasad, Hygiene BigBite pivoted to a multi-brand cloud kitchen model in 2017 which has raised $15 million from Falcon Edge. It currently operates 10 brands – including Gunpowder and Biryani Trip – across 50 kitchens. Cloud kitchens will continue to gain the edge by accelerating cost-savings and margins by leveraging trends like kitchen automation, drone delivery, the gig economy, and rising real estate costs in urban areas. The myriad models are peaking investor interest in the F&B space and when it comes to innovation in this space, we have seen only the tip of the iceberg yet! Credit : Akhil Handa title: Wintelligence, content: Till recently, methods that wine makers used to decide upon to produce have been mostly subjective. Without proper information, it was mostly a guess work. The wine industry is one of the oldest in the world and has dived into modern technological innovations to optimize production and save costs. Artificial intelligence is assisting vineyards world over from soil analysis to customer wine selection and pricing decisions. Technology is heavily influencing the value chain. According to the International Organisation of Vine and Wine, wine production reached a record level of 293 million hectolitres in 2018. As per a report by Zion Market Research, global wine market is expected to generate revenue of around USD 423.59 billion by the end of 2023, growing at a CAGR of around 5.8% between 2017 and 2023. In Australia, GAIA (Geospatial Artificial Intelligence for Agriculture) uses AI software and a satellite image library to plot every vineyard in the country. GAIA is a cloudbased, automated solution for vineyard identification and mapping. Deep learning neural networks are responsible for GAIA's ability to identify features of vegetation, and allow it to continuously improve. GAIA improves classification of vineyards and crop conditions by analysing the data it collects through deep neural networks. Developed via a European Union research consortium, vineyard-monitoring robot Vinescout, uses an array of technologies for wine selection. VineScout utilizes an infrared sensor and a multispectral camera to respectively measure the temperature of plant leaves and the amount of water contained within the plants to let growers know if the plants are getting enough water, along with their current level of maturity and robustness. Ailytic, a South Australian tech company, has developed an AI software to collect data from production and use it to analyze variables such as temperature and inventory. Then it generates an optimal production schedule based on the analysis, allowing companies to maximize their time and money. Tastry, a sensory sciences company based in California, uses machine learning to teach artificial intelligence to "taste" – and this technology is shaking up the wine industry. Tastry's technology decodes aroma and flavor profiles by chemically analyzing thousands of wines in their lab. Then Tastry identifies the unique consumer palate of each individual that takes a quiz in a store or on their app. Modern technology is changing the way we consume our wine. Tech is at play at the back end for the production process and in the front helping us make better wine choices Credit : Akhil Handa title: Balancing control and flexibility a FinTech Startup would want to offer, content: FinTech startups will have a very fine line between moving from the old school way and the trust factor. Banks are now moving towards the path of digital transformations and bringing in new technologies with the intent on building leaner, faster, cheaper products than traditional banks. Brands have been created to be approachable and emotionally engaging, differing from the more traditional bank's approach that Indian customer base is used to. Customers do not want opaque financial institutions, rather they like customized services, more transparency, more mobility, flexible banking, lower fees and faster transactions. And now customers are spoilt with choices in the market. But the challenge as this evolves is how you stand out, while gaining people's trust. People have to be able to remember your name and who you are, but also trust you with their money. 1. Keep it simple and clean: Now that it's a new change to adapt, it should not be jargon. People need to understand clearly who you are, what you offer and why they should care. You need to be quick and simple to understand. 2. Know Your Customer: Understanding your customer, designing and delivering the value that matters most to customers is the key for the success of your product. In case of a diverse mass customer base, you can quickly get a 'map' of your audience's life and world, and make sure all product decisions, features and communications are guided towards fitting in easily there. 3. Right attention to touch points: Small touches of delight you add, on top of the basics, make your experience more memorable and, thereby, more sticky. Building stickiness or virality into the design of your products and onboarding experience has more power than any amount of content marketing. 4. Nurturing partnerships: As more technology companies spring up, covering a wide base of offers, becoming the preferred partner in your category is essential. This means cultivating a community and partnership strategy as soon as possible in your lifecycle. As the competition for banking services intensifies, FinTech startups will have to take more bold steps to set themselves apart in the market. Agile, fast, and focused execution are quintessential for success. credits : Akhil Handa title: Your Digital Stylist, content: Dear Reader, Fashion is one of the most challenging fields, highly impacted by global economic uncertainty as well as distinct trends and industrial changes. In response to the pressure for growth and cost efficiency, many brands have started a series of initiatives to improve their speed to market and to implement sustainable innovation. As evident during the pandemic, the need to adapt and overcome has been paramount for fashion brands to survive. Brick-and-mortar fashion companies are feeling the pain augmented by Covid-19. Mall-based retailers reportedly saw earnings plunge 256% in Q2 2020, according to Coresight Research and over 12,000 US stores closed in 2020, according to real estate company CoStar Group, up from 10,000 stores the year before. One exciting innovation in the fashion industry has been the introduction of AI-based digital stylists and chatbots, that can give feedback to customers on outfit choices or suggest alternatives if required. For example, Stylesnap is an AI-powered feature built into the Amazon app that help you find looks you love quickly and easily. Take a photograph or screenshot of an outfit, upload it onto the Amazon app, and you'll be presented with items that look just like the ones in the picture. Even Facebook is experimenting with an AI system of its own called Fashion++. The software uses AI to analyse a person's outfit and suggest subtle alterations that it thinks could improve the look, like rolling up the sleeves or removing an accessory. Israel-based Syte offers retailers and brands a camera button that can be added next to the search bar on a mobile website or app. Shoppers can upload images of their favorite styles through the button, and then see looks "inspired by" those images on the brand's site. Syte counts a number of high-profile brands among its clients, including Tommy Hilfiger, Myntra, and Kohl's. Even luxury brands are testing digital stylists in select markets: Prada, for example, has introduced a "personalized concierge" chatbot for its relaunched Chinese website. Fashion-tech company Style.me provides virtual styling solutions, and has recently launched a powerful plugin that can integrate a 3D virtual fitting room to any online retail website. Recently, Fashion Innovation Agency has introduced digital human stylists (DHS) that is powered by Microsoft AI, IoT and natural language processing. It can understand what's in your wardrobe, what's in your calendar, where you're going, allowing personal recommendations that are visually and verbally communicated back to the user within your own home. With the customers' lives becoming progressively entwined with the digital world, it is imperative that brands in Fashion Industry start embracing the latest technologies to push their limits of manufacturing, marketing and wearability. credits : Akhil Handa Aparna Anand title: Disaster Management, content: Dear Reader, We are living in the midst of a revolution. Supervised learning, a branch of Machine learning allows engineers to develop models that can train themselves. In turn, these models are helping solve crisis management problems before disaster strikes. Technologists have long modeled data to harness machine learning for disaster relief. After the Chernobyl crisis, scientists analyzed satellite imagery and weather data to track the flow of radiation from the reactor. Today's algorithms far outpace their predecessors in analytic and predictive powers. Machine learning models are able to deliver more granular predictions. NASA has developed the Landslide Hazard Assessment for Situational Awareness (LHASA) Model. Data from the Global Precipitation Measurement (GPM) is fed into LHASA in three-hour intervals. If a landslide-prone area is experiencing heavy rain, LHASA then issues a warning. Analysts then channel that information to the appropriate agencies, providing near-real-time risk assessments. Roofing material is a major risk factor in resilience to natural disasters. So, a model that can predict it is also one that can predict which buildings are most at risk during an emergency. In Guatemala, models are identifying "soft-story" buildings—those most likely to collapse during an earthquake. "Forecast funding" can mitigate damage by providing the most vulnerable with cash assistance to prepare for disaster. Bangladesh and Nepal are nations that are already implementing this strategy. Natural disasters, such as earthquakes, hurricanes and floods affect large areas and millions of people, but responding to such disasters is a massive logistical challenge. Crisis responders, including governments, NGOs, and UN organizations, need fast access to comprehensive and accurate assessments in the aftermath of disasters to plan how best to allocate limited resources. To help mitigate the impact of such disasters, Google in partnership with the United Nations World Food Program (WFP) Innovation Accelerator has created "Building Damage Detection in Satellite Imagery Using Convolutional Neural Networks", which details a machine learning (ML) approach to automatically process satellite data to generate building damage assessments. As per Google this work has the potential to drastically reduce the time and effort required for crisis workers to produce damage assessment reports. In turn, this would reduce the turnaround times needed to deliver timely disaster aid to the most severely affected areas, while increasing the overall coverage of such critical services. The World Food Programme was awarded the 2020 Nobel Peace Prize and they thanked Google and its team of engineers in pioneering the development of artificial intelligence to revolutionise humanitarian operations. The application of machine learning techniques to satellite imagery is revolutionizing disaster relief. Crisis maps and image comparisons are helping relief organizations to deliver aid with precision. Credits : Akhil Handa Prithwiji Ghosh title: Zero Gravity Fridge, content: Dear Reader, Thinking of a household kitchen without a refrigerator in it is almost impossible. Astronauts have been going to space since 1961, and have to eat canned and dried food that have only three years of shelf life as they still don't have a refrigerator that can work in space. The simple reason being, refrigerators rely on gravity to distribute oil through the compressor system that regulates temperature, so in space these systems don't work or break down quickly. Now, In a project funded by NASA, a team of engineers from Purdue University, Air Squared, and Whirlpool are building a prototype that can operate just as well in outer space as it does on Earth. The team of researchers is building a refrigerator that can keep food cold on longer missions in space, at zero gravity. It is aimed at giving astronauts a supply of food that could last five to six years. Even though fridge experiments have been made in space before, they either didn't work properly or eventually broke down. Cooling systems currently on the International Space Station are used for experiments and storing biological samples rather than for storing food, as they consume significantly more energy than on Earth. In a typical fridge, gravity helps to control the flow of liquid and vapour. Similarly, the oil lubrication system inside of a fridge's compressor is gravity-based. When bringing new technology into space, making the entire system reliable in zero gravity is the key challenge. The device is about the size of a microwave oven that can fit into the International Space Station's rack system and can store biological samples for science experiments. Purdue researchers also demonstrated that the refrigerator can operate in different orientations, even upside down, an important capability for the variable gravity of lunar and planetary missions. Overcoming the zero gravity problem and its effect on the flow of oil throughout the refrigerator has been addressed with the use of an oil-free scroll compressor developed by Colorado-based company, Air Squared, a specialist in oil-free scroll solutions. The compressor will be tested both in the prototype and in its larger, more instrumented counterpart built by Purdue researchers. The engineers have built three experiments to test the effects of microgravity on a new oil-free fridge design: a prototype for potential future use on the International Space Station, a setup for testing the prototype's vulnerability to liquid flooding and a larger version of the prototype with sensors and instruments to capture how gravity affects the vapour compression cycle. The team ran all the three experiments to test the machine in a specially-designed plane that flew in microgravity. They found that the refrigerator could operate in microgravity without any liquid flooding. The oil-free vapor-compressor inside the fridge addresses the concerns about their suitability in zero gravity. Thus, if we are to colonize Mars in the near future, it is safe to assume that we would have a ready prototype of a refrigerator for our households. Credits : Akhil Handa Clint James title: Road Network Management with AI, content: Dear Reader, The lack of road safety in India is increasingly becoming a matter of major concern. According to National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) data, India recorded around 4.3 lakh road accidents in 2019, which took the lives of 1.5 lakh people. Poor road infrastructure, encroachment, and increasing number of vehicles have contributed to the high number of road hazards in the country. The solution seems clear: real-time road monitoring and information collation about road infrastructure. New Delhi-based deep tech startup Nayan India Science and Technologies has developed a road safety and traffic monitoring solution that uses a camera, computer vision and artificial intelligence. The application constantly monitors roads, infrastructure, and traffic violation. The AI Powered algorithms analyse the video feeds and alert in case of violations, defects or dangers on the road. The B2B SaaS startup works with road transport authorities, insurance companies, private aggregators, public transportation fleets etc. to provide real world, last-mile analytics to better revenue channels. RoadMetrics is an AI-based solution that uses image and sensor data obtained from a simple smartphone to classify road defects, signs, traffic signals, street lights, etc. This road and street-level data helps enterprise mapping firms and smart city bodies with analytics on road networks and a better mapping experience. The data is sold through the API model as well as on a per km basis, depending on the geography for Smart Cities. Swedish start-up, Mapillary, acquired by Facebook, is the street-level imagery platform that scales and automates mapping using collaboration, cameras and computer vision. Mapillary's tools enable anyone to collect, share, and use street-level images which are combined for improving the city maps. US based RoadBotics automated inspections and generated actionable data about road networks, including identification of individual distresses like potholes and alligator cracks. Their detailed maps, unbiased ratings, and practical tools save time and taxpayer dollars for hundreds of communities across the country and around the world. As per IBEF ORG, India has the second-largest road network in the world, spanning a total of 5.89 million kilometres (kms). This road network transports 64.5% of all goods in the country and 90% of India's total passenger traffic uses road network to commute. Road transportation has gradually increased over the years with improvement in connectivity between cities, towns and villages in the country. In India, sale of automobiles and movement of freight by roads is growing at a rapid rate. The startups are focused in solving road network issues by using India's main asset - its huge population. title: Beauty Trends - 2021, content: Dear Reader, The global beauty industry (encompassing skin care, color cosmetics, hair care, fragrances, and personal care) has been shaken by the COVID-19 crisis. With months of lockdown, retail businesses closed and international travel ban, consumer's purchase and usage behaviour has witnessed a dramatic change leading to fall in sales across many beauty segments. Beauty sales declined as much as 30% in the first half of the year, according to a McKinsey report and even major brands took a blow. With more than a year under pandemic, brands are now working towards better ways to deal with the humongous shift in consumer values and expectations. In this effort, brands are adopting new technologies at a faster speed to redefine personalisation. Some companies such as L'Oréal offers AI powered at-home devices, which can measure user conditions, like the emergence of dark spots or surrounding environmental concerns, on a daily basis.

L'Oréal's Perso device accounts for this data to dispense custom-formulated makeup every day. Another company Atolla uses AI capabilities to customize facial serums for consumers by using data collected through quizzes and tests measuring oil, moisture, and pH levels. As per a CB Insights report, Johnson & Johnson, has invested in new engineered preservatives that could be used in items like haircare or body care products. The company invested in Curie Co, a startup that makes biomaterials to replace preservatives in everyday beauty and personal care products, through its JLABS incubator. Another apparent trend is BigTechs offering retail channel for beauty products. Amazon launched a private label beauty brand called Belei in 2019 and recently invested in India-based D2C beauty site MyGlamm. China-based tech giant Alibaba offers livestreaming and AR features which it has used to attract luxury beauty brands to its e-commerce platform. Virtual try-on tech leverages augmented reality to allow shoppers to test how different beauty products will look without actual trial. Remarkably, virtual try-on can also help brands personalize the beauty shopping experience, enhancing product discovery and making tailored recommendations about foundation shades, skincare products, and more. In December 2020, Google launched an AR-powered cosmetics try on tool in Google Search, partnering with brands like L'Oréal, Estée Lauder, MAC Cosmetics, and more to let users try on searched-for makeup products using front-facing mobile phone cameras. Going forward, we expect to see beauty brands and tech giants alike turn to virtual try-on to gather shopper data and make more personalized product recommendations.

title: Social Equality in Tech, content: Dear Reader, Why do we prize technology over everything else? Because it helps us solve problems as efficiently as possible. No one can predict from which gender, ethnicity or nationality the next great idea might come from. And the tech startup sector is a living embodiment of that. Moving to another part of the world for employment does pose a challenge. And since most tech jobs are located at specific hotspots, many talented workers always find themselves unemployed. Software as a Service products and services are enabling employers to find and employ talent from all over the world. Remote working, work from anywhere and digital nomadism are slowly becoming the new normal. Digital marketing firm Loganix understands the potential of having a diverse team. The company runs almost all its operations globally with teams of people from the US, Asia, Australia and Europe employees are dynamically moved between different teams, depending on requirements, allowing quick resolution of issues. Poor or different communication skills can fuel many workplace misunderstandings. And it costs quite a bit of time and money to learn a new language. The US Foreign Services Institute estimates that it takes on an average 480 hours to gain basic competence in languages. This was a problem that cloud-based tuition service Preply aimed to fix. The platform offers a place for both language tutors and students to collaborate easily and affordably. Tutors can create their profiles with rates, experience and number of languages spoken; and students can review their tutors, making it easy for other students to decide who to hire. Workers planning to move to another country can use such services to learn a new language far cheaper than attending a language school. HR teams can also hire tutors to educate employees who need to go abroad or new recruits from other countries. Social inequality isn't always about creed, gender or nationality. Entrepreneurs are usually handicapped due to high entry barriers in business. Indeed, the cost of acquiring customers is every bit the startup killer it is known to be. Oleg Campbell, a Ukrainian developer who bootstrapped his startup, Reply, to a $2 million a year company, certainly identifies with the struggle. Campbell's lack of sales experience stalled the growth of his first enterprise. Consequently, he focused his efforts on helping tech entrepreneurs overcome their lack of salesmanship with smarter tools. Reply's LinkedIn email finder is specifically for new companies looking for affordable, effective lead generation. Such a tool can help a user find email addresses of prospects on LinkedIn. Paired with LinkedIn's Sales Navigator, users can create highly personalized outreach messages for each prospect. The tech sector can, and should, be the leader at showcasing the advantages of diversity. By championing the cause of gender diversity through socially agnostic platforms, they are

title: Smart Farming, content: Dear Reader,&nbsp;&nbsp; Smart farming can be referred to as the 4.0 green revolution in the field of agriculture combining agriculture methodologies with technology &mdash; Sensors & Actuators, Information and Communication Technology (ICT), Internet of Things (IoT), Robotics and Drones to achieve desired efficiencies of production which are sustainable.According to a survey, 80% of farmers in US and 24% farmers in UK have already started using Smart Farming Tool (SFT). These numbers are cognizant of the fact that SFTs are adding value to the farming ecosystem. As far as the scale of operations is considered, Smart farming tools and techniques can be applied to large scale and&nbsp; on the other hand distributed conventional farming can be applied to focused small farming set of organic farms.Through remote sensing,&nbsp; smart farming system reduces waste, improves productivity and enables optimum resource management. For the benefit of micro farming, multiple crops are grown simultaneously on remote lands which require different care, manure, soil and water. By linking local sensors to smart irrigation and control, things like sensing pH balance of the soil, gauging local temperature is now possible through remote monitoring and sensing rather than walking the field all the time. This leads to increase in the yield as farmers can save on time and focus on the real issues of farming &mdash; pest control, irrigation and amending&nbsp; soil conditions&nbsp; all&nbsp; using&nbsp; sensing&nbsp; and&nbsp; automation.Companies like Robotics Plus, a startup with USD 10 million&nbsp; funding from Yamaha is planning to deploy its fruit plucking robots into production,&nbsp;while Ecorobotix with their Weed Zapping Robots have gained considerable momentum owing to the growth in Smart farming techniques.Precision farming system has a lot of dependency on the software management systems. Control systems manage sensory input, delivering remote data for supply and decision support, as well as automation of machines . Basically, it is a standardized business approach balancing the demand and supply side with respect to resource management.During production, it is mostly resource management from a growth and yield perspective. For instance, precision seeding uses automated tractors to reduce seed loss and seeding with proper space management between different plants. Another example is of precision water delivery.On the demand side, it is about demand forecasting and delivering goods just in time to reduce waste.India has always been an agrarian state, and traditional farming methods are manual and too labour intensive. Smart Farming can also provide great benefits in terms of environmental issues, for example, through more efficient use of water and optimisation of&nbsp; treatments and inputsCredits : Akhil Handa Clint James title: Floating Farms, content: Dear Reader,Tap a button on your phone and hop into the shower; walk downstairs 15 minutes later, and you have a fresh pot of coffee waiting for you. This is no longer just a fantasy for many people. The rise of the&nbsp;internet of things&nbsp;has allowed us to control remote appliances with just a tap of the touchscreen. Until now, the scale of these processes has largely been limited to personal devices: anything from brewing a pot of coffee to warming up your car on a frosty morning. But what if we could grow food for thousands of people, with that same tap of a button with &ldquo;Smart Floating Farms&rdquo;.Forward Thinking Architecture a Barcelona&nbsp;based firm&rsquo;s design comprises a multi-level agricultural farm that can be constructed, pushed out to sea, and left to work mostly on its own. The farm is designed to operate on three levels: a bottom level containing wave barriers, an aquaculture fish farm, a slaughterhouse, a packing facility and desalination plant; a second tier for hydroponic and aeroponic food production; and a rooftop level having skylights to let in light and photovoltaics to provide the energy required to power everything.Each level is roughly 750,000 square feet &ndash; with enough room to grow up to 8.1 tons of vegetables and 1.7 tons of fish per year. The architects estimate that this would cover the project&rsquo;s expenses within 10 years. And since the farms are modular, a few or many of these structures could be grouped together to provide enough food for entire communities, especially those located in areas without arable land, or with a population so large it overwhelms its food supply capabilities. And unlike other forward-thinking agricultural techniques like urban farming, it spares valuable land space for alternate uses.The world population is predicted to grow from 6.9 billion in 2010 to 8.3 billion in 2030 and to 9.1 billion in 2050. By 2030, food demand is predicted to increase by 50% (70% by 2050). The main challenge facing the agricultural sector is not so much growing 70% more food in 40 years, but making 70% more food available on the plate. To meet this ever growing demand, new agricultural techniques must be developed. Floating Farms envisage making the farming process autonomous, placing the structures on top of the water allows the farms to adapt to rising sea levels and avoid flooding issues common to traditional agricultural techniques. While this strategy may seem outlandish, it actually has a long and successful pedigree, having been employed for centuries by Bengali farmers as a response to dramatic changes in water level during flood seasons. The farmers construct beds in lakes and rivers using several layers of bamboo and water hyacinth, fill them with semi-decomposed aquatic plants and then seed. The beds are tethered to the lakebed to prevent them from floating away. As a result production rates have increased manifold compared to existing land-based practices. However, the true innovation of the Smart Floating Farms project is in taking non-traditional farming techniques and combining them with already-existing technologies. Jan Willem van der Schans, a senior researcher at Wageningen Economic Research who specialises in urban farming and circular economy issues, said such floating farms could be the future for sectors of agriculture such as fruit and vegetables in parts of the world. As the architects acknowledge in their design statement, the project "is not meant to solve all of humanity's hunger problems or to replace existing traditional agriculture." One project alone will not save the world, but embracing the technologies available to us is a great start towards tackling these issues. If only it were as easy as the touch of a button.

title: Partnering with Insurtechs, content: Dear Reader, Insurers across the world are adjusting to the new normal of the on-going pandemic, and as a result, there is massive acceleration in digital transformation efforts. For this purpose, Insurers and non-insurance companies alike are bringing on insurtech companies as strategic partners. Gartner defines insurtechs as technology companies that are in their early stages of operation; that drive specific innovation across the insurance value chain by leveraging new technologies, user interfaces, business processes or business models; that leverage different forms of funding, including venture capital. As per a CB Insights report, Funding to insurtech companies hit yearly and quarterly highs in 2020 and Q1 2021, respectively, signaling the confidence investors have in the future of the insurance tech market. In 2020, business relationships involving insurtech companies also hit a record high, coming in at over 650 partnerships for the year. Companies such as Axa, Munich Re, and American Family are among the insurers with the most formal business relationships with insurtech companies. Recently, China-headquartered Leapstack, an AI-enabled InsurTech company specializing in healthcare, has announced a strategic plan to ink strategic partnerships with multiple Korean insurance companies as the company advances into the South Korean market. Some Consumer-facing insurtech companies are partnering with other tech providers to improve their product offerings. For instance, auto insurtech Root provides additional benefits to policyholders via partnerships with road assistance app Agero and gas station location app GasBuddy. Home insurtech Hippo recently partnered with ADT and Handdii to improve the security and home repair services it offers policyholders. As these insurtech companies look to aggressively grow their customer bases, expect them to continue partnering with companies that offer complementary digital services. The partnership between Galileo Platforms, a specialist blockchain technology platform for the insurance industry, and Amodo, a provider of insurance telematics technology and advisory services, including behaviour data analysis, will enable clients to benefit from their diverse experience and expertise in their respective areas of the insurance industry. Primary core insurance software vendors like Duck Creek, Guidewire, and Unqork are also among the most active in partnering with insurtechs. These companies are incorporating complementary insurtech products to create a stickier experience for customers by tying these products to their core suites. Horizontal software providers like Microsoft and Salesforce and more mature insurtech platforms like Bold Penguin and Snapshot have also actively formed partnerships to build out their insurance ecosystem capabilities. We believe, as insurtech companies mature and build increasingly innovative solutions, expect to see insurers double down on successful partnerships and explore new ones. Credits : Akhil Handa Aparna Anand title: Geospatial Analytics in Insurance, content: Dear Reader, Insurance industry is slowly embracing remote property intelligence as a quick, dependable, and cost-effective alternative to relying on estimates based datasets. COVID-19 lockdowns and corresponding physical-distancing protocols have double-downed the need to rethink underwriting. High-resolution aerial imagery can reveal the underlying risks of the properties and add to the details in application data for underwriting purposes. According to a report by Markets & Markets, the global geospatial imagery analytics market size is expected to grow from $6.9 billion in 2020 to $27.9 billion in 2025, at a Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) of 32.1% during 2020-2025. Insurers are likely to increase the use of geospatial analytics to take advantage of the latest in AI & ML advancements to allow for automated damage classification by combining this with location information such as an address and other information like the extent of damage. Pre and post-disaster imagery also will provide intelligence needed to expose insurance fraud.  Companies such as CAPE Analytics provides instant geospatial property intelligence for buildings across the USA and have now expanded to Canada. When integrated with Guidewire, Cape Analytics and Betterview offer insurers improved visibility and actionable insights into damage or risk so they can more accurately price, underwrite and adjudicate commercial and personal lines. InsitePro by Intermap is a cloud-based software solution that brings together all the necessary data and analytics for underwriting natural catastrophe risk. Detailed elevation and terrain knowledge provides critical data giving underwriters the ability to expand portfolios and reduce risk exposure. Under GOI's crop insurance scheme, Pradhan Mantri Fasal Bima Yojana (PMFBY), agencies will be conducting large-scale pilot studies for technology-based gram panchayat level yield estimates, using Geospatial Analytics. Skymet in India is opening up its 10-year geospatial proprietary farm-level data repository through a digital platform 'SkAlgeo'. It can help the banking and insurance sector to create programmes after evaluation of crop risks using different indices. Some banks are using a digital lending solution built using the SkAlgeo platform to assess the risk profile of the farmers. The pace of change has been augmented by the industry's need for quick decision making, driving down costs and optimizing the customer experience. We believe, geospatial analytics can help insurers make more accurate underwriting decisions, help reduce losses and assess claim payouts judiciously. Credits : Akhil Handa, Aparna Anand title: AI-driven Architecture, content: Dear Reader, The arrival of modern technologies such as artificial intelligence, machine learning, augmented reality, and more in the health and fitness world has brought a remarkable change in this industry. It has changed the way people used to exercise and keep themselves fit and healthy. Now, a visit to gym or health club is no longer needed to stay fit; these technologies have made it pretty easier to do all those exercises from the comfort of your home. Zenias is a popular fitness startup that uses computer vision to develop and deploy an AI-driven fitness trainer. Users can choose from thousands of yoga asanas and do it from the comfort of their home. The AI-based trainer in the app helps them to correct their posture. The company has received huge funding during 2020 that has added to its valuation. Aptiv, the popular fitness startup connects people to a wide range of fitness trainers for home and outdoor workouts. Users can do the wellness sessions provided by trainers on their own without the need for equipment. In short, the app offers a no-equipment workout. Each one of Aptiv's thousands of workouts, which span every type of exercise and a wide variety of activities, combine the guiding voice of an expert Aptiv trainer with motivating music. This audio-based format eliminates distractions and provides the flexibility many people require - allowing them to focus on their fitness goals, as it suits them. Tonal, the home fitness startup raised a huge sum of $110 million in its latest round of funding. The startup received this funding from the existing investor L Catterton and the new investors Mousse Partners, Delta-v Capital and Amazon's Alexa Fund along with renowned athletes Michelle Wie, Paul George, Bobby Wagner, and Stephen Curry. With this funding, Tonal's total funding has reached up to $200 million. Tonal is a home fitness application that focuses on training users smartly. Users can choose a coach-led workout, make their own workout, track their progress and achieve fitness goals. Digital weights, 170 moves with one equipment and adjustable arms are some of the key features of this app. Freeletics, the digital fitness firm provides tools to promote and offer mindset coaching, mental strength, confidence, and physical fitness among people. The fitness app uses artificial intelligence to offer its services. This AI-powered fitness app has secured $25M Series B funding led by U.S.-based JAZZ Venture Partners and Causeway Media Partners, with support from KKCG. Freeletics has more than 48 million users in more than 160 countries. The modern fitness apps are facilitating all types of fitness, including yoga, meditation, aerobics and other exercises. This growing popularity and use of fitness applications are one of the biggest reasons that investors worldwide consider them profitable and investing huge money in them.

title: Contextual Fencing, content: Dear Reader, From sending a tailored promotion when a customer enters a retail store to powering order-ahead food delivery, geofencing plays a key role in making mobile apps contextually aware. Geofencing is a location-based service in which an app or other software uses GPS, RFID, Wi-Fi or cellular data to trigger a pre-programmed action when a mobile device or RFID tag enters or exits a virtual boundary set up around a geographical location, known as a geofence. Think about geofencing like an electric fence. In the real-world Geo-fencing allows for the setup of virtual fences or areas, wherein the entry and exit through the areas triggers a response or action by the individual or company monitoring the geofence. So, geo-fencing triggers alerts for a business owner when key things happen: a customer visits a store, for example, or the store of a competitor. BMW is an industry leader in the automobile industry. BMW uses geofencing to enhance their customer service. Cars with BMW Trackstar monitor the position of the vehicle. Once a customer activates their service, the position of their car is tracked and pinpointed every 20 seconds. Customers can use their mobile application to track the location of their car if it's parked in a garage or somewhere on the city streets. That way they never have to worry about forgetting where they parked. Furthermore, this service also helps prevent theft. Geofencing helps them go the extra mile to provide customer service, which is a profitable strategy. Apple Maps is constantly tracking our location. Based on our habits, this app can predict where one is most likely to go. For example, if you leave work around the same time every day and drive straight home, Apple Maps will recognize this habit. If the app knows that you're not home, based on being outside of a geofenced area, it will send a push notification informing how long it will take to get home and what the traffic will be like. Today's use of geofencing has evolved beyond simply tracking where a target customer is at any given time. With privacy concerns challenging companies to rethink their use of geofencing, companies like Radar are leading the way in innovating how geofences can improve the user experience. Having data about consumer behavior can be helpful to design better and personalized products. Uber first implemented the geofencing feature to identify airports to notify people in airports about available cabs and special offers on booking. In the times to come we expect to see companies use geofencing more strategically to send contextually relevant messages.

title: AI in Defence sector, content: Dear Reader, India holds the 4th rank in terms of the Army strength, with US, Russia and China placed ahead of it. The Indian startups are leveraging technology to come up with innovative solutions for empowering the nation's defence and security. These startups are from different locations in the country and have specialisation in areas such as drones, advanced materials, cyber security, IoT, etc. Gurugram-based CRON Systems is developing IoT-based products to help the armed forces deploy border security solutions. CRON Systems initially began focusing on building laser walls for the Border Security Force (BSF). But it eventually expanded its products and services to include automation for drones, rovers and a central dashboard to control the applications through its command, control, communication & information (C3i) hub miCRON. Bengaluru-based Asteria Aerospace is a robotics and artificial intelligence startup, which provides drone-based solutions to the military, paramilitary and police forces for security and surveillance purposes. Asteria Aerospace's product line currently includes three drones. Its CYGNUS drone is a mini fixed-wing drone known for its endurance, range and payload capabilities and is used for ground-up surveillance and security operations. Asteria's second product, DGCA certified A200, is a micro sized drone deployed for enterprise operations. Thirdly, the A400 is a mini drone whose vertical takeoff and landing allows quick deployment and surveillance from confined locations. Ahmedabad-based Optimized Electrotech is an electro-optic startup that provides security and surveillance solutions. The startup provides electro-optics system, which can be used for the surveillance of smart cities, satellite-based imaging, border surveillance, medical imaging, access control, machine vision, automotive (Advanced driver-assistance systems, i.e., ADAS) and consumer electronics. The startup's InfiVision product series can detect a tank from a distance of 30 km. Chennai-based defence tech startup Big Bang Boom Solutions (BBBS) is involved in developing integrated warfare systems for defence purposes. Some of the products developed by the startup include: T-Series Unmanned Tank Development, BN (boron nitrate) based Hybrid Personal Combat Armour, 360 Advance Battle Interface, Flying Warden-drones for riot control and a smart fencing system. Iowa and Chennai-based Vinveli, focuses on providing solutions to the aerospace and robotics industry. The startup is involved in building Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV) for both commercial and defence purposes. The possibility of AI-ushered advancements has opened the scope of an arms race where the conventional military capabilities will matter much less in future. In November 2019, the Indian government said it was looking to fund at least 250 defence startups over the next five years in order to come up with new cutting-edge solutions for the armed forces. Credits : Akhil Handa, Manisha Gawle title: Clearing up Space Debris, content: Dear Reader, Various entities are putting more and more satellites into Earth's orbit every year making it extremely crowded with defunct satellites and debris. Scientists around the world are worried about accidental collisions affecting new space missions. Governments and start-ups are now working on numerous ways to fix this humungous mess. NASA has a special ORBITAL DEBRIS PROGRAM OFFICE according to which more than 23,000 orbital debris larger than 10 cm are known to exist. The estimated population of particles between 1 and 10 cm in diameter is approximately 500,000. The number of particles larger than 1 mm exceeds 100 million. As of January 1, 2020, the quantity of material orbiting the Earth exceeded 8,000 metric tons. NASA recently gave out a handbook on how to avoid crashes for commercial satellite providers, and this month signed an agreement with SpaceX to ensure that both prioritize safety during launches and orbital manoeuvres.  Astroscale, is a Japanese startup which wants to remove hazardous clutter from an already congested space environment. It has achieved a critical breakthrough with the successful launch of its ELSA-D debris removal spacecraft last week.  Russia's GK Launch Services sent ELSA-D into space on a Soyuz rocket from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan. The system works by attempting to attach itself to dead satellites and push them towards the earth for burning up in the atmosphere, using a magnetic docking technology. Apart from Astroscale, ClearSpace SA, a Switzerland-based startup founded in 2018, is aiming to launch the world's first active debris removal mission in collaboration with ESA by 2025. The mission's objective will be to remove a fragment of the Vega rocket launched in 2013. It is a bulky piece, about a hundred kilos and a similar size to many satellites in orbit, which is why it has been selected.  The concept is relatively simple&mdash;a vehicle will be launched with several mechanical arms that will trap the piece in orbit. Once captured, a descent manoeuvre will be initiated with which the spacecraft and the piece of junk will disintegrate due to the atmosphere's friction. In India, young Bengaluru-based space startup, Digantara Research and Technologies, is working towards setting up an orbit rubble tracking and monitoring services.  Another Japanese company - Sumitomo Forestry and Kyoto University have joined forces to develop what they hope will be the world's first satellites made out of wood by 2023. This partnership will begin experimenting with different types of wood in extreme environments on Earth. These strategies will be critical since, by 2029, there will be an estimated 57,000 satellites in orbit. Fortunately, this time around, we have the knowledge and tools to resolve the situation before the accumulation of space junk becomes unsustainable. Credits : Akhil Handa, Aparna Anand title: Sweat Powered Watches, content: Dear Reader, You have probably heard of solar powered smart watches but what about a sweat powered watch? When people talk about renewable power, sweat isn't exactly something that springs to mind, but it sounds like that this natural process is actually capable of powering fitness trackers and maybe even smart watches too. It sounds pretty crazy but scientists have figured out a way sweat could be used to replace traditional batteries. The research was done at the University of Glasgow where scientists created a battery cell that has a new type of flexible super capacitor that can be used to replace electrolytes typically found in batteries. The tech works by collecting the sweat a person naturally produces. This is done by "coating polyester cellulose cloth in a thin layer of a special polymer". The absorbency of the material attracts perspiration. The ions in the sweat react with the polymer which results in a reaction that generates electricity. Researchers say the battery can be charged with only 20 micro litres of sweat. It's also very sturdy and can survive several thousand flexes and bends it might encounter – ideal for a wearable strapped to your wrist. So not only would sweat be a non-invasive way to check on your body's health, it would likely be a highly accurate way too, in the realm of blood in some areas – which is far more appealing than something like heart rate, which has a comparatively limited scope. The University of Pennsylvania has combined those ideas with graphene, a material considered to be "the best sensor material in existence", to create the SweatSmart by GraphWear. Graphene would essentially allow the sweat sensor to be four times more accurate than current sensors. Then there are companies like LVL and Halo Wearables, who are aiming a little lower with their sweat-based trackers. The company has spent the past six years working on the Halo Edge, a device that analyses your sweat to indicate hydration levels. In the same neighbourhood is Kenzen, a company which produces the Kenzen patch, which continually tracks biosensors in your sweat and sends you real-time alerts about your health. The tech seems promising although it is still in the research phase. But the team is planning to take forward the research on integrating sweat power into wearable devices. After all, they are the perfect option for such technology as you typically wear them while exercising. However, the best hope perhaps lies with LVL and Halo Wearables. There's a chance that bigger companies like Samsung, Apple and Fitbit will explore sweat-based wearables, but that doesn't seem to be on the horizon just yet. So it might be down to the start-ups to make the first breakthrough and hope the major wearable tech heavyweights follow. Credits : Akhil Handa, Clint James title: Data for all, content: Dear Reader, Data is king or so they say. Inclusivity for data platforms can be achieved when data reaches all stakeholders without lag or restrictions. Market information disseminated quickly could make the difference between making and losing money in the financial markets. Spending on financial market data/analysis and news exceeded the USD 30 billion mark for the first time ever in 2018, according to a new report published by Burton-Taylor International Consulting. Xignite's market data cloud is a single platform that unifies financial data consumption. It provides cloud-based financial market data APIs to help emerging companies and established enterprises deliver real-time and reference market data to their digital assets, such as websites and apps. Xignite cloud API's cover millions of financial instrument across all asset classes. With all the real time data at hand, investors would like to trade across all asset classes. Robinhood makes it possible to trade in stocks, ETF's, options and crypto, brokerage free. It also gives access to professional research reports, margin trading and instant deposits. Various other tools and features such as price movement notifications and customized investment news provide additional appeal. Market Prophit is a financial Big Data analytics company delivering real-time, meaningful intelligence to investors through sophisticated natural language processing, predictive analytics, and powerful visualizations of sentiment and buzz derived from financial related conversations in social media chatter. Market Prophit is the first service ever to provide quantitative rankings of financial bloggers data in social media and generate unique, real-time sentiment signals (bullish/bearish). Another fintech startup Mindbridge Analytics is using AI and ML to detect anomalous patterns of activities, unintentional errors and intentional financial misstatements in financial datasets. The auditing software will automate ingestion and analysis of data and help accountants identify risk. A risk score is generated for the processed data and will flag transactions that need investigation. Financial institutions harnessing the power of big data coupled with fintech innovation are leveraging meaningful insights from many disparate data sets. Fintech players have set the ball rolling for financial inclusion. A collaborative approach is the natural next step to accelerate the pace of this process. Credits : Akhil Handa, Prithwiji Ghosh title: Automated Driving, content: Dear Reader, Automated driving normally refers to self-driving vehicles or transport systems that move without the intervention of a human driver. These features generally fall into logical groups based on how they combine acceleration, braking and steering. Autonomous vehicle market is projected to surpass US$ 65 billion by 2027 with companies such as Tesla, Autoliv Inc. being the key players. Drivers need to be able to process a great deal of information as it is a skill that must be learned – this not only applies to people but is also true for automated and autonomous vehicles. In order for driverless cars to react correctly and safely in all situations, they require artificial intelligence and an electronic “brain” that must possess immense computing power. With the new generation of its AI-capable control unit, ZF ProAI, has developed advanced driver assistance systems (ADAS) which rely on cameras and radars. Companies like Waymo are working on the next stage: autonomous driving. When cars can drive themselves, human error – statistically the most likely cause of accidents – will no longer be an issue. Today, cars are being developed with cognitive abilities similar to that of a human brain so that they can make decisions which are not included in their code. In a fraction of a millisecond, self-driving cars must be able to process 360-degree view of the environment, interpret this information, verify the position of the vehicle itself, track the position of any sources of danger, calculate and carry out driving manoeuvres. Thus making, Vision Zero - the goal of ending motoring accidents a reality. Chinese car sharing operator Pand Auto is already testing automated cars in Beijing. The Chinese government is supporting the construction of large test sites and has opened the first test center for autonomous vehicles in Beijing, creating what is literally a driving school for autonomous vehicles. The trend toward automation is not just limited to passenger cars. Companies like ZF Friedrichshafen have long been working on self-driving mass transit and cargo movers, automated commercial vehicles, parcel delivery services, intelligent forklift trucks and innovative agricultural machinery. On the other hand, Amazon is planning to put 100,000 electric delivery vehicles on the road by 2030, with deliveries starting as soon as 2021. They plan to buy these vehicles from Rivian, an electric automaker in which Amazon has invested $440M. Similarly, Microsoft is joining forces with Cruise, the self-driving subsidiary of General Motors, to help speed up the commercialization of autonomous vehicles. Looking at the potential possibilities, we can safely conclude that self-driving cars on roads don't seem to be a distant dream. Credits : Akhil Handa, Clint James title: Parking Payments, content: Dear Reader, Increasing adoption of integrated automated solutions coupled with the advancements in wireless technologies are expected to drive the growth of smart parking market. Major technologies used for the deployment of efficient systems include sensing devices, machine-to-machine (M2M) communication, smart parking meters, data analytics, mobile apps for e-reservation of slots and online payments. According to Brand Essence Research Report, Global Smart Parking Market was valued at USD 5.62 Billion in 2018 and expected to reach USD 12.83 Billion by 2025 with a CAGR of 12.5% over the forecast period. In recent years, parking payments has drawn the attention of many FinTechs and digital payment solution providers. In India, National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) has introduced an interoperable system so that FASTags can be used to pay parking fees at malls, airports and other private parking lots across key metros - Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, and Bengaluru. Such payments will be contactless, which assumes significance in the wake of Corona virus pandemic. The FASTag solution will work both as post-paid and pre-paid solutions for securing parking at a parking plaza. There will be no additional cost to customers with respect to the parking fee, other than the one-time purchase cost of the tag. There will also be dedicated FASTag lanes. In the US, Passport, a transportation software company supports the management of vehicle interactions with streets and sidewalks, through its robust digital parking payment technology. Passport supports over 1,000 clients of all sizes in North America and has processed more than $2B mobility transactions to date. Similarly, ParkMobile is another leading provider of smart parking and mobility solutions in North America, using a contactless approach to help people easily find, reserve and pay for parking on their mobile devices. Last month, Google announced entering into an advanced partnership with both Passport and ParkMobile. The parking payment feature can be availed in over 400 US cities, including Boston, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, New York and Washington DC. Simply tap on the 'Pay for Parking' button that appears as you near your destination. Then enter your meter number, the amount of time you want to park for, and tap 'Pay'. The payment will be processed through Google Pay application. Google Maps, along with Passport, is in the process of expanding the ability to pay for transit fares for "over 80 transit agencies" around the world, allowing the users to plan their trips, buy tickets and start riding without needing to toggle between multiple apps. We believe that the increased interest around the parking payment technology will provide an opportunity for IoT and mobility players to up their game and significantly increase revenue generation, to get back on track in the wake of the pandemic.

title: RegTech, content: Dear Reader, RegTech is the management of regulatory processes within the financial industry through technology. Regtech automates regulatory processes and ensures compliance with regulations. It uses technology to support the ongoing monitoring of regulations and facilitates necessary reporting. Regtech also creates transparency and consistency, as well as substantially increases the quality of risk management and compliance. Another advantage is greater security arising from the continuous monitoring of processes. Banks and financial companies have to act in accordance with many regulatory requirements. The UK-based startup REGnosys offers a regulatory technology compliance platform, called Rosetta. It aims at facilitating the implementation of the Common Domain Model (CDM) for financial sector players with programmatically enforced compliance mechanisms. The solution saves costs and risks based on a specific rule-based operational lifecycle design. Canadian startup Mind Bridge creates a financial data analytics platform for auditing, based on AI and machine learning. It leverages accounting data and incorporates domain expertise to detect mistakes and anomalies, spot potential risks and investigate specific cases with built-in natural language processing (NLP) search to help banks and financial institutions resolve issues encountered during regulatory compliance. Singapore-based startup Dathena utilizes AI to arrange a suite of regulatory data safeguarding tools for the financial, healthcare, travel and retail industries. This suite allows enterprises to organize their data repositories, manage secure access to files, classify data by importance and confidentiality, automate data protection policies implementation and ensure data security. Banks and financial organizations are obliged to cope with government norms and to regularly create and submit corresponding regulatory reports. Israeli startup Cappitech provides a regulatory reporting platform, Capptivate, for FinTechs. The solution automates data transfer, as well as report creation and submission. Besides, it validates given information and reformats it in accordance with regulatory requirements, monitors the reporting status and provides feedback on past reports. Chile-based startup Ceptinel has developed a real-time regulatory monitoring system for financial companies. As government laws, regulations and procedures tend to change over time, established companies and FinTechs alike need to stay aware of any pending requirements, modifications in norms, or new state guidelines related to their business. It applies machine learning and complex event processing algorithms to treat large amounts of data coming from various sources to ensure compliance with new regulatory requirements. Regtech increases effectiveness, efficiency, security and transparency for all market participants, enabling them to focus on their core competence, safe in the knowledge that they are operating in accordance with the legal and regulatory requirements. title: Automobile Commerce, content: Dear Reader, The auto industry has been facing the heat to move digital more than ever as the pandemic has brought upon new challenges and deepened the need to shift toward digital solutions. Auto dealers have been slow to adopt digital car-buying solutions, but with lockdowns closing dealership doors, the pandemic accelerated the shift to omni-channel auto retail. Online car buying has taken off in a big way during the pandemic. According to Publicis Sapient, many digitally enabled OEMs are seeing increased, higher quality leads that are 30 percent more likely to buy and a two to four-fold surge in website traffic compared with pre-COVID-19. These online tools are, in some instances, responsible for more than 20 percent of new leads during the second quarter of 2020. More recently, a number of digitally focused disruptors such as Carvana, Carmax and Tesla have entered the market, offering unique, omni-channel experiences like flexible return policies, virtual auctions, home deliveries, online negotiation and virtual trade-in valuations. These digital leaders recognized a shift in customer expectations and focused on creating seamless user experiences across the entire shopping journey. Online used car seller Vroom noticed a considerable growth in demand as a result of the pandemic, with people turning to digital methods for purchasing cars. Similar to its competitor Carvana, Vroom offers no-haggle pricing and a no-questions-asked return policy. Another Used car marketplace Shift Technologies went public via SPAC in October 2020. Shift allows users to buy, sell and finance cars online. The company offers a "buy it now" option that allows a buyer to purchase a vehicle online without a test drive. Similarly, Cazoo, a UK based company, sells refurbished cars online, delivers them to customers' homes within 48 hours, and offers a seven-day free returns policy. Then there are digital platforms that help the dealerships move their businesses online. Take for example, Modal which makes software for car dealerships to move the entire buying process online. Another company, Digital Motors builds a car-buying platform for auto retailers, dealerships, brands and manufacturers. The new car ownership model of subscription offers ease and convenience to customers like never before. Switzerland-based Carvolution offers car subscriptions where Customers pay a monthly price for a vehicle and are free to switch cars as they like. We believe that, the winners in this industry will be defined by how quickly they adapt to technological innovations. The dealers and OEMs who adjust can thrive, while those reluctant to change will fall further behind. Credits : Akhil Handa, Aparna Anand title: Technology for a Greener tomorrow, content: Dear Reader, Climate change is real and it is happening. Observable effects are seen everywhere- glaciers have shrunk, ice on rivers and lakes is breaking up earlier, plant and animal ranges have shifted and trees are flowering sooner. A 2°C increase could mean more heat waves, a ten-fold increase in Arctic ice-free summers and a complete wipe-out of the world's coral reefs, home to millions of species. More frequent and intense drought, storms, heat waves, rising sea levels, melting glaciers and warming oceans can directly harm animals, destroy the places they live, and wreak havoc on communities and people's livelihoods. As per NASA, the planet's average surface temperature has risen by about 0.9°C since the late 19th century, a change driven largely by increased carbon dioxide and other human-made emissions into the atmosphere. Companies realize the gravity of the situation and know that the time to act is now. Aiding them in this quest is Artificial Intelligence (AI) and other modern technologies like Machine learning. Google's UK-based DeepMind laboratory applies its industry-leading knowledge of neural networks and machine learning to apply more efficient data interpretation to energy consumption and energy-grid distributions. These learnings were deployed for efficient energy distributions in wind farms. Prediction models developed there were used in scheduling energy deliveries resulting in a 20% improvement in operational efficiency. Climate change has led to teething problems for the global poor and poverty stricken populations leading to poor living environments and onset of diseases and other related ills. AP-Latam, a project run by Argentina-based Dymaxion Labs, uses AI to analyze high-resolution satellite imagery to detect areas of informal settlement growth in precarious areas that are logistically difficult to analyze on the ground. By understanding and predicting areas of potential slum growth and population movements, governments can make better decisions on how to help affected families mitigate the effects of climate change. Transportation accounts for 23% of global greenhouse-gas emissions, leaving plenty of room for positive contributions from AI. DHL and IBM have teamed up to use artificial intelligence to improve DHL's global logistics operations. By predicting demand, risk, supply-side variations and other variables, DHL is curbing emission by optimizing their process. Earth is the only planet we have to call home and global warming is causing irreversible damage. Global awareness is creating waves of innovation and optimizations to reduce the global warming footprint of corporations and individuals. Credits : Akhil Handa, Prithwiji Ghosh title: Smart-Robotics for Education, content: With the huge potential of robotics getting unlocked every day, even educators are leveraging robotics to improve the quality of education in novel ways, providing hands-on way of teaching important concepts like mathematics and science. Teachers can showcase how simple mathematical concepts like addition, subtraction, proportion etc. are applied in the field of robotics. These bots use the same general characteristics as industrial robots, but are much safer and less expensive to use. As per 'Global Robotics Education Industry Market Research Report', the global education robot market is estimated to reach size of around $25 billion by 2026 with a CAGR of around 23%. One of the first robots in the educational field was released in the 1980s, called the Heathkit Educational Robot (HERO). Though it was not programmed to perform practical tasks, it was a self-contained mobile robot that was controlled by an on-board computer using a Motorola CPU and 4 KB of RAM. The educational bot featured light, sound, motion detectors and a sonar ranging sensor. Recently, UBTECH Education and Follett have formed a partnership to create interactive JIMU robotic building block systems which enables students to develop critical STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) skills in a hands-on environment. JIMU robots are designed to complement the incremental steps of STEM success in experimentation and progressive learning by providing countless hours of creative and inspiring fun. Similarly, NuMinds Enrichment has developed AI-powered NAO robot, which enables students to interact with the humanoid as it teaches coding, literature and simulates training environments. NuMinds programs are also enhanced with cutting-edge virtual reality (VR) goggles that integrate virtual environments and augment learning, to captivate students and enhance their experience. Back home in India, Agilo Research, an EdTech hardware start-up, has developed STEMPedia Robotics learning platform to foster creativity and innovation among the young students. This platform was part of 'India Innovation Growth Program' launched by Lockheed Martin, Tata Trusts and FICCI. Based on the innovative solutions being launched, AI and robotics can effectively improve the quality of elementary and even higher education. Besides cutting down the overall cost in generating insights in different scientific sectors, the technologies can help teachers tailor the education system to suit students with diverse learning needs. title: Edutainment, content: Edutainment comes from the words "education" and "entertainment." It refers to any form of entertainment that is educational. Edutainment startup aims to make the learning process smooth by engaging students and young learners mostly aged 15 and below with fun and memorable experiences through smartphones and other internet-connected devices, virtual reality-powered tools and other gamified digital learning content. Mumbai-based Ontamo Entertainment has developed Ria Rabbit, an animated cartoon from Pashu Nagari, India, for kids in the age group of 0-6. It is India's first age-appropriate, culturally relevant home-grown intellectual property (IP) content for children. Their storytelling animated videos, audios and picture books engage the attention of kids while building the sense of Indian values which parents would want to inculcate in them through these characters. Another startup, SP RoboticsWorks has developed a platform wherein concepts are taught using animation videos and real-world examples. It has established more than 83 dedicated centers across India called SP Robotics Maker Labs which offers courses in Robotics, Internet of Things (IoT), Image Processing, Virtual Reality (VR) and more, both in the online and offline Smart-Class mode.    Similarly, Paper Boat Apps Pvt Ltd has launched Kiddopia, a subscription-based pre-school edutainment app, which teaches a variety of skills to kids. It covers everything from Math, Language Skills, GK and Social Skills to Creativity and Self-expression by engaging kids with its visuals as well as fun and exciting gameplay.    Similarly, Panda & Wolf Holding created a mobile-gaming app Eco-warrior for children between the age of 6 - 11. It uses game-based learning to teach children about waste sorting and recycling. Through an engaging storyline and immersive stages, the app informs young users about issues plaguing the environment like deforestation, waste pollution and overconsumption.    Mumbai-based startup Shirsa Media Labs offers an app NewsPIK which is a digital newspaper for children. The Shirsa team creates news articles, events, quizzes and other information, so children are aware of the world around them. It stimulates young minds and keeps them informed.    In this pandemic situation where education has gone online, startups are combining the concepts of education and entertainment to offer children interactive learning experience.    

title: Tech-enabled Hostels, content: In the current era of technological advancements where there is an app for almost everything, hostel management appears to lag behind in adopting a new innovation. From redundant paperwork to time-consuming manual processes, most of the hostels are still following archaic methods to manage their day to day activities. These old school methods of functioning results in ineffective communication between hostels, its students and parents.    Some of the hostels or student housing companies are investing in new-age technologies to differentiate themselves by being markedly different from traditional university-led hostel systems. Such technologies include facial recognition security systems, RFID enabled libraries and canteens, attendance systems that both students and parents can access on their smartphones.    Even though student housing as a market is currently dominated by university-led facilities, it will potentially see a substantial growth with private companies entering the space to plug demand gaps. Real estate consultancy firm JLL estimates the space is expected to see a 38% CAGR amounting to Rs 2,400 crore by 2020.    Most companies in the space, like OxfordCaps, Stanza Living and Placio have standardised their attendance systems with a professional escalation matrix. They also offer biometric security systems where entry and exit times are recorded. Hostels can set a threshold time, based on which if the student is not in within a certain time, parents get a notification. OxfordCaps is leveraging IoT-connected devices to monitor energy and space consumption, specifically in gyms, reading lounges and TV rooms, where usage usually remains untracked.    Considering industry average of around 40% for food wastage in hostels in urban centres, various organisations like Stanza Living are using advance analytics to reduce operational costs. With the ability to predict and analyse consumption data, food wastage at Stanza properties have been reduced to less than 10%.    On the other hand, Placio brings social incentive that is used by ride hailing firms such as Uber and Ola to hostels. It digitally tracks various parameters like student behaviour, general cleanliness, punctuality etc. to reward the better ranked students with online gift vouchers.    With majority of the students staying    at hostels to complete their education, such tech-based offerings not only improve the quality of life but also help them get exposed to advanced technologies like facial recognition, digital gift vouchers etc.    

title: HR Tech, content: Every organization needs to onboard good talent, retain, engage them and work with them to increase efficiency and productivity. Huge amount of time and money is spent to search, select, interview and hire the perfect candidate. Artificial Intelligence (AI)/ Machine Learning (ML) integration into human resources (HR) practices make organizations better as AI applications helps the HR Team to analyze, predict and diagnose for better decisions. According to a report published by Grand View Research in February 2020, the human resource management market is anticipated to reach $38.17 billion by 2027, registering a CAGR of 11.7 % from 2020 to 2027.Delhi based startup, ReferHire, has created a peer-to-peer (P2P) networking platform to bring together organisations and those seeking newer career opportunities.

Jobseekers have to identify the companies they are interested in and then ReferHire introduces them to peers in those organizations. These peers help job seekers in placing their application internally in the organisation and assist during the recruitment process. Culturo, Gurugram-based startup has developed an Artificial Intelligence-based NLP bot platform Agnya which helps companies to build the right workplace experience and identify the drivers. It recommends actionable insights for HR heads and also influences behaviour modification in individuals to create the desired workplace experience. Post action, it constantly monitors the progress. Bengaluru-based Equiv.in launched AI tool which aims to solve talent assessment and hiring while keeping diversity in mind. Equiv.in is exclusive for women, differently-abled individuals, members of the LGBTQ community and army veterans where the jobseeker can sign up with AI Equiv tool. Some of its clients include Indeed, ThoughtWorks, Infosys, Societe Generale, Microsoft and Blackrock. Similarly, 19th Mile has developed Analytics-driven automated sales coaching system that provides personalized, data-driven coaching to sales representative. The app tracks individuals' daily sales activities using data from its inbuilt mobile CRM or from the organization's CRM and uses it to intelligently coach users towards meeting their specific sales targets. On the other hand, HireSure.ai uses blockchain technology to store employment-related records. Its predictive tools use AI to offer insights related to employee compensation and offer acceptance behaviour, which helps companies increase their offer-to-join ratio. This brings down hiring costs by up to 50 %. Hiring is a challenging process in any organization and if not addressed efficiently they end up losing good candidates. There is also rapid evolution in business dynamics and therefore several startups are using new age technologies to fill up these gaps.

title: Insurance, through Crowdfunding, content: With the emergence of Uber and AirBnB, 'Sharing Economy' has proven to be beneficial on a real-time basis across multiple industries, including transportation, real estate and hospitality. Even in the Insurance sector, numerous InsureTech start-ups are enabling P2P or crowd-based models that leverage crowdfunding. It allows for more people to be insured by aiding underserved markets. Collective purchasing yields preferential pricing to those subscribed to peer-based insurance programs. Acknowledging this innovative approach, insurance, financial services and e-commerce sites around the world have begun to offer crowdfunding approaches to covering expenses. For instance, Love Upgrading is a crowd-funded insurance service offered on WeChat, China's voice and text messaging app. Clients on the platform can pay an initial premium of US$16 for one year of insurance with USD 8,000 of coverage. By sharing the link on WeChat and invite friends, the insurance amount can be raised upto USD 15,000. Similarly, China's second-biggest e-commerce player JD.com has launched a Kickstarter-like crowdfunding platform, Coufenzi, which allows participants to invest in a movie of their choice, with deposits as low as ~USD 20. These deposits are then bundled into the company's wealth management and insurance products that pay a fixed interest rate. On the other hand, Friendsurance follows similar method to offer cheaper insurance to customers using an innovative peer-to-peer method. Customers can connect online and create their own insurance pool. Small claims are paid out of this pool, with bigger claims covered by traditional insurance. To leverage the power of crowdfunding, number of insurance companies are partnering with crowdfunding platforms like Kickstarter, Indiegogo, Wishberry to raise funds. On the other hand, some insurers like TIAACREF are hosting campaigns on a dedicated social network called the Communities, on which members can discuss their financial health, exchange ideas and host campaigns. In today's age of technology-enabled collaboration, crowdfunding has a great potential to make inroads in insurance focussing on under-served population. Given the ever-growing proportion of non- or under-insured individuals, crowdfunding could be a lucrative way of addressing mass market needs, especially individual disability benefits, retirements and pensions, as well as group plans.

title: The Ship Robots, content: The astounding progression of robotic technologies is playing a key role in the future of all industries. According to International Federation of Robotics (IFR), from 2020 to 2022 almost 2 million new units of industrial robots are expected to be installed in factories around the world. Like many different industries throughout the world, robots are impacting the maritime industry as well. Take for example, SeaRobotics which has developed a Hull cleaning robot that helps save fuel and improves the efficiency of a ship. Their Hull BUG is a small autonomous vehicle which attaches itself to the underside of ships, using a negative pressure device that creates a vortex between the BUG and the hull. Sensors provide obstacle avoidance, path cleaning and navigational capabilities. A fluorometer lets the robot detect biofilm and then it uses rotary brushes or water-jets to scrub the fouling film off. In another collaboration, the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD), has partnered with SEA-KIT to create robotic oil-cleanup vessels. Another solution by SeaDrone, can perform underwater Inspections in lieu of Dry Docking (UWILD). The solution is designed in a way that provides an end-to-end hull inspection solution, inspecting a vessel in 1 hour and creating a certified report that can be quickly shared with the stakeholders. An alternative use case for robots in the maritime industry is strengthening of anti-piracy measures. ReconRobotics has developed a small, dumbbell-shaped robot that can infiltrate the main deck of a boat for stealth inspections. Magnetic wheels allow it to crawl up the side of a ship onto the deck and manoeuvre around. Cameras enable the operators to see what's happening in real-time, even during the night, with the help of infrared sensors. The company has recently been awarded a contract by U.S. Navy to develop the Recon Scout XT micro-robot for them. Promare, a U.K. ocean-research nonprofit, in partnership with IBM will unveil their new, fully autonomous ship - Mayflower on Sept. 16th, across the Atlantic Ocean. This autonomous ship will follow the same route on which the original Mayflower travelled 400 years ago. The Mayflower Autonomous Ship (MAS) is chiefly propelled by solar power, with a diesel generator on board as backup. IBM will power an onboard "AI Captain" with the ship leveraging edge computing for its AI and navigational smarts. All the data processing must be available on the ship because a vessel in the middle of the ocean can't rely on satellites or cloud connectivity. As COVID-19 shifts global structures and accelerates innovation, we can easily visualise how robotic technology could help ships continue operating through future pandemics.

title: Negotiating with AI, content: Negotiation is a fundamental business skill—one that is inextricably linked with human emotion and psychology as much as economic calculus. Many companies negotiate countless contracts a year, ranging from facilities rentals, technology licenses, sales, employment or strategic partnerships. One of the biggest challenges companies face in negotiating contracts is that they span such a wide variety of topics. Even the best-trained negotiators may struggle when parsing through a contract that is outside of their purview. Artificial intelligence (AI) is capable of performing many tasks that enhance human labour and thinking—so it only stands to reason that it can provide an advantage in the negotiation process as well. There are several levels on which this is happening. As salespeople or customer service reps interact with customers electronically, they may be able to take advantage of real-time AI recommendations to help guide the engagement or transaction. Rather than monitor singular conversations and interject recommendations on a case-by-case basis, the AI-based negotiation system digests lots of conversational data across lots of sales reps to try to understand where there are coaching opportunities, new training opportunities, value prop improvement opportunities, and product improvement opportunities. AI can also be applied against transaction or customer relationship management (CRM) data, to sift through responses and engagements to determine where and how companies may be missing opportunities. Also, there are chatbots that can be trained to bargain with customers. Estonian startup Pactum, which provides an AI-based commercial negotiation tool, was engaged by Walmart to automate negotiations with part of its global supplier network. Pactum's AI-based negotiation tool starts the process by interviewing the customer, recording all the required information surrounding the negotiation, and determining the value for each possible tradeoff in the contract for the customer. Pactum's team then builds the negotiation flows. Project Debater is the first AI system that can debate humans on complex topics. Project Debater digests massive texts, constructs a well-structured speech on a given topic, delivers it with clarity and purpose, and rebuts its opponent. It can analyze a proposition and automatically highlight the best arguments for and against it, factoring in both logical and emotional impact. Eventually IBM predicts, Project Debater will help people reason by providing compelling, evidence-based arguments and limiting the influence of emotion, bias, or ambiguity. Perhaps one day, robot lawyers will go forth to negotiate on our behalf. But, in the meantime, A.I. can be used today to improve humans' negotiation tactics. Credits : Akhil Handa title: Micro-services, content: In the current dynamic universe, companies are finding ad-hoc approach of running continuous upgrades to large monolithic platforms increasingly tedious and inefficient. Progressive organizations can no longer count on the rigid systems that require weeks of rework to support a new business process. Enter Micro-services! It is a way of breaking large software projects into loosely coupled modules, which communicate with each other through simple APIs. In recent years, adoption of micro-services architecture is becoming a proven success strategy in the software development industry. According to the report by Red Hat, organizations are using micro-services to re-architect their existing applications; as much as the technology being used for brand new applications. Micro-services offer numerous benefits for application architects and development teams. These include flexibility around implementation technology, scalability and cloud readiness. These benefits align well with the growing demand of a new system that can adapt to the demands of digital business in highly competitive ecosystems. For instance, early adopters like Airbnb, Disney, Dropbox, GE, Goldman Sachs and Twitter have seen development lead times cut by as much as 75 percent, thanks to the adoption of micro-services. This trend is increasingly being adopted by Bigtechs as well. For example, Microsoft has opened up its Service Fabric platform which is a distributed systems platform to package, deploy and manage scalable and reliable micro-services. Similarly, IBM, Google and Lyft have teamed up to form Istio, an open technology that provides a way for developers to connect, manage and secure networks of different micro-services, regardless of platform, source or vendor. Apart from this, California based Nginx which supports the operation of around 450 million global websites including those of Netflix, Instagram and Pinterest, has set up shop in Australia to support companies embracing micro-services. Recognizing the need to deliver value to customers faster, many banks are seizing the opportunity to implement micro-services architecture. By implementing such innovative architecture, Ubank created Australia's first home loan application chatbot, innovating and improving customer experience. Similarly, UK based digital bank Monzo is also using cloud and micro-services architecture to develop back end structure. Micro-services can deliver better agility and scalability advantages than any other archetype. Several vendors are developing frameworks and platforms that simplify adoption of the micro-services architecture. However, we believe it will take some time for micro-services to evolve into complete and robust mainstream platform. Credits : Akhil Handa title: AI in Entertainment, content: With the emergence of various innovative technologies, filmmakers are effectively saving time and money by automating their film creation process to a large extent. Filmmakers are utilizing AI in various stages of filmmaking, right from pre-production, production to the post-production stage. Cinelytic, Los Angeles based startup, has developed AI software for filmmakers to predict the probability of a movie's success based on the casting of actors/actresses. If the filmmaker is unsure of which actor to cast for a role, he can enter their names into the program and see which actor might. Belgium based ScriptBook, has developed an AI cloud-based software Script2Screen to analyse the script and predict box office success or failure. The user can upload their screenplay on the platform which generates an AI-based assessment indicating the commercial and critical success of a project, along with insights on the storyline, target demographics, market positioning, distribution parameters etc. Vault ML, an Israeli startup, launched an artificial intelligence platform 4CAST. It uses over 40 years of box office data, 4 lac plus movie scripts and numerous other film data to predict opening weekend box office sales. Its predictions are right 75 % of the time and thus it helps filmmakers in their business risk management. On the other hand, 20th Century Fox has launched the AI/ML program Merlin to help review trailers before they are released. The AI program optimises the marketing and distribution efforts in order to generate wider publicity for the specific movie or web series. It predicts and recommends appealing clips and flags them as the parts of the trailer which the audience will enjoy the most. Similarly, Microsoft has developed an AI speech translation engine Azure for dubbing Hindi movies into different languages. On this platform, Bollywood movies are dubbed with the help of AI in different languages. Looking at the fact that there is a plethora of data available in the film ecosystem, many companies are coming up with innovative solutions where these softwares read the historical data about movie performances over the years, then cross-references it with the current information and thus helps in writing scripts, simplifying the production process, casting actors, composing music, editing movies, plan marketing and distribution and calculate the return of investment. title: The pandemic & cybersecurity, content: There is no doubt that the COVID-19 pandemic has caused an outbreak of new and unanticipated business moments. As digital spreads its roots deeper, it also increases the risk and impact of cyberattacks. The World Economic Forum's COVID-19 Risks Outlook reported that 50% of enterprises were concerned about increased cyberattacks due to a shift in work patterns alone. A TCS report states that, cybercriminals are using the heightened digital footprint and traffic to track vulnerabilities, or to siphon off money. They are launching Covid-19-themed attacks in the form of phishing emails with malicious attachments that drop malware to disrupt systems or steal data and credentials. Attackers are creating temporary websites or taking over vulnerable ones to host malicious code. They lure people to these sites and then drop malicious code on their digital devices. Fake websites have also been soliciting donations for daily wage earners through email links. Some Covid-19 patient count-status apps and links are laden with viruses and identity theft malware. Remote working tools such as videoconferencing systems have been hacked for vulnerabilities; recent examples on Zoom are alarming. In such a scenario, the first step in the right direction for Organisations would be to advise their staff and customers to be more vigilant and cautious especially when opening links, emails or documents related to the subject COVID-19. Next, organizations should ensure their detection and ing capabilities are functional while keeping an eye on the impact of having many remote workers. There are some interesting solutions available in the market. For eg. KnowBe4 delivers on-demand internet security awareness training to small and mid-sized enterprises focussing on threats like social engineering, spear-phishing and ransomware. Cofense provides organizations with the ability to improve their employees' resilience towards spear phishing, malware and drive-by attacks and further facilitate employee-sourced detection of such attacks. In India, cybersecurity start-ups like Cloudsek offers real-time information to prevent and monitor cyber threats through its SaaS platform. Another start-up Cyware's cyber fusion solutions empowers organisations to foster information sharing with their employees mitigating cybersecurity risks. The pandemic presents an opportunity for full-blown innovation, a dramatic shift in perspective and the adoption of safe and resilient operating processes. The intensity and emphasis an organisation brings to its cybersecurity strategy will determine its long term growth. Credits : Akhil Handa title: Key Factors while selecting the right debt fund, content: 1.The credit rating of a debt fund's portfolio is a pointer towards the credit risk and quality of the fund. A higher credit rating implies a less risk of default in the fund. The ratings vary from AAA to D with AAA being the highest rating and D being the lowest as per its credit worthiness.2. Yield to Maturity (YTM) Yield to Maturity (YTM) indicates expected return (before expenses) of the debt fund if its underlying investments are held till maturity, assuming no change in the portfolio. Investors should compare YTM across peer funds and choose the ones with the higher YTM assuming all other factors remains same.

3. Modified Duration Modified Duration measures the change in price of securities due to change in the interest rates. Higher the modified duration of a fund, greater is its sensitivity to interest rate movements. Ideally investors should match their investment horizon with the modified duration of the fund.

4. Portfolio Diversification The major risk in a debt portfolio is the default risk. When the fund is diversified across various debt companies, the impact of default by any one portfolio company on the overall fund value is reduced to a great extent due to diversification.

5. Peer comparison Like other fund categories, debt funds must be evaluated based on their performance, any historic default by Portfolio Company's vis-à-vis the peer group. This helps identify performers / laggards, although it's strictly not indicative of future performance.

title: Why Target Maturity Funds Make Sense, content: 1. Need a large sum of money to start investing" Investors can begin their investing journey in a mutual fund with as low as Rs 500 in case of SIPs (systematic investment plans) "2. Mutual Funds only invest in Equity Markets" As per Investors risk appetite, Investors can choose to invest in variety of Mutual Funds which has the flexibility to invest across Equities, Debt, Gold, commodities etc. as per the investment objectives of the fund

"3. Young people should not invest in Mutual funds" Benefit of compounding increases the earlier you start investing. Hence, Investors should start early to get the maximum benefit of compounding to create wealth over long periods

"4. One needs to invest in various mutual fund to get diversification benefit" Mutual Funds itself invests across different asset class/sectors which provides the benefit of diversification. Hence one should not invest in too many funds and overdiversify.

"5. There is no need to track your mutual fund investments" Like all investments, mutual funds must be monitored for deviation from the investment objective or simply for trimming / adding equities during a market upturn / downturn for asset allocation purposes title: What is a Fixed Deposit Calculator (FD)?

, content: With the help of a fixed deposit, you can save money while also generating interest income. Your money must be deposited for a predetermined period of time at a set interest rate. You can calculate the amount you will receive at maturity and the interest you will earn using a fixed deposit calculator. The time you would spend manually calculating these numbers can be saved by using fixed deposit calculators.

title: How do I calculate my fixed deposit (FD)?

, content: While it is true that you can make manual calculations regarding your fixed deposit, doing so can be challenging. There are several variables used in fixed deposit calculations. Such calculations can be laborious and time-consuming, which leaves room for a number of mistakes. So, using a tool to perform your Fixed Deposit calculations is both simpler and more accurate. The Fixed Deposit Calculator will be very useful in this situation. After entering the necessary data, you can instantly obtain accurate Fixed Deposit figures!

title: How do we use the Fixed Deposit Calculator?

, content: It's fairly easy to use a fixed deposit calculator. First of all, it is easily accessible because it is available online. The calculator will then make the calculations on your behalf after you give it some basic data. It won't take more than a minute for your results to appear on the screen.

For instance, the Fixed Deposit Calculator, created by the Bank of Baroda, asks you for the following information:

Type of customer

Type of Fixed Deposit

Date of Fixed Deposit

Amount invested

Tenure (in years, months, and days)

You will be shown the maturity value, total amount of interest, and interest rate shortly after providing this information.

title: Why should you use Bank of Baroda's FD calculator?, content: The FD calculator from Bank of Baroda has been created to deliver results after considering pertinent data about your Fixed Deposit. It is designed to work for people who have different fixed deposit terms. For instance, both regular customers and senior citizens can use it. If you choose reinvestment, monthly pay-out, quarterly pay-out, or short-term deposit, you can still use it. Additionally, you have the option of entering the tenure in years, months, or days. Based on your FD option and tenure, the tool's results are thus accurate.

title: Can I get monthly interest on Fixed Deposit (FD)?

, content: Yes, fixed deposit accounts do earn interest every month. You can select how you would like to receive payouts in addition to the Fixed Deposit's terms, such as the tenure and investment amount. You can typically choose between receiving payouts annually, semi-annually, quarterly, or monthly with FDs. To receive interest each month, choose the option for a monthly payout.

title: How to calculate Fixed Deposit (FD) maturity amount?

, content: To calculate the maturity amount due on your FD, you can use the following formulas:

For an FD with simple interest:

$M = P + (P \times R \times T / 100)$ , wherein P is the principal amount, R is the rate of interest, and T is tenure in years.

For an FD with compound interest:

$M = P + P \{(1 + i/100)^t - 1\}$ , wherein P is principal, i is interest rate per period and t is tenure.

How is the interest on a bank Fixed Deposit (FD) calculated?

Just like the maturity amount, you can also calculate the interest rate for an FD via mathematical formulas.

To determine simple interest:

SI:  $P \times R \times T/100$ , where P is the principal, R is the rate of interest, and T is the tenure.

To determine compound interest:

$A = P (1+r/n)^{(n * t)}$ , wherein A is the maturity amount, P is the principal amount, r is the rate of interest in decimals, n is the number of compounding in a year, and t is the number of years.

title: What is the minimum tenure for which one can invest in fixed deposits?

, content: You have the option to invest in an FD for the duration of your choice. An FD can be purchased for as little as a seven-day period of time.

title: What is Floating interest rates, content: The difference between fixed and floating interest rate, may still be a bit confusing for the first time borrow. So, Floating interest rates come with a benchmark rate stated by the lender. These are adjustable as they are subject to market fluctuation and the floating home loan interest rate varies accordingly. The lender defines a calendar period to reset the loan's floating interest rates. It could be the loan anniversary date or any quarterly or half-yearly or monthly resetting cycle. The period is reviewed and if any fluctuation is recorded in the market rate, the interest rate is reset. The reset directly impacts the tenure date when the interest rate registers a change. With the increase of the market rate, the loan tenure is extended and decreased if the market rate falls. The EMI is not altered as that can have an inverse effect on the cash flow and prove difficult for the borrower. However, the borrower can also raise the EMI instead of the tenure whichever is better.

title: What is Fixed interest rates, content: Fixed interest rates on housing loans refer to an unchanged rate of interest irrespective of the change in repo rates. The rate of interest is decided at the time when the loan is approved and sanctioned by the bank. This loan amount is unaffected by inflation rates. Borrowers who choose fixed home loan interest rate on long-term housing loans do so as they feel comfortable with assured and consistent monthly payments of EMIs. The loan term and current interest rate influence the fixed rate interest of the loan. Though fixed interest rates are unchanged by the economic ups and downs, as the economy grows the variable interest rates also get affected.

title: Fixed vs floating home loan interest rate, content: The borrower mostly pays around 1% to 2.5 per cent more on a fixed interest rate than the fluctuating rate of a bank or NBFC.

title: Expert Advice, content: Banks have a better insight into interest rates. You must trust a dependable bank and have a one-to-one discussion with your lending bank on the difference between fixed and floating interest rate. And which interest rate will best suit you. As we have learnt that fixed loans come at a higher interest rate while floating interest rates on house loans are lesser. The bank with its expert understanding will guide you if they see a rise in rates. Though it helps banks to earn more on fixed interest rates, they also earn more when the rate of interest on floating interest rates rises. Therefore, if they anticipate a fall in floating interest rates, it would be beneficial for the bank to get people to invest in loans with fixed interest rates. Thus if you can lock into a low fixed interest rate house loan, that's a winning situation, else go for a floating loan, as the future rates can't be anyone's guess.

title: What is the difference between fixed vs floating interest rates?, content: Is a Fixed interest Rate or Floating interest Rate Better?

title: Is a Fixed interest Rate or Floating interest Rate Better?, content: When it comes to the difference between fixed and floating interest rate, one should know, fixed interest rates work well for people who have stable monetary support and can fund the loan in a short tenure. Floating interest rates work better for those who are younger and are prepared to take market risks over a long period.

title: Why are floating interest rates for home loans more in demand?, content: Customers experience greater flexibility on floating interest rates for loans.

title: When do customers prefer fixed home loan interest rate?, content: When customers are unsure about the interest rates on floating home loans in the future and prefer playing it safe with fixed home loan interest rates on home, they choose fixed home loan interest rates.

title: Can you convert fixed home loan interest rate to floating home loan interest rate or vice versa?, content: Yes, during the tenure of your home loan you can convert fixed interest rate home loans to floating interest rate house loans and vice versa, by paying fixed and floating charges to the bank.

title: Do floating home loans allow prepayment and are there prepayment penalties?, content: Yes, floating home loans allow prepayment and come with no prepayment penalties.

title: What does the choice of the fixed and floating loan depend on?, content: The selection of either loan is completely dependent on individual choice or understanding of the movement of interest rates.

title: Why should you choose floating interest rates?, content: If interest rates have a chance of dropping in the future, choosing floating interest rates over fixed home loan interest rate is better.

title: Different Types of Loans for Your Home, content: With property rates rising with each passing year, it is almost impossible to buy one from your savings. Thankfully, you do not need to worry about exhausting all your savings to become a property owner. You can get the necessary funds with the help of a Home Loan. You can also get a loan for construction or land purchase. Each type of loan is designed to help fulfil a specific objective. You can choose the type of Home Loan that best serves your needs. Let us take a look at the different kinds of Home Loans provided by banks in India.

title: Home Loan Tenure, content: Home loans are a blessing for every home buyer. With the ease of repayment, a home loan fulfils the home buyer's commitment to own a house. Even if you have an average income, you can dream of owning a home with the maximum tenure for a home loan, the duration at which the borrower repays the full loan amount, the principal sum and the accrued interest. Some might find the idea of loan and repayment discouraging, considering it to be a lifelong burden, but with a bit of planning the gains are much higher and you can repay home loans faster than you had planned. In a few years, you can see your world coming to shape little by little. As Earl Nightingale rightly remarked, all you need is the plan, the road map, and the courage to press on to your destination, if all three are in place, dreams happen. Home loans allow you to invest in a property with certain minimum margin. You are given the option to easily return the loan amount within a specific period. You can discuss the repayment tenure with your lender and choose the maximum tenure for a home loan or minimum tenure for a home loan, subject to your capability. Both repayment tenures have their advantages and disadvantages. We will help you understand how each stand against the other and when and why should borrowers choose the respective tenure options.

title: Floating Farms
, content: Dear Reader,

Tap a button on your phone and hop into the shower; walk downstairs 15 minutes later, and you have a fresh pot of coffee waiting for you. This is no longer just a fantasy for many people. The rise of the internet of things has allowed us to control remote appliances with just a tap of the touchscreen. Until now, the scale of these processes has largely been limited to personal devices: anything from brewing a pot of coffee to warming up your car on a frosty morning. But what if we could grow food for thousands of people, with that same tap of a button with "Smart Floating Farms".

Forward Thinking Architecture a Barcelona based firm's design comprises a multi-level agricultural farm that can be constructed, pushed out to sea, and left to work mostly on its own. The farm is designed to operate on three levels: a bottom level containing wave barriers, an aquaculture fish farm, a slaughterhouse, a packing facility and desalination plant; a second tier for hydroponic and aeroponic food production; and a rooftop level having skylights to let in light and photovoltaics to provide the energy required to power everything.

Each level is roughly 750,000 square feet – with enough room to grow up to 8.1 tons of vegetables and 1.7 tons of fish per year. The architects estimate that this would cover the project's expenses within 10 years. And since the farms are modular, a few or many of these structures could be grouped together to provide enough food for entire communities, especially those located in areas without arable land, or with a population so large it overwhelms its food supply capabilities. And unlike other forward-thinking agricultural techniques like urban farming, it spares valuable land space for alternate uses.

The world population is predicted to grow from 6.9 billion in 2010 to 8.3 billion in 2030 and to 9.1 billion in 2050. By 2030, food demand is predicted to increase by 50% (70% by 2050). The main challenge facing the agricultural sector is not so much growing 70% more food in 40 years, but making 70% more food available on the plate. To meet this ever growing demand, new agricultural techniques must be developed.

Floating Farms envisage making the farming process autonomous, placing the structures on top of the water allows the farms to adapt to rising sea levels and avoid flooding issues common to traditional agricultural techniques. While this strategy may seem outlandish, it actually has a long and successful pedigree, having been employed for centuries by Bengali farmers as a response to dramatic changes in water level during flood seasons. The farmers construct beds in lakes and rivers using several layers of bamboo and water hyacinth, fill them with semi-decomposed aquatic plants and then seed. The beds are tethered to the lakebed to prevent them from floating away. As a result production rates have increased manifold compared to existing land-based practices.

However, the true innovation of the Smart Floating Farms project is in taking non-traditional farming techniques and combining them with already-existing technologies. Jan Willem van der Schans, a senior researcher at Wageningen Economic Research who specialises in urban farming and circular economy issues, said such floating farms could be the future for sectors of agriculture such as fruit and vegetables in parts of the world.

As the architects acknowledge in their design statement, the project "is not meant to solve all of humanity's hunger problems or to replace existing traditional agriculture." One project alone will not save the world, but embracing the technologies available to us is a great start towards tackling these issues. If only it were as easy as the touch of a button.

title: Emerging Banking Trends in 2023

, content: The banking industry is constantly evolving and changing. Here are three major banking trends that are emerging in the year 2023:

Support Digital Payments

Digital payments are on the rise. Banks and other financial institutions are ensuring the best technologically equipped systems and infrastructure to support digital payments. This includes things like net banking and mobile banking, as well as payment processing platforms.

Here are some steps taken by banks to support digital payments:

Increased security: With more transactions happening online or via mobile devices, cards, and even smart watches, banks are ensuring secured payment systems with features like two-factor authentication and fraud monitoring.

Simplified checkout processes: Consumers expect a streamlined and easy checkout process, whether they're paying online or in-app. Thus, banks are using an up-to-date and user-friendly digital payment system.

More options for international payments: Banks are offering a good digital payment experience through real-time currency conversion and low fees for customers who send or receive money internationally.

Artificial Intelligence

Artificial intelligence (AI) is one of the most talked about emerging technologies in banking. Banks are already using AI for a variety of tasks, including fraud detection, customer service and mortgage approvals. The use of AI in banking is expected to grow in the coming years as banks look for ways to improve efficiency and reduce costs.

There are a few key trends to watch for when it comes to the use of AI in banking:

Banks are using AI to automate repetitive tasks: Tasks such as customer service, fraud detection and anti-money laundering are being automated using AI. This allows banks to free up staff to focus on more critical tasks and improve efficiency.

Banks are using AI to personalize customer experience: By using customer data, banks can provide a more personalized experience. This could involve providing recommendations on products or services that may be of interest to the customer. Banks are using AI to improve risk management: By analyzing data, banks can identify risks more quickly and take steps to mitigate them. This helps to protect the bank from losses and ensure that customers have a positive experience.

Banks are investing in fintech startups: Many banks are investing in fintech startups that are developing innovative applications for artificial intelligence. This allows the banks to stay at the forefront of this emerging technology and tap into new markets.

Better Customer Support

There's no doubt that providing excellent customer support is critical for any business, but it's especially important for banks. In a highly regulated industry where customers have a lot of choices, banks are doing whatever they can to stand out from the competition and give their customers the best in class service by offering better customer support. This includes providing more personalized service to making it easier for customers to get in touch with a live person when they need help. Whatever form it takes, better customer support can go a long way toward building trust and loyalty among bank customers. And that's something every bank is and will continue to work for.

Improved User Interface

A good user interface is one that is both easy to use and visually appealing. A well-designed user interface will make it easy for users to find the information they need, navigate their way around the site and complete tasks quickly and easily. In recent years, there has been a trend toward simplifying web interfaces and removing unnecessary clutter. This has made sites easier to use and has improved the user experience.

Banks are now starting to follow this trend, with many of them redesigning their online banking portals and mobile apps to enhance the customer experience through:

A streamlined and simplified interface that is easy to access with assistance tools like Chatbots, Quick links, etc.

Attractive visuals that are pleasing to look at.

A user-friendly layout that helps users find what they need quickly and easily.

title: Growth of Digital Banking in India

, content: Covid- 19 has successfully established a new dimension to the future of digital banking in India. India saw a meteoric rise in digital adoption in that period. The emergence of new digital participation from other financial entities aided transition at the micro level. A global survey by Mastercard reveals Indians as the most willing in the Asia Pacific to embrace emerging digital payment methods. Boston Consulting Group's (BCG) research report further points out that digital growth in India attributes to a 'surplus of capital, maturing infrastructure and favourable underlying customer demographics.' Indian banking is setting an example as a 'model banking of the future,' paving way for successful UPI payments, and QR codes. This approach should be adopted for lending and data management too.

Digital transformation in Indian banking is based on these key factors of growth.

Banks while utilising customer awareness build a solid ground for trust. Being a brand, they have a customer base and versatile digital platforms. Existing financial services have given further leverage to their assets. Banks are providing unique and compelling value propositions in their commercial offerings, owning tech stacks, that are 100% automated, recording a strong digital performance backed by staff agility. Marketing and credit depend on data and analytics. Risk management in digital banking is higher and more accountable in the banking sector.

title: What Encouraged and Accelerated this Massive Shift to Digital Banking?
, content: Shri Shaktikanta Das, Governor, Reserve Bank of India, attributes the growth in digital banking to 'higher levels of sustainable development and financial inclusion.' Deep telecom penetration, the availability of the internet and the ready adaptation of technology has accelerated credit access and efficient payment systems for now and the future of digital banking are all responsible for this flourishing growth. The pandemic acted as a catalyst for this transformation. Here is a quick check of the major factors:

Transformation in Banking: The advent of new technologically powered payment methods like digital currency, blockchain and distributed ledger systems has enabled the adoption of fintech (financial technology).

Willingness to adopt: Last year 93% of payments were made through digital methods and more than 50% of these transactions were done via QR Code. The use of cash was the third most popular option, and the use of cards went down further. The most active users are Gen-Z (ages 18 to 25) with a 37 per cent and 48 per cent Millennials (ages 26 to 43). Mastercard Indian consumers' payment preferences report.

Consumer comfort with digital payment methods: Consumers have access to wearable technology, mobile wallets, credit cards and debit cards and QR codes that enable such payments. The trust that consumers are showing in these payment modes should be respected by fintech players, banks, regulators and most importantly the government for the strong future of the banking industry.

Growth in biometric payment: Consumers prefer biometric payment over cards or devices. Also, there is growing trust in biometrics over two-factor authentication according to the Mastercard Indian consumers' payment preferences report.

Readily using BNPL: Indian consumers have resisted a fairly high usage of BNPL (Buy Now, Pay Later), and they reserve the payment mode for emergencies. There is a large section that felt that they would use this option if it were backed by a major payment network.

Increase of digital tech talent: India is closing the digital gap in fintech with its optimised skill sets of talented technology professionals.

Nationwide financial inclusion: Fintech innovations like the Indian stack are speeding greater financial inclusion even in the tier III+ sectors.

Banks want sustainable growth: Financial institutes must display a robust growth model based on efficiency and accessibility. Traditional banks recognised the role of digital banking in this sphere.

Covid-19 accelerated growth: During COVID 19 banks recognised the need to respond to customer demand. Banks offered technology that provided financial safeguard, with 24x7 banking, credit, and direct benefit transfer among other services.

title: Why is it essential for banks to take the Digital Transformation Route?
, content: Digital transformation in banking is the new go-to when banking products and services are customer-centric and personalised. Let us evaluate why banks need to take the digital route.

Covid 19 eye opener: The Covid pandemic made the world more aware of the importance of contactless payment and digital banking.

Change in banking demography: Banks are seeing new customer demography that is greatly reliant on digital platforms. These are early adopters of the internet and banks have to fulfil the demands of this generation.

Banks are facing competition: The competition is just not between private and public banking services but other fintech players rolling out attractive products for customers. Due to strong branding with robust cyber security in banking, digital banks will draw the customer's thrust.

title: Bridging the Gap Towards Digital Banking

, content: Though India is experiencing a huge inclusivity agenda in future of digital banking, we discuss the holding points that need to be bridged for better digital transformation in banking.

Obstruction in digital inclusion: Digital banking facilities are not reaching places without internet connections. Not everyone is technically savvy and therefore hesitant. India has low literacy levels that impedes digital awareness.

Fear factors creating resistance: Lack of education and awareness is creating fear of online fraud and cybercrimes. Banks should adopt measures to improve customer awareness.

Stay abreast with new technology: Banks should keep their digital innovating products and security platforms upgraded with help from specialised professionals to edge out competition.

Inclusion on Robotic Process Automation (RPA): Channelling repetitive and monotonous tasks to Machine Learning and Artificial Intelligence, banks can provide fillip to their performance.

title: The Conclusion : India

, content: India is going through an environment of change in banking and financial technology, led by an amazing talent base. With a mindset to adapt, a simultaneous effort from the government and the watchful eye of RBI, innovation in digital banking will charter new areas of customer inclusion. With the introduction of the Digital Banking Unit (DBU), a minimum digital infrastructure hub delivering banking services and the future inclusion of metaverse in digital banking with its huge potential, the future of digital banking looks promising and optimistic.

title: Geospatial Analytics in Insurance

, content: Dear Reader,

Insurance industry is slowly embracing remote property intelligence as a quick, dependable, and cost-effective alternative to relying on estimates based datasets. COVID-19 lockdowns and corresponding physical-distancing protocols have double-downed the need to rethink underwriting.

High-resolution aerial imagery can reveal the underlying risks of the properties and add to the details in application data for underwriting purposes. According to a report by Markets & Markets, the global geospatial imagery analytics market size is expected to grow from $6.9 billion in 2020 to $27.9 billion in 2025, at a Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) of 32.1% during 2020-2025.

Insurers are likely to increase the use of geospatial analytics to take advantage of the latest in AI & ML advancements to allow for automated damage classification by combining this with location information such as an address and other information like the extent of damage. Pre and post-disaster imagery also will provide intelligence needed to expose insurance fraud.

Companies such as CAPE Analytics provides instant geospatial property intelligence for buildings across the USA and have now expanded to Canada. When integrated with Guidewire, Cape Analytics and Betterview offer insurers improved visibility and actionable insights into damage or risk so they can more accurately price, underwrite and adjudicate commercial and personal lines.

InsitePro by Intermap is a cloud-based software solution that brings together all the necessary data and analytics for underwriting natural catastrophe risk. Detailed elevation and terrain knowledge provides critical data giving underwriters the ability to expand portfolios and reduce risk exposure.

Under GOI's crop insurance scheme, Pradhan Mantri Fasal Bima Yojana (PMFBY), agencies will be conducting large-scale pilot studies for technology-based gram panchayat level yield estimates, using Geospatial Analytics.

Skymet in India is opening up its 10-year geospatial proprietary farm-level data repository through a digital platform 'SkAlgeo'. It can help the banking and insurance sector to create programmes after evaluation of crop risks using different indices. Some banks are using a digital lending solution built using the SkAlgeo platform to assess the risk profile of the farmers.

The pace of change has been augmented by the industry's need for quick decision making, driving down costs and optimizing the customer experience. We believe, geospatial analytics can help insurers make more accurate underwriting decisions, help reduce losses and assess claim payouts judiciously.

title: Get Education Loan for Studying MBA in Abroad

, content: Higher education helps extra edge to boost your career. It offers you an opportunity to explore your chosen field in great depth and helps you mould yourself into a knowledgeable professional. One of the most popular postgraduate degrees that students opt for these days is an MBA (Master of Business Administration).

Now, pursuing an MBA from a reputed university can cost a fortune. In this case, an education loan can help with the necessary funding so that you realise your dream of completing higher studies without worrying about the costs. An education loan offers you the flexibility of repaying the cost of your studies once you have finished your degree and secured a job. Most importantly, it frees your parents from bearing the cost of your higher education.

We at Bank of Baroda know how important your dreams are for you. And to help you realise them, we offer financial assistance in the form of affordable loans. We have curated a range of educational loan products that you can choose from to pursue higher studies. Now, you can touch the skies without worrying about the costs title: What are the benefits of taking an education loan for an MBA?

, content: Taking an education loan to pursue your MBA has many benefits. Let's look at some of them -

- Lower interest rate -

The education loan for MBA interest rate is generally lower than the interest rate on a personal loan. Also, the interest rate is 0.5% lower for female student applicants.

- Easy repayment -

You can now apply for an education loan with a maximum tenure of up to 15 years. That gives you plenty of time to repay your debt. Moreover, Bank of Baroda offers an extensive moratorium period for the course duration plus an additional 12 months so that you can get a job, save up, and then comfortably begin repayment.

- High loan amount -

Bank of Baroda lets you avail a loan amount of up to Rs 80 lakhs to fund your higher education. Apart from tuition fees, expenses like accommodation, travelling costs, and other study-related costs are also covered.

- Improves your credit score –

As an education loan is a long-term loan and repaying it helps to improve your credit score significantly. Making timely EMI repayments for your education loan can help build an excellent credit score for you.

- Tax benefits–

Applying for a student loan for MBA abroad has tax benefits too. You can claim a tax deduction for the interest paid towards the loan under Section 80E of Income Tax Act.

title: What are the eligibility criteria for an education loan for MBA?

, content: To help more students realise their dream of pursuing higher education, Bank of Baroda has simple eligibility criteria. From the minimum age requirement to the academic qualifications, here is a quick look at the MBA student loan eligibility criteria:

The applicant must be an Indian resident.

NRI/PIO/OCI will also be eligible after fulfilling certain criteria

The applicant must be a meritorious student title: What are the expenses covered by a higher education loan?

The applicant must hold confirmed admission to a recognised university in India or abroad.

, content: Apart from your tuition fee, there are several other costs involved in pursuing an MBA. For instance, you need to figure out how to pay for your accommodation if your university is far from home. These expenses can be quite heavy on your pocket, especially when you already have a considerable sum of tuition fee to pay for. Opting for a student loan is an excellent way of financing your higher education due to the comprehensive coverage offered.

The Bank of Baroda higher education loan comes in handy here. It allows you to pursue your education without having to compromise because of costs.

Here is an overview of the expenses covered by our higher education loan:

- Tuition fees –

The tuition fee amount generally constitutes the largest part of your budget for higher studies. Your tuition fee may vary depending on the course, Institutes and the country you have opted for. Bank of Baroda offers education loans for all leading courses around the world.

- Living expenses –

Living expenses tend to rise when you move out of your hometown for higher education. Taking care of accommodation, buying monthly groceries, and paying utility bills can burn a hole in your pocket. To help you afford these costs, Bank of Baroda education loans offer coverage for house rental and/or hostel fees.

- Study-related expenses –

Your course may also include projects and competitive tests. To ensure that you focus on your studies without compromise, our education loans offer to cover library costs, purchase of laptop, stationery, and other costs associated with your degree.

- Travel expenses –

Flight ticket prices and extra luggage costs have increased drastically over the years. These prices tend further go up during the peak season of student intake; thus, making it challenging for students to afford such high amounts. To help you out of this fix, the Bank of Baroda offers to cover travel expenses as well.

title: How to Get Instant Approvals for Bike Loans?, content: Two-wheelers are an extremely popular mode of commute for a large number of people in India. According to Statista, 8.98 million motorcycles, 4.01 million scooters, and 0.62 million mopeds were sold in India during 2022, with the total sales of two-wheelers for the year standing at 13.61 million. Two-wheelers are also the first vehicle for most people.

title: Follow These Simple Rules for Instant Bike Loan Approvals, content: If you're planning to buy your latest two-wheeler with an instant bike loan, you should begin by visiting the relevant page on your lender's site. There, you'll come across two wheeler loan EMI calculator which will help you with quick calculations of EMIs based on the amount of money you plan to borrow and the repayment period you choose. That should bring a lot of clarity even before you apply for two wheeler loan. Filling up the form online and submitting all required documents online can expedite the processing of your instant bike loan. However, you can also submit your application offline by visiting the branch of your lender.

title: Fill in Your Bike Loan Application Form Carefully, content: When you're looking for a two wheeler loan instant approval, you would not want your lender to return your application for insufficient and incomplete information. The same goes for the bike loan documents , too. You must provide 100% accurate and complete information, with the quality of documents in terms of legibility in top order.

title: Meet the Two Wheeler Loan Eligibility Criteria, content: Meeting the eligibility criteria is an important part of two wheeler loan process . A bike loan is available to salaried people, self-employed people, professionals, and farmers. An applicant should belong to one of these groups for instant two wheeler loan experience.

title: Maintain a Good Credit Score, content: A good credit score is always a big asset when you seek an instant two wheeler loan. So maintaining a high CIBIL score increases your chances of getting approved for an instant two wheeler loan.

title: Apply for the Right Loan Amount, content: In most cases, your lender will be ready to finance up to 80% to 90% of the price of the two-wheeler. You will have to pay a down payment for the remaining 10% to 20% of the price. Some lenders offer two-wheeler loans that meet 100% of the price. There could be some more costs associated with your bike purchase, such as taxes and the cost of the accessories.

title: Submit All Required Documents on Time, content: For two wheeler loan instant approval, you should submit all relevant documents on time. Usually, the documents must be submitted along with the duly-filled two wheeler loan application. It will help in securing instant bike loan approval.

title: Apply with Existing Financier, content: When seeking an instant two wheeler loan, it helps to work with your existing lender. It is because it already has some of your credentials including your KYC, which helps them take a quick and confident decision on your application.

title: Online Bike Loan Application, content: These days, most services in banks and financial institutions have become digitized. So, it's possible to make an online bike loan application and submit the documents in the same manner - online. While the option of making an offline application, which may suit many of the borrowers, is available, it's seen that online applications are granted instant two wheeler loans.

title: Why should you opt for a Bank of Baroda Two-Wheeler Loan?, content: Bank of Baroda (BoB) is the second-largest Indian public sector bank with over 132 million customers and $218 billion of total business. It offers a wide range of transactional and commercial services, including two-wheeler loans.

title: Bike Loan Documents, content: Motorcycles, scooters, and mopeds are highly popular in India. In 2022, over 13 million two-wheelers were sold in the country. While it's relatively easy to buy a two-wheeler with a bike loan, there is a set of documents required for two wheeler loans . These documents prove your eligibility for the loan as per the lender's guidelines.

title: Advantages of Bank of Baroda Two-Wheeler Loan, content: Motorcycles are the primary means of transportation in a vast majority of Indian households. title: Getting A Car Loan Soon? Make Sure To Avoid These 7 Mistakes!

, content: These days, cars have become more of a necessity for us than a luxury. As a result, there are about 1.4 billion cars on the road in the world today! A car is more than just a means of transport for many. But purchasing your dream car can be quite expensive. Thus, many people take a loan to finance the purchase of their dream vehicle. Though the advancement of technology has made it easy to procure a car loan, first-time applicants are prone to make a few mistakes that can cause their loan application to be rejected. However, to help you enjoy a smooth and quick loan application process, here are 7 car loan mistakes to avoid:

title: Not knowing your CIBIL score

, content: Your CIBIL score indicates your creditworthiness. It is a numeric score that is calculated based on your credit history and past debt repayments. Your CIBIL score plays a quite important role in the evaluation process of your loan application. Having a low CIBIL score will not only make it hard for you to procure credit, but will also increase the interest rate that the lender levies. Hence, it is quite important to do a CIBIL score check before applying for a car loan. This will help you understand if you are eligible for the loan and even help you get the loan at an attractive interest rate if your CIBIL score is great (above 750).

title: Not choosing your loan tenure smartly

, content: The tenure of your car loan is directly proportional to what the loan will end up costing you. This means that the longer it takes for you to repay the loan, the more interest you end up paying on the borrowed amount. However, if you choose a relatively short loan tenure, you will have to pay a higher monthly EMI amount. Hence, it is quite important to understand your numbers and choose a loan tenure that helps you clear off your debt with ease and save money on interest. The best way to achieve this is by using the online car loan calculator available on Bank of Baroda website. The car loan calculator is free to use and hence, allows you to check your monthly EMI amounts for different combinations of loan tenure, interest applicable, and loan amount.

title: Skipping the down payment

, content: The down payment is the portion of the car's price tag that you pay from your pocket. The bigger the down payment, the lesser loan amount you need from the lender. While many lenders require you to make a minimum percentage of down payment, a few loan providers offer to help you purchase your preferred car without any upfront cost. While zero down payment can be a lucrative option, it increases your total loan amount and, as a result, requires you to make higher monthly EMI payments. Thus, one of the best car loan tips is to always try to make a down payment on your vehicle.

title: Forgetting to try preapproved loans

, content: A preapproved loan helps you quickly receive credit from the lender without going through a tedious paperwork process. It offers you an estimation of the interest rate applicable to your debt, the maximum loan amount you can procure, and the maximum loan tenure you can choose. This makes car shopping much easier as you have a clear idea of your budget while finalising your ride. Though preapproved loans are quite beneficial for the debtor, the lender usually only offers these loans to individuals with a good credit history. Furthermore, preapproved loans usually require the borrower to fulfil certain criteria before the lender can sanction the loan amount, such as making a certain percentage of down payment (Margin on Vehicle). However, since preapproved loans can make your car shopping easier, it is advisable to be a little flexible in your finances and try to procure a preapproved loan if possible.

title: Borrowing more than what you can afford

, content: It is quite exciting to buy a new car, especially if you are doing it for the first time. Plus, the facility of a car loan makes affording your dream ride very easy. So, it is quite possible to get carried away and apply for a loan amount that is more than what you can afford. This can make it hard for you to manage the monthly EMI payments and thus, eventually compel you to default. Hence, it is better to understand your monthly expenses before starting your loan application process. You can analyse your DTI to get an idea about the same. DTI is the debt-to-income ratio; it shows how much percentage of your monthly income is allocated towards your debt repayment. The higher you're DTI, the lower should be your car loan amount. One way to cut back on the loan amount is to minimise the accessories you choose to take with your vehicle. Take necessary ones like sun shade covers, but try to cut down on stickers and other accessories that offer mere cosmetic value.

title: Not reading the terms and conditions of the loan

, content: Every form of debt comes with certain terms and conditions, even a car loan. It is important for you to know a few terms and conditions of your car loan, such as the required down payment, the type of car loan interest levied by the lender, and the requirement of collateral, among other parameters. All such details are mentioned in your loan agreement and are required to be understood by you before signing the document. Reading the terms and conditions of your debt will help you plan your repayments and clear your loan without any hassle.

title: Not comparing the different car options

, content: It is not only essential to understand your budget for financing the purchase of your vehicle, but also crucial for you to know the amount of money you would require for maintaining your ride. If you choose a car that fits your purchase budget but offers low mileage or requires frequent servicing, you may end up spending a lot of money on maintaining the vehicle. Due to this, your monthly budget can take a hit and make it difficult for you to make your EMI payments. Hence, it is better to compare the different available car options and choose a vehicle that fits your purchase budget and has affordable maintenance costs.

title: What are the benefits of opting for a personal loan this festive season?

, content: Giving your home a makeover just before a festival can be quite expensive. After all, it's not just the renovation expenses that you need to worry about. You also must plan for gifting presents to your loved ones, preparing lavish meals, and buying new clothes. Along with your home renovation costs, these additional expenses that accompany the festive season can burn a hole in your pocket or compel you to decrease your overall budget. You can tackle such financial hiccups by procuring a personal loan.

Getting an instant personal loan this festive season can help you afford to turn your home into the palace of your dreams. From new wallpaper to beautiful furniture, you can have it all. Here are some of the major benefits of taking a personal loan during the festive season.

You get to enjoy attractive offers from the lender

Many people wait to make their big purchases during the festive season. This means that there are more customers in the market during this time of the year. Thus, to boost the number of customers, lenders often come up with competitive interest rates and benefits. For example, some lenders even waive loan processing fees during this time of the year. This helps you, the debtor, to procure a personal loan at a significantly lower expense. These opportunities are usually only available to you during the festive season; thus, if you want to save while renovating your house, you should definitely take advantage of such offers while you can.

You get a bigger budget for your festival celebration.

The special offers and competitive interest rates make personal loans more accessible during the festive season. Thus, you can stretch your budget a bit if you need to. You won't have to compromise on buying that brand new sofa set or new smart refrigerator for your home.

Easy and stress-free repayment

Personal loans usually have a tenure of around 5 years. As you get a longer time for repayment, the EMI amount becomes quite easy to handle. Many lenders do not even charge you a penalty for prepayment of your loan. So, if you think you can clear your debt before the end of 5 years, you can conveniently do so without worrying about the penalties levied for the early clearance of your debt. However, this clause varies among loan providers, and you should check with your lender whether they levy a penalty for paying your loan back before the final due date.

title: Home renovation loan vs. personal loan

, content: There are typically two types of loans that can help you finance your home renovation - a home renovation loan and a personal loan. While the home renovation loan usually charges a lower interest rate, it can take up to 10 to 15 days to get the loan amount disbursed into your account. On the other hand, you can get personal loan instantly, provided you meet the eligibility criteria.

title: What are the features of a personal loan?

, content: It is collateral-free

A personal loan does not require you to pledge any collateral or security. Your eligibility for the loan is decided by your CIBIL score and income.

There is flexibility of usage

Unlike a home loan that can only be used to finance the purchase of your dream house or a car loan that can only be used to buy a car, a personal loan can be used for various purposes. You can procure a personal loan to renovate your house, overcome financial emergencies or pursue your goals. The lender does not place restrictions on how you can use the loan amount.

The documentation process is quite simple

You can easily get an instant personal loan online. You do not need to maintain a complicated paper trail to procure a personal loan. By providing the lender a proof of income, a proof of your identity and a proof of your address, you can easily get your funding sanctioned almost instantly. The loan amount will be disbursed to your account in about three to four working days, if not sooner.

Wide range of sanctioned amounts

A personal loan offers a loan amount of anywhere between Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 40 lakhs. So, you can be sure of covering even costly home renovations that involve construction work. The sanctioned loan amount depends upon your CIBIL score, monthly income, age, employer reputation and other such factors.

title: Documents required for a personal loan

, content: Here is a quick look at the documents required for a personal loan -

A document proving your identity, such as your Aadhaar card, driving license or passport

A document that acts as your proof of residence, such as your driving license, utility bills that are not more than three months old, or property purchase agreement

Documents that act as proof of your income, such as, salary slip, bank account statements and ITR or form 16

Proof of business such as certificate of practice, GST registration and filing documents, and shop act license for business owners title: How to get a personal loan?

, content: You can easily for a personal loan in 5 simple steps.

Step 1

The first step is to understand your purpose of procuring the loan. Then, you need to determine the total loan amount you need. This planning will save you from exceeding your budget.

Step 2

Once you have decided on the total loan amount required, you must calculate your EMI payments and formulate a strategy for the repayment of the debt. You can simply use an online personal loan EMI calculator for this purpose. The personal loan EMI calculator can be easily found on the lender's website.

Step 3

Now, check your eligibility for the personal loan. The loan amount that you are eligible for depends on your CIBIL score, age, and income. It is important to check if you are eligible for the loan amount required by you before starting the application process. You can check the eligibility online too.

Step 4

Once you know whether you are eligible for the loan amount, approach the lender and start your application process. Submit all the required documents and provide your details to the loan provider with complete transparency.

Step 5

Wait for your loan to get approved and disbursed. The disbursement of the loan amount typically takes three to four days. Once the money has been credited into your account, you are free to use it however you wish to.

title: Glossary of Mutual Fund Terms

, content: Navigating the world of mutual funds can be daunting, especially for beginners. Understanding the standard terms and concepts associated with mutual funds is crucial for investors to make informed decisions and maximize their investment potential.

When investing in mutual funds, understanding the jargon and mutual funds terminology used in the industry is crucial. Whether you are an experienced investor or just starting, familiarizing yourself with mutual fund terms will help you make informed decisions. In this mutual funds glossary, we will explore a range of terms used in mutual funds. So let's dive in and expand your knowledge of the glossary of mutual fund terms.

title: What is NAV?

, content: NAV stands for Net Asset Value. In the context of mutual funds, NAV represents the per-share value of a mutual fund. It is calculated by dividing the total value of all the fund's assets by the number of outstanding shares.

The calculation of NAV is typically done at the end of each trading day. It considers the market value of the fund's securities, including stocks, bonds, and other assets, subtracts any liabilities, and divides the result by the number of shares outstanding. The NAV per share reflects the value at which investors can buy or redeem shares in the mutual fund.

NAV is an essential metric for mutual fund investors as it provides a snapshot of the fund's underlying value. It helps investors track their investment performance and assess the fund's relative worth over time. Changes in NAV are influenced by various factors, including the performance of the fund's investments and any income distributions or capital gains realized by the fund.

title: What is SIP?

, content: SIP stands for Systematic Investment Plan. It is an investment strategy commonly used in mutual funds. With SIP, investors commit to investing a fixed amount of money regularly. This amount is deducted automatically from their bank account.

SIPs offer flexibility to investors. They can choose the amount they want to invest per installment and the frequency of investments, and they can also modify or stop their SIPs at their convenience.

SIPs are popular among investors who aim to invest systematically, overcome market timing concerns, and build wealth gradually. It allows individuals to start investing in small amounts and benefit from disciplined investing. Additionally, SIPs provide the convenience of automating investments, making it easier for investors to stick to their investment plans.

title: What is AMC?

, content: AMC stands for Asset Management Company. An AMC refers to the company or entity responsible for managing and operating the mutual fund scheme in mutual funds. The AMC acts as the investment manager and is entrusted with making investment decisions on behalf of the fund's investors.

An AMC is typically a separate legal entity, distinct from the mutual fund itself. It may be a financial institution, bank, or independent investment management company subsidiary. The AMC oversees all aspects of the mutual fund's operations, including investment management, compliance, administration, and customer service.

AMCs are critical players in the mutual fund industry, responsible for managing mutual fund investment portfolios and catering to investors' investment needs. They significantly shape mutual fund investors' investment strategies, performance, and overall experience.

title: What is STP?

, content: STP stands for Systematic Transfer Plan. It is an investment strategy commonly used in mutual funds that allow investors to transfer a fixed amount or a certain number of units from one mutual fund scheme to another at regular intervals.

With STP, an investor allocates a certain amount or a specific number of units from one mutual fund scheme, the source scheme, to another, the target scheme. The investor decides the frequency and amount of transfers.

STP allows investors to gradually move their investments from one scheme to another, enabling them to diversify their portfolio or align their investments with changing market conditions. It can be beneficial when an investor wants to shift from a more aggressive fund to a more conservative one or vice versa.

STP provides convenience by automating the transfers between schemes, eliminating the need for manual redemption and reinvestment.

title: What is SWP?

, content: SWP stands for Systematic Withdrawal Plan. With SWP, an investor plans to withdraw a fixed amount or a specific number of units from their mutual fund investment. The investor decides the frequency and amount of withdrawals.

SWP is often used by investors who seek regular cash flow or income from their mutual fund investments. By setting up an SWP, investors can receive a predetermined amount on a scheduled basis, providing them with a steady income stream.

SWP reduces the investment value over time as the specified amount of units is redeemed. Investors must carefully consider the impact of regular withdrawals on the long-term growth potential of their investment and ensure they have sufficient remaining funds to meet their financial objectives.

SWP can benefit investors who require a regular income stream or want to manage their cash flow from their mutual fund investments. However, investors should assess the potential tax implications, fees, and the performance of the mutual fund scheme before initiating an SWP.

title: Entry/Exit Load

, content: Entry load and exit load are terms used to describe the fees or charges associated with buying (entry) or selling (exit) shares of a mutual fund.

Entry load refers to a sales charge or fee that investors may be required to pay when purchasing mutual fund shares. It is deducted from the investment amount and reduces the number of shares acquired. However, it's important to note that entry loads have become less common in many jurisdictions, including the United States, as regulatory changes have eliminated or significantly reduced them.

Exit load refers to a fee or charge imposed on investors when they sell or redeem their mutual fund shares. It is typically a percentage of the redemption value or the NAV and is deducted from the sale proceeds. The purpose of an exit load is to discourage short-term trading and encourage long-term investment in the fund.

title: No-Load Funds

, content: As the name suggests, a no-load fund is a mutual fund that does not charge investors any sales or redemption fees. These funds are designed to be free from any upfront or back-end sales charges, allowing investors to invest in the fund without incurring additional costs related to buying or selling shares.

Investing in a no-load fund can appeal to investors who prefer to avoid sales charges or wish to have more control over their investment costs. It's important to note that although no-load funds don't charge sales loads, they may still have other fees, such as management fees and operating expenses, which are disclosed in the fund's prospectus.

Investors should carefully review the prospectus and consider the overall cost structure, investment strategy, and fund performance before making an investment decision.

title: What is AUM?

, content: AUM stands for Assets Under Management. It is a financial metric representing the total market value of all the assets (investments) that an investment management firm, such as a mutual fund company, manages on behalf of its clients.

AUM is calculated by adding the market value of all the investments in a firm's portfolios. This includes stocks, bonds, cash, and other securities the firm manages for its clients. It is often linked to the fees charged by the investment management firm. As the AUM grows, so does the revenue generated by the firm. However, it's important to note that the fee structure can vary among different firms and investment products.

AUM can have an impact on the investment performance of a fund. As the AUM increases, it may become more challenging for the fund manager to effectively deploy the capital and achieve the same level of returns. It can also impact the fund's ability to invest in particular securities due to liquidity constraints. AUM provides a snapshot of the total value of assets managed by an investment management firm and serves as an important metric in assessing the firm's size and capabilities.

title: What is NFO?

, content: NFO stands for New Fund Offer. It refers to the launch of a new mutual fund scheme or investment product by an asset management company (AMC). During an NFO, the AMC offers investors units of the new scheme for the first time.

NFO represents the introduction of a new mutual fund scheme by an AMC. The scheme could be of different types, such as equity funds, debt funds, hybrid funds, sector-specific funds, or any other specialized category based on the scheme's investment objectives. An NFO has a defined subscription period during which investors can subscribe to the new scheme by purchasing its units.

Investors considering investing in an NFO should carefully evaluate the scheme's investment objectives, risk factors, track record of the AMC, and the potential fit with their investment goals. It's important to note that while NFOs may offer the opportunity to invest in a new scheme at the initial offer price, they also carry inherent risks associated with investing in a new and untested scheme. As with any investment decision, investors should conduct thorough research and seek professional advice.

title: Conclusion : mutual fund terms

, content: Understanding mutual fund terms and terminology is essential for investors seeking to navigate the world of mutual funds. This glossary of mutual fund terms has provided an overview of some key concepts and terms used in mutual funds.

By familiarizing themselves with terms used in mutual fund, investors can gain a deeper understanding of how mutual funds operate, evaluate the performance of funds, make informed investment choices, and effectively communicate with their financial advisors or fund managers.

By staying informed about mutual funds terminology and understanding the nuances of different mutual fund terms, investors can become more confident and knowledgeable participants in the world of mutual funds.

title: What is the EMI for a gold loan?

, content: Gold is one of the most liquid assets you can own. For example, when you are in urgent need of funds, you can pledge your gold as collateral and get a gold loan. You can repay the loan with interest due over a pre-determined tenure in equated monthly instalments or EMI (a fixed sum of money every month).

You can use a Gold Loan EMI Calculator to calculate gold loan EMI, which you would have to pay each month.

title: How is EMI calculated for gold loans?

, content: You can calculate the EMI due on your Gold Loan manually by applying a formula. The formula is as follows:

EMI Amount =  $[P \times R \times (1+R)^N] / [(1+R)^N - 1]$ , wherein P is principle, R is the rate of interest, and N is the number of instalments.

However, conducting manual calculations can be tedious and leave room for errors. Instead, you can opt for the Bank of Baroda gold loan interest rate calculator, available online for free. It will give you accurate results within a matter of seconds!

title: What is the Gold Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: Gold Loan Calculator is a tool provided by banks and financial institutions. It is a computer-based calculator, that will do the complex calculations related to your Gold Loan for you.

Just enter in certain details, and you will get accurate results on the EMI you will have to pay on your Gold Loan each month. The calculator is available online.

title: How does a Gold Loan EMI Calculator work?

, content: A Gold Loan EMI Calculator is embedded with the mathematical formula for calculating the EMI on Gold Loans.

It will give you an accurate EMI projection within seconds.

title: How to use a Gold Loan Calculator?

, content: Using a Gold Loan Calculator is very simple. You just have to fill in the pertinent details concerning your Gold Loan, and you will see either the loan amount on offer or monthly EMI within seconds.

Bank of Baroda also offers a Gold Loan Calculator for your convenience. The rate of interest and product LTV (Loan-to-Value ratio) are already provided. You simply have to input details like the number of ornaments you will be pledging, their quality in terms of carat, and their weight in grams.

You will be shown the loan amount offered to you almost instantly!

title: What is Gold Loan?, content: A gold loan is a type of loan in which you need to pledge your gold assets in the form of jewellery or coins as collateral. Typically, up to 75%-80% of the total gold value is offered as a loan, based on the current market value and quality of gold. The loan amount is calculated on the basis of the Loan to Value (LTV) ratio. You can repay your gold loan through monthly instalments. Once the loan has been cleared, the lender will return the gold that was deposited. Most people are confused about whether a gold loan is secured or unsecured loan in nature. Since a gold loan is offered against collateral which is your gold, it is a secured loan.

title: Advantages and Disadvantages of Gold Loan, content: ALSO READ: Benefits of gold loan title: What is Personal Loan?, content: A personal loan is an unsecured loan. This means that you do not have to provide collateral to get funds. As long as the lender considers you creditworthy, you will be eligible for a loan. Depending on the lender's policy, you need to prove your eligibility based on your income, repayment capacity, nature of employment, and credit history, among other factors.

title: How to Choose Between Gold Loan and Personal Loan, content: Gold loans vs personal loans always put borrowers in a dilemma. Gold loans are secured loans and, therefore, attract a lower interest rate. However, personal loans, being unsecured loans, have a higher interest rate than gold loans. Further, gold loans attract lower processing fees and other charges while these charges are relatively higher in personal loans. Also, closer the personal and gold loan CIBIL Score of an applicant is to 900, the better it is.

title: Conclusion : gold loan vs personal loan , content: Personal loans and gold loans can both help you manage urgent and important expenses, whether planned or unplanned. Bank of Baroda offers attractive personal loan and gold loan interest rates. You simply need to make the choice of which type of loan suits your requirement and repayment capacity and then check your EMI using our gold loan EMI calculator. title: Government Subsidy on Electric Vehicle Purchases in India 2022: Here's How to Save Lakhs

, content: A cleaner and greener planet is the need of the hour. While changing the environment in a day's time is implausible, we can certainly take small steps that will show results over time. One such measure is shifting to fossil-fuel-free Electric Vehicles (EV). Did you know that India had electric vehicles back in the late 1990s? However, due to insufficient technology, these vehicles saw a rapid decline. However, with today's advanced technology and alternative commuting options, now is the best time to adopt greener modes of transportation. Moreover, the Government of India offers subsidies on electric vehicles, leading to savings in Lakhs. Here's what you need to know about the Electric Vehicle Subsidy in India.

title: Government Subsidy on Electric Vehicles

, content: To increase the usage of electric vehicles, the Government has increased its subsidy scheme for the purchase of electric vehicles. According to Budget 2022-23, the Faster Adoption and Manufacturing of Hybrid and Electric Vehicles (FAME) scheme shall provide a subsidy of up to INR 2908 Cr. The first phase of FAME began in April 2015, and it lasted till 2019 after numerous extensions. After the end of phase 1, phase 2 of FAME was released, which was supposed to end in March 2022. However, the Government has extended the period till March 2024. The phase-2 FAME scheme has supported over 200,000 vehicles, and the subsidy has amounted to INR 900 Cr.

You can get an incentive of INR 15,000 per KWh on two-wheeler EVs with an incentive cap of 40% of the vehicle cost. Previously, the incentive provided was INR 10,000 with a 20% incentive cap. Due to additional incentives at the state level, Karnataka ranks first when it comes to the number of beneficiaries under the FAME Scheme, followed by Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra, Rajasthan and Delhi.

You can avail of tax exemptions of up to INR 1.5 Lakh if you purchase the EV by taking a loan. Road Tax and discounts on registration fees are among the other subsidy on electric vehicles offered by the Government / State Government title: Subsidy on Electric Vehicles in Select States

, content: Below are the states that offer Government subsidy on electric vehicles on both two and four-wheeler vehicles.

Maharashtra

If you reside in Maharashtra, you can get INR 5,000 per kWh as a subsidy on Electric Vehicle. If you purchase a 4-wheeler EV, the maximum EV vehicle subsidy you can get is INR 1.5 Lakh if you are amongst the first 10,000 buyers. A scrapping incentive of up to INR 25,000, too, can be availed. In the case of 2-wheeler loan, you can get a subsidy of up to INR 10,000 for the first 10 Lakh buyers. You also get incentives on scrapping (up to INR 7,000) and buyback schemes (up to INR 12,000). To increase the sale of EVs, road tax and registration fees have been exempted by the Maharashtra Government.

Delhi

The Delhi Government offers an EV vehicle subsidy of INR 10,000 kWh on 4-wheelers with a cap of INR 1.5 Lakh as the maximum subsidy for the first 1,000 buyers. For 2-wheelers, you enjoy INR 5,000 per kWh with a maximum subsidy of INR 30,000 with a scrapping incentive of INR 10,000. Also, charges such as road tax and registration fees are fully exempted.

Gujarat

For Electric Cars, you can avail of INR 10,000 per kWh as an incentive, and in the early bird offer, 10,000 buyers can get a maximum of INR 1.5 Lakh in subsidies. If you purchase a 2-wheeler, you are eligible to get an incentive of INR 10,000 kWh. If you are one of the first 1.1 Lakh buyers, the subsidy is capped at INR 20,000. You pay zero registration fee and road tax. The state plans to reduce CO2 emissions by 6 Lakh tonnes and subsidise the purchase of 2 Lakh EVs by 2025.

Assam

The Electric Vehicle Policy of Assam, 2021, aims to improve air quality by enabling EVs to contribute to 25% of all new vehicle registrations by 2026. Following are the vehicle-wise incentive offered by the state of Assam.

Other incentives include no parking charges & road taxes for 5 years and a retro-fitment incentive of up to INR 15,000 for 3-seater auto rickshaws.

Meghalaya

Until 31st October 2020, Meghalaya has had only 6 registered EVs. The Government aims to enable the adoption of 20,000 EVs during the 5-year policy period. For 2-wheelers with a maximum ex-factory price of INR 1.5 Lakhs, the Government offers a subsidy of INR 10,000 per kWh for the first 3500 buyers. If you purchase a 3-wheeler EV, you get an incentive of INR 4,000 per kWh for the first 200 EVs. The ex-factory price of the vehicle should not exceed INR 5 Lakh. You can avail of an INR 4,000 incentive on purchasing a 4-wheeler EV of a maximum ex-factory price of INR 15 Lakhs. The early bird offer is limited to the first 2500 buyers.

Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka, Madhya Pradesh, Punjab, Rajasthan, Tamil Nadu, Telangana, Uttarakhand, and Uttar Pradesh do not offer direct subsidy on Electric Vehicle; however, you can get a complete waiver on road tax until the end of the EV policy of the respective states.

title: Electric Vehicle Vs. Petrol Vehicle/Diesel Vehicle – A Comparison

, content: Energy Cost:

With Electric Vehicles, you do not have to worry about the changing prices of petrol and diesel. EVs use electricity to charge the batteries, and in India, the average per unit (1 Kilowatt/hour) costs anywhere between INR 7 to 10. Assuming the battery power of a 250 Km range 4-wheeler is 40 kWh, at INR 8 per unit, your electricity cost would be INR 350 for every 250 kilometres. In comparison, petrol and diesel prices are unstable, and have been on an upward trajectory for the longest time. We can expect even higher fuel costs in the future. Moreover, alternative renewable energy resources are further expected to reduce the energy and electricity costs.

Environmental Impact:

Crude oil is mixed with several chemicals to form petrol and diesel. Burning these chemicals leads to the emission of pollutants that are incredibly harmful to the environment. The carbon footprint from Electric Vehicles is not zero since electricity, too, is generated from fossil fuels. However, if you compare an electric vehicle vs petrol vehicle, the former is relatively greener.

Subsidies:

To accelerate the purchase of EVs, the Government offers subsidy on electric vehicles such as INR 10,000 per kWh for the first 10000 EV purchases. In 2019, the Faster Adoption and Manufacturing of Hybrid and Electric Vehicles (FAME) scheme offered INR 15,000 per kWh for a two-wheeler purchase.

Pricing:

Another reason the Government offers subsidies on EVs is their high cost. The battery used in these vehicles comes at a high price tag. These batteries are made of lithium, but are much bigger in size. However, by availing of the electric vehicle subsidy by central Government, consumers can bridge the gap between the costs of the two types of vehicles.

Maintenance Cost:

Electric Vehicles do not require oil or filter changes; hence, they require low minimal maintenance. EVs have fewer components, which means lesser maintenance.

Tax Benefits:

If you are taking a loan for purchasing a 4-wheeler or 2-wheeler EV, you can get tax exemptions of up to INR 1.5 Lakh under Section 80EEB of the Income Tax Act, 1961. You may avail of this benefit only once, and you should purchase the EV for personal use only. These benefits are not available for fuel-powered vehicles.

title: How to apply for Vehicle Loan?

, content: While applying for an EV loan, you can follow the same steps as you would for any other vehicle loan. Here's how to apply for Vehicle Loans.

Select your desired EV from your car/two-wheeler dealership.

Compare interest rates, maximum loan amount and tenure offered by various lenders.

Once you decide on the lender, check their application process, whether it is online or offline.

Fill out the application form and submit ID and address proof documents along with the proforma invoice of the car.

Once approved, the lender will disburse the loan amount in the car dealership's name.

title: Final Note

, content: Irrespective of which type of vehicle you use, you must assess the pros and cons of electric cars and fuel-based cars. Of course, the subsidy on Electric Vehicles, makes it a more lucrative option. The great news is that you can also apply for vehicle loans to buy an EV, pay a small down payment and still avail of the subsidy. Ensure you check your state-wise rules and subsidy benefits before purchasing an electric vehicle.

title: History of Bank

, content: It is a story scripted in corporate wisdom and social pride. It is a story crafted in private capital, princely patronage and state ownership. It is a story of ordinary bankers and their extraordinary contribution in the ascent of Bank of Baroda to the formidable heights of corporate glory. It is a story that needs to be shared with all those millions of people - customers, stakeholders, employees & the public at large - who in ample measure, have contributed to the making of an institution.

title: Our Logo

, content: A unique representation of a universal symbol. It comprises dual 'B' letterforms that hold the rays of the rising sun. We call this the Baroda Sun.

The sun is an excellent representation of what our bank stands for. It is the single most powerful source of light and energy - its far reaching rays dispel darkness to illuminate everything they touch. At Bank of Baroda, we seek to be the source that will help all our stakeholders realize their goals. To our customers, we seek to be a one-stop, reliable partner who will help them address different financial needs. To our employees, we offer rewarding careers and to our investors and business partners, maximum return on their investment.

The single-colour, compelling vermillion palette has been carefully chosen, for its distinctiveness as it stands for hope and energy.

We also recognize that our bank is characterized by diversity. Our network of branches spans geographical and cultural boundaries and rural-urban divides. Our customers come from a wide spectrum of industries and backgrounds. The Baroda Sun is a fitting face for our brand because it is a universal symbol of dynamism and optimism - it is meaningful for our many audiences and easily decoded by all.

The current identity is a result of the amalgamation of e-Dena and e-Vijaya with Bank of Baroda.

The revised logo consists of two parts: the identifier and logotype in Hindi and English along with the Vijaya and Dena Bank units. Together, they are referred to as the Composite Logo. The new corporate brand identity is a clear, strategically designed, powerful visual representation which affirms that we recognize and are prepared for new business paradigms in a globalized world. All while we stay in touch with our heritage and the enduring relationships on which our bank is founded.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Calculator

, content: Buying the home of your dreams is no less than a milestone for you. It all begins with a decision, followed by consideration of various home loans provided by banks and non-banking financial institutions (NBFCs) and consideration of all financial factors. Before applying for a home loan, it is crucial to take all necessary measures to financially prepare yourself for a significant investment, as this is one of the most important decisions of your life. One of these steps is knowing your home loan eligibility criteria.

title: What is Home Loan Eligibility?

, content: Home loan eligibility describes the criteria that banks, and non-banking financial institutions (NBFCs) use to assess a loan applicant's creditworthiness and ability to repay the loan. Thus, checking your home loan eligibility and doing a loan eligibility check will make your loan availing process smooth. Additionally, it lessens your chance of having a loan denied, which could affect your credit score. Which tool is required to determine your eligibility for a home loan? And the answer is the home loan eligibility calculator.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Calculator

, content: You can check your loan eligibility in a few minutes while lounging in the comfort of your home thanks to the digitization of banks and the availability of online banking products. All you need to do is access the online home loan eligibility calculator.

title: What is a Home Loan Eligibility Calculator?

, content: A home loan eligibility calculator is an online tool that enables you to assess your home loan eligibility in just a few clicks with some simple steps. Using this home loan eligibility calculator, you can get an accurate idea of the loan amount you qualify for to purchase a home. If you have checked your home loan amount eligibility online, it will be clear if you are eligible for the loan or not.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Criteria

, content: Certain criteria that must be met by a housing loan eligibility calculator are nearly identical to those needed for any other bank loan eligibility. The basic requirements to match a home loan amount eligibility are as follows:

Nationality of the applicant: For a home loan, applicants may be residents of India, non-resident Indians (NRIs) holding Indian passports, persons of Indian origin (PIOs) holding passports of other countries, or overseas citizens of India (OCI).

Age of the applicant: If your age is at least 21 years or if you are a co-applicant, then 18 years of age.

Financial position of the applicant: Salaried or self-employed.

Creditworthiness of the applicant: A clear current and past credit history and credit score.

Existing liabilities of the applicant: Record of financial obligations such as ongoing loans or credit card debt.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Criteria Based on Age

, content: Minimum age: 21 years for an applicant and 18 years for a co-applicant.

Maximum age (i.e., age + repayment period):

For salaried: Generally, up to retirement age

For non-salaried: up to 65 years

A note on home loan eligibility: The loan period may be viewed in some circumstances as exceeding the maximum age.

Understanding how your age may affect your ability to obtain a home loan is crucial. Since a lot of individuals in their mid-20s and 30s have higher disposable income, it is quite easy for them to avail an affordable home loan with a longer repayment tenure and higher value. However, the same may not be applicable for individuals in their 40s and those nearing retirement age.

title: How to Improve Your Home Loan Eligibility?

, content: There are certain factors that may prevent you from getting the right home loan for your right home. These factors are:

Growing age or reaching near your retiring age.

Lack of a steady income source.

Poor credit score and repayment history.

However, it is possible to improve your loan amount eligibility and significantly enhance your chances of getting a home loan with these five easy ways:

Joint home loan: You can apply for a joint home loan with a co-applicant to increase your chances of availing of a higher loan amount. Any family member can be listed as a co-applicant, including parents, spouses, siblings, and kids. This will also help you share the financial burden. You and the co-applicant will both qualify for tax benefits under the tax laws, so keep that in mind. Longer loan tenure: When determining your eligibility using the home loan eligibility calculator, you can select a longer loan tenure. Even though doing this may strain your finances over time, it will undoubtedly lower your EMI. By doing this, you can make sure that your loan is repaid on time, which will increase your eligibility.

Prepayment of existing loans: You can foreclose or make a prepayment of all your existing loans to improve your credit score and increase your loan amount eligibility before checking your home loan amount eligibility and applying for a home loan.

CIBIL or credit score: You can maintain a good CIBIL score with a higher credit score of approximately above 800 and can instantly help you enhance your home loan eligibility. You must keep a regular check on your CIBIL score to avoid loan rejection.

Additional income sources: You can specify all your additional income sources to improve your loan eligibility as it increases your debt-to-income ratio. For example, if you own another property, you can put it on rent or declare the rent received in favor as the additional income.

The List of Factors which Determine Home Loan Eligibility

Your home loan eligibility is majorly determined by factors such as your monthly or annual income, your age, your CIBIL or credit score, financial obligations, credit history, etc. Let us discuss some of these factors in detail as given below:

Age criteria: Your age is the foremost determinant considered by banks while determining your home loan eligibility. Most banks limit the home loan tenure to the applicant's retirement age. Thus, in comparison to young individuals, it is difficult for older people nearing retirement to get a longer-term home loan unless they have proof of a regular income source.

CIBIL or credit score: Your CIBIL or credit score is another vital determinant based on which the bank assesses your loan repayment ability. The credit score is a three-digit number which is basically a summary of your credit history. It is always a good option to check the minimum credit score for a home loan before checking your home loan eligibility since a poor credit score leads to higher interest rates or loan rejection.

Income stability: The source of income and job stability for salaried individuals are taken into consideration by financial institutions when approving loan applications. Similarly, self-employed individuals can be eligible for a loan if they prove they have a steady income source. Let us understand this with an example.

Property details: The age (date or the year of construction) and the location of the property you have chosen to purchase are among the serious factors that banks may consider while approving your home loan. These factors act as a security against which you can avail the home loan. Moreover, there might be a chance that the home loan application would get rejected, if the tenure is longer than the remaining sustaining years of the property. Therefore, banks usually conduct a kind of technical and legal investigation of the property before sanctioning the home loan.

Loan-to-value (LTV): The loan-to-value ratio or LTV in home loan refers to the ratio between the home loan amount and the appraised value of the property. In simple words it is one of the risk assessments tools or methods used by banks to minimize the chances of defaults. It is basically the percentage of the property value that a bank can lend to a home buyer.

Debt-to-income ratio: Debt-to-income ratio refers to an assessment tool considered by the banks to measure the home loan applicant's repayment capacity. It is calculated as a percentage by dividing the home loan applicant's net monthly debt payments by his or her monthly income.

title: What factors determine Home Loan eligibility?

, content: Your Home Loan eligibility depends on various factors. The banks also take into account your credit score and repayment history. They also look into any existing debt you might have. They consider your employment conditions and income. Additionally, they also factor in your age, location, and property details.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Guide for Beginners, content: Buying a house in today's real estate market may seem expensive, but it is not impossible. With Bank of Baroda's Home Loans, you can buy a ready-to-move-in home, an under-construction home or a plot of land and construct house within 36 months. You can even construct a house on any piece of land you own. The bank also provides the necessary finance to renovate your existing property. However, your loan is sanctioned only if you fit the bank's Home Loan eligibility criteria. Let's understand what is Home Loan eligibility, and the various criteria considered by the bank.

title: What is Home Loan Eligibility?, content: Home Loan eligibility is nothing but an assessment of your loan repayment capacity. To assess whether you can afford and then repay the loan in a timely fashion, the bank considers several factors. These include your age, your income, your credit scores, the type of loan you are applying for, among others. Based on these factors, the bank determines the maximum loan amount you can get. Some factors also help you procure a lower interest rate on your Home Loan. Let's take a look at each of these criteria individually. Home loan eligibility for takeover loan/balance transfer: Home loan eligibility for takeover loan/balance transfer is for both resident and non-resident Indians for getting better deals from a new lender. The age limit of the borrower should be between 18-70 years, can be salaried or self-employed. Ensure that you submit the right documents for meeting the eligibility criteria for home loan balance transfer.

Home loan eligibility for Pre approved home loan: Eligibility for pre-approved home loan includes a good credit profile, applicant's income, type of employment, employer's profile, the mention of a specified timeframe, outstanding loans that the borrower may be paying.

Home loan eligibility for home renovation loan: Eligibility for a home renovation loan from Bank of Baroda is applicable for both resident and non-resident Indians. The age limit should be between 21-70 years, can be salaried or self-employed. The credit score should be 701 or more. All important documents must be furnished.

Home loan eligibility for NRI: For Home loan eligibility for NRI, the person can be an Indian passport holder, person of Indian origin (PIOs) holding a foreign passport or can be an Overseas Citizens of India (OCI). Age limit should be between 21 - 70 years. Should have a permanent job/self-employed abroad for a minimum of 2 years with minimum annual income of Rs. 5 lakhs.

Home loan eligibility for top-up loan: For home loan eligibility for top-up loan the borrower should maintain good loan repayment track record. They should meet the appropriate age limit and maintain a healthy credit report.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Criteria Based on Salary/Income, content: Your salary is the first criterion on which the bank assesses your Housing Loan eligibility. You should be able to provide valid proof of your income to eligible for this loan. You could be a salaried employee, a self-employed professional or a business/practice owner such as a lawyer, doctor, chartered accountant, etc. Essentially, it would help if you had a regular income to be eligible for a Bank of Baroda Home Loan. What's more, you can apply for the loan jointly with another immediate family member (check with the bank for eligible joint holders), who is also stably and securely employed, to improve your eligibility.

The bank typically has a standard interest rate and loan amount allowance based on your income bracket. The interest rate is linked to the Baroda Repo Linked Lending Rate or BRLLR and varies as per your credit score. [For instance, if your net monthly income is Rs. 25,000 and you can produce credit scores exceeding 750 points, you may be eligible for a maximum loan amount of Rs. 15 lakh at interest rates starting at 6.85% p.a*. On the other hand, if you have good credit scores and your net monthly income is Rs. 75,000, you can get a maximum loan amount exceeding Rs. 57 lakh.] You may repay the loan in tenures lasting up to 30 years.

You can use the Bank of Baroda Home Loan eligibility calculator to check the maximum loan amount you can get based on your salary.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Criteria - Self Employed individuals, content: Home Loan Eligibility Criteria for self-employed individuals is offered to an Indian national with a minimum of 2 years of business continuity. Age limit must be between 21-65 years, CIBIL score should be 701 or higher, loan-to-value ratio should be 75-90%.

title: Home Loan Eligibility Based on Age, content: Your age is another crucial Housing Loan eligibility factor that banks consider. Typically, the bank requires you to be at least 21 years of age to apply for the loan. Also, your age at the time of final EMI repayment should not exceed 65 years. Your chances of getting a Home Loan sanctioned are higher when you are younger; typically in your twenties or thirties. This is because, in this age group, you would have established your career securely, and you would have the capability to repay a high-value, long-tenured loan like a Home Loan. Furthermore, when you apply for a loan in your twenties or thirties, you still have several years of gainful employment ahead of you. You would be drawing a monthly income, which helps you repay your EMIs on time.

When you apply for a loan in your 40s, you may be able to make a higher down payment or pay a higher EMI amount. You need to assess what works best for you and then apply for the loan accordingly.

title: Other Factors determining Home Loan Eligibility, content: Apart from your salary and age, several other Home Loan eligibility criteria that the bank evaluates while considering your home loan application. They are as under:

- The Number of Years You've Been Employed

Being employed for over three years with the same employer conveys to the bank that you are stably employed.

- The Details of Your Employment

Typically, the bank consults your employer to assess your claim of employment. It also asks you to provide documents such as your offer letter, monthly income statements and salary slips, etc., to determine your eligibility. These documents help the bank evaluate your employer's reputation and decide the loan amount and interest rate you can get.

- Your Credit Scores and Financial Management

Your credit score is perhaps the most crucial of all Home Loan eligibility criteria. It is nothing but an assessment of your financial behaviour and your creditworthiness. Your credit score helps the bank evaluate how you spend your money and your income-to-credit ratio, i.e., how often you use your credit card and whether you repay your credit card bills on time, whether you are repaying your other existing loans regularly. It would help if you typically had a credit score of over 775 points out of a possible 900 points to get a low-interest Home Loan. The bank may also sanction your loan request if your credit score is in the 701-774range, but you may be charged a higher interest.**

- The Value of the Property You Intend to Buy and the Loan-to-Value Ratio
While the bank finances a significant portion of the value of the property you want to buy, you have to provide a down payment. Typically, you have to provide at least 10% of the property's value as down payment, and the bank finances the remaining 90 per cent. This is known as the Loan-to-Value ratio. With Bank of Baroda, you can get finance of up to 90% for Home Loans up to Rs. 30 lakh. You can get up to 80% finance for loans in the Rs. 30 lakh to Rs. 75 lakh range. If you need a loan exceeding Rs. 75 lakh, you have to pay a down payment of up to 25% of the property's market value and can get loans up to 75% of the value of the property.

title: How is Home loan Eligibility Calculated?, content: Now you can calculate your Housing Loan eligibility even before you apply for the loan. You can use an online Home Loan eligibility calculator, available on the Bank of Baroda website. Enter details such as your age, income, monthly expenses, other loans EMIs, and the value of the property you intend to buy. Once you submit these details and click on enter, the calculator computes the maximum loan amount you can get. You can apply for a Home Loan online.

title: What is Home Loan EMI?

, content: An Equated Monthly Instalment or EMI is the fixed sum of money you pay each month whilst repaying your Home Loan. The EMI comprises a portion of the principal amount loaned to purchase the property and a portion of the interest component payable against the loaned amount.

The monthly EMI payable against the loan depends on the amount loaned, the interest rate levied, and the borrower's repayment tenure. Typically, the EMI amount is lower if you opt for a longer tenure loan, and higher if you opt for a short tenure loan.

title: How to use a Home Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: Using a Home Loan EMI calculator is incredibly easy and enables you to calculate the EMI amount within a second. But before you use it, you should have a rough estimation of the principal loan amount you need and the EMI you can pay, based on your monthly income and expenses.

The EMI calculator uses the formula  $EMI = [P \times R \times (1+R)^N] / [(1+R)^N - 1]$  to compute the EMI amount.

Enter the principal loan amount you need, a reasonable interest rate, and the loan's tenure. The online tool will compute the EMI amount instantly.

title: How to use our Home Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: Calculate your Bank of Baroda Home Loan EMI amount in three simple steps with our instant Home Loan calculator:

Loan Amount: Input the desired loan amount that you wish to avail.

Loan Tenure (In Years): Input the desired loan term for which you wish to avail the housing loan.

A longer tenure helps in enhancing the eligibility Interest Rate (% P.A.): Input interest rate.

title: What are the advantages of a Home Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: EMI calculators prepare you for the Home Loan by predicting the potential EMI payable even before your home loan is sanctioned.

The EMI calculator removes the need for manual calculations and errors.

It enables you to adjust the loan amount and tenure by entering different permutations and combinations of principal amount and term, to arrive at an affordable EMI amount.

Knowing the EMI in advance allows you to streamline your finances and plan your budget in a way that you can accommodate the EMI without affecting your other mandatory expenses.

title: Understanding Home Loan Principal & Interest Rate, content: Bank of Baroda offers a wide variety of Home Loans that you can choose from, based on your requirements. The bank offers loans of several lakh to a few crores in various Indian cities and towns. With its streamlined, online process, you can now apply for the loan online through the bank's website. You can even get a pre-approval for the loan, select a property based on your eligibility, and submit your documents online. But before you take a Home Loan, you should familiarise yourself with the various terminologies associated with the loan; two of which are most crucial. We are talking about the Home Loan principal amount and interest rates. Let's understand these in detail.

title: What is the Home Loan Principal Amount?, content: To put it simply, the Home Loan principal is the amount of money financed by the bank to help you buy a property of your choice. The property in question could be cost of newly constructed, a pre-owned property, or an under-construction property. It could also be a plot of land and construction thereon you want to buy. The bank also offers you the necessary finance to construct a property on a piece of land you want to buy, renovate, or remodel your existing property. Such financing also falls under

title: Example to Help Understand Home Loan Principal Amount, content: Let's say you want to buy a 2BHK in Pune City. The cost of the flat is Rs. 1 crore. After assessing your eligibility, the bank decides to offer you a loan amount of 75%, while you must provide the remaining 25% as a down payment. As such, you would be eligible for a loan of Rs. 75lakh and you must make a down payment of Rs. 25lakh. Thus, your principal on Housing Loan would be Rs. 75 lakhs. This amount reduces with every EMI you pay towards Home Loan repayment.

title: Difference Between Home Loan Principal & Interest Rate, content: Having explained what Home Loan principal is, let's understand what interest rate on Home Loans is, and how it differs from the principal loan amount.

title: What is EMI?, content: The EMI you pay towards your Housing Loan comprises both the Housing Loan principal amount and the interest amount. With every EMI you repay, the principal amount reduces. Interest is charged on every month on remaining outstanding principal. So gradually with repayment of every EMI, original principal amount is reduced and according to every month amount of interest is reduced. Thus, in later EMIs, portion of principal is higher, and it increases further with every payment of EMI. In the beginning, a significant portion of the EMI goes towards interest repayment, while a smaller portion goes towards repaying the principal amount.

title: How Much Home Loan Can I Get As A Salaried Employee?, content: Real estate rates are rising with every passing day. It is no longer feasible for one to purchase a home simply with the help of their savings. You need to approach a bank to take out a home loan. But lenders need to be sure that you have the capacity to repay the loan, before passing your loan. To ensure you have the repayment capacity, they take a few important factors into consideration such as your net monthly income, credit scores, and credit repayment behaviour. If you are a salaried employee thinking how much home loan I can get on my salary, you need to read this article.

title: Home Loan Tenure - Introduction

, content: Home loans are a blessing for every home buyer. With the ease of repayment, a home loan fulfils the home buyer's commitment to own a house. Even if you have an average income, you can dream of owning a home with the maximum tenure for a home loan, the duration at which the borrower repays the full loan amount, the principal sum and the accrued interest. Some might find the idea of loan and repayment discouraging, considering it to be a lifelong burden, but with a bit of planning the gains are much higher and you can repay home loans faster than you had planned. In a few years, you can see your world coming to shape little by little. As Earl Nightingale rightly remarked, all you need is the plan, the road map, and the courage to press on to your destination, if all three are in place, dreams happen. Home loans allow you to invest in a property with certain minimum margin. You are given the option to easily return the loan amount within a specific period. You can discuss the repayment tenure with your lender and choose the maximum tenure for a home loan or minimum tenure for a home loan, subject to your capability. Both repayment tenures have their advantages and disadvantages. We will help you understand how each stand against the other and when and why should borrowers choose the respective tenure options.

title: The maximum tenure for home loan repayment, content: When we talk about the maximum tenure for a home loan, it refers to the loan tenure or the duration at which you and the lender decide on the loan repayment. The loan is repaid through equated monthly instalments (EMI) and can spread to a maximum tenure of 30 years. This is only applicable if you are applying for the loan at a young age and the loan is cleared ahead of your retirement age. These are long-term repayments that help borrowers manage their funds in such a way that they can own their homes without upsetting the monthly expenses. People choosing long-term home loans meet the increased loan criteria eligibility of the lenders. The greatest benefit for the borrower is that the monthly EMIs are manageable and affordable. Of course, you find yourself paying more in maximum tenure for a home loan as compared to minimum tenure for home loan repayment. So, determining your convenience and capability, you must choose the most favourable option for loan repayment.

title: Minimum tenure for a home loan, content: The minimum tenure for a home loan is short-term housing loan repayment. The duration period is either equal to or less than 5 years for repayment. Borrowers who choose this option generally make the repayment in two years.

Those who can manage this minimum tenure for home loan repayment are debt free in a shorter period. This minimum tenure for a home loan depends on the borrower's capacity, as the EMI and Loan tenure are reciprocal to each other i.e. if period is less, EMI is higher, Borrower manages to save on the total interest in short period as opposed to the maximum tenure for home loan repayment. However longer tenure increases the home loan eligibility for higher loan limit. Home loans are based on floating interest rates, and once the interest rates are revised to go down, you can grab the opportunity to make larger paybacks in that period. Always remember the ground rule, do not allow the EMIs for home loans to exceed your budget. Do not allow the home loan to burden your peace of mind and disbalance your credit score for home loan.

title: Maximum tenure vs Minimum tenure, content: The housing loan tenure and the interest rate together decide the EMI. Following the reducing balance method, the EMI is computed in favour of the borrower. As discussed earlier, minimum tenure for home loan repayment increases the EMI and maximum tenure for home loan reduces the EMI.

You must choose the home loan tenure based on your financial capability. The maximum tenure for home loan repayment is offered to younger applicants. Older applicants have to accept shorter tenure for home loan repayment as the home needs to be returned before the age of retirement or cut off age decided by the lender.

title: Factor to consider while choosing home loan tenure, content: The repayment period is dependent on a combination of factors that include the loan amount. If the loan amount sought by the borrower is sizable, it isn't always possible to opt for a short tenure for home loan repayment. The principal amount and the interest component can be quite steep if you are in a hurry to complete the repayment.

Repayment is directly proportionate to capacity. It all boils down to calculations. Once you have the figures with you, after calculating using home loan emi calculator, you can divide the repayment amount according to your convenience. You can set a target to adjust EMIs to agree with your capacity.

The lenders, as previously discussed, are watchful of the age of the borrower. So, if you are a borrower searching for a loan at an older age, you can include a co-applicant to avail home loan benefits. The younger applicant needs to have a healthy credit score to act as a guarantee for the home loan application.

Borrowers choosing the maximum tenure for home loan repayment can carefully plan their loan repayment tenure with a bulk prepayment which will help them to pay off their loans early, get lower EMI rates and save on the interest cost. This will help them save on interest rates t. You can either make a foreclosure by prepaying the outstanding home loan amount or make a partial prepayment multiple times during the maximum tenure for a home loan.

title: Best tenure for a home loan, content: In the given situation where the repo rate has been increased by the RBI to manage inflation rates, there has been a direct impact on home loans. The impact would be more so on those wanting to make a repayment with minimum tenure for a home loan than those repaying through maximum tenure for a home loan. Therefore, going by the most convenient tenure, it can be said that the best tenure for home loan repayment is the one with maximum tenure for a home loan. You can pace up repayment with prepayment and a lumpsum return which will reduce the interest burden on the loan tenure. This lightens the load on the principal sum. You can use the increments in the salary for faster home loan prepayment. So instead of having to rush with a maximum tenure for home loan repayment, this will be a comfortable way to repay unless you are nearing the threshold of retirement.

title: Reduced Rates of Interest

, content: If you've ever purchased anything on a loan, you will know that even a point's difference in interest rates can amount to a lot of savings. If your interest rate on the loan is high, you always end up paying more. In such a case, even a slight reduction in interest rates can make a lot of difference. This also affects your monthly EMI which is further reduced. Under the government scheme, home loan interest rates for women are reduced by 0.05% by most banks in the country. While this may seem like a small percentile, consider the following example:

Let's say you take out a home loan of ₹50,00,000 from a bank for a tenure of 20 years. The bank offers an interest rate of 8.65% to its male borrowers and 8.60% to its female borrowers. In this case, the interest outflow for men is ₹55,28,083, but due to the reduced 0.05%, the interest outflow for women is ₹54,89,953. As a result, the savings in interest outflow for women borrowers' accounts for ₹38,130.

title: Reduced Stamp Duty Charges

, content: Stamp duty forms a part of the property cost, and the reduced interest rate can make a huge difference in reducing stamp duty charges too. Most lenders provide 80%-90% finance on home loans, with a set percentage of money paid in stamp duty charges. But as per the home loan subsidy for women, a concession of 1%-2% is typically applicable on stamp duty charges. If a woman purchases a property worth ₹50,00,000, she can save ₹50,000 to ₹1,00,000 on stamp duty charges alone.

title: Tax Benefits

, content: Both, male and female borrowers are eligible for tax deduction on home loan repayments. The maximum tax deduction permitted in principal and interest repayments is ₹1,50,000 and ₹2,00,000 respectively. If a woman borrower applies for a home loan along with her husband, she can receive tax deduction in equal measures.

title: Longer Repayment Tenures

, content: While male borrowers are typically provided with loan repayment tenures of 20 years and a maximum age of 65 years to repay the loan, whichever is early; home loans for women are offered for tenures of up to 30 years or up to 70 years of age of the borrower, whichever is early.

title: What is Paperless Home Loan?

, content: A paperless home loan is a loan that can be completed entirely online. This means that you can apply for, and avail, your home loan without having to provide any physical documents. The benefits of paperless home loans include a faster and easier application process and reduced fees and costs. Paperless home loans also offer a more secure and convenient way to manage your loan, as all of your documents are stored electronically. If you're looking for a paperless home loan, there are a few things to keep in mind:

Make sure that you're comfortable with completing the entire process online. While paperless home loans offer many advantages, they may only be suitable for some.

Make sure that your bank has this facility and that they offer this option. Paperless home loans are still subject to the same approval process as traditional loans. This means that you'll need to meet the bank's credit and income requirements in order to qualify.

title: What's the News?

, content: The digitalization of various new contract types, including mortgages and other property papers, has just been feasible thanks to a notification from the ministry of electronics and information technology (MeitY), which will significantly speed up the digitization of home loans.

CEOs of banks currently anticipate that straight-through or digital lending will significantly expand their proportion of bank credit. In the past three years, the Bank of Baroda has grown its business by 34-40%, but its branch network has reduced by 15% and its personnel headcount has remained stable, according to MD & CEO Sanjiv Chadha. "The usual link between a growing business and growing physical footprint has been broken forever," said Chadha

This means:

If you're in the market for a new home loan, you may soon have the option of a paperless home loan.

Paperless loans will be becoming more and more common, as technology makes the process of applying for and managing a loan easier and more efficient.

You will typically be able to apply for and manage your loan online with a paperless loan.

You will no more be filling out paperwork and mailing it in or having to track down physical documents when you need them.

Everything from application to disbursement will be done digitally.

title: Table of Content, content: What is a CIBIL Score?

title: What is a CIBIL Score?, content: The credit score of a consumer is known as a CIBIL Score. Simply put, this is a three-digit numerical representation of a person's credit profile and credit history. An applicant's chances of having their credit card or loan application approved are based on their CIBIL Score, which ranges from 300 to 900.

title: How Does Gold Loan Affect Your CIBIL Score?, content: Your credit score may be negatively or positively affected by any lending in your name. Find out more about it here:1. Application for a gold loan Merely applying for a gold loan will lower your credit score. Your credit record is requested from the credit bureaus when you apply for gold loan or any other type of credit, and this process is known as a "hard inquiry."

2. Payment of gold loan Your credit score will increase if you meet your loan requirements; if you don't, it will significantly decline. Following are some of the ways how your payment of gold loan may affect the CIBIL:

Repayment of gold loan on time Your credit score will be affected by this.

However, the NPA (Non-Performing Asset) classification on your credit report will prevent you from receiving a loan from any other lender if you default on a gold loan for 90 days in a row.

title: Also Read:, content: Here are a few critical things that you need to consider before taking a gold loan:1. The gold's value determines the loan amount The value of the gold will determine the final sanctioned loan amount. This implies that the valuation and loan amount will increase in proportion to the gold's purity. The lender will not consider the additional stones and jewellery design; just the actual gold price will be considered. Typically, lenders will only provide loans on gold that is 18 or 24 carats pure.

2. Comparison of Interest rates The lender determines the interest rate for the gold loan according to your profile. The interest rate is affected by several variables, including loan amount, payback period, etc.

3. Options of repayment You can avail of a wide variety of repayment options, such as equal monthly installments (EMI), using our gold loan EMI calculator. Alternatively, you can decide to pay via the bullet payments method; when your loan term expires, you pay the entire amount, together with interest.

4. Make sure the lender is reliable Avoid availing loan from a jeweler or a small business because they might not be regulated and may have unfavorable terms. The best choice is to go with a reputable, certified financial institution. For instance, you may rest assured knowing that your gold will be safe with a respected organisation like the Bank of Baroda, which has acquired the title of one of India's most trusted banks.

5. Loan disbursement period Checking that the lending institution offers swift gold loan disbursal and simple access to funds for personal or professional purposes is crucial. For instance, the Bank of Baroda ensures a simple documentation procedure and transparent pricing.

6. Prepayment and foreclosure fees The lending institution may impose a penalty of up to 2% of the principal sum. Before accepting the gold loan, make sure to read the terms and conditions. In our bank, prepayment and foreclosure charges are NIL.

title: Also Check:, content: Your gold loan CIBIL score can raise with regular repayments, while several loan inquiries can lower it. A legal notice, additional costs in the form of late payment fees, and other penalties are just a few of the repercussions of defaulting on a gold loan.

title: Gold Loan vs Personal Loan - Which is Better & Why?, content: Financial contingencies generally come unannounced. Often, the only way to tide over such contingencies is by taking a loan. Whether you need to fund your sister's marriage, or pay for a medical emergency, a loan can prove to be a lifesaver. While many types of loans are available in the market to meet your needs, personal loans and gold loans are two of the most popular ones.

title: Repayment of Gold Loan: Everything You Need to Know, content: Gold loans have always been one of the popular ways to borrow funds due to ease in the process, less documentation, rapid availability of funding, and a variety of repayment options. Between personal loan and gold loan, a personal loan takes days or even weeks to avail, whereas a gold loan can be approved within hours as borrowers keep a sufficient quantity of gold as collateral against the loan amount. Moreover, gold loans' interest rate is lower than personal loans. Owning physical gold can act as an investment or a backup during an unexpected financial crisis. Banks and financial institutions offer different gold loan repayment methods. From regular EMIs to bullet repayments, borrowers can repay gold loans as per their suitability and financial situation. Below is detailed information regarding various aspects of gold loan repayment, including process, period, and best ways to repay.

title: The home loan verification process

, content: The home loan verification process is one of the most crucial stages of the loan approval process. After you have submitted the documents required for a home loan application, the lender verifies the authenticity of the information by conducting various background checks. This also includes the legal and technical verification of property. The lender will only sanction the loan if all the documents submitted by you are correct.

The lender will also assess your creditworthiness by understanding your qualifications, monthly and yearly income, previous transactions with the lender, work profile, and your ability to repay the home loan. Furthermore, the lender will also check if the property you wish to buy is stuck in any legal disputes and inspect whether it has good structural health. For the property document verification, the lender will send a team of experts, mostly lawyers, to check the ownership documents of the property such as, NOCs, and title deeds, among others. For the technical verification of the property, the lender would have to review the property's physical health, its market value, and various other building specifications. To successfully verify your home loan, the property you wish to buy must be constructed in accordance with all prevailing government-specified norms.

title: What are the documents required for the home loan verification process?, content: The list of documents required for the home loan application process usually varies depending on the type of property you wish to purchase and the lender from whom you wish to take the loan. Hence, it is better to confer with the loan provider about the documents required for the loan approval before starting your application process.

Below is the indicative list of documents-

Loan application form

An identity proof, such as Aadhaar card, or passport

Your address proof, such as a utilities bill that is not more than three months old, or passport or Aadhaar card

Allotment letter issued by the society, builder, or the housing board title: What is the process of getting your home loan verified?

, content: Here are the steps involved in the process of getting your home loan verified and sanctioned:

- Step 1 – Compile documents

Compile all the required documents and procure the loan application form from the lender.

- Step 2 – Application

Fill out the home loan application form and submit the same along with all the required documents to the lender.

- Step 3 – Submission of paperwork and start of verification

Once you submit all the documents, the lender will perform background verification and analyse your credit history. The lender would also have to run legal and technical checks on the property you wish to purchase.

- Step 4 – Discussion of terms and conditions

If all the information you provide checks out and you are deemed eligible to procure the home loan of your preferred amount, the lender will contact you to discuss the terms and conditions of the loan.

- Step 5 – Loan agreement

Once you and the bank have finalised the terms and conditions of the loan, the lender will provide you with a format to draw up a loan agreement. Do remember to follow the state law when creating the loan agreement. Also, ensure that you read the agreement terms and conditions carefully before signing.

- Step 6 – Down payment

Once your home loan has been approved and verified, you will be required to make the down payment that the lender requires.

- Step 7 – Disbursal of funds

After the lender receives your down payment, depending on the terms and conditions of the loan, the loan amount is disbursed. The disbursed amount depends on the construction stage of the property. Implying, if the property is fully constructed, the lender would most likely disburse the whole amount in one go. However, if the property is partially constructed, the lender would also disburse only a portion of the total loan amount.

The process of your home loan application and verification now stands completed with the disbursement of the funds.

title: How Mortgage Loans Work?

, content: Home loan or Mortgage loans is without a doubt the longest loan a person takes in his lifetime. Most other loans like personal, education and automobile loans are of shorter duration but a home loan can last for as high as 30 years. It is thus very important to understand all aspects of this loan.

Whenever one buys a home, the lender will use the home as collateral against a possible default in the future. The term Mortgage means passing the Charge on the property to the lender as a security.

Home is one of the few assets whose price does not fluctuate as much as of other financial assets. In fact, in a growing economy, the price of the home moves higher gradually every year. Hence, in this case, banks are relatively assured of recovering their money in case of a default. In most cases, banks do not ask for any other security when they disburse Mortgage loans.

There are various components of a Mortgage loan. First, the maximum amount of loan that a lender disburses is restricted by regulators. Some lenders consider the taxes, statutory charges, and insurance under the total value on which loan can be available. A borrower will thus have to clarify with the lender on the total amount that will be considered for calculating the loan value.

The amount that the bank will disburse will be the amount on which it will be charging interest. The consumer will have to repay the loan amount plus the interest that is charged over the years.

The interest that is charged on the loan is floating. This interest is normally calculated on a reducing balance basis. In the initial years, the lender would take more as interest and less of capital from the equated monthly installments (EMI) as the loan amount outstanding is almost full in the initial years of loan.

Consider a person has taken a loan of Rs 50 lakh from a bank for a period of 25 years. His EMI would work out to be Rs 41,000. When this Rs 41,000 is deducted from the borrower on a monthly basis, in the initial years less than 10 percent of the amount is deducted from the -Principal of Rs 50 lakh. A major chunk of the interest that a borrower pays on his loan is deducted in the first half of the tenure.

It is thus advisable to repay part of the mortgage loan or foreclose it in the first half of the loan tenure if one can afford the same.

Every month the interest is charged on the reduced Principal that is left over from the previous month. In banking terms, the remaining Principal is called the outstanding loan amount.

In India, there are no charges applicable for foreclosing a home loan. In other loans pre-closing a loan carries a charge.

At the time of availing the loan lenders generally give an amortization sheet which clearly mentions the interest and principal that will be deducted every month for the entire tenure of the loan.

title: Home Loan for Salaried Employee, content: Real estate rates are rising with every passing day. It is no longer feasible for one to purchase a home simply with the help of their savings. You need to approach a bank to take out a home loan. But lenders need to be sure that you have the capacity to repay the loan, before passing your loan. To ensure you have the repayment capacity, they take a few important factors into consideration such as your net monthly income, credit scores, and credit repayment behaviour. If you are a salaried employee thinking how much home loan I can get on my salary, you need to read this article.

title: The Role of Your Net Salary, content: The key prerequisite for a bank to sanction your loan is your salary. Banks need to be convinced that you earn enough to be able to afford the monthly EMIs. This is why your gross monthly income is the most important factor for lenders sanctioning loans. Your net (in hand) income helps the lender assess the equated monthly instalment you can afford. Let's look at it with the help of an example.

title: The Role of Your Repayment Capacity, content: Your net salary may answer the question how much home loan I can get on my salary but is in not the only determining factor. A high monthly income does not prove to the lender that you have the capacity to repay the loan. To this end, they conduct their own assessment of your home loan repayment capacity by looking at your bank statements. They prefer to check your typical monthly expenses, your credit card debt, your credit history and other EMIs you are paying and so on, to ensure that you are eligible for the home loan. Your monthly expense report helps lenders understand the amount of income you are left with every month after mandatory expenses and your income to debt ratio. They typically require you to have anywhere between 50%-75% income available for total deductions including your existing deductions plus EMI of proposed home loan depending upon your Income slab to calculate your eligibility for the proposed home loan. You have an option to add co-applicant in home loan who can be any of your earning close relative to enhance your loan eligibility. It is suggestible to have the co borrower as co-owner of the proposed property as well to avail Income Tax benefits available for Home Loan borrowers.

title: The Role of Your Credit Scores, content: The answer to the question how much home loan I can get and at what price (Rate of Interest) is incomplete without a mention of your credit scores for home loan. Also known as CIBIL score, your credit scores allow lenders to assess your credit repayment behaviour. It helps them check if you have defaulted on paying EMIs, how frequently you are using your credit card and whether you are paying your credit card bills on time, without defaulting. You typically require a credit score of 725 points or higher for your home loan to be considered.

title: What is The Best Age to go For a Home Loan?, content: Buying a home is a dream for every individual across the globe. The only problem is affordability. Buying a house needs to fit the budget. One's dreams need to be realistic to achieve it.

title: Home Loan Principal & Interest Rate Explained, content: Bank of Baroda offers a wide variety of Home Loans that you can choose from, based on your requirements. The bank offers loans of several lakh to a few crores in various Indian cities and towns. With its streamlined, online process, you can now apply for the loan online through the bank's website. You can even get a pre-approval for the loan, select a property based on your eligibility, and submit your documents online. But before you take a Home Loan, you should familiarise yourself with the various terminologies associated with the loan; two of which are most crucial. We are talking about the Home Loan principal amount and interest rates. Let's understand these in detail.

title: Why does India need a Cash Alternative?

, content: To understand its impact better, let us try to understand what digital currency brings to the table.

CBDC can be programmable, i.e., it can be created and circulated for specific purposes. CBDC can be created for specific contracts, persons or periods. For instance, government funds can be misused or embezzled when in cash form. But with CBDC, the government and even private players can ensure that money earmarked for a specific purpose is used for that purpose only.

resently, cryptocurrency offers a secure and real-time money transfer option. However, as it is unregulated, most governments do not encourage cryptocurrency.

While CBDC is not an alternative to cryptocurrency, it will help RBI provide similar benefits in a legal and secure manner. Digital payment platforms are mostly private entities. With CBDC, the government can strengthen its presence in digital payments. An RBI-backed digital currency will encourage more people to accept digital payments in India. It costs money to create money. Apart from the minting cost, currency notes also need to be stored, transported, and delivered to various locations across the country. Digital currency will ease the burden on India's massive money-making exercise since it is completely digital.

title: Let's Now Understand How Digital Currency in India will Impact Its Economy:

, content: Disrupting the Money Transfer Service Industry

Domestic and international money transfers are subject to specific turnaround times, batch runs, bank holidays, weekends, etc. However, digital currency transactions will run at a high speed, 24/7, and transaction-related expenses are expected to be lower than the prevailing costs. With international currency compatibilities in place, digital currency in India may disrupt the money transfer service industry worldwide.

Achieving Cashless Economy

The anonymity of physical cash is attractive to many people and cannot be replaced entirely anytime soon. But with an increase in financial inclusion through the e-Rupee, India should see a greater acceptance of a cashless payment ecosystem. In this manner, digital currency, or e-Rupee, will help the government achieve a cashless economy.

For the people, a cashless economy means the convenience of digital transactions and freedom from the risk of carrying and storing cash.

Better Implementation of Government Schemes

CBDC can help with Direct Beneficiary Transfer that is earmarked for special purposes. CBDC can be programmed for specific purposes and periods. For example, a certain amount of digital currency meant for a Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) beneficiary can only be received and used by such a person.

Similarly, LPG (cooking gas) grants will be accepted for payment in designated places only. This means that if you receive an LPG grant in CBDC from the government, you can use it only to digitally pay an authorised LPG agency and for nothing else.

It signifies how CBDC can have a massive role in the last-mile and grassroots implementation of government schemes, policies, and aids.

Impact On and Benefit for The Citizens

Some of the most obvious ways in which CBDC will impact common people include, Efficient money transfers and faster settlements

The transaction cost is likely to be lower, saving money for users. This will also hold for international money transfers as CBDC-based remittances will be quicker and cheaper

Lesser downtime is expected in CBDC, with 24X7 availability of transfer and remittance services Carrying and storage of physical cash, as well as the problem of soiled and damaged notes, can be avoided.

title: In Conclusion

, content: Once it is embedded in India's monetary system, the digital rupee's impact can be expected to sweep across the Indian economy. CBDC benefits like reduced physical cash usage, better transaction speed, and digital efficiency are widely anticipated to drive this impact. With successful implementation, CBDC will have far-reaching and positive effects on the economy and fuel India's financial growth.

title: What Is A Personal Loan?

, content: A Personal Loan is a type of unsecured loan, i.e., the lender does not ask you to pledge collateral. The lender loans you the funds you need and levies interest on it. The interest you must pay depends on the amount loaned and your chosen loan repayment tenure. You typically have to repay the loan in Equated Monthly Instalments or EMIs, until you have repaid both the principal amount borrowed and the interest charged on it.

title: Personal Loan Charges Levied By Lenders

, content: Following are the common Personal Loans Charges that lenders typically levy.

- Effective Interest Rates

You usually choose a lender based on the interest rate they offer. Your lender would inform you that interest rates start from 10%. That does not mean you get a 10% interest rate. The actual or effective interest rate can be higher than 10%. The effective personal loan interest rates ultimately depends on your eligibility. A high credit score and income can fetch an attractive interest rate.

- Processing Fees

Lenders charge loan processing fees to cover costs incurred while approving and disbursing your Personal Loan. The fee is typically a fixed percentage of your loan amount. If your loan application gets rejected, the processing fee remains non-refundable.

- Tax

Another common Personal Loan charge you need to bear is the standard 18% Goods and Services Tax (GST) levied on the loan processing fee. Since GST is a standard, legally applicable tax on all products and services, lenders may not out rightly mention the charge as GST.

- Cancellation

Lenders generally offer a free-look period of 24 to 48 hours to allow you to cancel the loan after fund disbursement. However, if you choose to cancel the loan after the free look period, you would be liable to pay the cancellation charges and the outstanding loan amount.

- Prepayment

Lenders allow you to prepay your loan before the stipulated loan tenure ends, but they may charge you a prepayment penalty. This charge is levied based on when you decide to prepay the loan during the loan tenure. For instance, the lender may waive the prepayment charge if you opt to prepay the loan after paying 12 EMIs. However, there are no pre-payment charges for individual Retail Loan customers.

title: Hidden Charges in Personal Loan

, content: While lenders generally inform you about the charges mentioned above upfront, there are some costs which may not apply to borrowers who pay off their EMIs on time. These may be interpreted as the hidden charges in Personal Loans and primarily include the following.

- Late Payment Fee

A crucial Personal Loan charge most people seem to ignore is the late payment penalty. Lenders charge late payment fees if you pay your EMI later than the due date. The fee is a percentage of the EMI amount.

- EMI Default fee

Lenders also penalize you if your EMI cheque bounces or if there is insufficient money in your account linked to your EMI payments facility. This fee is known as an EMI default fee.

- Penal Interest

Penal interest is the additional interest that lenders apply on unpaid EMIs.

Lenders charge penal interest on late and default payments.

- Balance Transfer

If you choose to transfer your Personal Loan from your existing lender to another lender offering more lucrative terms, you have to pay a loan balance transfer fee. Your current lender levies this charge since they lose out on the potential interest income.

- Electronic Clearing Service (ECS) Swapping

When applying for a Personal Loan in India, you typically provide your bank account details for EMI payments. The lender may charge an ECS swapping fee if you pay your EMIs from a different account than the one from which you originally paid EMIs.

- Duplicate Documentation Charges

You must also pay the lender if you want a copy of your amortization schedule, loan balance, and no-dues certificate (NDC) in case of a balance transfer. The lender levies a duplicate documentation charge for providing this service.

title: Ways to Find Out Hidden Charges In A Personal Loan

, content: When lenders sanction a loan, they typically do so with the belief that you will repay your EMIs on time. As a result, they mention the charges associated with loan sanctioning up front. However, as discussed above, there are other Personal Loan charges you need to account for besides the standard charges. Here are ways you can save yourself from surprises later.

- Be aware of all possible costs

Familiarize yourself with the potential costs of the loan and ensure you ask your lender about the same. For instance, if you know about penal interest charges, you will ensure that you pay your EMIs on time.

- Read the fine print in the loan document

The loan documents comprise numerous pages containing information on various charges that lenders can levy. Read the loan agreement document thoroughly and check the effective interest rate, EMI due date, prepayment charges, etc., before signing up for the loan. If you have queries, talk to your lender before signing any documents.

- Choose a reputed lender

Today, you can apply for Personal Loans online and get instant disbursements. However, if a relatively unknown lender offers the loan at low costs, find out their motivation for the same. The chances are that there may be several hidden charges in Personal Loans that you may not be prepared to pay later.

title: The process of buying a house can be condensed into these steps:

, content: Figure out how much you can afford:

The first step on how to buy a house in India is to decide how much you can afford. Housing loans are extremely popular and easily available which means you can also factor in a loan value while deciding how much you can pay for buying a house. It is also important to take a look at your household budget while deciding this. You need to have enough funds left over for making investments and meeting household expenses since banks auto debit the EMI from your savings account.

Decide the location:

The price of the flat depends a lot on its location and the proximity to major roadways or an airport. Upcoming suburbs outside a major metropolitan city will be cheaper than buying a flat within city limits. However, you must factor in the time taken to commute from your place of work to your residence.

Check the resale values:

Checking the resale value of the flat is extremely important. This depends on a few things such as the builder's reputation, the locality etc. It is easy to find resale values on different property portals. This especially helps in case you want to move in a few years or are investing for the purpose of investment.

Check your loan eligibility:

Real estate is extremely expensive in India and not many buyers can afford to buy it outright with their savings. This is where a home loan comes in. Most lenders have a home loan eligibility calculator on their website where you can check for your loan eligibility. The loan eligibility does not translate into the final loan amount since that depends on the actual property itself. However, these calculators are a good indicator of how much loan you can expect to get if you apply for it.

Registration and stamp duty:

Registration and stamp duty are costs that are paid over and above the purchase price of the house. These costs differ from state to state in India and each state has a formula for calculating them. It is important to factor these costs since this adds to the expense.

Agent:

You must decide whether to buy a house through an agent or directly. Agents prove to be helpful while finding buyers and sellers for flats, especially resale flats. However, they also charge a commission from both parties for the sale.

Property type:

You can either buy a flat in a new construction or buy a resale property. New constructions also have a risk of permissions attached to them. However, new constructions also come with more amenities.

Rental value of property:

If you're looking to rent out the property, you need to calculate the amount charged as rentals from similar flats in the area. This will help you estimate your monthly earnings. It is better to buy a flat in an area that is conveniently located since such places will always have a demand for rentals.

Once you factor in all these points, you can then add up the total value of the house. How much money to buy a house in India depends majorly on the location of the flat and the city or town, but after considering these points, you can get a fair idea.

title: What is a Two-Wheeler Loan?

, content: A Two-Wheeler Loan is a financial facility offered by banks and Non-Banking Financial Companies (NBFCs). If you wish to buy a new bike or scooter, you can take a two-wheeler loan .

The lender provides 90% to 100% of the vehicle's on-road price as the principal amount and levies interest on the amount loaned. As the borrower, you can repay the loan in pocket-friendly, Equated Monthly Instalments (EMIs) over tenures lasting up to 5 years.

title: How to Calculate EMI for Bike Loan?

, content: The Baroda Two-Wheeler Loan come at a maximum limit of Rs 10 lakhs. However, to calculate the EMI and opt for the most affordable loan, follow the formula:

Baroda Repo Linked Lending Rate (BRLLR) + Strategic Premium + 4.25%

Employees or ex-employees offered rate is Baroda Repo Linked Lending Rate (BRLLR) + Strategic Premium. An additional risk premium of 0.05% is applied if you opt out of the credit insurance coverage. The affordable processing fee comes at 2% of the loan amount and the minimum fee is Rs 250+GST. The calculation is 2% of Rs. 60,000 = Rs.1200 without pre-closure charges.

title: Key Factors That Affect Two-Wheeler Loan Interest Rates

, content: The following are the key factors that affect the two-wheeler loan finance you can obtain, and the interest rates offered by the lender.

Your Monthly Income

Lenders typically assess whether you have the means to repay the loan by gauging your net monthly income and your income-to-debt ratio.

Your Credit Score

Your credit score shows lenders that you are creditworthy and instils confidence in your loan repayment capacity.

Down Payment

The down payment you can pay as mentioned earlier, lenders provide 90% to 100% of the bike's on-road price as financing. However, high financing typically results in a higher interest rate. Conversely, if you put down a decent down payment, it will reduce your EMI.

The Loan Tenure You Choose

Opting for the maximum loan repayment tenure of 60 months typically results in lower EMIs.

The Type of Vehicle

Your bike type is considered when evaluating your loan application to determine the interest rate. Because the resale value of popular bike models is frequently higher, loans for them typically have an affordable interest rate.

title: How to use Two-Wheeler Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: A Two-Wheeler Loan EMI Calculator is a freely available online tool that allows you to compute the potential EMI payable against the loan amount borrowed. The calculator factors in the basic loan components such as the principal amount, interest rate, and repayment tenure and instantly calculates the EMI payable against variables of the same. Below are the steps to calculate Two-Wheeler Loan EMI payable against your bike loan.

Visit your chosen lender's website and locate the Bike Loan page, where you will find the Bike Loan EMI Calculator.

Enter the loan amount you need in the first tab of the calculator, ensuring you do not enter a sum more than the maximum amount offered by the lender.

Next, you need to enter a reasonable interest rate in the second tab of the calculator. The two-wheeler loan interest rate cannot be lower than the minimum lending rate set by the lender.

You now need to enter your preferred loan repayment tenure in the third tab of the calculator. While the minimum repayment tenure should not be less than one year, the maximum cannot exceed five years.

Once you enter the required details, the EMI calculator for scooters and bikes automatically computes the EMI amount payable within seconds.

You can clear all the Bike Loan EMI calculator tabs and enter new variables until you arrive at an affordable EMI amount.

title: How is Interest on Fixed Deposits Calculated by Banks?

, content: A fixed deposit (FD) is one of the safest investment instruments banks offer customers. It allows customers to invest a certain amount of money for a fixed period safely and securely. However, you may be interested in finding out how to calculate your fixed deposit interest rate. Well, you can use a fixed deposit calculator online for this purpose.

The rate of interest is predetermined by the financial institution and varies between banks. You can open an FD with a minimum of Rs 1,000 and for a minimum of seven days.

The upper limit of both amount and tenure varies from one bank to another. FDs are preferred by investors as they offer a higher yield than a saving account.

An FD is one of the most favored investments for senior citizens who use the monthly income payout in their retirement years. It is also possible to get loans against FDs.

title: Key Features of FD

, content: An FD offers high returns on investment with zero risk. There are several other attractive features of FDs , such as:

Fixed deposit under the savings scheme offers tax exemption of up to Rs 1.5 lakh in a financial year under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act.

Senior citizens are offered an additional 0.50% interest on most FD plans. You can calculate interest on FD for senior citizens with an online calculator.

Fixed deposits also offer a premature withdrawal facility, allowing customers to withdraw funds before the end of the lock-in period by paying a FD premature withdrawal fee wherein penalty depends on Bank to Bank. Investors can use a fixed deposit maturity calculator to work out the details.

title: How to use an FD Interest Calculator?

, content: To use a fixed deposit interest rate calculator, keep all related data, such as the amount to be invested and the period ready. Then, enter all required data at their specified spots and click on "calculate" to get the maturity amount.

Banks offer a fixed deposit calculator , which allows customers to calculate the final amount they will receive at the end of the tenure (subject to TDS).

The FD calculation formula helps you calculate the maturity amount based on the investment amount, interest rate, and tenure. The amount invested in a fixed deposit gets locked for the period it has been deposited. You can calculate FD interest online for the tenure you choose.

title:

How Does an FD Interest Calculator Work?

, content: With a fixed deposit calculator, two types of fixed deposits can be calculated. If you don't know how to calculate FD interest, you can use the online FD calculator at your lender's site.

Simple Interest

Using simple interest is an easy method to calculate interest on FD.

Simple Interest is calculated using the FD calculation formula:

Fixed Deposit Maturity Amount = Principal Amount + (Principal *Rate of Interest* Time Period)/ 100}

Compound Interest

Using compound interest fixed deposit, interest can be earned on the principal amount and additional interest on the interest amount. However, it is important to ensure that the interest rate is good to get good returns on your investment.

Compound interest is calculated using this formula:

$$A = P(1 + r/n)^{nt}$$

A stands for the amount of money that has accumulated.

P is the principal; that's the amount you start with.

The r is the interest rate. This is a decimal; in other words, if the interest rate is 9%, we use .09 in the equation.

The n is the number of times the interest compounds each year.

Finally, t is the time in years of the deposit or borrowed money.

title: How To Calculate Mutual Fund Returns

, content: Investing in mutual funds is a popular choice for individuals looking to grow their wealth over time. However, assessing the performance and profitability of these investments requires a clear understanding of how to calculate mutual fund returns. Mutual fund returns provide valuable insights into the growth or decline of your investment over a specific period. By analyzing these returns, you can evaluate the success of your investment strategy and make informed decisions for future investments. In this article, we will take you through the intricacies of calculating mutual fund returns step-by-step.

In this blog, we will take you through the intricacies of calculating mutual fund returns step-by-step. We will explore different methodologies, formulas, and metrics used to measure performance, such as annualized returns, total returns, and compound annual growth rate (CAGR). Whether you are a novice investor seeking to grasp the basics or an experienced investor looking for advanced insights, this guide provides a comprehensive understanding of mutual fund returns. Our aim is to equip you with the knowledge and tools necessary to evaluate the performance of your investments effectively.

title: What is Mutual Fund Return?

, content: Mutual fund return refers to the gain or loss on an investment in a mutual fund over a specific period. It is a measure of the profitability and performance of the mutual fund. The return is typically expressed as a percentage and reflects the change in the value of the investment, taking into account factors such as capital appreciation, dividends, and distributions.

Mutual fund returns can be calculated for different timeframes, such as daily, monthly, quarterly, or annually. They provide investors with valuable information to assess the success of their investment and compare the performance of different mutual funds.

Also Read: What are the Advantages of Mutual Funds

It is important to note that mutual fund returns can be influenced by various factors, including market conditions, the fund's investment strategy, expenses, and fees. Understanding and accurately calculating mutual fund returns is essential for making informed investment decisions and evaluating the overall profitability of your investment portfolio.

title: Different Ways of Calculating Mutual Fund Returns

ckj, content: Different ways of calculating mutual fund returns include absolute returns, annualized returns, CAGR, and XIRR, providing varied perspectives on investment performance.

1. Absolute Returns

Absolute returns measure the total percentage increase or decrease in the mutual fund's value over a specific period. It is a straightforward calculation that does not consider the time factor or compounding effects. To calculate absolute returns, you only need the initial Net Asset Value (NAV) and the current NAV of the mutual fund. The NAV represents the price of one unit of the mutual fund. The formula for absolute returns is:

$$\text{Absolute Return} = (\text{Present NAV} - \text{Initial NAV}) / \text{Initial NAV} \times 100$$

For example, if your initial NAV was 25 and the present NAV is 30, and you had stayed invested for nine months, the absolute returns would be 20%.

2. Annualised Return

Absolute Returns are useful for calculating returns on investments held for less than 12 months. However, if you want to assess your annual returns and determine how much you would have earned if you stayed invested for a full year, the Simple Annualized Return (SAR) is the appropriate metric to use. The simple annualized return is derived from the value of the absolute return.

The formula for annualized return is:

$$\text{SAR} = [(1 + \text{Absolute Rate of Return}) ^ (365/\text{number of days})] - 1$$

Considering the previous example,

$$\text{Simple Annualized Return} = [(1 + 20\%) ^ (365/270)] - 1$$

Therefore, with a 20% absolute return, the simple annualized return is approximately 23.3%.

3. Compounded Annual Growth Rate (CAGR)

Calculating CAGR helps you determine the average annual growth rate of your investment, providing a standardized measure to compare investment performance over time. It provides a smooth representation of the fund's performance over multiple years.

The formula is:

$$\text{CAGR} = \{[(\text{Present NAV} / \text{Initial NAV}) ^ (1 / \text{Number of years})] - 1\} \times 100$$

To calculate the compounded annual growth rate (CAGR) for a lump sum investment, let's use the given example:

Assuming you invested ₹1 lakh in a mutual fund scheme in 2016 with an initial NAV of ₹20, and after five years in 2021, the NAV increased to ₹70.

$$\text{CAGR} = \{[(\text{₹70} / \text{₹20}) ^ (1 / 5)] - 1\} \times 100$$

$$\text{CAGR} \approx 14.87\%$$

Alternatively, if you prefer using Excel, you can use the RRI function:

=RRI(Nper, PV, IV)

Where:

Nper = Time in periods (calculated in months)

PV = Present Value (ending value)

IV = Initial Value (beginning value)

This will give you the CAGR, which you can format as a percentage to obtain the result.

4. Extended Internal Rate of Return (XIRR)

XIRR is a more advanced method that takes into account the timing and amount of cash flows into and out of the mutual fund. It considers not only the initial investment but also subsequent investments and withdrawals. XIRR provides a more accurate picture of the fund's return when cash flows are involved.

Calculating returns from Systematic Investment Plans (SIPs) can be challenging due to varying investment durations for each installment. Therefore, traditional methods may not be suitable in such cases. To overcome this, we can utilize XIRR, a formula in Excel that calculates the internal rate of return considering multiple cash flows.

To calculate SIP returns using XIRR, you will need the following information:

SIP amount

Dates of SIP investments

Redemption date

Redemption amount

The formula for XIRR is:

XIRR = XIRR(Values, Dates, Guess)

Here are the steps to calculate XIRR in Excel:

Create a table with two columns.

Enter the SIP dates in one column and the corresponding SIP amounts in another column.

Add the redemption date and redemption amount in the last row.

Use the XIRR function in Excel.

Select the values column to include the SIP values and the dates column for the respective dates in the formula.

The "Guess" parameter can be skipped or left empty.

Format the result as a percentage or multiply it by 100 to obtain the XIRR in percentage terms.

By following these steps, you can determine the returns from your SIP investments using the XIRR function in Excel.

title: Things to Consider about Mutual Funds Returns

, content: When evaluating mutual fund returns, there are several important factors to consider:

Timeframe

Consider the time period over which the returns are measured. Short-term returns may fluctuate more significantly, while long-term returns provide a broader perspective on the fund's performance.

Benchmark Comparison

Compare the fund's returns to an appropriate benchmark index that represents similar investments. This helps assess whether the fund is outperforming or underperforming its peers.

Risk-Adjusted Returns

Evaluate the risk-adjusted returns of the fund. Some funds may generate higher returns but at a higher level of risk. Understanding the risk associated with the returns is crucial for assessing the fund's suitability for your investment goals and risk tolerance.

Expense Ratio

Consider the expense ratio of the mutual fund, which represents the annual fees and expenses charged by the fund. Higher expense ratios can eat into your overall returns and impact long-term performance.

Dividends and Distributions

Take into account any dividends or distributions received from the mutual fund. These can significantly contribute to the overall returns and impact the fund's tax efficiency.

Consistency

Look for consistent returns over multiple time periods. A fund that consistently delivers solid returns demonstrates stability and may be more reliable than a fund with sporadic performance.

Past Performance

While past performance is not indicative of future results, it can provide insights into the fund manager's ability to generate returns. Consider the fund's historical performance, but also remember that future performance can be influenced by changing market conditions.

Investment Objective

Assess whether the mutual fund's investment objective aligns with your own financial goals and risk tolerance. Different funds may have varying objectives, such as growth, income, or a combination of both.

Must check - How to Analyse Mutual Fund Performance?

By considering these factors, we can make more informed decisions when analysing mutual fund returns and selecting funds that align with our investment objectives and risk tolerance. It's important to conduct thorough research and consult with a financial advisor if needed, as mutual fund investments involve risks and individual circumstances may vary. Remember, accurate calculation is the key to making informed investment decisions and achieving financial goals.

title: How to Claim Car Loan Tax Exemption? | Bank of Baroda
, content: Introduction:

Cars are considered a luxury product in India and many people avail loans to purchase their dream cars. But did you know that you can avail car loan tax benefit?

Yes, you read that right. Much like the education and home loan, car loan benefits in income tax. While cars purchased for personal use may not have car loan tax exemption, if you are a self-employed professional or business owner using the car for business purposes, you can claim exemptions. Loans on personal use cars are not eligible for tax exemption as cars are considered luxury products.

However, if you are a businessman/ woman and have taken a loan to buy a car for your business, you can claim the interest you pay as business expenses. The interest you pay in a year towards your car loan can be deducted from your taxable income. Apart from the interest deduction from taxable income, you are also eligible to claim tax benefits on the depreciation of your vehicle.

title: How to claim car loan benefits in income tax

, content: In simple terms, if you are a business or are self-employed and you take a loan to buy a car for your business, you are eligible for tax deductions. How does tax rebate on car loan work?

For example, you own a business and have taken a loan for a car for your business. For this, you take a loan of Rs15 lakh at 12% for a year. Now let us assume your total taxable income, from your business, is Rs 25 lakh. You can then deduct 12% of Rs 15 lakh (Rs1.8 lakh) from your taxable income while filing your tax returns.

So when you are claiming tax rebate on car loan, deduct the interest you have paid towards your in that year from your taxable income. The interest paid can be added as a business expenditure.

There are other ways to save taxes on car purchase, even if you have not sought a loan to buy the car. You can do so by showing your car as a depreciating asset for your business. You can add the depreciation as a business expense, too. The upper limit for depreciation is set at 15 % in a year.

title: Conclusion

, content: For salaried individuals buying car for personal use, there is no car loan tax benefit. However, self-employed individuals or businesses can claim tax deductions for loan on car used for business purposes. While availing these tax benefits be sure that the car is being used for legitimate business purposes.

title: Steps for Making a Cash Deposit at an ATM, content: Step 1: Locate an ATM

The first step to depositing cash through an ATM is to find a machine near you. Most banks have ATMs conveniently located in various places, such as branches, shopping centers, or even standalone kiosks. Take note of your bank's network of ATMs to ensure you find one that suits your needs.

Step 2: Insert your card and choose the appropriate language

Once at the ATM, insert your debit or ATM card into the designated slot. Follow the instructions displayed on the screen and select your preferred language, if necessary.

Step 3: Enter Your PIN

After inserting your ATM card, the machine will prompt you to enter your Personal Identification Number (PIN). This four-digit code ensures the security of your account. Carefully enter your PIN, taking care to shield the keypad from prying eyes.

Step 4: Select "Deposit"

Once you've successfully entered your PIN, the ATM menu will appear on the screen. Look for the option labeled "Deposit" and select it to proceed with your cash deposit.

Step 5: Follow On-Screen Instructions

The ATM will guide you through the deposit process via clear on-screen instructions. Typically, you will be asked to specify the account in which you want to deposit the cash. Choose the appropriate account, usually a checking or savings account, and proceed to the next step.

Step 6: Insert Cash

Now comes the moment to deposit your cash. Take your time to count the bills carefully, ensuring their accuracy. Insert the cash into the designated slot or tray provided by the ATM. Some machines may require you to place the cash into an envelope provided by the ATM, while others allow you to insert the bills directly.

Step 7: Confirm and Complete the Transaction

After depositing the cash, the ATM will display the total amount you've inserted. Take a moment to review the transaction details and confirm that everything is correct. Once you're satisfied, complete the transaction by selecting the appropriate option on the screen.

title: Tips for Using an ATM, content: 1. Be aware of your surroundings: When using an ATM, make sure you're in a well-lit and secure area. Avoid using ATMs late at night or in remote regions.

2. Keep your PIN safe: Remember your PIN and do not write it down. Avoid revealing your PIN to anyone, and shield the keypad when entering it to prevent others from seeing it.

3. Double-check the deposit slot: Before inserting your cash, make sure there are no obstructions or foreign objects in the deposit slot. This will help prevent any issues with your transaction.

4. Save your receipts: ATMs typically provide the option to print a receipt for your transaction. It's a good practice to keep these receipts until you've confirmed that the deposit has been credited to your account.

title: Advantages of Using an ATM to Deposit Cash, content: 1. Convenience: Depositing cash through an ATM is incredibly convenient. You can make deposits at any time that suits you, without having to wait in long lines at the bank.

2. Time-saving: With ATMs, you can deposit cash quickly and efficiently. The entire process usually takes just a few minutes, allowing you to get on with your day without any hassle.

3. Accessibility: ATMs are widely available, making it easy to find a machine near your home, workplace, or other frequently visited locations.

title: Disadvantages of Using an ATM to Deposit Cash

, content: 1. Deposit limits: ATMs have deposit limits in place to prevent fraudulent activities. Depending on your bank and the type of account you hold, these limits may vary. It's important to check with your bank to understand how much money you can deposit through an ATM.

2. Lack of personal interaction: Unlike depositing cash with a teller at the bank, using an ATM eliminates the opportunity for face-to-face communication. Some individuals may prefer the personal touch of interacting with a bank employee.

title: Alternatives to ATMs for Depositing Money, content: 1. In-branch deposits: If you prefer a more personal experience, you can visit your bank's branch and make a cash deposit with the assistance of a teller.

2. Mobile banking: Many banks now offer mobile banking applications that allow you to deposit checks using your smartphone's camera. This method can be particularly useful for those who rarely deal with cash.

title: Conclusion, content: Depositing cash through an ATM has become a straightforward process, revolutionizing the way we handle our finances. By following a few simple steps, you can quickly and securely deposit cash into your account at any time. While there are advantages and disadvantages to using ATMs for cash deposits, the convenience they offer is hard to beat. So next time you find yourself with some extra cash on hand, head to the nearest ATM and enjoy the ease of depositing money into your bank account hassle-free.

title: How to Get Personal Loan with Low CIBIL Score

, content: With a number of lenders proliferating across the country borrowing money is no longer difficult. The number of phone calls we get on a daily basis selling personal loans is an indication of how the lenders are now chasing people to borrow.

However, it may be easy to borrow money as far as you are able to repay it. The moment you start defaulting on the loans, trouble starts. Even a delay in payment would mean trouble for the borrower.

A delay or default in repaying a loan affects what is called a bad credit score measured in India as CIBIL score. This score is very important for a personal loans as compared to any other form of a loan.

A personal loan is an unsecured loan which means the lender is taking a higher risk based on certain financial track record of the borrower.

The CIBIL score measures your credit worth. The range of the score is usually between 300 and 900. The closer the score is to 900 the better it is for the borrower while a score closer to 300 would mean that getting money from the official route will be difficult. Lenders are generally comfortable lending money to people with a CIBIL score of over 725.

Your CIBIL score depends on various factors concerning your borrowing track record. It does not depend on your salary. How you have financially behaved after taking a loan is the main -basis of CIBIL score. Defaults and delay, - can bring your CIBIL score down. More than any other loan CIBIL score is paramount in personal loans.

So does it mean that a person with a low CIBIL score has no option of getting a loan?

This may not always be the case. However, chronic defaulters would have trouble raising money from the official channel. But occasional delays or defaults can be managed.

Here are some of the ways in which one can raise money through personal loans despite a low CIBIL score.

title: Improve your income stream

, content: In order to get incremental personal loans, the lender has to be satisfied that you have the ability to repay the loan. A new source of funds or a salary increment will go a long way in convincing the lender that there is enough cash flow to support a new loan repayment. One will have to convince the lender that the new income stream is a regular one and not a one-time income. Any documentary proof like a contract with the vendor from where the borrower is getting money will help in building up the case.

Even if the lender may see merit in the story they may agree to lend on a higher interest rate than the market rate along with some additional charges.

title: Go in for a smaller loan

, content: Asking for a bigger loan after having a low CIBIL score will scare away any lender. A smaller loan with an adequate income stream may convince him to risk a small amount. Taking a small loan and repaying it regularly will not only convince the lender but also help improve your CIBIL score.

title: Collateral loans

, content: While personal loans may be difficult, but not impossible despite a low CIBIL score, one can go in for a Collateral loan.

Loan against shares, gold loans, - Term deposits is easier to get despite a lower CIBIL score. The lender is comfortable that they have collateral as a guarantee against any defaults. In such cases, the CIBIL score does not matter. On the other hand, a regular payment on these loans can help in improving your CIBIL score.

title: How to Get a Personal Loan Without a Salary Slip in India?

, content: Personal loans can prove helpful in consolidating your existing debts and helping you meet financial emergencies. You can even procure a personal loan to finance special occasions such as a marriage ceremony or an anniversary holiday. It is one of the most popular types of loans available in the market today.

A personal loan is an unsecured type of a loan. This means that it does not need you to pledge an asset as collateral in exchange of the loan amount. The lender generally provides you with the loan simply by evaluating and confirming your source of income.

You would require a few essential documents for the personal loan application process. These usually include your salary slip, proof of identity, proof of residence, and bank statement of the past three months. However, if you are self-employed or unemployed, you might not have a salary slip. This might make you wonder - 'Can I get personal loan without salary slip?'

The answer is yes! This is good news for those who work as freelancers or even people who are between jobs at the moment. Many banks offer instant loans for unemployed people. This way, everyone can get access to funding that they need as long as they have their documents in order.

So, let's see how you can get a personal loan without salary slip.

title: Provide proof of an alternate source of income

, content: A salary slip is proof of a stable income. The lender requires you to provide a salary slip because they want assurance about the repayment of the debt. If you are a freelancer, a business owner, a contractor, or anyone as such who does not receive a salary slip, you can easily get a personal loan by providing the lender an alternate proof of stable income. Income certificates, ITR or form 16, and bank account statements are some of the most commonly accepted documents in place of a salary slip. Providing any of these documents can help you get an instant personal loan approval as per the bank's timelines for the process. So, make sure to keep all these documents safely as you will need them when applying for a loan.

title: Maintain a good CIBIL score

, content: Your CIBIL score is essentially the measure of your creditworthiness. It reflects your history of repayment, your credit handling capabilities, and the status of your existing debts. Your CIBIL score gives the lender an idea about your possible approach to loan EMIs. If you wish to get a loan without salary slip and bank statement, maintaining a good CIBIL score is particularly important. Generally, having a CIBIL score above 750 is an indication of a responsible borrower. The CIBIL score is also a key factor in determining the interest rate that is charged on your loan. Thus, having a good score also helps you procure a personal loan at a lower interest rate.

title: Offer collateral as security

, content: You can also offer to pledge an asset to the lender when applying for a personal loan. This will help in giving the lender a sense of security about the repayment of the debt. Assets such as gold, high valued fixed deposits, mutual fund units, and real estate can be used as collateral for a personal loan. However, you must check with the lender if they sanction asset-backed loans. You should also get an understanding of the assets that are accepted by the lender. The acceptance of your collateral as a security for the loan would depend on its total value. If the value of the collateral offered is more than the personal loan required, you have better chances of getting your personal loan approved. However, do remember that defaulting on your EMI payments might force the lender to seize your asset. Thus, only provide collateral if you are confident on your capability to repay the debt.

title: Apply for the loan with a co-applicant

, content: A co-applicant is someone who takes the responsibility of repayment of the debt along with you. Applying for a personal loan with a creditworthy co-applicant increases the chances of your application being approved by the lender. Due to the co-applicant's steady income and creditworthiness, the lender gains confidence in your capability to repay the debt. If you default on your EMI payment, the lender can trust the co-applicant to fill in the gap. As a result of this, the chances of your loan being sanctioned increases quite significantly. This can help you procure the personal loan on much easier terms. It is important to keep in mind that if you along with the co-applicant default, both of your credit scores are negatively affected.

title: Maintain a good rapport with the lender

, content: Lending money requires trust. The lender must trust that the debt will be repaid responsibly by the borrower. Paying your EMIs on or before the due date, offering to pledge collateral, being polite towards the lender, providing accurate details about yourself, and maintaining transparency can help the lender gain trust in your capability to repay the loan. If you have previously procured a loan from the lender or have an already running account with them, things can work in your favour. This is because the previously completed transactions help the loan provider gauge your creditworthiness without requiring any additional documents. If you have a good rapport with your lender, you can also apply for a personal loan on Aadhaar card without salary slip.

title: What are the documents required to get a personal loan without salary slip?

, content: When applying for a personal loan, you will need to submit certain documents for the lender to evaluate. Here are the documents that are needed if you are applying for a personal loan without a salary slip -

A document that is a proof of your identity, such as your passport, driving license or Aadhaar card

A document that is a proof of your residential address, such as a utilities bill that is not more than three months old, passport or a leave and licence agreement

Documents that act as a proof of your income, such as like ITR or form 16, audited financials of past two years, or income certificate

Your bank statement of past 6 months

Office address proof for business owners

Document that serves as a proof of ownership of the office for business owners

Proof of continuity of business for business owners and freelancers

In addition to these documents, you will also have to submit two passport size photographs.

Do note that the above-mentioned documents are commonly required by the lenders. However, there can be changes in the list of documents depending on your financial situation and the lender's requirements. Hence, it is best to check with the loan provider about the documents that they require to consider you eligible for a personal loan.

If a co-applicant is involved, they too would need to provide documents as required by the lender.

title: Conclusion: personal loan

, content: Your creditworthiness plays a vital role in determining your eligibility for a personal loan. Thus, if you are looking to get an instant personal loan without salary slip, you need to build trust and confidence in the lender about your repayment capabilities. That way, you will come across as a responsible borrower. Do remember to also check the loan eligibility criteria, EMIs, and tenure of the loan before you apply.

title: Interest Rates for Agriculture Loans, content: Interest rates for agriculture loans in India vary depending on the financial institution, profile of the borrower, creditworthiness, loan amount, and purpose. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) provides guidelines to banks regarding the interest rates they can charge on agriculture loans which are backed by interest subvention from the Govt. These rates are usually lower compared to commercial loans, aiming to make credit more affordable for farmers. The interest rates are generally linked with MCLR and BRLLR can range from 4% to 14% per annum, depending on the types of loan and the repayment period.

title: Agriculture Loan Eligibility Criteria, content: While specific eligibility criteria may vary across financial institutions, schemes and conduct of the existing portfolio, some common requirements for agriculture loans in India include:

title: Land Ownership, content: Access to finance is crucial for farmers in India to support and expand their agricultural activities. Agriculture loans provide the necessary financial assistance for purchasing machinery, seeds, fertilizers, and other inputs. If you're a farmer looking to apply for an agriculture loan in India, this blog post will guide you through the application process step by step.

Step 1: Identify Your Financial Requirements: Before applying for an agriculture loan, determine the specific financial needs of your farming operations. Assess the amount required for purchasing equipment, seeds, livestock, or land, as well as other expenses related to farming activities. Having a clear understanding of your financial requirements will help you choose the right loan product and approach the appropriate financial institution.

Step 2: Research Loan Schemes and Institutions: India offers several loan schemes for farmers, each with its own set of eligibility criteria, interest rates, and benefits. Research and identify the loan schemes that best suit your needs. Some popular loan schemes in India include the Kisan Credit Card (KCC), Pradhan Mantri Fasal Bima Yojana (PMFBY), Gold Loan, Solar Pump loans, Dairy loans, Allied Agricultural loans, SHG loans, and various schemes offered by the National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development (NABARD). Additionally, explore the offerings of different financial institutions such as public sector banks, cooperative banks, and regional rural banks that offer agriculture loans.

Step 3: Gather Necessary Documents: To apply for an agriculture loan, you will need to gather specific documents that vary depending on the loan scheme and financial institution. The documents required for agriculture loans includes:

Step 4: Approach the Financial Institution: Once you have identified the loan scheme and financial institution, visit the nearest branch or contact the respective bank or lender to initiate the loan application process.

Alternatively, many financial institutions offer online application facilities, allowing you to apply for an agriculture loan from the comfort of your home.

Step 5: Complete the Application Form: Fill out the agriculture loan application form accurately, providing all the required details and supporting documents. Ensure that you double-check the information provided to avoid any errors or delays in the processing of your application.

Step 6: Loan Processing and Approval: After submitting the application form and supporting documents, the financial institution will begin the loan processing and verification process. This includes evaluating your eligibility, assessing the collateral (if applicable), conducting credit checks, and verifying the authenticity of the provided information. The processing time may vary depending on the financial institution and loan scheme.

Step 7: Loan Disbursement and Repayment: If your loan application is approved, the financial institution will disburse the sanctioned loan amount to your bank account. Familiarize yourself with the loan repayment terms, including interest rates, repayment tenure, and installment amounts. It is essential to adhere to the repayment schedule to maintain a good credit history and avoid penalties.

title: Conclusion : Agriculture Loan, content: Agriculture loans play a crucial role in providing financial assistance to farmers in India, enabling them to invest in their agricultural activities, purchase machinery, and manage their working capital. With favorable interest rates, government schemes, and tailored eligibility criteria, agriculture loans have become more accessible and farmer-friendly. However, it is important for farmers to carefully analyze their financial needs, compare loan offerings from different institutions, and understand the terms and conditions before applying for a loan. By leveraging the benefits offered by agriculture loans, farmers can improve their agricultural practices, increase productivity, and contribute to the overall growth of the sector, ultimately leading to a prosperous and sustainable agricultural landscape in India. Applying for an agriculture loan in India can be a significant step in securing the financial support required for farming activities. By following these steps and ensuring that you fulfill the eligibility criteria and provide the necessary documents, you can increase your chances of a successful loan application. Remember to carefully assess your financial requirements, research available loan schemes, and choose a reputable financial institution that aligns with your needs and goals.

title: What is an ATM Machine?

, content: An Automated Teller Machine (ATM) is a device provided by banks to allow customers to carry out financial transactions without the need for a teller or bank employee. It acts as a self-service banking outlet that is available 24/7, where customers can withdraw cash, deposit money, check their account balance, transfer funds, and perform other banking operations.

title: Why do You Need to Insert Your ATM Card into an ATM Machine

, content: When you insert your ATM card, several crucial operations take place that facilitate secure and accurate transactions:

Card Identification: The ATM machine needs to identify your card to establish a connection with your bank account. The magnetic stripe or chip on your card contains unique data, including your account number, which is read by the ATM machine's card reader.

Authentication: After identifying your card, the ATM machine initiates an authentication process to ensure that you are the legitimate cardholder. This involves verifying the information stored on your card's magnetic stripe or chip, such as the PIN (Personal Identification Number) associated with your account.

Secure Communication: Once your card is authenticated, the ATM machine establishes a secure communication channel with your bank or financial institution. This communication ensures the confidentiality and integrity of the data exchanged during the transaction.

Access to Account Information: By inserting your ATM card, you grant the ATM machine permission to access your account information securely. This allows you to perform various transactions, such as withdrawing cash, checking your account balance, transferring funds, or making deposits.

Transaction Processing: If the transaction is authorized, the ATM machine proceeds to process the requested transaction. For cash withdrawals, the machine dispenses the requested amount, reducing the corresponding balance in your account. Other transactions, such as balance inquiries or transfers, are processed similarly.

title: How to Insert Your ATM Card into an ATM Machine

, content: Locate an ATM Machine: Find a nearby ATM machine that belongs to your bank or a partner bank. This ensures compatibility and minimizes transaction fees.

Approach the ATM Machine: Walk up to the ATM machine and make sure no one suspicious is nearby. Maintain privacy by shielding the keypad as you enter your PIN.

Insert Your ATM Card: Locate the card slot on the ATM machine. It is usually situated on the right side of the screen. Take your ATM card and gently insert it into the card slot, ensuring the magnetic strip or chip faces down and is properly aligned with the machine's card reader. If the ATM is chip-enabled, it will prompt you to insert the card again and leave it inserted. The ATM will clamp down on your chip card to hold it in place until the transaction is complete.

Follow the On-Screen Instructions: Pay attention to the instructions displayed on the ATM screen. The screen will guide you through the transaction process, including selecting the type of transaction, entering the desired amount, or choosing specific account options.

Authorize Your Transaction: Once you have completed the required steps for your transaction, the ATM machine may prompt you to enter your Personal Identification Number (PIN). Enter your PIN using the keypad provided. Be cautious of your surroundings and ensure that no one can see your PIN.

Complete the Transaction: After entering your PIN, the machine will process your request. If your transaction involves cash withdrawal, the ATM will dispense the requested amount. For other transactions, the machine will carry out the necessary operations and provide you with a printed receipt for your records.

Retrieve Your ATM Card: After completing your transaction, the machine will return your ATM card. Gently pull the card out of its slot when prompted or when the machine displays a message instructing you to remove it. Ensure that you take your card before leaving the ATM area.

So go forth, insert your ATM card with confidence, and embark on your financial journey with ease!

title: How to Invest in Mutual Funds

, content: The asset under management (AUM) of the Indian mutual fund industry has surpassed ₹43 trillion in the past 10 years. Here are some of the factors that have fueled this growth:

Increasing awareness of financial products

The growing popularity of systematic investment plans (SIPs)

Digital transformation

Higher household disposable income

A favorable regulatory environment
So how do you get started?

We'll show how in this article.

title: What are Mutual Funds?

, content: Mutual funds are investment vehicles that pool money from multiple investors and invest it in a variety of assets. Fund managers, who are highly qualified professionals, manage these funds. Investors can choose from a variety of mutual funds, each with its own investment objective, risk profile, and potential return.

title: Why should you Invest in Mutual Funds?

, content: A few key benefits of investing in mutual funds are:

Diversification: Mutual funds offer diversification, which reduces risk by spreading your money across different assets. This helps to reduce the risk associated with investing in individual securities, as losses in some investments may be offset by gains in others.

Professional management: Mutual funds are managed by well-qualified and experienced fund managers. These managers make investment decisions on behalf of investors, and they are assisted by a team of experts who analyze securities, monitor the market, and adjust the fund's holdings as needed.

Liquidity: Mutual funds are also liquid, which means that investors can buy or sell their units on any business day. The redeemed amount will be credited to their bank accounts within 1-4 working days, depending on the type of scheme.

Accessibility and affordability: Mutual funds are accessible to investors at a low cost. Investors can start investing with relatively small amounts of money, making them suitable for both novice investors and those with limited capital. Mutual funds achieve cost efficiencies by pooling money from multiple investors, which leads to lower investment costs compared to investing in individual securities.

Flexibility: Mutual funds offer a range of options to investors, such as debt, equity, hybrid funds, and more. Each type has its own unique characteristics and potential benefits. Investors can select funds that match their financial objectives, level of risk comfort, and investment timeline.

Tax benefits: Investors can get tax advantages by parking money in certain types of mutual funds, such as Equity Linked Saving Schemes (ELSS).

Regulatory oversight: In India, mutual funds are regulated by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI). SEBI has laid down stringent rules and regulations to protect investors' interests and ensure transparency, including requirements for reporting, disclosure, and risk management.

title: What are the Different ways of Investing in Mutual Fund Schemes?

, content: Investing in mutual funds is a relatively simple process with several options.

Individuals can visit the nearest branch office of the mutual fund, designated Investor Service Centres (ISCs), or Registrar & Transfer Agents (RTAs) of the respective mutual fund, along with a duly filled application form, necessary documents, and a cheque or bank draft.

Individuals can also invest in mutual fund schemes online through online platforms or the websites of fund houses.

Investors have the option to invest in a mutual fund through a mutual fund distributor registered with AMFI. This distributor can be an individual, a bank, a broker house, etc.

title: How to Start Investing in Mutual Funds?

, content: Now, let's glance at how to invest in mutual funds in India.

How to Select a Mutual Fund?

While selecting a mutual fund scheme, investors should consider various elements, and they are:

Determine financial objective and investment horizon. What are your goals for investing? Are you saving for retirement, a down payment on a house, or something else? How long do you have until you need the money?

Assess risk tolerance. How much risk are you comfortable with? If you're nearing retirement, you may want to choose a lower-risk fund. If you're younger, you may be able to afford to take on more risk.

Choose the mutual fund type. There are many different types of mutual funds, each with its own risk and reward profile. You'll need to choose a fund that's appropriate for your financial goals and risk tolerance.

Decide on an active or passive management style. Actively managed funds try to beat the market, while passively managed funds track a specific index. There are pros and cons to both approaches.

Check the performance of shortlisted funds. How have the shortlisted funds performed over the past few years? How do they compare to their peers?

Analyze the expense ratio. The expense ratio is the percentage of your investment that goes to fees. A lower expense ratio means more of your money goes to work for you.

Check the liquidity and size of the fund. How easy is it to buy and sell shares in the fund? How large is the fund? Larger funds are more liquid, but they may also be more expensive.

Assess the fund manager's expertise. How experienced is the fund manager? What is their track record?

Read the policy document. This document will tell you everything you need to know about the fund, including its investment objective, risk profile, and fees.

Ensure the fund complements existing investments. Make sure the fund you choose complements your existing investments and helps you achieve your financial goals.

How to Open a Mutual Fund Account?

Investors can open mutual fund accounts online or offline.

Online: Investors can open mutual fund accounts online through the websites of fund houses or online platforms.

Offline: Investors can contact a mutual fund distributor or the nearest branch office to open an offline account.

How to Buy Mutual Funds?

Individuals can use online or offline modes to buy mutual funds. Investors can purchase mutual funds offline by visiting the closest office of the fund house or through a distributor.

Select an online platform or the website of the fund house.

Sign up on the chosen online platform by providing your name, email address, PAN, and Aadhaar number.

Complete the KYC process by submitting scanned copies of your PAN card, Aadhaar card, and bank statement.

Select the mutual fund that aligns with your investment goals and risk appetite. Link your bank account with the online platform.

Initiate the investment by specifying the amount and selecting the investment mode (lump sum or SIP).

Transfer the investment amount to the online platform or fund house.

Track your investment performance online.

Adjust your investment plan, switch between various funds, and fully or partially withdraw your investment as needed.

How to Buy Direct Mutual Funds?

Online: Through the fund house's website or online platforms (check if they offer direct plans).

Offline: Using a physical application form at the ISC of the concerned mutual fund or its RTA, along with a demand draft or cheque.

Direct plans have many advantages over their regular counterparts, and a few of them are:

Lower expense ratio: Direct mutual funds have a lower expense ratio as they do not have commission or distributor fees.

Higher returns: Due to the lower expense ratio, direct plans can generate higher returns than their regular counterparts.

Significant cost savings: Over the long term, the cost savings from investing in direct plans can be significant.

Higher transparency: There is no intermediary between the investor and the fund house, so there is higher transparency.

Direct investment, monitoring, and management: Investors can directly invest, monitor, and manage their investments online without intermediaries.

How Much to Invest in Mutual Funds?

The amount to invest in mutual fund schemes depends on various parameters, such as the investor's financial objective, risk tolerance, investment horizon, and current financial situation. Though no fixed minimum investment amount is mandated by law, most mutual funds in India have their own minimum investment requirements.

The minimum investment amount for most mutual fund schemes ranges between Rs.500 to Rs.5,000. However, some categories of funds have a higher minimum investment amount.

title: How to Invest in Mutual Funds from your Bank Account?

, content: Individuals can only invest in mutual funds from their own bank account. This can be done online or by cheque, but third-party cheques are not permitted. A third-party cheque is one that is signed by someone other than the first account holder.p[

There are some exceptions to the prohibition on third-party cheques, such as payments made by parents, grandparents, or other related persons on behalf of a minor, or payments made by employers in the name of employees under a systematic investment plan (SIP) through payroll deductions. Payments made by custodians on behalf of foreign institutional investors (FIIs) or clients are also eligible for exemption.

title: How to Invest a Lump Sum in Mutual Fund Schemes?

, content: A lump sum investment implies investing a large sum in a mutual fund scheme in a single transaction. It's just the opposite of systematic investments. Investors can invest a lump sum in both direct and regular plans.

Here are some steps to consider when investing a lump sum in mutual funds:

Select a suitable scheme. Research different mutual funds and their historical performance. Consider your financial objectives, risk tolerance, and investment goals when choosing a mutual fund.

Choose a reputed fund house. Choose a fund house with a good track record and reliable customer service.

Open a mutual fund account. You can open an account online or through a broker. Determine the amount to invest. Make sure you can afford to invest the lump sum and that you won't need the money in the near future.

Transfer the funds from your bank account. You can do this online or through a broker.

Regularly monitor the fund's performance. Investors may need to rebalance their portfolios periodically to maintain their desired asset allocation.

title: Things to Consider as a First-Time Investor

, content: As a first-time investor in mutual funds, several key factors must be considered. Here are some essential points to keep in mind:

To start, an investor should identify their financial objective. This could be long-term growth, income generation, or capital preservation.

Next, they should assess their risk tolerance. Typically, funds that offer higher potential returns also carry higher risks.

Then, they should decide on their investment horizon. Longer investment horizons have the potential to take on more risk and earn higher returns

After that, they should research different funds based on their investment goals, risk tolerance, and investment horizon. They should also consider the past performance of the fund, its expenses ratio, fund manager expertise, and investment objective.

The investor should then diversify their portfolio by not putting all their eggs in one basket. Instead, they should invest in a variety of funds to reduce their risk.

Investing through a systematic investment plan (SIP) is advisable for first-time investors. With a SIP, an investor invests a fixed amount of money every month, regardless of the market conditions. This helps them to dollar-cost average their investment and reduce their risk.

The investor must have an active bank account to invest in mutual funds. Making payments through net banking is advisable as it is straightforward, swift, and secure.

To invest in mutual funds, it is necessary to complete the KYC. This is mandated by the government to prevent money laundering. To successfully complete the KYC process, investors must have a valid PAN card and identity proof.

The mutual fund investment process is straightforward. However, first-timers may face challenges as they are new to investing. In such circumstances, they can take the help of registered financial advisors."

title: Conclusion : Mutual Funds, content: Mutual funds offer several benefits, of which diversification is the most important. The market is currently flooded with a variety of mutual fund categories. For a beginner, finding the right fund can be challenging, as the fund selection process involves analyzing multiple factors. Therefore, it is advisable to seek the assistance of a registered financial advisor.

title: How to check mutual fund status?

, content: Investors can check their mutual fund status by contacting their distributors. Besides, investors can check their mutual fund status online by logging in to their accounts. Additionally, investors have the option to call the customer service centre of the fund house to get the status of their investments.

title: How to check mutual fund status with folio number?

, content: Investors can track their mutual fund investments using the folio number provided by the fund house. They can check the status on the fund house's website, mobile app, online platforms, or by calling customer care.

title: How to add nominees in mutual funds online?

, content: Investors can add or change nominees for their mutual fund units at any time. To do this, they can either fill out the nomination section in the application form when purchasing new units, or they can log into their online account and update their nominee information.

title: Is a Demat account required for mutual funds?

, content: It is not mandatory to have a Demat account for purchasing mutual fund units.

title: Banking Mantra, content: Buy a brand-new two-wheeler & zoom ahead in life title: What are the SMART Investment goals, content: Instead of a vague goal like 'save more money,' you could set a specific goal like "save 'Rs 5 lakhs for a down payment on a house within the next 18 months.' Measurable: A goal must be quantifiable so you can track your achievements. In the previous example, saving Rs 5 lakhs can be measured by tracking how much you have saved every month.

Achievable: Goals should be realistic and attainable after considering your financial resources, capabilities, and constraints. Setting an unattainable goal could lead to frustration and demotivation.

Relevant: Goals should be relevant to your overall financial objectives and align with your broader financial plan.

Time-bound: Goals should have a specific timeframe or deadline to create a sense of urgency and focus.

title: Introduction : NRI banking

, content: As an NRI, having an NRI bank account in India is important for managing your finances. NRI Bank account opening is easy, but without proper information, it may seem like a challenge.

A common concern among NRIs is the process of opening an NRI account. You need to know about the document requirement and tax implications depending on the type of NRI account. Therefore, it is necessary to stay aware of the process to make informed decisions.

Here, we're going to discuss how to open an NRI bank account in India and other details such as tax implications and documents required for NRI accounts.

title: Understand the Types of NRI Accounts

, content: Before we learn how to open NRI account, it is important to know which type of account you want. There are primarily three kinds of NRI accounts:

NRE accounts

Non-Residential External (NRE) accounts are the Indian NRI bank accounts used to hold the earnings originating in the NRI's country of residence.

These earnings are held in INR after conversion.

Individuals have the option of opening a NRE savings account or NRE current account. They can also opt for Fixed Deposits (FDs).

The account balance is fully repatriable.

May be held jointly in the names of two or more NRIs/ PIOs on either or survivor basis. NRIs/ PIOs can hold jointly with a resident relative on 'former or survivor' basis. The resident relative can operate the account as a Power of Attorney holder during the life time of the NRI/ PIO account holder.

NRO accounts

Non-Residential Ordinary (NRO) accounts are used to hold the earnings originating in India.

These earnings are held in INR and are taxable.

The source of earnings can be rent, dividends, pensions, etc.

The interest earned on the balance is fully transferable, whereas the balance can be transferred only to the extent of 1 million USD or equivalent per year.

May be held jointly in the names of two or more NRIs/ PIOs on either or survivor basis. NRIs/ PIOs can hold jointly with a resident relative on 'former or survivor' basis. The resident relative can operate the account as a Power of Attorney holder during the life time of the NRI/ PIO account holder.

FCNR accounts

Foreign Currency Non- Residential (FCNR) accounts are used to hold earnings in currencies other than INR.

Individuals can make deposits in any of the currencies prescribed by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI).

Currently, in our bank five currencies can be kept in the FCNR accounts, USD, GBP, AUD, CAD and EUR.

These accounts only allow fixed deposits with a minimum maturity period of 1 year and maximum 5 years.

May be held jointly in the names of two or more NRIs/ PIOs on either or survivor basis. NRIs/ PIOs can hold jointly with a resident relative on 'former or survivor' basis. title: Accessing and Managing Your NRI Account

, content: Once you receive your account details, you are all set to make transactions in your Indian NRI bank account. Wire transfers are the popular choice for foreign transfers. It involves electronic money transfers between banks, often through SWIFT (Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication) for international transfers.

You need to contact your foreign banks to initiate a wire transfer for the required amount. Similarly, to transfer money out of the account, initiate a wire transfer through your Indian account. Ensure that you provide accurate beneficiary details, including your NRI account number and the bank's SWIFT or IFSC code.

Other ways of making a transaction in NRI account include foreign currency drafts/ cheques and ATM card deposits. Check with your bank for the details related to funding and transfer of balance.

title: Tax implications of having an NRI account

, content: It is essential to understand the tax regulations for NRI accounts. The tax implications vary depending on the type of NRI account .

For NRE accounts, the whole balance and interest are non-taxable in India. But you may have to pay taxes in the country of your residence, depending on the tax laws there.

For NRO accounts, tax is payable in India on the principal as well as interest. However, for FCNR accounts, the interest earned is non-taxable in India.

title: Common Mistakes to Avoid

, content: NRI bank account opening in India is a fairly simple process. Yet, there are certain things to keep in mind to avoid common mistakes:

Providing Incomplete or Inaccurate Documentation

Even though documents are verified while opening the account, it is possible to give the wrong documentation. This may lead to a problem in transferring the amount. Make sure the documentation is up to date. Making changes after submission can be stressful and time-consuming. It is best to check all your documents twice before submitting them.

Misunderstanding Tax Appliances

Most people tend to misunderstand the tax compliances on their NRI savings accounts. This can lead to problems while funding and transferring money. Also, individuals may miss out on certain tax benefits. Therefore, hiring a tax consultant before starting with an NRI account is advisable.

Ignoring Maintenance Requirements

Some NRI savings accounts have requirements such as a minimum balance or regular updation of the documents. Failing these requirements may lead to losses or fines or even account closure in severe cases. Therefore, study the bank's terms and conditions carefully, including balance requirements and fees.

Not staying updated

It is necessary to stay informed about the changes related to tax laws in your country and your bank's policies. Missing the new updates may result in loss of money or failure to avail certain benefits. It is important to keep updating your NRI account opening documents regularly.

Neglecting Currency Conversion Rates

Not considering currency conversion rates when transferring funds between your NRI and foreign bank accounts may lead to potential losses. It is best to learn about these rates well in advance and choose the transfer option after considering all these factors.

Miscommunications with the bank

Not having frequent contact with your bank can lead to missing out on crucial information. Register for online banking to easily access and manage your NRI account, initiate transfers, and monitor transactions anywhere worldwide.

By avoiding these common mistakes and staying informed about Indian NRI Account regulations and requirements, the opening and maintaining an NRI account experience can be seamless and efficient.

title: Difference Between Current Account and Savings Account, content: A savings account is an interest-bearing deposit account held at a bank or other financial institution. Though these accounts typically pay a modest interest rate, their safety and reliability make them a great option for parking cash you want available for short-term needs.

title: How to make home loan EMI payments if you have lost your job due to COVID 19?

, content: Here are some tips that will show you how you can still manage to pay for your even if you have lost your job due to COVID 19.

Inform the lender

The very first thing you need to do to is inform your lender about your situation. Never skip the lender's calls and communication.

Utilise your severance packages

If your employer has asked you to leave, they might have given you two to three months of salary in the form of a severance package. You can make use of this severance package to pay your home loan EMIs. This way, you can keep your payments on track and maintain good records with the lender.

Make use of your FDs (Fixed Deposits) and RDs (Recurring Deposits)

Parking funds in fixed deposits and recurring deposits is one of the most traditional forms of saving your money. If you too have saved your money in the form of a fixed deposit or a recurring deposit, this would be a suitable time to make use of fixed deposit savings to pay for your home loan EMIs. These days, you can easily liquidate fixed deposits and recurring deposits online through net banking.

Utilise money from your provident fund account

If you worked in companies that provided the benefit of a PF, a financial crunch such as a job loss might be a suitable time to withdraw provident fund money. You can use those funds to pay for your home loan EMI. You are allowed to withdraw around 75% of your PF savings or a sum that is equal to your salary of three months by the EPFO. Around 60 million provident fund users were also allowed to take a portion of their accumulated funds from their accounts by the labour ministry in March 2020.

Avail loan against insurance policy

You can use your money back and endowment insurance policies to get a loan. Since these policies have a savings and a life cover component, they are considered as valuable collaterals for a loan. It is important for such policies to acquire a surrender value. The amount sanctioned by the lender is usually 85% to 90% of the surrender value of the insurance policy. You also get to enjoy lower interest rates if you procure a loan against insurance policy that has a surrender value. If you have lost your job, you can take a small personal loan at a reduced rate against your insurance policy and pay your home loan EMIs. This way, you would get enough time to look for another employment opportunity or create at least an alternate source of income.

Ask your friends and relatives for help

You may also want to consider borrowing money from friends or family members to pay for your home loan. Borrowing money from loved ones saves you from paying high rates of interest or late fees to a bank. You may use the borrowed money to make your home loan EMI payments and repay the debt when you find a job and have your finances under control once again.

title: Mistakes you must avoid

, content: Losing your job can be tough and you might be under a lot of stress. However, here are two big mistakes to avoid when you are unable to pay your home loan EMI.

Avoiding contact with the lender

If you have lost your job due to the COVID 19 pandemic, it is better to be transparent with the lender about the situation. Missing out on your home loan EMIs for a prolonged period compels the lender to announce your loan as an NPA (Non-Performing Asset), and charge late payment penalties on your subsequent EMI payments. This makes it quite difficult and complicated to get your EMI payments and CIBIL score back on track. Thus, do not avoid contacting the lender to discuss the issues you face with your EMI payments. Instead, talk to them and figure out a solution to get your finances back on track as quickly as possible.

Say no to jobs that do not give you a hike in salary

It is quite natural for us to only accept a new job if it pays more than our previous employment. However, during the COVID 19 pandemic when the entire job market is unstable, it is illogical to not accept employment opportunities that pay the same salary as your previous job. Thus, if have any debt like a home loan that requires you to regularly pay a significant amount of EMI, it is better to accept any employment opportunity that helps you repay your debt on time. You can always switch jobs after the market has stabilised. You can also continue to look for jobs that provide you with a better salary while being employed at a lower-paying job. At least this way you do not default and make things complicated for yourself in the long run.

title: Conclusion : Emi Calculator, content: Home loans typically have a tenure that can extend anywhere upto 30 years. Thus, it is always better to calculate home loan EMI dues before starting your application process. This can be easily done using an online EMI calculator. The EMI calculator can be easily found on the lender's website and is free to use. It is also important to remember that you should not take a home loan for an amount that is higher than what you require. The maximum loan amount sanctioned for your home loan depends on your CIBIL score, age, salary, among a few other factors.

Bank of Baroda offers home loans for buying your dream house or even for renovating your existing living space. You can apply online and track your loan status with ease. Get in touch with us today to learn more.

title: Tips for paying off personal loan early , content: Review the debt you owe

Before you start planning how to repay your loan faster, it is crucial that you first know the exact amount you owe. Examine all the payments you have made till date and the ones that are due. Then, make a note of all the other payments you have on your list every month, like home loan EMIs, insurance premiums, household bills, and credit card balances. Only when you have a clear understanding of your finances, can you create a repayment strategy that will work. Knowing how much you owe will help you understand the maximum amount that you can put towards your personal loan payments each month.

Understand your repayment capability

Once you have a clear idea of the amount of money you owe, you need to evaluate your repayment capacity. Analyse your current income and financial obligations. Try and estimate how much can you contribute each month towards your loan repayment. Find out if there is a way by which you can increase your repayment capacity. You may want to consider cutting down on monthly expenses or working on getting an additional source of income. Never overestimate your ability to repay your personal loan as you may need to keep spare funds in your savings account for emergencies.

Try to make an extra payment

A simple way of ensuring that you pay your personal loan faster is by making an extra payment every year. Paying one additional EMI each year will help you pay off your loans more quickly. With each payment, the principal amount and interest payable considerably reduces and you come closer to ending your debt.

If you feel an extra EMI will be heavy on your pocket, you can split the amount into smaller portions. For example, if you pay an EMI of INR 6,000 per month. You can divide the given sum by 12 months and add INR 500 to your monthly EMI. So technically, you are paying the usual EMI amount plus an additional sum each month.

Round up the EMI amount

Another great way of paying off your personal loan early is by rounding up the EMI amount. For many people, the EMI amount might not be a whole number but rather a decimal. Generally, paying a round figure amount often helps in settling a loan early.

Now, you may think that paying a rounded-up amount won't make that much of a difference to your loan repayment. However, that is not always true. Even the smallest of extra contributions will help you repay your loan faster. For instance, if your EMI is INR 4375.30, opt to pay INR 4500 instead. The additional contribution of 120 INR also makes a huge difference if added up over the course of a few months.

Use a bonus to make a larger payment

Try using any salary bonus or work incentives to pay off your personal loan. You may sometimes feel that you are losing out on enjoying the bonus amount that you have worked so hard for. However, you are actually helping yourself reduce your debt more quickly. So, try to use any surplus cash that you get to pay off your loan.

Consider doing a loan balance transfer

The interest rate levied plays a huge role in determining how much a loan will cost us. Now, you may have had to accept a loan with a higher interest rate in the past due to lack of alternative options. With time, if you find a lender who is offering you a loan at a lower interest rate and on better repayment terms, you can choose to switch your loan over to them. This is called a loan balance transfer. With a loan balance transfer, you may save money with better interest rates and work out better, more affordable repayment terms.

title: What is the pre-payment penalty applied to personal loan pre-closure?

, content: Most banks charge a pre-payment penalty if you close your loan earlier than expected. The penalty amount is calculated as a percentage based on either the existing loan balance or the interest the lender will lose due to pre-closure. Generally, the pre-payment penalty is somewhere between 2% to 5% of your loan amount. The exact charge can vary between lenders.

Do remember that all details about the pre-payment penalty and conditions applied to this penalty are mentioned in your loan agreement in detail. Make sure you read the agreement thoroughly before signing it.

There are two ways by which you can try to avoid paying the pre-payment penalty. First, look for a lender that does not charge a penalty for pre-closure. Second, opt for a lender that allows you to pay off your loan penalty-free after a specific point in the tenure.

title: What are the documents required for loan pre-closure?

, content: There are a few documents that need to be exchanged between a lender and borrower in case of loan pre-closure. Ensure that you have all these documents as they are proof that you have repaid your loan.

Documents to be submitted to the lender:

KYC documents

All relevant loan documents

Bank statements reflecting EMI payments made to date.

Pre-payment statement

Documents to be collected from the lender:

Receipt of pre-closer payments

No objection certificate (NOC) to close the personal loan

Personal loan closure certificate

Payment due certificate

You may want to ask your lender for an exact list of the documents needed as per their process.

title: Key Takeaways

, content: Here's a quick recap of what we learnt today:

Review and understand your capacity for making extra payments on your personal loan

Try to get extra income to put towards your personal loan payments

Look for lenders who do not charge a pre-payment penalty if you close your loan early or who waive this penalty after a certain amount of time title: How to Reduce Student Loan Debt, content: Individuals should actively pursue scholarship opportunities to lessen the weight of student loan debt. There are abundant scholarships available to students, some of which cover the entire cost of education, while others provide partial funding.

title: Repay More Than the Minimum EMI, content: One effective strategy to speed up the repayment process and reduce student loan debt is to make payments exceeding the minimum Equated Monthly Installment (EMI) amount. By doing so, borrowers can accelerate the timeline of paying off their loans, leading to a decrease in the total loan amount and duration.

title: Consider the Right Education Loan, content: Individuals should carefully evaluate and choose the most suitable education loan option when seeking ways to reduce student loan debt. It is crucial to understand the restrictions and terms associated with each loan type.

title: Enhance Academic Performance, content: Many prestigious universities offer grants and scholarship awards to students who excel academically. Individuals are encouraged to strive for academic excellence and qualify for such financial assistance programs to reduce student loan debt.

title: Employ Part-Time Work, content: Working part-time is a different approach to diminish the loan amount and ensure timely repayment. Taking up a part-time job enables individuals to cover their living expenses without resorting to additional borrowing from the sanctioned loan amount.

title: Employ Part-Time Work, content: During the moratorium period, borrowers can pay off the accumulated interest. Opting to pay the interest during this period significantly reduces the overall student loan debt when the repayment begins.

title: Utilize Automatic Payment Scheduling, content: One of the easiest ways to get quick student loan debt relief is by utilizing the automatic payment feature provided by lenders. Enabling automatic monthly payments reduces the chances of missing payments and offers potential interest rate discounts from financial institutions.

title: Explore Employer Assistance Programs, content: Certain companies and employers provide benefits packages that include student loan repayment assistance. Borrowers should inquire with their employers regarding available incentives to support the reduction of their student loan debt.

title: Leverage Tax Deductions, content: Under Section 80E of the Income Tax Act of 1961, borrowers can benefit from tax deductions on the interest paid toward their education loan during the financial year. Taking advantage of this tax benefit helps reduce the overall student loan debt burden.

title: Government subsidies, content: Education Loan Subsidy schemes during moratorium period are modes of financial assistance which help students to repay their education loan with ease. Student loan applicants can avail these subsidies in the form of interest rate subsidies on education loan repayment.

title: What is a Home Loan Processing Fee?, content: Banks and lending institutions levy a onetime charge on the different types of Home Loan products. This charge, known as the Home Loan processing fee. It is generally not deductible from the loan amount, and the borrower pays it separately. This is a fee to cover the loan processing cost incurred by the lender or the bank. Some banks may waive such processing charges for a Home Loan as part of special offers.

title: Understanding Home Loan Prepayment - Rules, Benefits, and Charges, content: If you are looking to reduce your debt burden, you should consider prepayment of home loan. As soon as your finances improve, you can choose to finish your home loan, either in part or in full. If you repay your home loan completely or in part before the scheduled tenure, it is called prepayment of home loan.

title: How to remove hypothecation from RC after car loan repayment/termination: , content: Step 1: Repayment of car loan

In the hypothecation agreement of car loan, the name of the lender appears as the owner for the car. To start the procedure for removal of the lender's name, you need to repay the car loan completely. The loan must be paid off and a nil balance must appear in the lender's books.

If you are planning to prepay your , it is better to inquire with the lender about their prepayment charges and conditions. Sometimes lenders have prepayment charges on these loans and this can go up to 2%.

Once you've completely paid off the loan, you need a no dues certificate from the lender. This certificate will state that you have completely discharged the dues to the lender.

Step 2: Collection of documents from the lender

Once the loan is repaid, the lender will give you the no dues certificate. Along with this, you need to collect:

No objection certificate:

This certificate states that the lender does not have any objection with car loan hypothecation removal. One important point to remember is that you must take multiple copies of the No Objection certificate. This No Objection certificate will need to be submitted to the RTO and to the Insurance company. You will also need one copy for your own records. Usually, the no objection certificate is valid for 3 months. So, you must approach the RTO immediately after you get the no objection certificate.

Form 35

This form is a notice of termination of hypothecation. This form also has to be made in triplicate or in 3 copies. Each state usually has its own format for this form which can easily be found online or at the RTO.

Step 2: Submission of documents to the RTO

Once you have the documents from the lender, you need to visit the Regional Transport Office or the RTO with a set of documents that includes:

Original form 35 signed and stamped by the borrower and bank

Original Bank No Objection Certificate

Attested copy of PAN

Attested copy of insurance policy of car

Original Registration Certificate

Address proof

Copy of Pollution Under Control (PUC) certificate

These documents will have to be submitted to the RTO. If your address does not match the address in the registration certificate, you will need to submit Form 33 which is for change of address.

Once you submit these documents to the concerned officer at the RTO, they will get them verified. You need to pay the respective fees to get the process completed. The officer will give you a time and date on which you can collect your updated Registration Certificate (RC)

Step 3: Collect your updated Registration Certificate

The date and time for the visit will be specified when the documents are submitted. When you visit the RTO on the specified date, you will get the updated RC. If there are any mistakes in the details, you can get them corrected and collect the RC on a future date. Once you collect your updated RC, you will have completed all car loan hypothecation removal formalities.

title: How to Save & Invest for Your Child's Education Aboard

, content: Quality education is one of the most important investments in your child's future. It equips them with the knowledge, skills, and opportunities necessary to thrive in today's globalised world.

If your child dreams of pursuing higher education abroad, it opens up even more personal and academic growth possibilities. However, the costs associated with international education can be substantial, making it essential to start planning and saving early.

Education abroad offers numerous benefits, including exposure to diverse cultures, global perspectives, and top-notch academic institutions. Students gain valuable life experiences and a broader understanding of the world by immersing themselves in a new environment.

However, the financial aspect can be a significant hurdle for many families. That's why it's crucial to be proactive and implement effective strategies to save and invest in your child's foreign education.

Whether your child is interested in studying in renowned universities in the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia, or any other country, the principles of saving and investing for their education remain the same. Adopting a proactive and disciplined approach can alleviate the financial burden and ensure your child receives a world-class education.

So, let's dive into the strategies and insights that will empower you to save and invest in your child's foreign education.

title: Tips to Save and Invest for Your Child's Foreign Education Goals
, content: Here are a few saving tips for a child's foreign education goals:

Creating a Budget and Saving Strategy

Start by assessing your current financial situation and creating a budget. Determine how much you can save each month for your child's education. Cut back on unnecessary expenses and allocate those savings towards an education fund. Consider setting up an automatic monthly transfer to a separate savings account to ensure consistent contributions.

Setting a Goal and Estimating Costs

Research and estimate the costs associated with your child's desired foreign education. Consider tuition fees, living expenses, travel, and other related expenses. Setting a clear savings goal will help you stay motivated and track your progress. Remember to account for inflation and currency exchange rate fluctuations when estimating long-term costs.

Exploring Education Loan Options

While saving is crucial, it may not cover the entire cost of your child's education abroad. Familiarise yourself with different education loan options specifically designed for higher education overseas. Look for loans that offer competitive interest rates, flexible repayment terms, and beneficial features such as moratorium periods.

Seeking Professional Financial Advice

Consult a financial advisor specialising in education planning. They can guide you on the most effective investment strategies based on your financial goals and risk tolerance. A professional can help you explore investment options such as mutual funds, fixed deposits, or other suitable investment vehicles that align with your objectives.

Government Schemes and Scholarships

The Indian government has implemented various policies and schemes to support parents and students in achieving their child's foreign education goals. These initiatives aim to provide financial assistance, guidance, and opportunities for Indian students to pursue higher education abroad. Here are some prominent policies and schemes:

- Pradhan Mantri Vidya Lakshmi Karyakram (PMVLK):

This scheme is a government portal that provides a single window for students to access information about various education loan schemes banks offer. It simplifies the loan application process by providing a platform to compare different loan options, apply online, and track the status of applications.

- Study in India (SII) Programme:

Launched by the Ministry of Education, the Study in India program promotes India as a destination for international students while offering opportunities for Indian students to pursue higher education there. The program includes scholarships, fee waivers, and other incentives for deserving students.

- National Overseas Scholarship Scheme (NOSS):

The Ministry of Social Justice and Empowerment offers the NOSS to support students from economically weaker sections of society, including SC, scheduled tribes, and other backward classes. The scheme provides financial assistance to eligible students pursuing higher education abroad.

- Indian Council for Cultural Relations (ICCR) Scholarships:

The ICCR, under the Ministry of External Affairs, provides scholarships to international students to study in India. It enhances cultural exchange and provides opportunities for Indian students to interact with international peers and gain a global perspective.

Explore these initiatives' respective websites and portals for detailed information on eligibility criteria, application processes, and deadlines.

title: What is Transfer of Shares?

, content: Transferring shares refers to the process of moving securities from one demat account to another. In India, shares are held in an electronic format through a Dematerialised (demat) account, which eliminates the need for physical share certificates. Before we see how to transfer demat account shares, let us examine some of the prominent reasons for the same.

title: Reasons behind the Transfer of Shares from One Demat Account to Another

, content: There can be several reasons that can prompt investors to transfer shares between demat accounts. These can include the following:

Switching brokers or depository participants (DPs) due to better services or lower brokerage charges.

Consolidating investments from multiple demat accounts into a single account for better portfolio management.

Transferring shares as a gift or inheritance to family members or loved ones.

Transferring shares to a new demat account when relocating or changing residence.

title: How to Transfer Shares from One Demat Account to Another?

, content: One can transfer shares from one demat account to another either through a manual method or online mode. Note that there is a proper process to transfer shares from one demat to another. However, the instructions regarding how to transfer physical shares to a demat account are different.

Manual Transfer of Shares

Follow these steps to manually transfer your shares from demat account to another:

The transferor needs to obtain the Delivery Instruction Slip (DIS) from the current stockbroker. The slip contains all the essential information relating to the transfer of shares. The transferor shall fill in all the necessary details for transferring the security.

The transferor shall mention the Beneficiary Broker ID on the DIS. The ID should be provided for both the existing broker and the new broker. It is a 16-digit unique ID allotted to the broker or the bank.

Then, the transferor shall mention the International Securities Identification Number (ISIN). This number helps in the identification of the individual shares in the demat account. The transferor shall also mention the number of shares along with the ISIN.

The transferor shall select the off-market mode of transfer in case of intra-depository transfer. In other cases, the transferor shall select the inter-depository option.

After filling in all the relevant information, the transferor shall sign the document and submit it to the existing broker. The broker will charge a nominal fee for transferring your shares. These charges may vary across different brokers.

Online Transfer of Shares from One Demat Account to Another

Online transfer of shares is a convenient method and one can do it at the convenience of his home. You can undertake the online transfer of shares either through CDSL's 'Easiest' facility or NSDL's 'Speed-e' facility. Following are the steps involved in transferring shares from one demat account to another:

Visit the CDSL or NSDL website. Register for the 'Easiest' facility or 'Speed-e' facility. Fill in all the relevant details and submit the form.

Send a copy of the form to your depository participant. The depository participant will further send it to the Central Depository. Your details will be verified and you will receive your login credentials after 1-2 days.

Login using the credentials received by you. Now, you can transfer your shares online from your demat account.

title: Participants in the Transfer of Shares

, content: While we discussed how can we transfer shares from one demat account to another, we also need to know the participants involved in this transaction. The primary participants involved in transferring shares from one demat account to another are:

Transferor: The current owner of the shares who will be initiating the transfer.

Transferee: The new owner who will be receiving the shares.

Depository Participants (DPs): Entities registered with the depository (NSDL or CDSL) that provides demat account services.

Depositories: National Securities Depository Limited (NSDL) and Central Depository Services Limited (CDSL) hold and maintain your securities in dematerialised form.

title: Time Required for Transfer of Shares

, content: The time required for transferring your shares from one demat account to another varies depending on the transfer method and the efficiency of the DPs involved. In manual transfers, the process may take several weeks to complete. Online transfers are generally faster, with the shares usually reflected in the new demat account within a few days. More often than not, the entire process gets completed within one week.

title: What are The Tax Implications of Transferring Shares?

, content: If one transfers shares from one demat account to his/her another demat account, then it is considered a non-taxable event. But, if the shares are transferred to the demat account of another person, then it can invite tax implications. Transfers done without consideration should be treated as gifts and shall be taxed accordingly as per the provisions of the Income Tax Act, 1961. The transferor and the transferee should take appropriate legal advice before undertaking such transfer.

title: Things to Keep in Mind While Transferring Shares

, content: When transferring shares between demat accounts, it is essential to consider the following points:

Choose a reliable and reputable DP for the new demat account.

Verify the accuracy of details such as ISIN, DP ID, client ID, and beneficiary account numbers.

Maintain records of the transfer deed, share certificates, and other relevant documents.

Keep track of the transfer process and follow up with the DPs if there are any delays or issues.

Consult a tax advisor or chartered accountant to understand the tax implications of the transfer and comply with reporting requirements.

title: Conclusion : Tranfering shares

, content: The process to transfer shares from one demat to another in India can be done through manual or online methods. While manual transfers involve physical paperwork and longer processing times, online transfers offer convenience and faster completion. Understanding the process, participants, timeframes, and tax implications associated with share transfers is crucial for investors to ensure a smooth and hassle-free transfer of ownership.

If you are wondering how to transfer a demat account from one broker to another, then it is not possible. If you are a broker who wants a new demat account, you will have to open a separate account while closing the previous one. You cannot use another broker's demat account.

title: Step-by-Step Instructions on How to Use Your Credit Card at an ATM

, content: Check your available credit: Before proceeding with a cash withdrawal, it's crucial to review your latest account statement to determine how much money is available for you to withdraw. Keep in mind that this amount can vary based on your card's spending limit or cash advance limit.

Locate an ATM: Find a nearby ATM that accepts credit card transactions. These machines are commonly available at banks, convenience stores, and other public locations.

Insert your credit card: Once you've located a suitable ATM, insert your credit card into the designated slot. Ensure that you insert it with the chip or magnetic stripe facing the appropriate direction as indicated on the machine. Enter your credit card PIN: To proceed with the transaction, you will need to enter your credit card PIN. If you don't know your PIN or haven't set one up, you can call the number on the back of your card for assistance.

Select the transaction type: Depending on the options provided by the ATM, select either "cash withdrawal" or "cash advance." Keep in mind that different machines may have slightly different phrasing for these options.

Choose "credit" over "debit": If prompted to select between "credit" or "debit," opt for the "credit" option. This choice ensures that your transaction is treated as a cash withdrawal rather than a debit card transaction.

Enter the withdrawal amount: Enter the amount of money you want to withdraw. Be mindful of any daily withdrawal limits imposed by your credit card or the ATM itself.

Accept applicable fees: Acknowledge and accept any fees associated with the transaction, such as ATM transaction fees and cash advance fees. Familiarize yourself with these fees beforehand to understand the cost implications.

Complete the transaction: Once you have reviewed the details of your withdrawal and accepted any applicable fees, proceed to finalize the transaction. The ATM will process your request and dispense the requested cash.

Retrieve your cash: After completing the transaction, remember to retrieve your cash from the ATM. Take a moment to confirm that you have received the correct amount before leaving the machine.

title: Benefits and Potential Pitfalls of Using a Credit Card at an ATM
, content: Using your credit card at an ATM to withdraw cash offers several benefits. It provides a convenient way to access funds when you need physical currency and can be especially useful in emergencies. Additionally, using a credit card for cash withdrawals allows you to leverage the existing credit limit on your card, offering flexibility in managing your finances.

However, it's important to be aware of potential pitfalls. Credit card cash advances often incur higher interest rates than regular purchases, and interest begins to accrue immediately upon withdrawal. Furthermore, some credit cards may impose additional cash advance fees, making this method more expensive compared to other alternatives.

title: Tips for Making the Most of Your Cash Withdrawal , content: To ensure a smooth and cost-effective experience when using your credit card at an ATM, consider the following tips:
Familiarize yourself with your credit card's terms and conditions regarding cash withdrawals, including any associated fees and interest rates.
Plan ahead and withdraw only the amount of cash you need to minimize interest charges and fees.
Regularly review your credit card statements to stay aware of any outstanding balances from cash advances and to manage your overall credit utilization effectively.
Consider alternative options such as debit card cash withdrawals, peer-to-peer payment apps, or requesting a personal loan if you anticipate needing cash frequently or in larger amounts.

title: Alternatives to Using a Credit Card at an ATM
, content: While credit card cash withdrawals can be convenient, there are alternative methods worth exploring:
Debit card cash withdrawals: If you have a checking account, utilizing a debit card at an ATM can provide you with direct access to your own funds without incurring cash advance fees or higher interest rates.
Peer-to-peer payment apps: Several digital payment platforms allow you to send money to friends or family who can then withdraw the funds for you. This method can be useful when you need cash but don't have access to an ATM or prefer to avoid cash advance fees.
Personal loans: Depending on your financial situation and creditworthiness, applying for a personal loan from a reputable financial institution might offer a lower-interest alternative to credit card cash advances.

title: Conclusion
, content: Knowing how to withdraw cash from your credit card at an ATM can be a valuable skill to have when you find yourself in need of physical currency. By following the step-by-step instructions outlined in this guide, you can navigate the process with confidence. Remember to consider the benefits and potential pitfalls associated with credit card cash advances, and explore alternative options to find the most suitable method for your financial needs. By being proactive and well-informed, you can make the most of your cash withdrawals while effectively managing your credit card usage.

title: HR Tech
, content: Every organization needs to onboard good talent, retain, engage them and work with them to increase efficiency and productivity. Huge amount of time and money is spent to search, select, interview and hire the perfect candidate. Artificial Intelligence (AI)/ Machine Learning (ML) integration into human resources (HR) practices make organizations better as AI applications helps the HR Team to analyze, predict and diagnose for better decisions. According to a report published by Grand View Research in February 2020, the human resource management market is anticipated to reach $38.17 billion by 2027, registering a CAGR of 11.7 % from 2020 to 2027.

Delhi based startup, ReferHire, has created a peer-to-peer (P2P) networking platform to bring together organisations and those seeking newer career opportunities. Jobseekers have to identify the companies they are interested in and then ReferHire introduces them to peers in those organizations. These peers help job seekers in placing their application internally in the organisation and assist during the recruitment process.

Culturro, Gurugram-based startup has developed an Artificial Intelligence-based NLP bot platform Agnya which helps companies to build the right workplace experience and identify the drivers. It recommends actionable insights for HR heads and also influences behaviour modification in individuals to create the desired workplace experience. Post action, it constantly monitors the progress.

Bengaluru-based Equiv.in launched AI tool which aims to solve talent assessment and hiring while keeping diversity in mind. Equiv.in is exclusive for women, differently-abled individuals, members of the LGBTQ community and army veterans where the jobseeker can sign up with AI Equiv tool. Some of its clients include Indeed, ThoughtWorks, Infosys, Societe Generale, Microsoft and Blackrock.

Similarly, 19th Mile has developed Analytics-driven automated sales coaching system that provides personalized, data-driven coaching to sales representative. The app tracks individuals' daily sales activities using data from its inbuilt mobile CRM or from the organization's CRM and uses it to intelligently coach users towards meeting their specific sales targets.

On the other hand, HireSure.ai uses blockchain technology to store employment-related records. Its predictive tools use AI to offer insights related to employee compensation and offer acceptance behaviour, which helps companies increase their offer-to-join ratio. This brings down hiring costs by up to 50 %.

Hiring is a challenging process in any organization and if not addressed efficiently they end up losing good candidates. There is also rapid evolution in business dynamics and therefore several startups are using new age technologies to fill up these gaps.

title: What is the Ideal Long-Term Horizon in Equities?, content: Investing in equity funds for the long term can be a strategic approach to wealth building. Historically, equities have shown the potential for higher returns over extended periods. Long-term investment in equity funds allows investors to ride out market volatility, benefit from compounding, and potentially achieve capital appreciation.

title: Defining Long Term, content: The below criteria can be used to define a period as long term:

- A time frame where investments avoid losses.
- It has high probability to generate double digit returns.

title: S&P BSE Sensex Range Of Returns For Different Time Horizons, content: Historically, the BSE Sensex has never shown a negative return in any seven-year window, meeting the first criteria. Additionally, The index has delivered double digit return over a period of 7 years 40% of the time which again aligns with the second criteria.

title: Key Takeaways, content: 1. the purpose of this study is not to give you an exact figure for how long you should invest. The intention is to tell you that in the equity markets, always keep a long-term horizon. If you just have a long-term horizon, your return experience will likely be better.

title: Increased Interest Rates on Small Saving Schemes

, content: Various small savings schemes have had their interest rates increased by the Indian government in an announcement, including the National Savings Certificate (NSC), Senior Citizen Savings Scheme (SCSS), Post Office Time Deposit Schemes (POTD), Post Office Monthly Income Scheme (POMIS), and Kisan Vikas Patra (KVP). This move is aimed at providing better returns to small investors and promoting savings culture in the country. Let's take a closer look at the new interest rates of each of these government schemes , which are applicable from January 1, 2023.

National Savings Certificate (NSC) Interest Rate

NSC is a popular savings scheme that offers tax benefits to investors. The government has increased the interest rate of NSC from 6.8% to 7.0% per annum. The tenure is five years, and the interest is compounded annually, making it an attractive option for long-term savings.

Senior Citizen Savings Scheme (SCSS) Interest Rate

The Senior Citizen Savings Scheme (SCSS) is a popular savings option for senior citizens in India. The government has increased the interest rate on SCSS from 7.4% to 8.0% per annum. The investment tenure for SCSS is five years, and the interest is paid quarterly.

Post Office Time Deposit Schemes (POTD) Interest Rate

The Post Office Time Deposit Schemes (POTD) offer fixed deposit options to investors. Current rate of interest for term deposit from 1 year to 5 year is in the range from 6.6% to 7.0%. The investment tenure for POTD ranges from 1 year to 5 years and the interest is paid at maturity.

Post Office Monthly Income Scheme (POMIS) Interest Rate

The Post Office Monthly Income Scheme (POMIS) is a popular savings option for those looking for regular income. The government has increased the interest rate on POMIS from 6.6% to 7.1% per annum. The investment tenure for POMIS is five years, and the interest is paid monthly.

Kisan Vikas Patra (KVP) Interest Rate

Kisan Vikas Patra (KVP) is a savings scheme that offers returns linked to the tenure of investment. The government has increased the interest rate on KVP from 6.9% to 7.2% per annum. The investment tenure for KVP ranges from 2 years and six months to 120 months.

title: Conclusion : Interest Rates, content: The recent hike in the interest rates of small savings schemes is a positive step towards promoting a savings culture in India. This move will provide better returns to investors. However, it's important to do your own research and consult a financial advisor before making any investments decisions.

title: Love Upgrading, content: Similarly, China's second-biggest e-commerce player JD has launched a Kickstarter-like crowdfunding platform, Coufenzi, which allows participants to invest in a movie of their choice, with deposits as low as ~USD 20. These deposits are then bundled into the company's wealth management and insurance products that pay a fixed interest rate.

title: JD, content: On the other hand, Friendsurance follows similar method to offer cheaper insurance to customers using an innovative peer-to-peer method. Customers can connect online and create their own insurance pool. Small claims are paid out of this pool, with bigger claims covered by traditional insurance.

title: Friendsurance, content: To leverage the power of crowdfunding, number of insurance companies are partnering with crowdfunding platforms like Kickstarter, Indiegogo, Wishberry to raise funds. On the other hand, some insurers like TIAACREF are hosting campaigns on a dedicated social network called the Communities, on which members can discuss their financial health, exchange ideas and host campaigns.

title: Kickstarter, Indiegogo, Wishberry, content: In today's age of technology-enabled collaboration, crowdfunding has a great potential to make inroads in insurance focussing on under-served population. Given the ever-growing proportion of non- or under-insured individuals, crowdfunding could be a lucrative way of addressing mass market needs, especially individual disability benefits, retirements and pensions, as well as group plans.

title: Micro-services, content: In the current dynamic universe, companies are finding ad-hoc approach of running continuous upgrades to large monolithic platforms increasingly tedious and inefficient. Progressive organizations can no longer count on the rigid systems that require weeks of rework to support a new business process. Enter Micro-services! It is a way of breaking large software projects into loosely coupled modules, which communicate with each other through simple APIs. In recent years, adoption of micro-services architecture is becoming a proven success strategy in the software development industry. According to the report by Red Hat, organizations are using micro-services to re-architect their existing applications; as much as the technology being used for brand new applications. Micro-services offer numerous benefits for application architects and development teams. These include flexibility around implementation technology, scalability and cloud readiness. These benefits align well with the growing demand of a new system that can adapt to the demands of digital business in highly competitive ecosystems. For instance, early adopters like Airbnb, Disney, Dropbox, GE, Goldman Sachs and Twitter have seen development lead times cut by as much as 75 percent, thanks to the adoption of micro-services. This trend is increasingly being adopted by Bigtechs as well. For example, Microsoft has opened up its Service Fabric platform which is a distributed systems platform to package, deploy and manage scalable and reliable micro-services. Similarly, IBM, Google and Lyft have teamed up to form Istio, an open technology that provides a way for developers to connect, manage and secure networks of different micro-services, regardless of platform, source or vendor. Apart from this, California based Nginx which supports the operation of around 450 million global websites including those of Netflix, Instagram and Pinterest, has set up shop in Australia to support companies embracing micro-services. Recognizing the need to deliver value to customers faster, many banks are seizing the opportunity to implement micro-services architecture. By implementing such innovative architecture, Ubank created Australia's first home loan application chatbot, innovating and improving customer experience. Similarly, UK based digital bank Monzo is also using cloud and micro-services architecture to develop back end structure. Micro-services can deliver better agility and scalability advantages than any other archetype. Several vendors are developing frameworks and platforms that simplify adoption of the micro-services architecture. However, we believe it will take some time for micro-services to evolve into complete and robust mainstream platform.

title: Internet of Value: Internet 2.0
, content: Internet in its current phase, has revolutionised almost all businesses across geographies. However, the current phase, 'Internet of Information' focuses solely on information exchange in the form of documents, images and videos.

Although information moves around the world instantly, a single payment from one country to another is still slow and expensive. In the US, a typical international payment takes 3-5 days to settle, has an error rate of at least 5% and an average cost of $42. Worldwide, there are $180 trillion worth of cross-border payments made every year, with a combined cost of more than $1.7 trillion a year.

With the emergence of blockchain, a new phase of internet called 'Internet of Value' has emerged. Internet of Value is underpinned by blockchain, which is the evolutionary technology that supports digital currency. With Internet of Value, a transaction such as a foreign currency payment can happen instantly, just as how people have been sharing information online for decades. Internet of Value can also enable the exchange of any asset that is of value, including stocks, frequent flyer points, securities, intellectual property, music, scientific discoveries etc.

Multiple startups have started working on this front. Fusion is an innovative blockchain solution created to bridge the interoperability gap between different blockchains through cross-chain transactions. It also has the potential to create off-chain transactions as the inevitability of a value-driven economy becomes more pronounced.

Similarly, Wanchain offers a unique solution for overcoming the limitations on cross-chain transactions through mass-market adoption of blockchain technology. It is developing a new distributed financial infrastructure that will connect the world's digital assets. In order to facilitate the digitization of assets, Wanchain has built an internal private blockchain through which users can build smart contracts for a practical transfer of value.

Currently, there are various blockchain-based platforms which are not compatible with each other. Hence, assets on these platforms can't be freely exchanged. For the internet of value to become a reality, uniform industry standards must be adopted in order to homogenize the world's different financial systems.

We believe that this process of standardization can have a transformative impact on businesses in today's world. This impact can be as instrumental as globalization efforts in 1950s or standardization of web protocols in the 1980s.

title: Do foreign citizens of Indian origin require permission from the Reserve Bank to purchase immovable property in India for their residential use?, content: Yes. However, Reserve Bank has granted general permission to foreign citizens of Indian origin, whether resident in India or abroad, to purchase immovable property in India for their bona fide residential purpose. They are, therefore, not required to obtain separate permission of Reserve Bank.

title: In what manner the purchase consideration for the residential immovable property should be paid by foreign citizens of Indian origin under general permission?, content: The purchase consideration should be met either out of inward remittances in foreign exchange through normal banking channels, or out of funds from NRE/FCNR accounts maintained with banks in India.

title: What are the formalities required to be completed by foreign citizens of Indian origin for purchasing residential immovable property in India under the general permission?

, content: They are required to file a declaration in form IPI 7 with the Central Office of Reserve Bank at Mumbai within a period of 90 days from the date of purchase of immovable property or final payment of purchase consideration along with a certified copy of the document evidencing the transaction and bank certificate regarding the consideration paid.

title: Can such property be sold without the permission of Reserve Bank?

, content: Yes. Reserve Bank has granted general permission for the sale of such property. However, where the property is purchased by another foreign citizen of Indian origin, funds towards the purchase consideration should either be remitted to India or paid out of balances in NRE/FCNR accounts.

title: Can sale proceeds of such property, if and when sold, be remitted out of India?, content: In respect of residential properties purchased on or after 26/05/1993, Reserve Bank considers applications for repatriation of sale proceeds up to the consideration amount remitted in foreign exchange for the acquisition of the property for two such properties. The balance amount of sale proceeds, if any or sale proceeds in respect of properties purchased prior to 26/05/1993, will have to be credited to the ordinary non-resident rupee account of the owner of the property.

title: Are any conditions required to be fulfilled if repatriation of sale proceeds is desired?, content: Applications for repatriation of sale proceeds are considered provided the sale takes place after 3 years from the date of final purchase deed or from the date of payment of the final instalment of the consideration amount, whichever is later.

title: What is the procedure for seeking such repatriation?, content: Applications for necessary permission for remittance of sale proceeds should be made in form IPI 8 to the Central Office of Reserve Bank at Mumbai within 90 days of the sale of the property.

title: Can foreign citizens of Indian origin acquire or dispose of residential property by way of gift?, content: Yes. Reserve Bank has granted general permission to foreign citizens of Indian origin to acquire or dispose of properties up to 2 houses by way of gift from or to a relative who may be an Indian citizen or a person of Indian origin whether resident in India or not, provided gift tax has been paid.

title: Can foreign citizens of Indian origin acquire commercial properties in India?, content: Yes. Under the general permission granted by Reserve Bank properties other than agricultural land/farmhouse/plantation property can be acquired by foreign citizens of Indian origin, provided the purchase consideration is met either out of inward remittances in foreign exchange through normal banking channels or out of funds from the purchaser's NRE/FCNR accounts maintained with banks in India, and a declaration is submitted to the Central Office of Reserve Bank in form IPI 7 within a period of 90 days from the date of purchase of the property/final payment of purchase consideration.

title: Can they dispose of such properties?, content: Yes.

title: Can sale proceeds of such property be remitted out of India?, content: Yes. Repatriation of the original investment in respect of properties purchased by foreign citizens of Indian origin on or after 26/05/1993 will be allowed to be remitted up to the consideration amount originally remitted from abroad, provided the property is sold after a period of 3 years from the date of payment of the final instalment of the consideration amount, whichever is later. Applications for the purpose are required to be made to the Central Office of Reserve Bank within 90 days of the sale of property in form IPI 8.

title: Can the properties (residential/commercial) be given on rent, if not required for immediate use?, content: Yes. Reserve Bank has granted general permission for letting out any immovable property in India. The rental income or proceeds of any investment of such income has to be credited to NRO account.

title: Can NRIs obtain loans for the acquisition of a house/flat for residential purposes from financial institutions providing housing finance?, content: Reserve Bank has granted general permission to certain financial institutions providing housing finance e.g. HDFC, LIC Housing Finance Ltd., etc. to grant housing loans to NRIs for acquisition of a house/flat for self-occupation subject to certain conditions.

title: Can authorised dealer grant loans to NRIs for the acquisition of flat/house for residential purposes?
, content: Authorised dealers have been granted permission to grant loans to NRIs for acquisition of house/flat for self-occupation on their return to India subject to certain conditions. title: Invisible Banking - Banking that you don't have to think about , content: Dear Reader,

By harnessing the vast amounts of data available, technology promises to simplify everything we do by understanding our needs and preferences, and offering insightful recommendations or reducing mundane tasks.

Imagine a day when Banking can become invisible- the banking you don't have to think about. Remember a decade ago when customers would have to visit branch for nearly any banking activity and cash was the major mode of payment. The emergence of the internet and e-commerce platforms steadily broadened customers' horizons, allowing them to imagine scenarios in which most of their requirements can be met with a single touch of their mobile device.

Digital banking will evolve to become invisible banking because it will be embedded in other daily activities with the help of artificial intelligence, analytics, personal financial management software, internet of things, voice banking, banking as a service and fintech innovation.

Let's imagine you drive out of a parking lot and the car pays the parking fee. A customer could sign up for a goal, such as taking a vacation at the end of the year, and the bank would make automatic deductions from their checking account to a vacation account, based on their income and expenses. That change will not be overnight, but the seeds of it are already sprouting in a number of different banking technologies. Instead of presenting people with categorizations and hoping they form better habits because of it, the customer is helped to make changes. The overall idea is to stop customers from making bad decisions that are not in their financial self-interest. Bank of Baroda is already on its roadmap to making customer's life easier by offering not just banking but beyond with its sub-brand bob World which offers digital banking services under 4 broad pillars, Save, Invest, Borrow and Shop. bob World Wave is another path breaking line of wearable products under the umbrella of bob World which serves as a banking of things payment device which facilitates tap-to-pay along with fitness benefits. To begin with, we have embedded payments on a smart watch and wish to scale-up to touch various other lifestyle products.

The digital banking world is clearly developing, which is why our Bank is responding to new issues by collaborating with partners to incorporate solutions into their business processes, where they will have the greatest impact. And what we're seeing now is merely the beginning for invisible banking. Emerging technologies like holographic and augmented reality interfaces will someday replace desktop, mobile, and tablet banking, making it even more intuitive and simple to use.

, content: Motorcycles are the primary means of transportation in a vast majority of Indian households. Two wheelers also make it easier to manoeuvre India's busy streets very quickly. Hence, India is among the top 4 largest motorcycles markets across the world. Also, good two wheelers can get fairly expensive, costing above Rs 1 lakh. A two-wheeler loan can help you afford the bike of your dreams with ease. In this regard, the Bank of Baroda two-wheeler loan offers easy funding for your vehicle. Interested to know more? Let's take a look at the features of the Baroda two-wheeler loan.

title: What Is Baroda two-wheeler loan?

, content: Bank of Baroda offers two-wheeler loans with affordable equated monthly instalments (EMI). The interest rates are affordable as well, with nominal processing fees and higher loan amounts. That way, you can purchase a new motorcycle with ease and not have to worry about the finances involved.

title: Why should you opt for a Bank of Baroda two-wheeler loan?

, content: Saving up cash to buy a motorcycle can get difficult and tedious. With so many other bills and financial responsibilities, your dream of buying a scooter or bike may be a long way off. A two-wheeler loan helps you get the vehicle you want when you want it by giving you ready finance. When you choose bank of Baroda as your two-wheeler financier, you also enjoy many more benefits. To that effect, here are the key reasons why you should consider Bank of Baroda's two-wheeler loan for your brand-new motorcycle.

- Attractive interest rates

The interest rate is the most important determining factor when it comes to any type of loan. Bank of Baroda keeps its interest rates affordable so that borrowing becomes easy and accessible. The Bank of Baroda Two-Wheeler loan interest rate is as follows:

Baroda Repo Linked Lending Rate (BRLLR) + Strategic Premium + 4.00%

If you are an employee of Bank of Baroda or were previously working with the bank, you only need to pay the BRLLR and the strategic premium. If you opt out of the credit insurance cover, an additional risk premium of 0.05% is applicable. (Mandatory requirement of credit shield in form of Term Life Insurance or Group Credit life Insurance for loans above Rs. 3.00 Lakhs)

- Minimal processing charges

With effect from 2019, Bank of Baroda levies a processing fee equivalent to 2% of the loan amount. The minimum fee is Rs 250 + GST. For example, if you apply for a two-wheeler loan of the amount of Rs 60,000, the processing fee would be 2% of Rs 60,000 = Rs 1200. No pre-closure charges

Pre-closure or foreclosure or prepayment penalty is a penalty fee that lenders charge you if you wish to repay the loan before your tenure ends. However, Bank of Baroda does not charge its customers any kind of pre-payment penalty if they choose to close their loan before its set tenure. This way, you can actually choose to pay off your two-wheeler loan before its due tenure in case you want to free up credit for other loans or financial obligations in the near future.

- Higher loan amount of up to Rs 10 lakh

Motorcycle enthusiasts around the country can now go ahead and buy the two-wheeler of their dreams. The maximum limit of the loan amount from a Baroda two-wheeler loan is Rs 10 lakh. With this kind of a high loan amount, you can choose from among the best bikes or superbikes available.

- Speedy approvals and disbursements

A two-wheeler loan requires minimal documentation, unlike loans or home loans, and get easily approved easily. If you are salaried or self-employed, the common documents required by Bank of Baroda are:

Application form with passport size photos,
Address proof (Aadhaar card, Passport, Driving License, Voter ID, utility bills, bank statements or passbooks, rent agreement), Last 6 months' bank statements and Two-wheeler quotation

Salaried applicants are also required to submit their salary slips and Income Tax Returns or Form 16. Self-employed applicants can submit their Income Tax Returns, business proof and balance sheets.

- Easy To Acquire

Two-wheeler loans only require you to fulfil the gross monthly income (GMI) criteria; higher credit scores are not a prerequisite at all. So, whether you are salaried, businessperson or a farmer, you can easily avail of a two-wheeler loan. Another criterion to remember is that you must be at least 21 years of age; the upper age limit is 70 years after the repayment period.

- Flexible repayment tenure

With affordable EMIs, you can conveniently repay your two-wheeler loan at a pace that suits your budget and other financial commitments. The Bank of Baroda two-wheeler loan offers a repayment period of 5 years (60 Months), which takes the pressure off of loan EMIs. You can choose the desired EMI plan so that the loan does not come in the way of your financial planning. If you are wondering how your monthly payments will look, you can always use the Bank of Baroda two-wheeler loan EMI calculator to check your monthly payments.

- Tax benefits for business use

As a self-employed businessperson, if you use the two-wheeler for business purposes, you are eligible to claim tax benefits. Fuel cost, maintenance charges, two-wheeler insurance and loan interest repayments can be deducted from your taxable income, under section 80C of the Income Tax Act, 1961. Remember, tax deduction is not applicable for motorcycles that are bought for personal use.

- Helps build credit

A two-wheeler loan is sort of a stepping stone towards building your credit score. While these loans do not require you to have high credit scores, any other loan, such as personal, car or home loan, need higher credit scores. Or else, you may end up with costly interest rates. Hence, a two-wheeler loan is the easiest way to start building a good credit score; and good credit score comes with timely repayment of the loan.

Since two-wheeler loan EMIs are pocket-friendly, you have more room to invest your funds. This helps build financial discipline, which is crucial considering our expenses and purchasing power. Also, you have funds ready for emergencies.

Bikes and scooters are by far the most affordable means of transportation in India. Be it a corporate professional, a businessperson or a farmer, a bike serves everyone. Firstly, higher credit scores are not necessary, and the loan is easy to acquire. All you need to present are your ID and address proofs and income and income tax return proofs. Plus, affordable interest rate means affordable EMIs, allowing you to make efficient use of the available funds. If you are new to loans, a two-wheeler loan is the easiest way to build your credit score. A Baroda two-wheeler loan offers attractive interest rates, higher loan amounts of up to Rs 10 lakh, flexible repayment tenures up to 5 years and minimal processing fees.

Let's find out about the benefits of a home renovation loan.

title: Why Are Pre-Approved Home Loans in Demand?, content: Building homes entail a heavy financial burden and homeowners often choose home loans to ease the pressure. With some financial knowledge, you can apply for preapproved home loans that come with attractive benefits. Sanctioned by financial institutions and banks these loans are determined after accessing the eligibility of the borrower. Your eligibility is determined by your income, employment history, credit score, repayment capacity which is dependent on the aforementioned and most importantly your age. Getting a pre-approved home loan and receiving funds are two separately dealt with processes that differ according to their timeline. The preapproved home loans do not involve legal scrutiny and technicalities of the property. The parameters set for preapproved loans have already been mentioned above and based on that the bank or the financial institute flags off the approval letter tying the loan with a rate, tenure, amount and other details. Your eligibility is based on your financial standing and other objectives based on the lender's specifications.

title: Benefits of Pre-Approved Home Loan, content: Owning a home gives a sense of accomplishment. Living in a rented place does not allow you the same happiness as owning a home. Some people prefer to live in rented homes depleting their savings. A home goes through capital appreciation. If you get a home loan approval, with a bit of planning, you manage to repay the loan, and the value of your investment grows by many folds. Home loan interests are market dependent, while interests may go up, they may come down too. So, when the interest dips, repaying the loan amount becomes so much simpler. The tax benefits are the strongest reasons why home loans are loved by both the service and self-employed sectors. Going by all these benefits of a home loan, it is advisable to start investing in property. Start early and invest in homes through home loans as this is one dependable investment source that will never fail you. With the ease of getting home loans and beneficial repayment options, you will never feel the pressure of repayment.

title: Home Loan Tenure, content: Home loans are a blessing for every home buyer. With the ease of repayment, a home loan fulfils the home buyer's commitment to own a house. Even if you have an average income, you can dream of owning a home with the maximum tenure for a home loan, the duration at which the borrower repays the full loan amount, the principal sum and the accrued interest. Some might find the idea of loan and repayment discouraging, considering it to be a lifelong burden, but with a bit of planning the gains are much higher and you can repay home loans faster than you had planned. In a few years, you can see your world coming to shape little by little. As Earl Nightingale rightly remarked, all you need is the plan, the road map, and the courage to press on to your destination, if all three are in place, dreams happen. Home loans allow you to invest in a property with certain minimum margin. You are given the option to easily return the loan amount within a specific period. You can discuss the repayment tenure with your lender and choose the maximum tenure for a home loan or minimum tenure for a home loan, subject to your capability. Both repayment tenures have their advantages and disadvantages. We will help you understand how each stand against the other and when and why should borrowers choose the respective tenure options.

title: Key Features & Benefits of a Gold Loan

, content: When you require funds urgently, you can consider using your gold as collateral to obtain the funds you need. Gold Loans are secured loans offered by most banks and non-banking financial companies (NBFC). The lender assesses the current market value of the gold and determines the loan amount. Such a loan helps you get access to cash instantly. Let us analyse the various features and benefits of Gold Loans, the loan application process, and more. Read on.

title: Features of a Gold Loan

, content: The salient features of Gold Loans include the following:

- Attractive interest rates:

Since Gold Loans are secured, lenders levy lower interest rates than those charged on unsecured loans.

- No credit score & income proof requirements:

Lenders do not require your credit scores and monthly income information to sanction Gold Loans. They determine the loan value based on the gold pledged as collateral.

- Safety of the pledged gold:

Lenders safeguard your pledged gold by storing it in heavy-duty vaults. They return it to you once you repay the loan.

- Loan-to-value (LTV):

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has capped the LTV ratio at 75%. So, if you pledge gold worth Rs 1 Lakh, you can get a maximum of Rs 75,000 as Gold Loan.

- Minimal paperwork:

You can apply for Gold Loans with minimal documentation like ID and address proof to complete the Know Your Client (KYC) process. Lenders do not require your income proof or bank statements to assess your eligibility.

- Versatile end usage:

You can use the loan amount to finance any expense without worrying about any end-use restrictions.

- Faster processing:

You can get the funds you need within minutes. The lender weighs the gold and disburses the loan amount instantly.

- Zero foreclosure or prepayment charges:

You can repay your Gold Loan interest and principal amount at any time without worrying about foreclosure or prepayment charges.

title: Step-by-Step Procedure to Apply for a Gold Loan

, content: Below are the steps you need to follow when you apply for a Gold

Loan.

1. Select A Lender

The first step in the Gold Loan process is to select your preferred lender. Ensure you choose a reputed lender who safeguards your assets and returns them at the end of the loan tenure.

2. Gold Evaluation

Once you have chosen your preferred lender, you must get your gold evaluated. Different lenders offer different evaluation options. You can visit the lender's branch for evaluation. An Assayer weighs the gold and conducts the KYC process. The lender then informs you of the loan amount you can get, the interest rate applicable on the loan, and the repayment terms. Lenders determine the gold value by taking the average of one gram gold price for one month. They can disburse a maximum of 75% of the total Gold Loan value. You can use a Gold Loan Calculator to compute the amount of Gold Loan per gram.

3. Assess the Repayment Terms

Lenders allow you to repay only the interest component of the Gold Loan during the loan tenure. You can repay the principal amount in lumpsum once the Gold Loan tenure ends or anytime in between. This payment method is also known as bullet payment. Most lenders offer a one-year repayment period on Gold Loans.

4. Loan Amount Disbursal

Loan disbursal is the next step in the Gold Loan process. Once you agree to the proposed Gold Loan terms, the lender credits the loan amount to your bank account.

title: What Are The Benefits of Taking A Gold Loan?

, content: There are numerous benefits of Gold Loans that make it an attractive financing option for borrowers. The most popular ones include the following.

- Secured Loan benefits

Most Loans are either secured or unsecured. Unsecured loans require no collateral, but you have to fulfil stringent eligibility criteria. Since a Gold loan is a secured loan, lenders require collateral. However, they typically sanction the loan easily. You do not have to show income proof to obtain high-value loans. Plus, lenders levy a lower interest rate due to the pledged gold.

- No need for credit score

The only condition you need to comply with when you apply for a Gold Loan is that you must possess gold in the form of, coins, jewellery, etc. You can obtain the loan even if your credit score is low. In fact, many Gold Loan lenders do not insist on credit scores, contributing to the immense popularity of these loans.

- Reusing the same gold repeatedly Once you have repaid and got back your Gold, you can use the same gold to obtain another loan. Since the Gold Loan amount is based on the gold's market value, you can even get a higher loan amount if the gold price rises.

- Flexible repayment terms

Gold Loans are not amortized, i.e., you need not pay the interest component and principal amount in every EMI. Instead, you may only repay the interest component in EMIs during the loan tenure and pay off the principal loan amount as a lump sum when the loan matures. This attribute makes a Gold Loan an excellent, pocket-friendly option. Moreover, you can also prepay the principal amount partially during the loan tenure and reduce your interest amount.

title: Consequences Of Not Repaying A Gold Loan

, content: While there are several benefits of Gold Loans, and the loan is easy to obtain, you must ensure you repay it on time and in full. If you fail to repay your Gold Loan, you must brace for the following consequences.

- Persistent reminders:

Lenders generally send repeated reminders via calls, SMS, emails, and notices to borrowers who fail to repay the Gold Loan.

- Penal interest charge:

Lenders may levy penalties if you fail to repay the interest on the loan during the stipulated loan term.

- Possibility of legal action by the lender:

Lenders may also send a legal notice if you do not respond and make payments despite the repeated reminders sent to you.

- Gold auction:

If nothing else works out, the only remaining course of action the lender resorts to is auctioning your gold to recover or offset the losses incurred from the loan. Lenders typically inform you about the auction two weeks prior to the auction date.

- Impacts your creditworthiness:

Lenders do not ask for your credit score when you apply for a Gold Loan. However, non-repayment of the debt can impact your credit score and your subsequent credit-obtaining abilities.

title: What to do:

, content: Check your gold's purity:

Lenders accept gold of a minimum of 18 carats. While lenders take the necessary measures to ascertain the gold's purity, it helps if you check the same before approaching the lender.

- Check lender credibility:

With Gold Loans, you must entrust the gold purchased with your hard-earned money to a stranger. Therefore, you must assess the lender's credibility before pledging your assets.

title: What not to Do:

, content: Neglecting the LTV factor:

The RBI has capped the LTV ratio at 75%. Do not expect the lender to offer more funds than the LTV, as it can lead to loan rejection.

Delaying repayments:

Delay or non-repayment of your Gold Loan results in you losing your gold. It also reduces your credit score significantly.

title: Saving accounts features, content: What are the features of a savings account? A savings account is the first step a person takes toward saving. As the name suggests it is a place where the savings are stored but it is not an investment. The savings account is the conduit through which investments can be made. But the first step starts from taking the money out of your money box and into a bank. Why have a savings account? Rather than keeping money at home in your money box, keeping it in a bank is suitable as it offers interest on the deposit made. This is the main reason why you have a savings account. The interest rate is not high, but it helps in partially softening the blow of inflation. In other words, the money one deposits in the bank are working to give you some return. Not only is the money in the savings account safe and earns interest it has other advantages also. Features of a savings account The following are the features of savings account. First, the money can be withdrawn at any point in time. With 'Any-Time-Money' (ATM) counters available across the country, a saving bank account holder who has debit/ ATM card facility can withdraw money from anywhere in the country. This adds a safety element where the depositor need not move around carrying cash in his pocket. With e-payment on the increase, the saving bank account helps in regular monthly payments like that of electricity, society maintenance, telephone and mobile bill payment, insurance premium payment among others. Salaries can be directly credited to the savings bank account. This helps both the employee as well as the employer. For the employer with a single click of the button, money is transferred to all the employees. For the employee, they are saved the travel to the bank as well as can have the money credited in their account at a faster pace. Post-retirement the same savings bank account helps in getting a regular pension. Loans that a person takes are generally linked to the savings bank account which is the primary account where his salary is deposited. Direct electronic instructions can be given from the savings bank account or Post Dated Cheques (PDCs) from this account. Savings bank account often eases the process of availing loans. Cheque bounce history of the customer's savings account tells his creditworthiness. A customer with no defaults on loans on his name has a much higher credit rating and finds it easier to get loans. Having a savings bank account encourages the habit of saving rather than keeping cash in hand. This discourages impulsive shopping. Savings account helps in accessing other financial instruments like online trading, mutual funds investments through direct transfers among others. A standing instruction can be given to the bank where if the amount in the Savings Account crosses a particular threshold it will be transferred to any other higher yielding instrument. It helps in making travel plans easier by booking tickets as well as hotel bookings through online mode. The passbook or electronic statement of the savings bank helps in keeping an automatic tab of where the money came from and where it was spent. At the end of the year, it helps in filling your tax returns with the income tax authorities. Since all the transactions are recorded in the bank statement, a salaried employee has the little hassle to file his returns.

title: Know How to Check Your CIBIL Score for Car Loan?

, content: The Credit Information Bureau (India) Limited (CIBIL), now TransUnion CIBIL, is one of the 4 credit information companies. It is licensed by the Reserve Bank of India to collect and maintain the credit information of borrowers. Banks pass on your debt information to TransUnion CIBIL, which then collates the data to form an indicator to measure your credit, i.e., the CIBIL score.

CIBIL score is an industry-wide used identifier to measure how consistently you have been able to pay your credit card bills or repay loans. The score ranges from 300 to 900, with 300 being low and indicating that you are not paying your dues on time. Generally, a score above 750 is considered a good one and is accepted by most financial institutions that offer car loans. Thus, you need a good CIBIL score for car loan approvals.

title: Why is CIBIL score important for car loans?

, content: Like for any other loan, your credit score is the first stage where lenders decide whether they should approve the loan or not. Here's why having a good credit score for a car loan matters:

- Proves your creditworthiness:

Your credit score is based on your ability to repay debts. If you have been paying your dues on time, your credit score will be high. However, if you frequently delay or miss payments, your credit score will be low, which is a bad sign in the eyes of the lenders. Yes, your car will be pledged as collateral, but lenders lending higher amounts of money cannot afford the risk of lending money to low credit score applicants. That does not go to say that having a low credit score will not get you a car loan. However, a good credit score makes things easier for the lender and expedites your approval process.

- Car loan amount:

Your car loan amount eligibility depends on your credit score and other factors, such as your monthly income. However, when you have a high credit score, you have the power to negotiate for a better deal. Often, lenders will offer a higher loan amount to retain quality customers. With a low CIBIL score, on what grounds can you bargain with the lender?

- Car loan interest rates

Like the loan amount, you can negotiate for a better interest rate if your credit history is spotless. Mostly, it would be at the cost of a steep interest rate and low loan amount if your credit score is poor.

title: How to check your CIBIL score?

, content: You can check CIBIL score online as well as offline.

One Indiabulls Centre, Tower 2A, 19th Floor,

Senapati Bapat Marg, Elphinstone Road,

Mumbai - 400013

You will receive your detailed CIR and CIBIL score in your mail.

title: Why is my CIBIL score low?

, content: Let us say your monthly income increased and you decide to buy a car. You approach a car loan lender, but they 1) reject your application, or 2) offer you a very high interest rate. This is because your credit score is low, and here are the reasons why:

- Rejected car loans:

If you apply for a car loan and it gets rejected due to low credit score, your already low credit score may decrease even further. Therefore, if you apply for a second loan immediately, the lender's hard inquiry can affect your CIBIL.

- Too many loan applications at once:

Applying for multiple car loans means multiple lenders requesting for your credit report. Multiple credit inquiries on your credit report are considered a high credit risk, resulting in a low credit score.

- Late repayments:

All your loans and credit card information are with CIBIL. Even if you make a payment, but it is late, it affects your credit score. Late payments indicate undisciplined financial management.

- Overdue credit cards:

Your credit card company will require you to pay the monthly minimum amount to avoid late fees, and the outstanding amount is overdue. If you roll over your dues constantly, your credit score will decrease.

- Failing to repay loans:

Defaulting on payments, too, lowers your credit score, indicating improper financial planning.

title: Minimum CIBIL score for car loan

, content: While a good credit score is not set in stone, financial institutions will consider a score above 701 as good. Lenders will hold you in high regard if your score is above 750, making the initial stages of a loan approval smooth.

A score above 750 will not only make you a favourable applicant, but also give you the power to negotiate for better interest rates and higher loan amounts.

A score below 750 but above 701 may result in the lender approving your loan based on your monthly income and employer. The process, however, will not be as streamlined if your scores were higher.

A score below 701* indicates poor creditworthiness. The chances of your car loan application being rejected are very high. Although, if the lender does agree to approve your loan, it will be at a steeper interest rate and lower loan amount.

title: Car loan for low CIBIL scores

, content: While a higher credit score has its advantages, a lower credit score may sometimes get you a car loan approval. You can also have a zero CIBIL score, i.e., when you have not had any credit card bills or loans to repay. You can increase your chances of getting a car loan with a poor or zero CIBIL score with the following:

- Check employer tie-ups:

Corporations usually have tie-ups with leading banks for salary and business accounts. If you are an employee of such a company, the bank may offer better deals.

- Apply with a co-applicant:

If a family member has a good credit score, you can ask them to be the co-applicant.

- Check for other sources:

Non-banking finance companies (NBFCs), too, offer various types of loans. If you have a low CIBIL score, you might find it easier to get a loan from NBFCs. However, you may have to pay higher interest rates than the banks offer.

Remember that it is quite tough to get approvals on a car loan for CIBIL defaulters. In Bank of Baroda Cut-off on CIBIL score is stipulated at 701 for car Loan title: How to improve credit scores?

, content: Here are a few tips for getting your credit scores on the higher side:

- Timely repayment of debts:

Your credit score is built on how you pay repay debts, be it credit cards or loans. When you repay your debts on time, and there is no overdue, your credit score will gradually improve.

- Limit credit use:

Use a smaller percentage, say 25% to 30%, of your credit card limit. On the flip side, not using your credit card will negatively impact your score as to build a credit score, you need to take debts.

- Limit loan applications:

As we mentioned above, applying for multiple loans at a time makes you a credit hungry consumer, which lenders do not favour. Apply once; if the application is rejected, make sure to build your score back up, and apply again.

- Get access to your credit report:

A credit report from CIBIL comes with a paid subscription but viewing your credit report can help you improve your scores immensely. You can check areas of improvement and report errors.

Your credit score is the foremost factor that lenders consider while approving your car loan application. A bad credit score might get you a car loan, but at the cost of steep interest rates or lower loan amounts. Remember, lenders need assurance that you will pay them back, and a good credit score keeps you in their good books.

title: What is Prepayment of Home Loan?, content: If you are looking to reduce your debt burden, you should consider prepayment of home loan. As soon as your finances improve, you can choose to finish your home loan, either in part or in full. If you repay your home loan completely or in part before the scheduled tenure, it is called prepayment of home loan.

While most banks allow for a prepayment of home loan, some banks may charge a small fee for pre closure. It is, therefore, advisable to consider all the pros and cons of foreclosure before taking the plunge.

title: Who is Eligible for a Prepayment of Home Loan?
, content: All home loan borrowers are eligible for pre closure, as long as their bank offers this facility. You can ensure that you have the option of prepayment of home loan at the time of taking the loan.

Most banks do not encourage prepayment as it causes a loss to them. When you decide to pay off a loan ahead of schedule, banks incur additional costs for rerouting the funds through credit channel. Therefore, banks may impose a fine for preclosing your loan.

That said, you are well within your rights to foreclose your loan—in part or full—if it gives you long-term benefit. If, even after paying the fine, you are saving on the interest you pay every month, it is worth foreclosing the loan.

title: How Does Prepayment of Home Loan Works?, content: There are many ways in which you can prepay your home loan. You can either go all out and completely repay the loan ahead of schedule or you can pay off a part of your debt. You can also work on a combination of the two.

- Increase Your Prepayments Gradually After Starting Small :
One way of prepaying your home loan is starting with a small prepayment in the beginning of the loan and to increase this amount every year at a constant rate. You can do so by saving through the year and spending your savings on prepayment.

- Fixed prepayment amount :
You can do this by prepaying a fixed amount towards your principal every year. This you must do over and above your EMI payments. Plan your expenses through the year and make a fixed saving every year. Spend this saving on prepayment to reduce principal.

- Higher EMI
Another way of reducing your principal is by paying more than your calculated EMI. Every month make a payment that is slightly higher than your EMI. This goes a long way in reducing your debt burden.

- Full repayment of home loan :

If your finances have improved tremendously or if you have been able to mobilise a large sum of money, you can completely repay home loan ahead of your tenure. You may, however, must pay a fine for full prepayment of home loan.

title: When are banks and HFCs allowed to charge prepayment fees :, content: Home Loan is taken by Non-individuals: When a company or firm borrows funds in the form of housing loan, it is not exempt from foreclosure charges.

Fixed-Rate Home Loan: If you have taken a fixed rate home loan, you will be levied a foreclosure charge for prepayment of home loan. A fixed-rate loan is when the rate of interest is the same throughout the loan tenure. Both banks and HFCs are allowed to levy a penalty on foreclosure of home loan. HFCs, however, can charge a penalty only if you are repaying the loan by borrowing from another bank or HFC. HFCs cannot charge any prepayment penalty if you prepay the loan with your own funds.

Dual Rate Home Loans: Banks are allowed to charge a penalty for foreclosing a dual rate home loan, which is a combination of fixed rate and floating rate of interest. In such cases, the interest rate is fixed for the first few years and then becomes variable.

title: When are banks and HFCs not allowed to charge prepayment fees :, content: Floating Rate Home Loan for Individuals: Home loan prepayment rules state that prepayment charges or penalties are not levied on borrowers for taking floating rate home loan. No extra charge is levied on either part or full payment of the loan.

Paying Fixed Rate Home Loan from HFCs with Own Funds: HFCs can not charge prepayment penalty on fixed rate home loan if the individual is repaying with his/ her own funds.

Dual Rate Home Loan: Both banks and HFCs cannot charge a penalty if the borrower prepays the loan after it has shifted to variable rate scheme and has become a floating rate loan.

title: Conclusion : home loan

, content: Prepayment of home loan may not always be the right decision. Only if the long-term benefits surpass the penalty to be paid, should you consider prepaying your loan. If you plan your prepayment well, you may be able to save a lot on interests.

title: Introduction : fixed deposit, content: Fixed deposits are the favourite investment instruments for those who prefer assured returns and low-risk investments offered by banks. The interest rates in fixed deposits keep changing. We will help you understand why this happens and how this affect can your savings.

title: Are Fixed Deposit Rates Revised Frequently?, content: Fixed deposit rates inch up or go down depending on inflation. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) loans money to commercial banks for a brief period at an interest rate called the repo rate. The increase in repo rate increases bank loan interest, which staggers credit retail. The interest rates on fixed deposits increases if repo rates are increased. Some banks, however, do not increase the deposit rate despite negative returns from the rising inflation as that can affect the bank's bottom line.

title: Why are FD Interest Rates Revised?, content: Those maintaining fixed deposits will notice that FD interest rates keep fluctuating. While the strongest reason for changing interest rates is the soaring rate of inflation, a closer look points to various other reasons.

title: Sufficient Liquidity:, content: If there is enough liquidity, banks don't rely on retail fixed deposits to stabilise their position, which they do in tight liquidity times by using their deposits.

title: Credit demand:, content: When the credit demand is high, banks increase deposit interest rates.

title: Call Money:, content: Banks resort to call money to fill asset-liability mismatch to meet CRR and SLR reserve, along with a sudden fund requirement from demand and supply of liquidity that further affects call money rates. When there is a tight liquidity condition it increases call money, affecting deposit rates.

title: Dropping fund cost:, content: Interest rates are cut by banks when their fund cost fall. Even if the interest rates are high, there is a revision of base rates, which are based on retail loans. Therefore, high-cost deposit rates are title: Impact on NIM:, content: Muted credit demand impacts loan yields leading to banks dropping interest rates on fixed deposits as it affects their net interest margin (NIM).

title: What Should You Do in Case of FD Interest Rate Changes?, content: When the fixed deposit interest rates rise, it is across all tenures. Long-term FDs see a greater increase in interest rates as compared to short-term FDs. The interest rates are quite high at this time. Considering rising inflations, it is better to open a short-term fixed deposit account now. Once the inflation settles, long-term FDs will help you benefit better.

title: To Calculate Fixed Deposit Interest Amount you can use -, content: Will the FD rates change with an alteration in the RBI MPC repo rates?

title: Will the FD rates change with an alteration in the RBI MPC repo rates?, content: Yes, FD rates will change as RBI MPC repo rates alter. While some banks will increase FD interest rates, others will act more cautiously.

title: Will FD rates increase?, content: You might want to know when FD rates will increase. FD rates are already high and are likely to go higher, so this is the best time to open a fixed deposit account.

title: Wondering what are some common home loan rejection reasons?

, content: Let's find out:

- Low credit score

Your CIBIL score is the summary of your credit history. It ranges between 300 to 900 points. Generally, loan providers consider people having a CIBIL score above 701 to be creditworthy. If you have a CIBIL score below 650, your home loan application is likely to be rejected. If you have a low CIBIL score, ensure you repay your debts on time to build up the score. You should also check your credit reports periodically to ensure that there are no mistakes in them. Thus, you must always be aware of your CIBIL score and maintain it at least above 700 to increase the chances of your home loan request getting sanctioned. A good CIBIL score can also help you procure a home loan at a relatively lower interest rate.

- Frequent and irregular job changes

Home loan providers love stable debtors as they come along with very low risk. These are people who have a steady job or business and are quite secure in their life. On the contrary, changing jobs frequently at short intervals depicts instability. Hence, job hoppers are less likely to receive a home loan sanction. Furthermore, it is also important for your employer to be financially stable as well.

- Incorrect or incomplete documentation

This is one of the most common loan rejection reasons. Your documents play a particularly vital role in the home loan application process. They not only help the lender gain trust in your repayment capability but also ensure that the property is being bought complying the law of land. To increase the chances of your home loan being sanctioned, make sure to compile all the required documents before submitting your home loan application. Additionally, it is also important to keep the loan documents in the same order as required by the lender.

- Existing debts

Home loan providers meticulously gauge your ability to afford EMIs before sanctioning the loan. All your existing obligations are accounted for by the lenders. Your actual income is calculated by subtracting any ongoing repayments from your total income. Thus, having other debts reduces your home loan repayment capability and increases the chances of your application being rejected or sanction of lower loan limit than required. To increase the chances of your loan being sanctioned, it is better to clear off your existing debts before you apply for a home loan. This will not only boost loan repayment capability but also help you manage your finances better as home loans are one of the cheapest forms of debt in the market.

- Not filing your Income Tax Returns

Home loan providers require you to file two years of income tax returns. Even if you are a salaried individual and do not get Form-16 from your employer, you are still required to file your income tax returns. Having a track record of filing your taxes with diligence reflects positively on your home loan application. Income Tax Filing not only shows the creditor that you are a disciplined individual but also help them to understand your repayment capability in a better way.

- Property related issues

Before lending, banks / FIs through investigate the title of the property being purchased. One should check all the property related title documents and other related issues thoroughly. Home Loan applications may be rejected for reasons non-availability of title documents, title of the property is not clear & absolute, litigation/s of serious nature is /are pending etc. To avoid the rejection of your loan due to such reasons, make sure to thoroughly check the ownership details of the property you wish to purchase.

As we can see, a lot of the reasons for the rejection of a loan application can be easily avoided. If you are buying a home for the first time, you can take a lawyer's help in reading the fine print on the house papers. Many lenders also provide professional help and assistance to home loan applicants to smoothen out the entire process before they issue a loan.

You can also speak with your preferred lender and ask them what things you need to keep in mind to ensure that your loan application goes through smoothly as per their process. As part of this discussion, do also ask them for a complete list of documents needed as well as any doubts you may have on the loan terms and conditions. With complete knowledge, you can make an informed decision while buying your very own home.

All the best.

title: Liquid Funds vs. Fixed Deposits, content: Most retail customers prefer to keep their surplus cash in Savings Bank deposits as they consider the same to be safest and they could withdraw the money at any time. Liquid Funds and Money Market Mutual Funds provide a more attractive option. Surplus cash invested in money market mutual funds earns higher post-tax returns with a reasonable degree of safety of the principal invested and liquidity.

title: What are Fixed Deposits?, content: Fixed Deposits are smart investment options which usually exist in all customer portfolios, on account of a fixed / predictable rate of return that they can offer. These are investment plans again relevant for a conservative investor who has a limited/low-risk appetite.. So how do Fixed deposits work? You put a lump sum amount to a fixed deposit account in your bank and watch the sum compound into healthy returns. Fixed deposits are offered by both non-banking financial companies as well as banks. You can choose fixed deposits that offer periodical interests or interests on maturity. Remember that premature withdrawal is not accepted kindly by the bank / NBFC and the investor is penalised for the same thereby impacting their investment returns.

title: So, what are the features of Fixed Deposits?, content: You can trust fixed deposits as the most dependable place for parking funds. They are secure investments that remain safe till the end of maturity and are not exposed to market fluctuations and risks.

title: What are Fixed Deposits advantages?, content: People in India have immense faith in Fixed Deposits as this is the safest way to make small yet steady growth on savings. The assured return is the greatest incentive which makes this financial instrument so popular. The added interest to the principal sum makes almost every household invest in more than one FD in their lifetime.

title: What are disadvantages associated with Fixed Deposits?, content: These are locked funds with withdrawal penalties, thus the liquidity of these products is limited. Also, the rate of interest on FDs may sometimes be lower than inflation thereby earning a negative return for the investor. But they are still better than parking money in the Savings Accounts and it's safer to invest in FDs.

title: Who Should Invest in Liquid Funds?, content: If you are looking for a higher return than a bank's Saving Accounts, if you have some extra cash then it is safe to invest in liquid funds. You can also park your emergency funds in liquid funds if the product underlines safety along with liquidity on returns. An investor should not commit to equity funds without adequate knowledge and never hold emergency funds in them as these are susceptible to market risks and volatility. Liquid funds hold secured government and quasi-government debt papers, treasury bills, and PSUs. You should evaluate the Liquid fund's portfolio holdings, average maturity, the Yield-To-Maturity (YTM) and Modified Duration (MD), along with management of assets and the scheme's expense ratio to identify the Mutual Fund best suited to your requirements.

title: Who Should Invest in a Fixed Deposit?, content: With the RBI hiking policy rates, fixed income investors can now gain even more from Fixed Deposits which is expected to outpace inflation. Bank of Baroda is offering one of the most competitive interest rates on Fixed deposits maturing in 3-10 years for both general and senior citizens. Locked Fixed deposits are the best instruments for outperforming the growing inflation rate and bring in handsome savings for the smart investor.

title: Taxation, content: Fixed deposits are subject to income tax deductions. The tax reduction is dependent on the IT slab rate of the investor. If the Fixed deposit is earning more than Rs. 10,000, then TDS (tax deducted at source) will be 10%. Without PAN card details, the TDS will be 20%. However, the exemption can be claimed if the total income is under the tax slab of a minimum of 10%. If your income is more than the 10% slab rate, you will need to pay extra tax along with the standard TDS. A 15G or 15GH form can help you avoid tax deductions.

title: Conclusion - liquid funds vs fixed deposits, content: So, when it comes to liquid funds vs fixed deposits, you can see clearly that both have their set of advantages and disadvantages. Liquid funds can provide a highly liquid and accessible investment alternate to investors while at the same time conservative HNI investors can benefit from LTCG benefits especially if the investment tenures are higher. At the same time, FDs have the ability to offer stable and predictable returns for small as well as HNI investors. Financial investments are based on individual priorities. Set your goals and park your finances in the best financial option that works for you and a portfolio which entails both FD's as well as liquid funds based on your goals and investment horizon may be best positioned for your benefit.

This is the government investment schemes in India particularly tailored to the financial requirements of the female child. The plan was introduced in 2015 by the Honorable Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The program is designed to assist parents in saving up money for their daughter's higher education, marriage, and other life milestones.

"• National Pension Scheme (NPS)" The National Pension Scheme (NPS) is a retirement benefits program to ensure its members have a steady income once they retire. Each subscriber to the NPS is given a permanent retirement account number. An investor can divide their capital between stocks and bonds or other safe investments. In simple words, there is no upper limit for NPS contributions. Investments up to Rs 50,000 can avail of a tax relief or deduction under Section 80CCD (1B) of the Income Tax Act. Section 80C of the Income Tax Act allows for a tax deduction on investments of up to Rs 1,50,000.

"• Sovereign Gold Bonds (SGBs)" On behalf of the Indian Government, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) issues Sovereign Gold Bonds . Gold-backed government bonds are known as SGBs. The government created the SGB Scheme in November 2015 as an alternative to physical gold ownership.

"• Senior Citizens Savings Scheme (SCSS)" The Senior Citizen Savings Scheme (SCSS) is a well-known option and among the best government investment schemes. The program was established to secure the future of those aged 60 years and up. It has a 5-year term that may be extended by another three years, and its interest rate is more significant than other low-risk investing alternatives.

title: Introduction : Loan for agricultural land, content: Obtaining a loan against agricultural land in India can be a valuable financial tool for farmers and landowners looking to meet their financial needs. This type of agricultural loan allows individuals to unlock the potential value of their agricultural land and utilize it for various purposes. In this blog post, we will delve into the process of obtaining a loan against agricultural land in India, outlining the essential steps and factors involved. We are sure that after reading this article, you will get the answer of all your queries like how to get loan against farm land, how much loan can I get on agriculture land, interest rate on loan against agriculture land, how to get loan against agriculture property.

title: Steps to Apply for Loan Against Agricultural Land, content: Ever thought that can we take loan on agriculture land? Before applying for a loan against agricultural land, it is crucial to understand the eligibility criteria set by the lending institutions. These criteria may vary slightly among different banks or financial institutions. 1. Typically, eligibility factors include land ownership, land type (irrigated or non-irrigated), the size of the landholding, and income proof. Ensure that you meet these requirements before proceeding with the loan application.

Step 2: Documents Required to Apply for Loan on Agricultural Land To apply for a loan against agricultural land, you need to gather the necessary documents. The documentation process may include providing proof of land ownership, such as sale deed or title deed, revenue records, land tax receipts, identity proof, address proof, income proof (such as income tax returns), and bank statements. These documents help establish your credibility and assist the lending institution in evaluating your loan application.

Step 3: Loan Application Visit the nearest branch of a bank or financial institution that provides loans against agricultural land. Obtain the loan application form and fill it out accurately and completely. Provide the required details about the land, its valuation, and the loan amount you are seeking. Be sure to double-check all the information before submitting the application.

Step 4: Agricultural Land Valuation Once you have submitted your loan application, the lending institution will assess the value of your agricultural land. They may have an in-house valuer or appoint a registered valuer to evaluate the land's worth. The valuer will consider factors such as the location, fertility, proximity to amenities, and market value of similar properties in the area. The land valuation report will determine the loan amount you are eligible for.

Step 5: Approval of Loan Against Agriculture Land After reviewing your application, documents, and land valuation report, the lending institution will decide whether to approve your loan. They will consider factors such as your eligibility, creditworthiness, and the viability of the land as collateral. If you meet the institution's criteria and the land valuation aligns with their requirements, your loan application is likely to be approved.

Step 6: Loan Disbursement Upon loan approval, the lending institution will proceed with finalizing the loan agreement. They will provide you with the necessary paperwork, including the terms and conditions of the loan. Once the agreement is signed, the loan amount will be disbursed to your bank account or provided as a demand draft, based on your preference.

Step 7: Repayment of Loan Taken Against Agricultural Land Repaying the loan against agricultural land typically follows a predetermined schedule. You will need to make regular installment payments, which may include both the principal amount and the interest charged. The repayment duration and frequency will be defined in the loan agreement. It is essential to honor the repayment schedule to avoid any penalties or legal consequences.

title: Conclusion: Loan for agricultural land, content: Obtaining a loan against agricultural land can be a beneficial financial solution for individuals looking to leverage the value of their land. By understanding the process involved, meeting the eligibility criteria, and providing the required documentation, you can navigate the loan application process with confidence. However, it is advisable to consult with professionals or financial advisors to ensure you make informed decisions and choose the right lending institution that best suits your needs.

title: What is a Loan Against Fixed Deposit (FD)?

, content: Fixed deposits are financial products that let you make long-term investments with the assurance of a return. They offer more appealing returns than conventional savings accounts. The loan against FD is disbursed to the borrower all at once, just like any other loan, and is paid back by the borrower in equal monthly instalments.

The amount of the FD deposit determines the loan's amount. Depending on the deposit amount, this could reach 90%. A loan against a customer's fixed deposit, which is a type of secured loan, may be obtained using the deposit as security.

A small amount is required to open a BOB Fixed Deposit . With the Bank of Baroda, you can relax knowing that despite changes in the market, an existing deposit won't be altered. The benefits of a loan against FD BOB (Bank of Baroda) are that it includes flexibility, security, and guaranteed savings returns.

title: Who Can Apply for a Loan Against FD

, content: Holding a fixed deposit with the bank or financial institution you're seeking a loan from is the basic requirement to qualify for a loan against FD. You should also, however, fit one of the following descriptions:

Associations, clubs, and societies

Group companies, partnership firms, and sole proprietorships

Family trusts

Residents who are Indian

To ascertain if you are eligible to apply for a loan against fixed deposits , see the following list:

Owners of 5-year tax-saving FD accounts are not eligible for this type of loan. FD in a minor's name is ineligible.

Account holders for both individual and joint fixed deposits title: Features and Benefits of a Loan against FD

, content: There are several benefits of a loan against your FD account. Consider the following list of features and benefits of a loan against FD.

No penalty for pre-payment- The ability to pay off a loan in full before the agreed-upon due date is known as prepayment; however, there may be fees involved. You won't pay a pre-payment penalty if you take out a loan against FD. Additionally, while taking out a loan against your FD, you can still earn interest on it.

Minimal Documentation- Issuing the loan is simple because NBFC or the bank from which you are requesting it already has your information. You must also submit your fixed deposit receipts and identification documentation in addition to the application for a loan against a fixed deposit.

Lower rate of interest- The interest rate on these loans is lower because an FD serves as the security for them. Personal loans typically have higher interest rates than loans against FD interest rates. This results in lower (EMIs) for loans.

No credit score checks- In most cases, NBFC or the bank will examine your credit history when you apply for a loan. A loan secured by an FD, on the other hand, does not depend on your credit score to determine your eligibility, so it primarily benefits people with lower credit scores.

title: How to Apply Online for a Loan Against Fixed Deposit

, content: Access the website of the financial institution/Bank of your choice. Find the section labelled "Fixed Deposit."

Then, choose "Overdraft/Loan Facility against FD."

Give pertinent information, such as the term and the required loan amount.

You'll be notified via SMS or email when your loan application has been submitted because it's an online process.

title: What is an Overdraft Facility?

, content: Banks provide customers with an overdraft facility in the form of a loan against Fixed Deposit . Also known as OD against FD. The overdraft or OD limit, which is secured by a fixed deposit, is lower than the deposit amount, but the rate of interest is higher than the rate that is currently being charged on FD cards.

Additionally, it is important to keep in mind that interest is only charged on the amount of the overdraft, not the entire limit. Let's take an example of OD against FD. For instance, Ms A has an 85%OD limit and an Rs. 1.5 lakh FD. Only half of the deposit amount—75,000 rupees—is borrowed by her. As a result, interest will no longer be charged on deposits that exceed 85% of the amount of the deposit, but only on the first 50%.

title: Conclusion : overdraft facility, content: There is still time to start an FD if you haven't already invested in one. Getting a loan against an existing fixed deposit is simple if you have one.

Whatever your financial needs may be, you can easily use the FD to support yourself. Get the most competitive interest rates by starting a Bank of Baroda FD. The BOB FD calculator can be used to determine how much interest will be available when your deposit matures.

title: Loan Against Shares - What You Need To Know

, content: Are you in need of urgent funds? Have you invested a significant sum of money in the stock market? Did you know you can get a loan by pledging your shares? Yes, you can take out A Loan against Shares, a type of secured loan where your shares act as collateral. Lenders typically offer a high loan amount, levy competitive interest rates, and provide flexible repayment tenures. Plus, you only have to pay interest on the loan amount you use and not the entire principal loan amount. Read on to know more about what shares are, how to get a Loan Against Shares, the importance of a DEMAT account and how you can open an online DEMAT account.

title: What are Shares?

, content: Shares are units of a company's capital. Companies let public investors buy their shares to raise money for expansion, business growth, etc. When you buy a company's shares, you become part-owner or shareholder of that company.

Assume you have bought 20 shares of Company XYZ at Rs 100 per unit. A few days later, your friend buys 35 shares when the per-unit price of the share falls to Rs 80. While both of you may have invested a different amount and own a different number of share units, you are both deemed shareholders in the company. You continue to remain a shareholder until you sell off your shares.

title: How to Get A Loan Against Shares?

, content: A Loan Against Shares is typically considered a secured loan since it requires you to pledge your existing shares and securities as collateral. To obtain such a loan, you should first check with your lender if they offer this facility, as only a few banks in India provide Loans Against Shares. Moreover, you should ensure you have an active and valid DEMAT account with a reputed Depository participant (DP). The DP should be affiliated with either one of the two central depositories in India, i.e., the National Security Depository Limited (NSDL) or the Central Depository Service Limited (CDSL).

Once your lender agrees to sanction the loan, you should decide which shares to use as collateral, keeping in mind that lenders provide Loans Against Shares of select, reputed companies only. The lender then releases the loan amount, which you can use to finance your needs. With Loan Against Shares, you do not need to sell your shares. The prices of the pledged shares continue to rise or fall with the changing market conditions.

title: Loan Against Shares – Eligibility Criteria

Also, Loan Against Shares is similar to an overdraft facility, where you pay interest only on the utilised amount. The shares you pledge are not sold off. After you repay the loan, the lender returns your shares, and you can continue trading.

Loan Against Shares is a secured loan; therefore, you enjoy attractive interest rates. If you default on the payments, the lender simply sells the shares to recover the loan amount.

title: Is a DEMAT Account Necessary for Loan Against Shares?

, content: Yes. You must hold a DEMAT account if you want a loan against your shares. If your shares are not in the dematerialised or electronic form, you can convert them by opening a DEMAT account with your broker or lender.

A dematerialised account or a DEMAT account holds shares and other securities in electronic formats. This makes it easier for the shareholder to store massive volumes of shares of different companies and conveniently transfer them whenever necessary.

Your lender may also be a depository participant and offer loans against the shares you hold in your DEMAT account facilitated by them. Your bank will grant you a loan by marking a lien on the shares, i.e., the bank obtains the right to sell the shares if you are unable to repay the loan.

title: Insurance, through Crowdfunding, content: With the emergence of Uber and AirBnB, 'Sharing Economy' has proven to be beneficial on a real-time basis across multiple industries, including transportation, real estate and hospitality. Even in the Insurance sector, numerous InsureTech start-ups are enabling P2P or crowd-based models that leverage crowdfunding. It allows for more people to be insured by aiding underserved markets. Collective purchasing yields preferential pricing to those subscribed to peer-based insurance programs. Acknowledging this innovative approach, insurance, financial services and e-commerce sites around the world have begun to offer crowdfunding approaches to covering expenses. For instance, Love Upgrading is a crowd-funded insurance service offered on WeChat, China's voice and text messaging app. Clients on the platform can pay an initial premium of US$16 for one year of insurance with USD 8,000 of coverage. By sharing the link on WeChat and invite friends, the insurance amount can be raised upto USD 15,000. Similarly, China's second-biggest e-commerce player JD.com has launched a Kickstarter-like crowdfunding platform, Coufenzi, which allows participants to invest in a movie of their choice, with deposits as low as ~USD 20. These deposits are then bundled into the company's wealth management and insurance products that pay a fixed interest rate. On the other hand, Friendsurance follows similar method to offer cheaper insurance to customers using an innovative peer-to-peer method. Customers can connect online and create their own insurance pool. Small claims are paid out of this pool, with bigger claims covered by traditional insurance. To leverage the power of crowdfunding, number of insurance companies are partnering with crowdfunding platforms like Kickstarter, Indiegogo, Wishberry to raise funds. On the other hand, some insurers like TIAACREF are hosting campaigns on a dedicated social network called the Communities, on which members can discuss their financial health, exchange ideas and host campaigns. In today's age of technology-enabled collaboration, crowdfunding has a great potential to make inroads in insurance focussing on under-served population. Given the ever-growing proportion of non- or under-insured individuals, crowdfunding could be a lucrative way of addressing mass market needs, especially individual disability benefits, retirements and pensions, as well as group plans.

title: Negotiating with AI, content: Negotiation is a fundamental business skill—one that is inextricably linked with human emotion and psychology as much as economic calculus. Many companies negotiate countless contracts a year, ranging from facilities rentals, technology licenses, sales, employment or strategic partnerships. One of the biggest challenges, companies face in negotiating contracts is that they span such a wide variety of topics. Even the best-trained negotiators may struggle when parsing through a contract that is outside of their purview. Artificial intelligence (AI) is capable of performing many tasks that enhance human labour and thinking — so it only stands to reason that it can provide an advantage in the negotiation process as well. There are several levels on which this is happening. As salespeople or customer service reps interact with customers electronically, they may be able to take advantage of real-time AI recommendations to help guide the engagement or transaction. Rather than monitor singular conversations and interject recommendations on a case-by-case basis, the AI-based negotiation system digests lots of conversational data across lots of sales reps to try to understand where there are coaching opportunities, new training opportunities, value prop improvement opportunities, and product improvement opportunities. AI can also be applied against transaction or customer relationship management (CRM) data, to sift through responses and engagements to determine where and how companies may be missing opportunities. Also, there are chatbots that can be trained to bargain with customers. Estonian startup Pactum, which provides an AI-based commercial negotiation tool, was engaged by Walmart to automate negotiations with part of its global supplier network. Pactum's AI-based negotiation tool starts the process by interviewing the customer, recording all the required information surrounding the negotiation, and determining the value for each possible tradeoff in the contract for the customer. Pactum's team then builds the negotiation flows. Project Debater is the first AI system that can debate humans on complex topics. Project Debater digests massive texts, constructs a well-structured speech on a given topic, delivers it with clarity and purpose, and rebuts its opponent. It can analyze a proposition and automatically highlight the best arguments for and against it, factoring in both logical and emotional impact. Eventually IBM predicts, Project Debater will help people reason by providing compelling, evidence-based arguments and limiting the influence of emotion, bias, or ambiguity. Perhaps one day, robot lawyers will go forth to negotiate on our behalf. But, in the meantime, A.I. can be used today to improve humans' negotiation tactics.

title: What leads to Wrong Transactions?
, content: They say prevention is better than cure! This holds true in the case of money transfers as well. After all, they do involve a fair number of manual inputs, and even the slightest lapse in concentration can lead to erroneous transactions. That's why it is extremely important to pay close attention while entering the recipient's account number, IFSC Code, and so on. One simple check could save you from a rather large loss.

Next up is the classic case of haste leading to waste. We are all caught up in our busy lives and do not have a moment to spare. This, combined with those teeny-tiny alpha-numeric buttons on your smartphone or laptop, can lead to money transferred to wrong account number. Therefore, when transferring money, it is paramount that you go about the procedure in a calm and composed manner.

Finally, a wrong money transfer can be the result of a technical glitch as well. Yes, computers can mess up too! However, the probability of this happening is extremely low. And these glitches usually correct themselves immediately, with the money being credited back to your account either instantly or in a couple of working days.

title: Different possibilities of a money transfer to wrong account details , content: Let's say that you do enter some incorrect details during your transaction. In this case, there could be two possible outcomes. The first is that your transfer fails due to invalid details, and no money is debited from your account. Phew! No harm done!

On the other hand, if the account details entered are incorrect but valid for the wrong person, the transfer could go through, and the money will be sent to the wrong recipient. Wrong account money transfers, such as this, could cause you substantial financial harm, especially if the transfer amount is on the larger side. This is definitely a situation that you would want to avoid.

title: How do I get my money back if I transferred to the wrong person?
, content: After realising that you have sent money to the wrong account, the first question that will cross your mind is, how to get the money back? Well, you will need to follow some important steps to begin the reversal process.

The first thing you need to do in case of an incorrect money transfer is to inform the bank. You can do this by quickly calling up the customer care number and providing them with all the details of the transaction. They will provide you with a request or complaint number.

You can then mail the customer care team with the details of the incorrect transfer. This will ensure you have written proof of your communication with the bank. You can also follow up by visiting your home branch, speaking with the manager, and submitting a written intimation of the wrong transfer.

title: But can you reverse a bank transfer?
, content: After following all the steps and submitting the wrong transaction complaint, one question still lingers - can I get my money back from a wrong bank transfer?

Well, as mentioned earlier, the funds will be credited back to your account automatically if the account number entered does not exist or is invalid.

However, if the details are valid and the money goes through, the reversal of the funds will depend completely on the recipient. If the recipient of your funds provides permission for reversal of the transaction, then you should get your money back without much of a hassle.

title: What happens after submitting the Wrong Transaction Complaint?
, content: If it is an intra-bank transaction, the bank itself will reach out to the wrong recipient and request the reversal. If it is a transfer to another bank, your bank will act as a facilitator, providing you with the details of the wrong recipient's bank and branch. Then you can personally visit the concerned bank and talk to the manager. You may have to produce all proofs and communications regarding the incorrect transaction. The bank manager will then contact the wrong recipient and request that the incorrect credit is re-transferred to you.

title: How to avoid situations of Wrong Account Money Transfer?
, content: It is rather simple to avoid an incorrect money transfer. All you need to do is cross-check the details thoroughly before proceeding with the transaction. With the BOB World mobile banking app, you will be prompted with the beneficiary details as soon as you enter your recipient's account number and IFSC code. Double-check these details to ensure you are sending the money to the right person. Only once the details of your recipient match with the details on the app should you proceed with the transaction.

Another smart tip would be to send a small test amount first. You can cross-check with your recipient if they have received the test amount. If they have, you can then go ahead and send the rest of the money that you need to. This is a good practice to follow and the best way to ensure that your transaction goes through to the right beneficiary. For example, if you need to transfer INR 50,000 to a friend, start off by sending INR 100 first. If they receive INR 100, then you can go ahead and transfer the remaining INR 49,900.

It is important to remember that, as per RBI instructions or guidelines, "the responsibility to provide correct inputs in the payment instructions, particularly the beneficiary account number information, rests with the remitter/originator". Moreover, without the permission of the wrong recipient, a reversal of funds is not at all possible. Therefore, when transferring money to anyone, it is important to practice due diligence. A few minutes spent doing a couple of simple checks could prevent you from losing a large chunk of your hard-earned money.

We hope this article has been helpful for you today. Good luck and happy remittance!

title: More to Mutual Fund Investing Than Just Returns, content: While selecting Mutual Funds, the most common factor used for finalizing investments are historic returns. While returns can be a good measure to judge performance of a scheme, other parameters are equally important while evaluating mutual funds. Let's understand few factors beyond returns which can help us better evaluate MF schemes in detail:

title: Key factors to evaluate a MF, content: 1. Standard deviation measures the investment's risk by quantifying the dispersion of returns from the mean. 2. Beta Beta measures a mutual fund's sensitivity to market movements, helping investors assess its risk and return potential.

3. Downside Capture Ratio Downside Capture Ratio assesses a Fund Manager's performance relative to a benchmark during market declines, gauging their ability to limit losses.

4. Sharpe Ratio The Sharpe ratio in mutual funds assesses risk-adjusted returns, helping investors evaluate a fund's performance relative to its volatility.

title: How is the EMI calculated for a MUDRA Loan?

, content: The Micro Units Development & Refinance Agency or Mudra Loan is a government-backed financial solution under which small businesses can obtain finance to run their business operations. The government has tied up with Banks and Non-banking Financial Companies (NBFCs) to provide this facility.

As a Mudra Loan borrower, you can repay your loan in Equated Monthly Instalments (EMIs) over a specific repayment tenure at comparatively lower interest rates than those offered on regular loans. You can calculate the EMI for a Mudra Loan by entering the three main components of the loan in the Mudra Loan EMI Calculator. Thus, you need to enter the principal amount required, the interest rate levied and the loan repayment tenure to calculate the EMI.

title: What is a Mudra Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: A Mudra Loan EMI Calculator is a freely available online tool that computes the EMI amount payable against your Mudra Loan. The calculator allows you to calculate the EMI amounts based on three types of Mudra Loans, i.e., Shishu, Kishor and Tarun Mudra Loans. You can find this calculator on the lender's website. You can also use a general Mudra Loan EMI calculator available on the internet.

title: How does the Mudra Loan EMI Calculator work?

, content: The Mudra Loan EMI Calculator computes monthly EMI amounts in seconds using the below formula.

$$EMI = P \times R \times (1+R)^N / [(1+R)^N - 1]$$

Where,

P = Mudra Loan Amount

R = Interest rate

N = Loan tenure (in months)

While the calculator uses this same formula, it saves you the trouble and the errors associated with manual calculations.

title: How do you calculate your EMI using a MUDRA Loan EMI Calculator?

, content: You can calculate your estimated EMI contributions toward your Mudra loan by following 3 simple steps:

Enter the loan amount required in the 'Amount' section based on the type of Mudra Loan you wish to obtain. The maximum loan you can get under Shishu, Kishor and Tarun schemes is Rs. 50,000, Rs. 5 Lakh and Rs. 10 Lakh, respectively.

Enter a reasonable interest rate in the 'Rate of Interest' section after checking the minimum and maximum interest rates offered by the lender value. Select your preferred repayment tenure under 'Loan Terms'.

Lastly, click on Submit for an instant EMI calculation.

title: What are the advantages of using the Mudra Loan EMI Calculator online?

, content: Freely available: The Mudra Loan EMI Calculator is completely free, and you can use it as many times as you want.

24x7 accessible: Since the calculator is an online tool, you can access it at any given time from any internet-enabled device.

Easy-to-use: The calculator is straightforward. You just need to follow the instructions and input the values in the three tabs present in the calculator.

100% Accurate: The calculator computes the EMI amounts with 100% accuracy, leaving no room for manual calculation errors.

Easy loan management: The Mudra Loan EMI Calculator helps compute the EMI amount to suit your budget. You can easily modify the interest rates, loan amount and tenure until you arrive at an affordable EMI amount.

title: Micro-services, content: In the current dynamic universe, companies are finding ad-hoc approach of running continuous upgrades to large monolithic platforms increasingly tedious and inefficient. Progressive organizations can no longer count on the rigid systems that require weeks of rework to support a new business process. Enter Micro-services! It is a way of breaking large software projects into loosely coupled modules, which communicate with each other through simple APIs. In recent years, adoption of micro-services architecture is becoming a proven success strategy in the software development industry. According to the report by Red Hat, organizations are using micro-services to re-architect their existing applications; as much as the technology being used for brand new applications. Micro-services offer numerous benefits for application architects and development teams. These include flexibility around implementation technology, scalability and cloud readiness. These benefits align well with the growing demand of a new system that can adapt to the demands of digital business in highly competitive ecosystems. For instance, early adopters like Airbnb, Disney, Dropbox, GE, Goldman Sachs and Twitter have seen development lead times cut by as much as 75 percent, thanks to the adoption of micro-services. This trend is increasingly being adopted by Bigtechs as well. For example, Microsoft has opened up its Service Fabric platform which is a distributed systems platform to package, deploy and manage scalable and reliable micro-services. Similarly, IBM, Google and Lyft have teamed up to form Istio, an open technology that provides a way for developers to connect, manage and secure networks of different micro-services, regardless of platform, source or vendor. Apart from this, California based Nginx which supports the operation of around 450 million global websites including those of Netflix, Instagram and Pinterest, has set up shop in Australia to support companies embracing micro-services. Recognizing the need to deliver value to customers faster, many banks are seizing the opportunity to implement micro-services architecture. By implementing such innovative architecture, Ubank created Australia's first home loan application chatbot, innovating and improving customer experience. Similarly, UK based digital bank Monzo is also using cloud and micro-services architecture to develop back end structure. Micro-services can deliver better agility and scalability advantages than any other archetype. Several vendors are developing frameworks and platforms that simplify adoption of the micro-services architecture. However, we believe it will take some time for micro-services to evolve into complete and robust mainstream platform.

title: Parking Payments, content: Dear Reader, Increasing adoption of integrated automated solutions coupled with the advancements in wireless technologies are expected to drive the growth of smart parking market. Major technologies used for the deployment of efficient systems include sensing devices, machine-to-machine (M2M) communication, smart parking meters, data analytics, mobile apps for e-reservation of slots and online payments. According to Brand Essence Research Report, Global Smart Parking Market was valued at USD 5.62 Billion in 2018 and expected to reach USD 12.83 Billion by 2025 with a CAGR of 12.5% over the forecast period. In recent years, parking payments has drawn the attention of many FinTechs and digital payment solution providers. In India, National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) has introduced an interoperable system so that FASTags can be used to pay parking fees at malls, airports and other private parking lots across key metros - Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, and Bengaluru. Such payments will be contactless, which assumes significance in the wake of Corona virus pandemic. The NETC

FASTag solution will work both as post-paid and pre-paid solutions for securing parking at a parking plaza. There will be no additional cost to customers with respect to the parking fee, other than the one-time purchase cost of the tag. There will also be dedicated FASTag lanes. In the US, Passport, a transportation software company supports the management of vehicle interactions with streets and sidewalks, through its robust digital parking payment technology. Passport supports over 1,000 clients of all sizes in North America and has processed more than $2B mobility transactions to date. Similarly, ParkMobile is another leading provider of smart parking and mobility solutions in North America, using a contactless approach to help people easily find, reserve and pay for parking on their mobile devices. Last month, Google announced entering into an advanced partnership with both Passport and ParkMobile. The parking payment feature can be availed in over 400 US cities, including Boston, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, New York and Washington DC. Simply tap on the 'Pay for Parking' button that appears as you near your destination. Then enter your meter number, the amount of time you want to park for, and tap 'Pay'. The payment will be processed through Google Pay application. Google Maps, along with Passport, is in the process of expanding the ability to pay for transit fares for "over 80 transit agencies" around the world, allowing the users to plan their trips, buy tickets and start riding without needing to toggle between multiple apps. We believe that the increased interest around the parking payment technology will provide an opportunity for IoT and mobility players to up their game and significantly increase revenue generation, to get back on track in the wake of the pandemic. title: What is an ATM Card PIN?

, content: Before we jump into the guide, let's briefly understand what an ATM card PIN is. PIN stands for Personal Identification Number, which acts as a password or an access code to your ATM card. It is a unique four-digit code that you enter when using your card for transactions or accessing cash from an ATM. Your PIN serves as a key to authorize transactions and acts as a protective layer against unauthorized access.

title: Why You Should Set Your PIN Immediately:

, content: Setting your new ATM card PIN as soon as you receive it is crucial for several reasons. Firstly, it allows you to have control over your account and ensures that no one else can access your funds without your knowledge. Secondly, setting your PIN immediately enables you to make transactions and withdraw cash conveniently without any delays. By following this simple step, you can enjoy a seamless banking experience while safeguarding your financial well-being.

title: How to Set Your PIN for a New ATM Card:

, content: Now that we understand the significance of setting your PIN, let's move on to the step-by-step process of how to set your new ATM card PIN.

Step 1: Step 1: Activate Your Card:

The first step is to activate your ATM card. You can usually activate your card by calling the customer care number provided by your bank or by visiting the nearest branch. Follow the instructions provided to activate your card successfully.

Step 2: Choose Your PIN:

Once your card is activated, it's time to set your PIN. Locate the nearest ATM machine and insert your card into the designated slot. Enter your temporary PIN or OTP provided by the bank and select the "Change PIN" option. Follow the on-screen instructions to set a new four-digit PIN of your choice. Choose a PIN that is easy for you to recall but hard for others to predict. The use of easily recognizable numbers, such as birthdates, phone numbers, or sequential numbers, should be avoided.

Step 3: Change Your PIN If Necessary:

In some cases, you might want to change your PIN after using it for a while. To do so, visit the nearest ATM and follow the same process mentioned in Step 2. Choose the "Change PIN" option and enter your existing PIN. Then, enter your desired new PIN and confirm it. Ensure that you remember the new PIN to avoid any inconvenience while making transactions in the future.

title: Tips for Keeping Your PIN Secure:

, content: While setting your ATM card PIN is important, it's equally crucial to keep it secure. Here are some tips to ensure the safety of your PIN:

1. Memorize your PIN:

Avoid writing down or disclosing your PIN with anyone. Memorize it to reduce the possibility of unauthorized access to your funds.

2. Be discreet:

When entering your PIN at an ATM or a retail store, shield the keypad with your other hand to prevent anyone from seeing the digits you enter.

3. Regularly change your PIN:

Consider changing your PIN periodically to enhance security. This practice can help safeguard your account even if your PIN gets compromised.

4. Beware of phishing attempts:

Be cautious of fraudulent emails, calls, or messages asking for your PIN. Banks will never ask for your PIN or personal details via such channels.

title: Conclusion: Atm card pin secure , content: Setting your new ATM card PIN is a crucial step in securing your finances and protecting your bank account. By taking this crucial step, you are protecting your financial interests and ensuring a secure banking experience. Remember to follow the tips mentioned above to keep your PIN secure and confidential. Your PIN is the key to accessing your funds, so treat it with utmost care. Stay vigilant, and enjoy the convenience and peace of mind that comes with secure transactions. Happy banking!

title: Important Bank Locker Rules in 2022

, content: Following are the new bank locker rules that bank locker customers ought to know:

• Alert Notifications

Banks must notify customers about the locker usage via SMS and email on their registered mobile number and email address. The notification should contain the date and time of the locker operation and a redressal mechanism for unauthorised locker access.

• Compensations

Bank locker rules in case of theft state that the bank will be held responsible for any loss of your locker contents caused by theft, burglary, or robbery. The bank shall be liable to pay you 100 times the prevailing safe deposit locker annual rent. This compensation also applies in case of fire, building collapse, or fraud.

- Security

Bank locker rooms and vaults must have a single defined entry and exit point. The locker room spaces should protect against rain, flood water, or fire hazards from entering and damaging the premises. Banks must preserve CCTV surveillance footage for up to 180 days. If a customer has complained to the bank in case of unauthorised locker access, theft, security breach, etc., the banks must hold on to the CCTV recordings till the police investigation ends.

- Locker Standards

As per the revised bank locker operation rules, new mechanical lockers should conform to safety benchmarks set by the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS). Banks must ensure that electronically operated locker systems are compliant with the Cyber Security Framework mandated by the RBI. Bank or branch Identification Codes must be embossed on the locker keys. Customers can use an additional padlock if the bank provides such a facility.

- Locker Rent

Banks can use your Term Deposits to cover the locker rental charges. If you fail to pay the rental costs, the bank can break open your locker. To recover any losses incurred, banks can use the Term Deposit amount. If the bank has collected the rent in advance, it must refund a proportionate amount of the amount collected to the customer. You can check our Locker charges on our bank's website.

- Nominations

Banks can offer a nomination facility. They may also devise their own bank locker agreement format and claim formats to ensure safe custody of the locker contents.

title: Why Should You Have a Bank Locker?

, content: Locker facility in banks has been in existence for a long time. Here's why you should consider renting a bank locker.

- Safety

Banks lockers come with superior security features that your ordinary home safes may not provide. The heavy-duty bank vaults protect your valuables from hazards, while banks constantly monitor the lockers using CCTV cameras.

- Compensation

In the case of theft, banks are liable to pay a certain sum of money to customers, thereby insuring your assets.

- Locker Sizes

Banks offer lockers of different sizes. Based on your contents, you can get small, medium, large or extra-large lockers.

title: Benefits of Renting a Bank of Baroda Safe Deposit Locker

, content: Bank of Baroda provides Safe Deposit Lockers where you can safely store your jewellery, important documents and other valuables.

Nomination Facility: You can assign nominees for your locker contents.

Different Locker Sizes: You can opt for locker sizes based on your requirements.

Bank of Baroda provides eleven type of lockers with different sizes.

Additional Safety Codes: Bank of Baroda assigns a unique code word for extra security apart from locker keys.

title: Can I open a bank locker jointly?

, content: Yes. You can open a bank locker jointly.

title: Will I be compensated if my bank locker contents are lost or damaged due to natural calamities?

, content: As per RBI norms, banks are not liable for damages caused to the locker contents due to natural calamities. Damaged caused due to negligence on the customer's part, too, shall not be a bank liability.

title: I lost my locker key. What should I do?

, content: If the key of the locker, supplied by the Bank is lost by the locker-hirer, the customer (locker hirer) shall notify the branch immediately. An undertaking may also be obtained from the customer that the key lost, if found in future, will be handed over to the branch. All charges for opening the locker, changing the lock and replacing the lost key may be recovered from the hirer. The charges applicable for replacement of lost keys / issue of new password shall be communicated to the locker hirer.

The opening of the locker has to be carried out by the bank or its authorized technician only after proper identification of the hirer, proper recording of the fact of loss and written authorization by the customer for breaking open the locker.

title: How do I rent a Safe Deposit Locker with a bank?

, content: You need to visit the nearest branch of the Bank where locker facility is available. You also need to fill out an application form and complete the required KYC formalities. Additionally, you must sign a Memorandum of Letting and keep your fixed deposit as collateral to cover the locker rent.

title: What happens to the locker contents if I fail to pay the locker rent?

, content: Banks have the right to break open the locker if the customer fails to pay the rent. They typically send you a notice via post, email and SMS. If you do not respond to it, the bank issues a public notice in newspapers and gives you time to respond. If you still fail to comply, the bank can break the locker and retrieve the contents.

title: New Credit Card Billing Rules, content: Per the RBI notification, the new guidelines for credit card billing are as follows:• No delay in dispatching the credit card statement "The card issuing company must send the credit card bills and statements via mail or email on time. There should be no delay. The card issuer must provide adequate time to cardholders to make the payment before the card issuer charges interest. RBI states that cardholders must get at least one fortnight to pay the credit card bill. To make sure the cardholder receives the bill on time, the card issuing company can send the credit card statements through the internet banking or mobile banking, provided the cardholder gives their explicit consent."

- Addressing wrong bills within 30 days The card issuer should not raise wrong bills. If a cardholder raises queries for any transaction, the card issuer must address the queries and provide documentary evidence within 30 days of the date of the query raised.

- Modification of the billing cycle per cardholder's preference There is no standard billing cycle for the credit cards issued. Therefore, in line with the new guidelines for credit card, card issuers must provide cardholders with the option to change their billing cycle according to the cardholder's convenience.

- Zero charges for disputed transactions If the cardholder has disputed a transaction as 'fraud', the card issuer must not levy any charges on such transactions until they are resolved.

- Reversed transactions to be adjusted against payment due "The new credit card rules state that if the card issuer has yet to credit any refund or failed transaction amounts, and the cardholder has not made the credit card bill payment, the card issuer should adjust the pending credit amount against the payment due. The same must be notified to the cardholder."

title: New Guidelines on Digital Lending Issued by RBI, content: Owing to the rampant malpractice in the digital lending space, the Reserve Bank of India mandated digital loans to be credited directly to the borrower's bank account. A third-party inclusion will not be acceptable. Along with this norm, the RBI regulations suggest, that the charges to the Lending Service Providers (LSP) should be paid by the digital lending entities and not the borrowers.

title: Tokenisation: Will It Make Your Online Card Transactions Secure?, content: Thanks to digitalisation, the number of online transactions is higher than ever. You can use a host of payment methods to make online payments - credit card and debit card payments being one of them. The cards allow you to make quick payments at stores as well as online. At the time of online checkout, all you need to do is enter your debit or credit card details and verify the transaction through OTPs. Some mobile shopping apps also let you save your card details. However, this will not be possible after 30th September 2022. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has rolled out multiple notices about tokenisation. It is a security measure aimed toward maximising prevention against online payment fraud. Read on to know more about tokenisation of card transactions and find out whether it can make your online card transactions safer.

title: What prompted RBI to introduce Regulation on Digital Loans?, content: India's digital lending landscape had upped with the riveting influence of digitalization in the past few years. With rampant smartphone usage and other technologies taking place with the fast-paced internet penetration, customers growing expectations lapped this rising change amid regulated environments. Digital loan disbursement count was at 12 times high thanks to the diverse influence of fintech players and digital lending models by the end of 2020. Both private banks and NBFCs 2020, took lead in the lending ecosystem and almost fifty-five per cent to thirty per cent of loans found disbursement through digital platforms.

title: Banks were drawn by the Unregulated Digital Frenzy, content: The RBI cited that private banks showed a greater share in digital lending but when it came to lending by digital mode NBFCs outdid private banks by 10%. Private banks too have invested heavily in technologies that improve customer experience leading to personalised service and products. Products include loans both personal and secured, digital business loan, vehicle loans, individual MSME loans, loans for the salaried and young generation. Fintech NBFCs have spearheaded these innovative approaches in digital lending taking a lead by tying up with e-commerce firms to not just fund buyers but listed business suppliers in the marketplace.

title: The Risks and Challenges in Digital Lending, content: The increased use of digital lending applications from non-financial services, and unregulated entities have resulted in unethical business practices, data breaches, and mis-selling. The chief concerns in the portfolio include:

title: RBI Laid Regulation, content: Viewing all these challenges and more the RBI has curbed the engagement of third-party engagement, mis-selling, data encroachment, unfair business practice and the charging of exorbitant interest rates along with unethical recovery methods.

title: Do these guidelines suggest that the RBI is against Digital Lending Practices?, content: RBI supports orderly growth and credit delivery through digital lending methods and fintech loans. The purpose of bringing in some strict regulations and monitoring is to mitigate all unlawful activities. It establishes that all digital loan disbursements and repayments should be executed between the borrowers' bank account without the interference from a third party or an LSP pool account. It also makes clear that any fee or charges payable to LSP, while intermediating credit should be borne by the RE and not shouldered by the borrower. For the borrower to proceed with the loan executing contract, a standardised Key Fact Statement (KFS) must be produced.

title: Conclusion: What prompted RBI to introduce Regulation on Digital Loans?

, content: It cannot be denied that digital lending is convenient for both customers and providers. However, the need for regulation on this platform is essential. Therefore, easing some of the regulations while keeping the best interest of customers in view and with constant monitoring and customer redress platforms, digital loans can be made more approachable with safety. title: How Tokenization Will Change Your Online Purchase, content: Making digital payments and paying for your online purchases will be very different from what you have done up until now. This is because, according to the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) standards, no online platform or payment gateway will be able to save credit card information in its entirety from October 1. This is what card tokenization is. Other aspects of online transactions via cards will stay the same and you will use your credit or debit card to pay for your purchases. So, what will change, indeed? What is tokenization in effect? Continue reading to learn more.

title: Bank of Baroda hikes MCLR by 5 basis points, content: 08-Jun-18 title: Effective from June 7, 2018 will be as follows:, content: Recently, SBI has hiked the MCLR rate by 10 basis points just a couple of days before the monetary policy across all tenors. Similarly, PNB has also hiked MCLR rate by 5-10 basis point for the selected tenors.

title: What it means for borrowers ?, content: An increase in MCLR would normally translate into increase in interest payable by borrowers unless the bank reduces its margin on loans to absorb this increase.

title: RBI raises rates, more to follow, content: RBI raised policy rate by 25bps with a 6-0 vote while maintaining a neutral policy stance. The recent upturn in the economy (GDP growth at 7.7%) along with sharp jump in CPI inflation excluding food and fuel to 5.9% seems to have weighed in favour of a rate hike. While CPI inflation is likely to moderate from an average of 4.8% in Q1FY19, we believe average inflation is likely to remain above 4% over the medium-term because of which RBI is likely to raise rates by another 25bps in CY18.

title: H2 inflation forecast revised upwards:, content: Growth trajectory is steady: RBI maintained its growth forecast at 7.4% in FY19 on the back of buoyant consumer demand and pick-up in investment activity. Exports are also likely to improve as global demand is steady. While higher oil prices will impact disposable incomes, a normal monsoon along with improvement in credit off-take will ensure that growth trajectory remains steady. MPC members also believe that output gap has almost closed.

title: Growth trajectory is steady:, content: RBI to raise rates by another 25bps: With inflation likely to remain above RBI's medium-term target of 4%, our estimate is 4.4% for FY19, we believe RBI is likely to raise policy rates by another 25bps in the current financial year. Given that next few inflation prints are likely to be elevated, there is a high probability that RBI raises rates either in August or October. While inflation is likely to moderate from Q1FY19, there are significant upside risks to this trajectory. First, food prices may rise faster than our estimates if MSPs are greater than anticipated. In addition, if oil prices move higher than inflation estimates have to be revised upwards. Last but not the least, if FPI outflows continue at same pace as last two months, then RBI may be under pressure to raise rates to ensure stable currency.

The list of field agents is attached below

title: How do you see RBI's rate hike and how will it impact your lending and deposit rates?, content: Lending rate depends on the cost of funds and there has been a reasonable increase in deposit rates in the last few months, a part of which has been passed on through an increase in MCLR of banks. A part of the increase will be passed on in the coming months. RBI's rate hike will not have a material impact on bank lending rates. It will have a bigger impact on NBFCs and the bond market.

title: On the asset side, you are looking to change the corporate-retail loan mix. How have things shaped up?, content: For 2017-18, corporate loans grew 17 per cent, while retail was up 42 per cent. The share of retail loan book to total loan book increased from 20 per cent to 23 per cent. We continue to support and lend to the corporates. During the year, we moved to a target market approach for growth in corporate lending. However, in view of higher profitability on a risk adjusted basis, granular nature of risk in portfolio, increasing consumer spending and our low share in retail lending, we focused to increase the proportion of retail loan book.

title: Is it also a reflection of the fact that the corporate sector is not borrowing?, content: Low corporate credit offtake is partly driven by the corporates themselves and it's also driven by our desire to have a more diversified portfolio. We would like to look at corporate exposure of 35-40 per cent. But that may take 18-24 months. Our corporate loan growth has been higher than the average industry credit growth. Lately, there has been increase in capacity utilization in the private sector. Macro-economic indicators point to a pick-up in private investment. Deleveraging of balance sheets of corporates is also happening.

title: Banking is also a subject function of how the economy is doing. Isn't it also true that in the past four years we haven't seen much improvement in the corporate sector and that is responsible for the slowdown?, content: I wouldn't fully agree with you on that. There are always some industries that do well and grow. We have witnessed pick-up in the automotive industry, there is very strong growth in pharmaceuticals and IT. I see an equivalent of the Fintech companies in agriculture where a lot of innovation is happening. And it's only a matter of time before these companies gather more scale, more momentum. Further, some of the corporates have been tapping bond market for their credit requirements.

title: Why is demand from the corporate sector not picking up?, content: It is not right to say that credit demand is not present. Currently, most of the capital spending is by way of public investment by government in infrastructure projects like roads, highways, waterways and railways. For banks, it is by way of non-funded exposures that do not get reflected in their balance-sheets. In a way, the credit in the balance-sheet is shifted from the books of banks to that of other players.

title: Things have been getting worse for public sector. Bank chiefs and the government seem to have lost credibility because every quarter you say the worst is over. Do banks really have an assessment of the toxic assets on their books?, content: The NCLT process being new, is taking some time to stabilize. NPAs have also increased after revised RBI guidelines on resolution of stressed assets in February 2018, dismantling the earlier mechanisms to deal with stress. What these guidelines have effectively done is that they have front-ended the recognition of stress, which would have been otherwise recognized over a period of time. However, this marks the final stage of multi-year initiatives to recognize NPAs. Thus, all of this is purely transitional in nature where it appears that we have one way flows to NPAs only as against flows both ways. With higher recoveries expected in FY19 on account of NCLT resolution, we should be seeing flows both ways. It seems that we are pretty much at the end of the problem.

title: THE SYNERGIES, content: Because of the single owner, the incentive for different entities to compete strongly and innovate did not exist either. Whatever each bank achieved, it was more an enterprise of individuals rather than any institutional vision. While the mixture of personnel with different cultures from Dena, Vijaya and Baroda could cause some friction, the advantages that would flow are many.

title: DIFFERENT STROKES, content: Over the past three years, Jayakumar along with former chairman Ravi Venkatesan had initiated a lot of changes, including lateral hire, changes to human resources policies that prioritise merit. Its leadership programme focused on enabling technology absorption along with refurbishment of branches into paperless offices and ending the steel cupboard culture are a welcome relief to both staff and customers.

title: A week into your tenure as the chief of BoB, what are your priorities?, content: BoB is in a very interesting place. It was among the first banks identified for the merger process and has made a fair bit of progress, pretty much as per the plan. Therefore, as the merger plays out, the bank will be well-positioned. It will have a larger scale and also a lot of investments that have been made over the last few years under the erstwhile chief executive P S Jayakumar's leadership will start to play out. Particularly in specific areas of supply chain financing which is getting a lot of traction. Efforts made by him in trying to induct market talent, positions us uniquely. My job is to consolidate whatever things have happened at BoB over the last few years and give support required to flesh out these initiatives so that they bear fruit title: What will be your focus in terms of credit growth?, content: The market dynamics are also getting altered to the benefit of the bank. When it comes to the corporate lending space, there is a lot of space that is getting vacated because banks seem to believe that retail banking is the only place to be in. I would believe there are opportunities in the corporate banking space and with the number of players becoming fewer, whoever remains will have more pricing power than in the past. That will work in BoB's advantage, I believe. Also, one of the investments made by the bank was with regard to working with fintech companies and NBFCs and these are also areas where we see a lot of opportunities. We have worked with NBFCs as passive lenders and now there is an opportunity to work in a much more active manner.

title: What kind of an opportunity do corporate loans provide at the moment?, content: The fact is that as of now the number of players is very limited. Large private sector banks have put on record their disinclination to get into certain parts of the corporate lending space. There would also be a large number of public sector banks who would be embarking on their journey towards merger. Then there are large NBFCs, very competitive in this space, are also constrained in terms of funds. So, as I was saying, there is not only space but also a requirement for a bank like BoB to play a more significant role. Of course that role must come with an ability to manage risks far better than the industry for large lending in the past. My focus will be on building the ability and the competencies to fund corporates and to build the risk-management abilities to make sure it is done in an intelligent and sustainable manner.

title: Where do you see the balance sheet over the next three years?, content: Bank of Baroda has the potential to grow at a rate better than the industry rate and the circumstances are propitious. Also in terms of capital, we are reasonably capitalized. We have the intention of working with other partners to make sure that we can work together to make delivery much more efficient and be able to do much larger volumes. We should be growing at better than industry rates.

title: Apart from non-banking financial companies (NBFCs), which are the other sectors that you are slightly wary about?, content: In every sector today, you need to distinguish between players - which are the stronger players, which are the weaker players and even within players that you deal with- what are their strengths and what their weaknesses are. If you look at our NBFC portfolio, about 90% of that is rated A and above. I think it is a great opportunity for the bank to work with intermediaries who have the last mile connectivity. When I look at the NBFC sector, I don't look at it with trepidation, but an opportunity to capitalize upon.

title: Do you see signs of stress building up in the retail sector, especially the unsecured portfolio?, content: I see no secular trend which suggests that there is stress building up. Whenever there is slowdown there would be implications. But there is broad consensus that growth should pick up again. For an economy like India, if you are a serious long term player, you cannot be dependent upon any single engine of growth. You can always trim your savings. You need to have multiple engines firing to grow sustainably. For BoB, both retail and corporate are equally important.

title: Is the integration of three banks complete?, content: As per the plan that was laid out, the integration was to happen over 18-24 months. When you are a bank, you need to make sure that the process is non-disruptive. Things have gone largely as per planned. Progress has been made and some of the changes will play out over the next 12 months.

title: Would you continue with the predecessor's legacy or would you look at making changes?, content: I deeply respect the work that been done by Jayakumar. The first task would be to capitalise on the value of the changes. Along with that one of the lessons for BoB, but also for the entire banking industry, risk management needs to be strengthened. The kind of issues that banks as a general proposition had with regulators would suggest that compliance structure also needs to be strengthened.

title: How resilient, do you think, is the Indian financial system to shocks?, content: I think that the Indian financial system in India is very robust and has stood the test of time and also has successfully catered to the need to industry, agriculture and even taken financial inclusion to far corners of the country. Also, in terms of serious issues like banks getting into difficulty or the interest of the depositors compromised, I think India possibly has the fewest instances. I agree with the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) that the financial system is very strong. Having said that, there will always be, in any industry and this includes the financial sector as well, some kind of movement towards quality. As our depositors and borrowers become more sophisticated, I think they will be able to identify value and place their faith where that is deserved.

title: What are your budget expectations? Are you expecting any capital infusion?, content: BoB is adequately capitalized. In terms of budget, I believe the good part in the last six to eight months has been that the government has not waited for the budget to happen to make big announcements. There are a lot of positive things which have happened over the last six months and possibly we should be seeing more instances where the government progressively takes difficult decisions and announces reforms. One positive thing was the announcement of disinvestment in profit-making companies.

title: Do you have any monetization plan for your subsidiaries?, content: I do not believe that we have till date created enough value in the subsidiaries where monetization should be on the table. Having said that, there is enormous scope in creating that value. Once that value is created, monetization can be looked at.

title: What is NPS?

, content: Launched on 1st January 2004 under the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA) purview, The National Pension System (NPS) provides retirement income to all Indian citizens. NPS scheme aims to inculcate the habit of saving for retirement amongst the citizens. The NPS scheme provides financial security and stability during old age when people don't have a regular source of income.

title: Features of NPS

, content: The subscriber of NPS is allotted a unique Permanent Retirement Account Number (PRAN).

This unique PRAN can be used by NPS subscribers from any location in India.

PRAN provides access to two kinds of NPS accounts:

Tier I Account: A non-withdrawable account meant for savings for retirement.

Tier II Account: A voluntary savings facility where the subscriber is free to withdraw savings from this account whenever the NPS subscriber requires it.

title: What Is the Return on NPS?

, content: NPS Returns are delivered by NPS Pension Fund Managers. As an NPS subscriber, you can select one of 8 Pension Fund Managers (PFMs) in the NPS. You can also select the split between the four NPS asset classes – Equity, Corporate Bonds, Government Bonds, and Alternate Assets. The NPS returns depend on the asset allocation and the selected Pension Fund Managers. Since the NPS scheme is a long-term investment, the earlier you start contributing to the NPS, the longer your money will grow, giving you good returns. NPS returns are much higher than other traditional tax-saving investments.

title: Are NPS Returns Fixed?

, content: The returns on NPS investments are usually affected by market fluctuations and are therefore not fixed. There may be many other reasons such as:

The NPS investment depends on markets as NPS subscribers invest in equities and debts.

The amount of return depends on the NPS performance enabling the NPS subscriber to wisely choose before fixating on a particular fund manager.

And finally, a desirable manager allocates an NPS subscriber's assets across the market precisely so that the NPS subscriber gets high NPS returns.

title: Checking NPS Fund Performance

, content: Keeping a check on your NPS fund performance is important because an NPS fund's performance will give you an insight into how the NPS fund performed in various markets in the past.

title: Is there a guaranteed return on NPS?, content: Since your NPS investment is fully dependent on the scheme and the Pension Fund Managers you have chosen there are no fixed returns on NPS.

title: Can I calculate my provisional pension on maturity beforehand?, content: Yes. You can always calculate your provisional pension on maturity beforehand with the help of an online NPS pension calculator that calculates your estimated lump sum pension amount.

title: Is there any tax on NPS returns?, content: No, there is no tax on your NPS returns unless you opt for a premature exit. If you wish to withdraw your NPS pension before the maturity period, you will be liable to withdraw 20% of the corpus, which is taxable as per the government tax slab rate.

title: What is NRI Banking?

, content: NRI banking, or Non-Resident Indian banking, refers to the specialized banking services and accounts offered by Indian banks to individuals who are Indian citizens but reside abroad. These services are tailored to the unique financial needs and circumstances of Non-Resident Indians (NRIs) and Persons of Indian Origin (PIOs). NRI banking allows these individuals to manage their finances, investments, and transactions in India while living abroad. NRI Banking services work as a financial bridge. Along with tailored solutions to manage their financial affairs effectively, there are many other benefits of NRI Account.

title: What are NRI Accounts?

, content: NRI Accounts are accounts owned by a NRI or a Person of Indian Origin (PIO) or Overseas Citizen of India (OCI), with a bank or financial institution authorized by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), to provide various banking services to NRIs.

title: Types of Accounts Available for NRIs

, content: There are various types of accounts for NRIs choose from. These accounts are tailored to meet various financial needs of Non-Resident Indians. Let's have a look at the types of accounts offered to NRIs.

NRE Account :

NRE Account stands for Non-Resident External Account. It allows NRIs to maintain foreign income in Indian rupees, which can be easily converted when needed. It is fully repatriable, and the interest earned is tax-free.

NRO Account :

NRO's Full Form is Non-Resident Ordinary. An NRO Account allows NRIs to manage income generated in India, such as rental or dividends. It enables local transactions and is partially repatriable, with taxable interest.

FCNR (B) Account :

As the name suggests, Foreign Currency Non-Resident (FCNR-B) Account is used for holding foreign currency deposits. These accounts safeguard foreign currency against exchange rate fluctuations. They are fully repatriable, and the interest earned is tax-free.

title: Eligibility Criteria for NRI Banking Services

, content: NRI account opening requires meeting specific eligibility criteria. But it can differ based on the Type of NRI Account.

The basic eligibility criteria for opening NRI bank accounts are as follows:

People who are either employed, own a business, or trade in a foreign country. People employed by the Indian Navy, airlines registered with a foreign nation, an oil rig, or overseas shipping companies.

Government employees holding diplomat passports.

Students who are pursuing education in foreign countries.

title: Difference Between Various NRI Accounts

, content: Understanding the differences between NRE, NRO, and FCNR(B) accounts is necessary for smooth NRI Banking Services experience.

While NRE Account is suitable for parking foreign earnings, FCNR(B) Account is used for holding foreign currency deposits. Both NRE and FCNR(B) accounts are fully repatriable. The interest on both these accounts is tax-free.

NRO Account is different from NRE Account and FCNR Account. First, it is used for managing income earned in India. Second, it is only partially repatriable and the interest earned is taxable.

Remembering these differences will enable you to choose the most suitable account. Note that NRE and NRO Accounts are two commonly used NRI banking accounts.

title: How to Open an NRI Account?

, content: NRI account opening is a straightforward process that involves a few simple steps. Let's have a look.

Document Submission :

Submit the documents and proofs required for verification and compliance with regulatory requirements. Do not forget to carry your original KYC documents like passport, pan card (if available), address proof, OCI or PIO Card in case of Indian origin.

title: Documentation Required to Open NRI Accounts

, content: When opening NRI Account accounts, having proper documentation ensure hassle-free and smooth experience. It is crucial to ensure compliance with regulatory requirements and to establish the account holder's identity and financial status.

NRI Account Opening Documents include :

Passport and Visa Copies :

These are essential for verifying the individual's identity and immigration status.

Proof of Indian Address (For NRO Accounts) :

In the case of NRO accounts, NRIs need to provide proof of their local Indian address, such as a utility bill or rental agreement.

Proof of Overseas Address :

To establish a foreign address, NRIs often need to provide documents like a foreign utility bill or residence permit.

Passport-sized Photographs :

Recent passport-sized photographs are typically required for account opening.

KYC Documents :

Know Your Customer (KYC) documents, including PAN (Permanent Account Number) card or Form 60, are mandatory for tax compliance and verification.

title: NRI Banking Investment Options

, content: Non-Resident Indian (NRI) banking offers a range of investment options for NRIs to grow their wealth and manage their finances in India. These investment options are subject to regulations set by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and may vary among banks. Here are some common NRI investment options :

1. NRE Fixed Deposits (NRE FDs) :

NRE Fixed Deposits are term deposits where you can park your foreign income in Indian Rupees. The interest earned on NRE FDs is tax-free in India, and you can fully repatriate both the principal and interest abroad.

2. FCNR Fixed Deposits (FCNR FDs) :

Foreign Currency Non-Resident Fixed Deposits allow you to maintain deposits in foreign currencies like USD, GBP, EUR, AUD CAD. The principal and interest are fully repatriable, and the interest earned is exempt from Indian income tax.

3. NRO Fixed Deposits (NRO FDs) :

NRO Fixed Deposits are for managing income earned in India. The interest earned on NRO FDs is subject to Indian income tax, and there may be restrictions on repatriation.

4. NRE Savings Accounts :

NRE Savings Accounts are like regular savings accounts but in Indian Rupees. The interest earned is tax-free, and both the principal and interest are fully repatriable.

5. NRO Savings Accounts :

NRO Savings Accounts are used for managing income earned in India. The interest earned is taxable in India, and repatriation may have limitations.

6. Stocks and Mutual Funds :

NRIs are allowed to invest in Indian stocks and mutual funds. You can open a demat account and trading account to participate in the Indian stock market. However, there may be certain restrictions and regulatory compliance requirements.

7. Real Estate :

NRIs can invest in residential and commercial properties in India. There are specific rules and regulations related to property transactions, so it's advisable to consult with a legal expert.

8. Government Securities and Bonds :

NRIs can invest in Indian government securities and bonds. These investments may have different maturity periods and interest rates.

9. Portfolio Investment Schemes (PIS) :

NRIs can invest in Indian stocks and mutual funds through the PIS route. A designated bank will help facilitate the PIS for NRI investors.

10. Systematic Investment Plans (SIPs) :

NRIs can set up SIPs in Indian mutual funds, allowing them to invest regularly over time.

11. Non-Convertible Debentures (NCDs) :

NRIs can invest in NCDs issued by Indian companies.

12. Initial Public Offerings (IPOs) :

NRIs are eligible to participate in IPOs of Indian companies.

title: Benefits of NRI Banking Services

, content: NRI accounts offer several benefits, making them indispensable for non-resident Indians.

Here are a few NRI Account Benefits :

1. Tax Benefits :

NRE and FCNR accounts offer tax-free interest income in India.

2. Repatriation of Funds :

NRIs can quickly repatriate NRI Investments and interest earned through NRE and FCNR accounts.

3. Diversified Investment Opportunities :

NRI Banking provides access to diverse investment options, allowing NRIs to build a diversified investment portfolio.

4. Management of Local Finances in India :

NRO accounts help NRIs effectively manage income generated in India, such as rental income or dividends from investments.

5. Secure and Hassle-free Services :

NRI Banking services offer secure and hassle-free banking solutions.

6. Easy Accessibility :

NRIs can access their accounts and manage their finances seamlessly through online and mobile banking platforms, regardless of location.

title: Comparing NRI Banking and Regular Banking

, content: NRI Banking differs significantly from regular banking due to its focus on the specific financial needs and legal constraints of non-resident Indians. Here's a comparison of the two:

1. Account Types

Regular banking offers standard savings and current accounts, while NRI Banking provides specialized accounts like NRE, NRO, and FCNR tailored to the unique needs of NRIs.

2. Tax Implications :

NRI accounts have different tax implications. NRE account interest is tax-free, while NRO account interest is taxable. Regular accounts follow standard tax rules.

3. Repatriation Rules :

NRI accounts, especially NRE and FCNR, allow for easy repatriation of funds, making it more straightforward for NRIs to move money in and out of India. In contrast, regular accounts do not offer these advantages.

4. Currency Management :

NRI accounts, particularly FCNR, enable the holding of foreign currency, protecting against exchange rate fluctuations. Regular accounts typically hold local currency.

5. Legal Compliance :

NRI accounts must adhere to specific RBI regulations, ensuring NRIs follow Indian financial laws. Regular accounts are subject to local banking regulations.

6. Investment Options :

NRI Banking offers specialized investment opportunities like NRI-specific mutual funds and portfolio investment schemes, while regular banking focuses on local investment options.

title: Conclusion : Nri banking, content: NRI Banking is a specialized financial service tailored for Indian citizens living abroad. With its diverse account types, tax benefits, NRI investment options, and seamless fund repatriation, NRI Banking plays a pivotal role in ensuring that NRIs can manage their finances effectively.

It bridges the gap between their mobility and financial commitments, offering flexibility, security, and convenience. As NRIs continue to make significant contributions to India's growth, NRI Banking is a vital resource that empowers them to navigate the complexities of international finance with ease and confidence . (NRI banking is governed by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) regulations, and the specific rules and benefits may vary among banks. It is important for NRIs to choose the right al of NRI account based on their individual financial goals and circumstances. Additionally, they should stay informed about changing regulations and consult with their bank or a financial advisor to ensure compliance with Indian financial laws.)

title: Can an NRI have a normal bank account?

, content: NRIs cannot have a regular savings bank account in India once they change their residential status to NRI. They must convert their regular savings account to NRO account.

title: What is the purpose of an NRI account?

, content: The primary purpose of an NRI account is to enable non-resident Indians to manage their finances in India with ease. There are different types of NRI accounts (NRE, NRO, FCNR-B). These are designed for specific purposes, including repatriation of funds, managing income generated in India, and safeguarding foreign currency deposits.

title: What are the rules of an NRI account?

, content: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) governs the rules for NRI accounts. These rules dictate the type of account an NRI can hold, the tax implications, repatriation guidelines, and eligibility criteria for NRI banking services.

title: Can an NRI open an account with a Zero balance?

, content: Most NRI accounts require an initial deposit at the time of opening. The minimum balance requirement varies from bank to bank and on the type of NRI account. NRI account with zero balance is uncommon, but some banks may offer promotional or special schemes with lower initial deposit requirements. It's best to check with the specific bank for their account policies and requirements.

title: Introduction, content: If you are considering opening an NRI account, a common concern that comes to mind is: What documents are required for an NRI account?

Arranging and verifying all the documents can take time and effort. Approving documents for an NRI account may also require significant time.

Even though it is best to learn more about the documents required for an NRI account from your financial institution, you can still have an overview to be better prepared.

In this article, we will discuss all the documents required for an NRI account and tips on preparing them.

title: Understand the Types of NRI Accounts

, content: It is essential to understand the various types of NRI accounts before we discuss the documents required to open an NRI account. There are mainly three types of NRI accounts: NRE Accounts, NRO Accounts, and FCNR Accounts. Here are their key features:

NRE Accounts

NRE stands for Non-Residential External.

NRE accounts are NRI bank accounts used to hold the earnings from the NRI's country of residence.

Money is held in INR after conversion.

Individuals have the option of savings, current accounts, and FDs.

The account balance is fully transferable.

Joint accounts can be opened only with an NRI.

NRO Accounts

NRO stands for Non-Residential Ordinary accounts.

NRI account holders use NRO Accounts to retain earnings originating in India.

Naturally, these earnings are held in INR.

The source of earnings can be rent, dividends, pensions, etc.

The balance can be transferred up to 1 million USD or its equivalent per year, while the interest earned on the balance remains fully transferable.

Joint accounts may be opened with an Indian resident or an NRI.

FCNR accounts

FCNR stands for Foreign Currency Non-Residential Accounts.

These are meant to hold earnings in currencies other than INR.

Individuals can make deposits in any of the nine currencies prescribed by the RBI for FCNR accounts, including USD, GBP, EUR, AUD, and CAD.

These accounts only allow fixed deposits with a minimum maturity period of 1 year up to 5 years.

Joint accounts can be opened only with an NRI.

Considering the varying currency exchange rates for these accounts is necessary. It is important to remember that while all these accounts are meant for Indians residing abroad, they have distinct use cases. Therefore, the process of opening these accounts may also differ depending on the country and the financial institution.

The primary documents required to open NRI accounts are similar, but there may be slight variations in NRI Account Opening Documents based on the type of account and the bank's policies.

Therefore, confirming the specific requirements about an NRI account with your chosen bank is crucial when understanding NRI account documents.

title: Basic Identification Documents

, content: Proof of Indian Origin

You need this to establish your Indian origins. A passport and visa are the standard documents used as proof of Indian origin.

The passport serves as primary proof of your identity, citizenship, and NRI status. The visa confirms your legal status as a non-resident Indian.

Therefore, always ensure that your passport and visa are valid and up-to-date.

You may need a Person of Indian Origin (PIO) or Overseas Citizen of India (OCI) card as additional proof of your Indian origin and NRI status.

Proof of Address

These documents are needed to verify your foreign residence. Generally, utility bills, bank statements, or rental agreements serve as proof of address.

To establish a foreign address, NRIs often need to provide documents like (any one):

- i. Passport issued in a foreign jurisdiction containing overseas address
- ii. Driving License issued in a foreign jurisdiction containing overseas address
- iii. Government-issued National ID having an address in the country of Residence
- iv. Utility Bill in the name of the customer (Electricity, Water, Gas, Telephone, Post-paid Mobile) – Not more than 2 months old
- v. Registered Tenancy / Rent/ Lease Agreement
- vi. Property or Municipal Tax Receipt
- vii. Letter of allotment of accommodation from employer issued by State Government or Central Government Departments, statutory or regulatory bodies, public sector undertakings, scheduled commercial banks, financial institutions and listed companies and leave and licence agreements with such employers allotting official accommodation
- viii. Original latest overseas bank account statement carrying overseas address - Not more than 2 months old
- ix. Employer's Certificate confirming overseas address
- x. Address proof of the blood relative as per points i) to ix) above (spouse, father, mother, sister, brother, and child) with whom NRI is staying along with supporting proof of relationship (Passport, PAN Card, Driving License, Voter Identity Card, Aadhaar Card, Marriage Certificate, Birth Certificate) and Declaration signed by relative
- xi. Letter/ Certificate I ID issued by foreign college/ university.

In case OVDs presented by OCI/PIO does not contain details of the Address, in such cases, a letter issued by the foreign embassy / mission in India or OCI / PIO Card having overseas address may also be accepted along with OVDs.

Additional Documents

Besides these essential documents needed for an NRI account, you may need to submit certain additional documents depending on your bank's policies and the type of account you hold.

PAN Card:

Some banks may require your PAN (Permanent Account Number) card in India, especially for income-related transactions.

Form 60:

You may need to apply for one or fill out Form 60 if you don't have a PAN card.

Form 60 is a declaration of the non-availability of a PAN card.

Whereas if you're opening an FCNR (Foreign Currency Non-Resident) account, you will need to complete a specific account opening form provided by the bank for the chosen foreign currency.

In addition to these, you may also need KYC for an NRI account.

Notarization and Apostille

In some cases, authorities may need to verify the validity and authenticity of the NRI account documents. For example, if you give someone a power of attorney over your NRI account or if affidavits or legal documents are involved, your bank may need to verify such documents.

Notarization and Apostille are two processes used for this purpose.

Notarization

Notarization is verifying the authenticity of a document or signature by a notary public, which means a legally authorised public officer. These officers are witnesses to document signings and verify the parties' identities. Notarization is basically done to prevent fraud and ensure the legality of the documents.

Apostille

Apostille is a specific form of authentication recognised under the Hague Convention of 1961. The Hague Convention provides a standard procedure for legalising and validating documents for use in foreign countries.

This is a critical step to ensure the validity and acceptance of all the documents needed for an NRI account in foreign countries.

To obtain an Apostille, you need to seek the help of the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) or its authorised branches in India.

title: Tips for Document Preparation

, content: Finding and managing all the NRI account requirements can be a hectic process. However, proper organisation and planning can help make the entire banking experience smooth and hassle-free. Here are a few tips to ensure all your NRI Account Opening Documents are available with you when you need them:

- Document Management System

You can opt for a Document Management system to get a systematic approach to organizing your documents. Consider organizing all your documents by address, identity, or account type.

- Use Digital Copies

It is better to use digital copies of important documents as they can be easily accessed and shared. They also have minimal risk of theft and loss of data.

Therefore, always consider scanning and digitising all your essential documents. Remember to back up these documents promptly and keep a check for document expiry to avoid data loss.

- Document naming conventions

If you name your documents well, there are fewer chances of losing or misplacing them. Consider naming your documents in detail, and specify the date and type of account as well. Review your documents frequently and keep them updated in case any information changes.

- Keep the physical copies secure

Some financial transactions may necessitate the use of physical copies. It is essential to keep these original documents safe, as they are typically irreplaceable. Consider storing them in a secure, fireproof safe, or a bank locker.

- Avoid document overload

Only keep those documents which you need. Unnecessary cluttering of your folders can lead to confusion and mess. Delete the older versions and extra copies in your storage folder.

- Seek professional assistance

It is always advised to consult a professional about an NRI account to manage your documents better. Keep any legal or financial assistance in the loop about your documentation, and stay informed. These tips will help you stay ordered and informed while opening an NRI account.

title: Parking Payments, content: Dear Reader, Increasing adoption of integrated automated solutions coupled with the advancements in wireless technologies are expected to drive the growth of smart parking market. Major technologies used for the deployment of efficient systems include sensing devices, machine-to-machine (M2M) communication, smart parking meters, data analytics, mobile apps for e-reservation of slots and online payments. According to Brand Essence Research Report, Global Smart Parking Market was valued at USD 5.62 Billion in 2018 and expected to reach USD 12.83 Billion by 2025 with a CAGR of 12.5% over the forecast period. In recent years, parking payments has drawn the attention of many FinTechs and digital payment solution providers. In India, National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) has introduced an interoperable system so that FASTags can be used to pay parking fees at malls, airports and other private parking lots across key metros - Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, and Bengaluru. Such payments will be contactless, which assumes significance in the wake of Corona virus pandemic. The NETC FASTag solution will work both as post-paid and pre-paid solutions for securing parking at a parking plaza. There will be no additional cost to customers with respect to the parking fee, other than the one-time purchase cost of the tag. There will also be dedicated FASTag lanes. In the US, Passport, a transportation software company supports the management of vehicle interactions with streets and sidewalks, through its robust digital parking payment technology. Passport supports over 1,000 clients of all sizes in North America and has processed more than $2B mobility transactions to date. Similarly, ParkMobile is another leading provider of smart parking and mobility solutions in North America, using a contactless approach to help people easily find, reserve and pay for parking on their mobile devices. Last month, Google announced entering into an advanced partnership with both Passport and ParkMobile. The parking payment feature can be availed in over 400 US cities, including Boston, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, New York and Washington DC. Simply tap on the 'Pay for Parking' button that appears as you near your destination. Then enter your meter number, the amount of time you want to park for, and tap 'Pay'. The payment will be processed through Google Pay application. Google Maps, along with Passport, is in the process of expanding the ability to pay for transit fares for "over 80 transit agencies" around the world, allowing the users to plan their trips, buy tickets and start riding without needing to toggle between multiple apps. We believe that the increased interest around the parking payment technology will provide an opportunity for IoT and mobility players to up their game and significantly increase revenue generation, to get back on track in the wake of the pandemic.

title: RegTech, content: Dear Reader, RegTech is the management of regulatory processes within the financial industry through technology. Regtech automates regulatory processes and ensures compliance with regulations. It uses technology to support the ongoing monitoring of regulations and facilitates necessary reporting. Regtech also creates transparency and consistency, as well as substantially increases the quality of risk management and compliance. Another advantage is greater security arising from the continuous monitoring of processes. Banks and financial companies have to act in accordance with many regulatory requirements. The UK-based startup REGnosys offers a regulatory technology compliance platform, called Rosetta. It aims at facilitating the implementation of the Common Domain Model (CDM) for financial sector players with programmatically enforced compliance mechanisms. The solution saves costs and risks based on a specific rule-based operational lifecycle design. Canadian startup Mind Bridge creates a financial data analytics platform for auditing, based on AI and machine learning. It leverages accounting data and incorporates domain expertise to detect mistakes and anomalies, spot potential risks and investigate specific cases with built-in natural language processing (NLP) search to help banks and financial institutions resolve issues encountered during regulatory compliance. Singapore-based startup Dathena utilizes AI to arrange a suite of regulatory data safeguarding tools for the financial, healthcare, travel and retail industries. This suite allows enterprises to organize their data repositories, manage secure access to files, classify data by importance and confidentiality, automate data protection policies implementation and ensure data security. Banks and financial organizations are obliged to cope with government norms and to regularly create and submit corresponding regulatory reports. Israeli startup Cappitech provides a regulatory reporting platform, Capptivate, for FinTechs. The solution automates data transfer, as well as report creation and submission. Besides, it validates given information and reformats it in accordance with regulatory requirements, monitors the reporting status and provides feedback on past reports. Chile-based startup Ceptinel has developed a real-time regulatory monitoring system for financial companies. As government laws, regulations and procedures tend to change over time, established companies and FinTechs alike need to stay aware of any pending requirements, modifications in norms, or new state guidelines related to their business. It applies machine learning and complex event processing algorithms to treat large amounts of data coming from various sources to ensure compliance with new regulatory requirements. Regtech increases effectiveness, efficiency, security and transparency for all market participants, enabling them to focus on their core competence, safe in the knowledge that they are operating in accordance with the legal and regulatory requirements.

title: Pehchaan Con !
, content: Decoding Pehchaan Con; a message against digital frauds

Remember the day when a person had to walk up to the Bank for every banking service? Time passed by and slowly technology bloomed making it easier for people to perform all banking functions online. But, with every advantage comes a disadvantage. So it is with technology.

The increase in digital banking has also led to a rise in digital frauds. Since 2018, there has been a continuous increase in reported incidents of cybercrime and the numbers don't seem to decrease even in 2022. As technology progresses each day, what also progresses is digital frauds.

Amidst the increasing cybercrime numbers, Banking institutions took it upon themselves to make sure that people were more aware of the frauds that can happen in their day-to-day lives. Banks have sensitive data of their Customers and hence, it becomes all the more important for people to understand how well they can protect themselves from the scams. Bank of Baroda also took the onus of speaking about the same. But, just informing people about the scams was not going to cut it anymore. The audience needed more than awareness. They needed to be nudged to act on it. And that's how "Pehchaan Con" sprung to birth.

title: The Big Idea

, content: The audience that is spoken to is well aware of the fraudulent practices. Thus, the idea takes two steps forward and provides them with the knowledge to fight these scams. It gives people slices of life situations that pose as potential frauds forcing a reaction out of them. A reaction of identifying the Con aka Pehchaan Con and vocally shutting them down with their knowledge of it.

To take the same message ahead, Bank of Baroda released 6 digital films that cater to 6 different kinds of viewers targeting different age groups and kinds of frauds. These films are entertaining and informative at the same time, forcing the audience to think while they see. They remind the audience of instances that may have transpired with them or around them. With the quirky tone of the films, it attempts to make the audience recall the films, thereby leaving them with the message.

Cybercrime security has become a very vital issue. This has forced the Government to educate its citizens about Banking frauds and scams. Hence, the first Wednesday of every month is regarded as Cyber Jagrookta Diwas. Bank of Baroda is also aligning its cybercrime security initiatives with Cyber Jagrookta Diwas.

On every first Wednesday of the month, Bank of Baroda releases a short film with a text message on fraud awareness trying its best to communicate with its audience in a consistent and relatable manner.

Bank of Baroda has also extended its wings to Cinema Branding. We all know how audiences enjoy watching movies in theatres and how they pay attention to everything that's played on the big screen before and after the movie. Hence, Pehchaan Con advertisements are also shown in cinema halls so that they can reach a wider range of audience and educate them.

title: The way forward

, content: Pehchaan Con germinated as a campaign idea but has snowballed into an initiative, which Bank of Baroda is more than happy to start and be a part of along the journey. In the near future, plans to amplify the reach through influencer level activity on Social media and PR initiatives are also on the cards. More so, a full-fledged TVC campaign is also envisaged. With this, the Bank aims and wishes that every viewer is educated, empowered and equipped to fight such scams everyday.

title: Personal Loan EMI Calculator

, content: You can calculate your loan with the Bank of Baroda Personal Loan EMI calculator tool. This personal loan EMI calculator online calculates the EMI value in no time.
